In every Story Recesses may be formed, but only with the Consent and Authority of the Official Referees first had and obtained, and so that such Recesses be arched over, and so that the Back of any such Recess be not nearer than Seven Inches to the Centre of the Party Wall in the first or lowest Story, nor nearer than Four Inches to the Centre of the Party Wall in any other Story, and so that the Stability and Sufficiency of such Party Wall be not injuriously affected thereby.

If any Chases be required for the insertion of Ends of Walls, of Piers, of Chimney Jambs, of Withes, of Flues, of Metal Pipes, or of Iron Story Posts, then every Chase for any such Purpose must not be left or be cut nearer than Four Inches at the least to the Centre of a Party Wall, nor within a Distance of Nine Inches at the least from any front or back Wall, and no Two such Chases must be made within a Distance of Seven Feet Six Inches at the least from each other on the same Side of a Wall, and no such Chase must be formed wider than Nine Inches.

PART IV.—PARTY WALLS AND PARTY ARCHES BETWEEN INTERMIXED PROPERTY.

And with regard to any Building already built, having Rooms or Floors, the Property of different Owners, which lie inter-mixed, without being separated by any Party Wall or Party Arch or Stone Floor,—
If any such Building be altogether rebuilt or to the extent of One Fourth of the cubical Contents thereof, then such inter-mixed Properties must be separated from each other, as follows:
If they adjoin vertically, then so far as they adjoin vertically they must be separated by a Party Wall.
If they adjoin horizontally, then so far as they adjoin horizontally they must be separated either by a Floor formed of Brick, Tile, Stone, or other proper and sufficient incombustible Materials, subject to the Consent of the Official Referees, or by a Floor formed of Iron Girders and Brick Arches, or Stone Landings, or Tiles, or by a Party Arch or Party Arches of Brick or Stone of the Thickness of Nine Inches at the least, if the Span do not exceed Nine Feet, and Thirteen Inches at the least if the Span exceed Nine Feet; and such Floor or Party Arch or Party Arches must be built with sufficient Abutments, and in a sufficient Manner.

PART V.—BUILDINGS OVER PUBLIC WAYS.

And with regard to Buildings extending over any public Way, as to the Part thereof which extends over such Way, so far as relates to the Separation of such Part from such public Way,—
If such Part be rebuilt, then it must be separated from such public Way either by a Floor or Arch formed of Brick or Stone or of other incombustible materials, subject to the Consent of the Official Referees, or by a Floor formed of Iron Girders and Brick Arches, or Stone Landings, or by an Arch formed of Brick or of Stone; which Arch, if the Span thereof do not exceed Nine Feet, must be of the Thickness of Nine Inches at the least, and which, if the Span exceed Nine Feet, must be of the Thickness of Thirteen Inches at the least.
And such Floor or Arch, with its Abutments, must be built in such Manner as shall be approved of by the Surveyor; but there must not be formed over any public Way a Ceiling of Lath and Plaster, or of Lath and Cement.

SCHEDULE (E).—(See § 5.)

RULES concerning external PROJECTIONS.

Porticoes projected over public Ways.

And with regard to the Portico or Porticoes of any Church, Chapel, Theatre, or other public Building of the Third Class,—
If the building of the same shall have been previously sanctioned by the Official Referees, by Writing under their hands, and if Objection be not made by any Party interested within One Month thereafter, and if, upon such Objection or Appeal, Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State acting for the Home Department do not decide in favour thereof, then such Projections may be built over the Foot Pavement of any Street or Alley which shall be Fifty Feet wide at the least (notwithstanding any Act heretofore passed to the contrary).

Projections from Face Walls, &c.

And further, with regard to Buildings hereafter to be built or rebuilt, in reference to Projections therefrom,—
As to Copings, Parapets, Cornices to overhanging Roofs, Blocking Courses, Cornices, Piers, Columns, Pilasters, Entablatures, Facias, Door and Window Dressings, or other Architectural Decorations, forming Part of an external Wall, all such may project beyond the general Line of Fronts in any Street or Alley, but they must be built of the same Materials as are by this Act directed to be used for building the external Walls to which such Projections belong, or of such other proper and sufficient Materials as the Official Referees may approve and permit.
And as to all Balconies, Verandahs, Porches, Porticoes, Shop Fronts, open Inclosures of open Areas, and Steps, and Water Pipes, and to all other Projections from external Walls not forming Part thereof, every such Projection (except such Part of Shop Fronts, and the Frames and Sashes of the Windows and Doors, in reference to the necessary Wood-work thereof,) may stand beyond the general Line of Fronts in any Street or Alley, but they must be built of Brick, Tile, Stone, Artificial Stone, Slate, Cement, or Metal, or other proper and sufficient Fire-proof Materials; and they must be so built as not to overhang the Ground belonging to any other Owner, and so as to obstruct the Light and Air or be otherwise injurious to the Owners or Occupiers of the Buildings adjoining thereto on any Side thereof.

Projections from Walls of Buildings over public Ways.

And with regard to all Buildings hereafter to be built or rebuilt, in reference to Projections from the Walls of such Buildings, including Steps, Cellar Doors, and Area Inclosures, the Walls of all such Buildings must be set back so that all Projections therefrom, and also all Steps, Cellar Doors, and Area Inclosures, shall only overhang or occupy the Ground of the Owner of such Building, without overhanging or encroaching upon any public Way.

Projected Buildings beyond the general Line of Buildings and from other external Walls.

And with regard to Buildings already built or hereafter to be rebuilt, as to Bow Windows or other Projections of any Kind,—Such Projections must neither be built with nor be added to any Building on any Face of an external Wall thereof, so as to extend beyond the general Line of the Fronts of the Houses (which general Line may be determined by the Surveyor), except so far as is hereinbefore provided with regard to Porticoes projected over public Ways, and with regard to Projections from Face Walls and Shop Fronts, nor so as to overhang the Ground belonging to any other Owner, nor so as to obstruct the Light and Air or be otherwise injurious to the Owners or Occupiers of the Buildings adjoining thereto on any Side thereof.

Projections from insulated Buildings.

Provided always, with regard to any insulated Buildings, that if the Projections be at the least Eight Feet from any public Way, and if they be at least Twenty Feet from any other Building not in the same Occupation, then such Projections are exempted from the Rules and Directions of this Act.

Wooden Shop Fronts and Shutters.

And with regard to Shop Fronts and their Entablatures, their Shutters, and Pilasters and Stall Boards made of Wood,—If the Street or Alley in which such Front is situate be of less Width than Thirty Feet, then no Part of such Shop Front must be higher in any Part thereof than Fifteen Feet; nor must any Part, except the Cornice, project from the Face of a Wall, whether there be an Area or not, more than Five Inches; nor must the Cornice project therefrom more than Thirteen Inches.
If the Street or Alley be of a greater Width than Thirty Feet, then no Part of such Shop Front, except the Cornice, must project from the Face of a Wall, whether there be an Area or not, more than Ten Inches; nor must the Cornice project therefrom more than Eighteen Inches.
And the Width of such Street or Alley must be ascertained by measuring the same, as hereinafter directed with regard to the Widths of Streets and Alleys.
And the Wood-work of any Shop Front must not be fixed nearer than Four and a Half Inches to the centre Line of a Party Wall.
And with regard to such Wood-work, if it be put up at such Distance of Four and a Half Inches, then a Pier or Corbel built of Stone or of Brick or other incombustible Material, and of the Width of Four and a Half Inches at the least, must be fixed in the Line of the Party Wall, so as to be as high as such Wood-work, and so as to project One Inch at the least in front of the Face thereof.
And the Height of every Shop Front must be ascertained by measuring from the Level of the public Foot Pavement in front of the Building.
And every Sign or Notice Board fixed against or upon any Part of any House or other Building standing close to any public Way must be so fixed that the Top shall be within Eighteen Feet at the most above the Level of such public Way.

SCHEDULE (F.).—(See § 5.)

RULES CONCERNING CHIMNEYS hereafter built or rebuilt.

Construction.

With regard to Chimneys and Chimney Stacks, except angle Chimneys, in reference to the Construction thereof,—The Foundations and Footings of every such Chimney and Chimney Stack must be built similar to those of the Wall in or adjoining to which it shall be.
And every such Chimney and Chimney Stack must be built from the Foundation to the Top thereof without any Corbelling over, whereby any upper Part of the Brick-work of such Chimney or Chimney Stack shall overhang any lower Part of the Brick-work on the Front thereof.
Nevertheless, with regard to Buildings of the First Rate and extra First Rate, the Jambs, Breast, and Flue of any single Chimney may be built upon Brick, Stone, or Iron Corbels above the Ceiling of the Third Story of every such Building.
And with regard to Buildings of the Second and Third Rates, the Jambs, Breast, and Flue in any single Chimney may be built upon Brick, Stone, or Iron Corbels above the Ceiling of the Second Story of every such Building.
But the Projection both of such Jambs and Breasts must not in any Case exceed Nine Inches before the Face of the Wall or Stack to which the same shall adjoin.
And with regard to angle Chimneys, such Chimneys may be built in the internal Angle of any Building, so that the Width of the Breast thereof do not exceed Five Feet, and so that it be properly supported on Iron Girders with Brick Arches, or on strong Stone Landings not less than Four Inches thick, and tailed at least Nine Inches into each of the Two Walls forming such Angle.

Dimensions and Materials.

And with regard to Chimneys, in reference to the Dimensions of the Jambs thereof,—

The Jambs of every Chimney must not be less than Eight and a Half Inches wide on each Side of such Opening.

And with regard to Chimneys and Flues, in reference to the Thickness of the Brick-work thereof,—

The Breast of every Chimney, and the Front, Back, Withe, or Partition of every Flue, must be at the least Four Inches in Thickness of sound Bricks, properly bonded, and the Joints of the Work must be filled in with good Mortar or Cement, and all the Inside thereof, and also the Outside or Face thereof next the Interior of any Building, must be rendered or pargetted.

And with regard to Flues, in reference to the Dimensions thereof, no Flue may be used for a Smoke Flue which is of less internal Diameter in any Section than Eight and a Half Inches.

Timber or Wood-work.

And with regard to Chimneys, in reference to Timber,—

No Timber must be placed over any Opening for supporting the Breast of any Chimney, but there must be an Arch of Brick or Stone over the Opening of every such Chimney, to support the Breast thereof, and an Iron Bar or Bars must be built into the Jambs, at the least Nine Inches on each Side, to tie in the Abutments whenever the Breast projects more than Four and a Half Inches from the Face of the Wall, and the Jamb on either Side is of less Width than Two Thirds of the Opening.

And no Timber or Wood-work must be placed or laid in any Wall under any Chimney Opening within Eighteen Inches at the least of the Surface of the Hearth to the Fireplace of such Chimney Opening.

And as to any Timber or Wood-work, in reference to the fixing thereof in or against any Wall containing Flues or against any Chimney Breast or Chimney Jamb,—

If Timber or Wood-work be affixed to the Front of any Jamb or Mantle, or to the Front or Back of any Chimney or Flue, then it must be fixed by Iron Nails or Holdfasts, or other Iron Fastenings, which must not be or be driven nearer than Four Inches to the Inside of any Flue or to the Opening of any Chimney, and such Timber or Wood-work must not be nearer than Nine Inches to the Opening of any Chimney.

And no Timber must be laid or placed within Three Inches of the Face, or Breast, Back, Side, or Jamb of any Flue, or of any Chimney Opening, where the Substance of Brick-work or Stone-work shall be less than Eight and a Half Inches thick, nor must any Flooring Board, Batten, Ground Skirting, or other Lining or Fitting of Wood, nor any Wood Staircase, nor anything else of Wood, be fixed or placed against or near to the Face, or Breast, Back, Side, or Jamb of any Flue, Fireplace, or Chimney Opening, unless and until the Brick or Stone-work constituting the same shall have been thoroughly and efficiently rendered or pargetted with proper Mortar or Stucco, and such rendering must be in every Case in addition to Four Inches at least of solid Fire-proof Structure.

Slabs and Hearths.

And a Slab or Slabs of Brick, Tile, Stone, Slate, Marble, or other proper and sufficient Substance, at the least Twelve Inches longer than the Opening of every Chimney when finished, and at the least Eighteen Inches in front of the Arch over the same, must be laid before the Opening of every Chimney.

And in every Floor, except the lowest Floor, such Slab or Slabs must be laid wholly upon Stone or Iron Bearers, or upon Brick Trimmers; but in the lowest Floor they may be laid on a Brick Fender, or bedded on the solid Ground.

And the Hearth of every Chimney must be laid and bedded wholly on Brick or Stone, or other incombustible Substance, which must be solid for a Thickness of Nine Inches at the least, beneath the Surface of any such Hearth.

Backs.

And as to the Back of every Chimney Opening of every Building (except Backs of Chimneys in the lowest Story of Buildings of the Fourth Rate), every such Back, in the lowest Story, must be at the least Thirteen Inches thick from the Hearth to the Height of Twelve Inches above the Mantle, and in every other Story at the least Eight and a Half Inches thick up to the same relative Height.

And as to the Backs of Chimney Openings in the lowest Story of Buildings of the Fourth Rate, such Backs must be at the least Eight and a Half Inches thick to the Height of Twelve Inches at the least above the Level of the Mantle:

Provided always, that if the Chimney be built in any Wall, not being a Party Wall, then the Back of every such Chimney Opening may be Four and a Half Inches less than the several thicknesses above described.

Chimney Openings, Back to Back.

And as to Backs of all such Chimney Openings, if Two Chimneys be built Back to Back, then the Thickness between the same must be at the least of the Thickness hereinbefore described for the Back of One Chimney Opening.

Angles of Flues.

And as to all Flues, in reference to the Angles thereof,—

If any Flue be built with sufficient Openings in it of not less Size than Nine Inches square, and proper close Iron Doors and Frames inserted in such Openings, so that every part of such Flue may be swept by Machinery, then every Angle in such Flue may be of any Degree.

But if it be not so built then every such Angle must be One hundred and thirty-five Degrees at the least.

And every salient or projecting Angle within a Flue must be rounded off Four Inches at the least, and protected by a rounded Stone or Iron Bar.

Close Fires.

And as to every Oven, Furnace, Cokel, or close Fire used for the Purpose of Trade or Manufacture, it must be Six Inches at the least distant from any Party Wall, and must not be upon nor within a Distance of Eighteen Inches of any Timber or Wood-work.

And the Floor on or above which such Oven, Furnace, Cokel, or close Fire shall be built or fixed must be formed and paved under, and for a Distance of Two Feet all round the same, with Stone, Brick, Tile, or Slate, at the least Two Inches thick, or other proper incombustible and non-conducting Materials.

Chimney Shafts.

And as to Chimney Shafts or Flues,—

Every Chimney Shaft or Flue hereafter built, raised, or repaired, must be carried up in Brick or Stone-work all round, at least Four Inches thick, to a Height of not less than Three Feet above the highest Part of such Portion of the Roof, Flat, or Gutter, adjoining thereto, measured at the Point of Junction.

And as to any Chimney Shaft (except that of a Steam-Engine, Brewery, Distillery, or Manufactory), the Brick or Stone-work of such Shaft or Flue must not be built higher than Eight Feet above the Slope, Flat, or Gutter of the Roof which it adjoins, measured from the highest Point of Junction, unless such Chimney Shaft be built of increased Thickness, or be built with and bonded to another Chimney Shaft, or be otherwise rendered secure.

And as to the Chimney Shaft for the Boiler Furnaces of any Steam-Engine, or for any Brewery, Distillery, or Manufactory, such Shaft may be erected of any Height, so that it be built in such manner and of such Strength and Dimensions as shall be satisfactory to the Official Referees, upon special Application in each Case.

Chimney Pots, Tubes, &c.

And as to Earthen or Metal Chimney Pots, Tubes, Funnels, or Cows of any Description whatsoever, if such Pot, Tube, Funnel, or Cowl be higher than Four Feet above the Brick or Stone-work of the Flue on which the same shall be placed, then it must be fixed Two Feet at the least into the Brick or Stone Work of the Flue on which it shall be placed.

Smoke Pipes.

And as to any Metal or other Pipe or Funnel for conveying Smoke, heated Air, or Steam, in reference to the Position thereof, such Pipe or Funnel must not be fixed against or in front of any Face of any Building in any Street or Alley, nor on the Inside of any Building nearer than Fourteen Inches to any Timber or other combustible Material.

Cuttings into Chimneys.

And as to every Chimney Shaft, Jamb, Breast, or Flue already built, or which shall be hereafter built, in reference to cutting the same, no such Erection shall be cut into for any other Purpose than the repair thereof, or for the Formation of Soot Doors, or for letting in, removing, or altering Stove Pipes or Smoke Jacks, except as directed for building an external Wall against an old sound Party Wall.

SCHEDULE (G.)—(See § 5.)RULES concerning ROOF COVERINGS.Materials.*

With regard to Roof Coverings, in reference to the Materials thereof,—

If the external Parts of any Roof, Flat, or Gutter of any Building, or of any Projection therefrom, and of any Turret, Dormer, Lantern-light, and other Erection on the Roof, or Flat of any Building, be hereafter built or rebuilt, stripped, ripped or uncovered, then every such Part (except the Door Frames and Doors, Window Frames and Sashes of such Turrets, Dormers, Lantern-lights, or other Erections,) must be covered with Slates, Tiles, Metal, Glass, artificial Stone or Cement, and such excepted Parts may be made of such Wood as shall be necessary.

Rain-Water Pipes.

And with regard to the Roof, Flat, and Gutter of any building, and of any Projection therefrom, and also Balconies, Verandahs, and Shop Fronts, they must be so arranged and constructed, and so supplied with Gutters and Pipes, as to prevent the Water therefrom dropping on to or running over any public Way.

SCHEDULE (H.)—(See § 5 & 51.)RULES concerning DRAINS to Buildings hereafter built.Drains into Sewers.*

With regard to the Drains of Buildings of any Class, and of every addition thereto,—

Before the several Walls of any such Building shall have been built to the Height of Ten Feet from their Foundations the Drains thereof must have been properly built and made good; (that is to say) if there be within One hundred Feet from any Front of the Building, or from the Inclosure about the Building, a Common Sewer into which it is lawful and practicable to drain, then into such Common Sewer; and if there be not in such Situation and within such Distance any such Common Sewer, then to the best Outlet that can be obtained, so as to render in either Case such Drains available for the Drainage of the lowest Floor of such Building, or Addition thereto, and also of its Areas, Water-closets, Privies, and Offices (if any).

And the Inside of the Main Drains under and from every Building for carrying off Soil must be in transverse Section at the least equal to a circular Area of at least Nine Inches in Diameter.

And every such Drain must be laid to a Fall or Current of at the least Half an Inch to Ten Feet, and so as that the whole of every such Drain within the Walls of such Building shall be wholly covered over under the lowest Floor, and independently thereof.

And every such Drain within the Walls of such Building must be built and covered over with Brick, Stone, or Slate, and so as to render the Drain air-tight.

And every Part of such Drain inside and outside the Walls of every Building must be built of Brick, Tile, Stone, or Slate, set in Mortar or Cement.

Cesspools and Privies.

And with regard to Cesspools and Privies,—

If there be a Common Sewer within Fifty Feet from any Front of or from the Inclosure about any House or other Building, then a Cesspool must not be made for the Reception of Drainage from such House or other Building, unless there be or shall be built a good and sufficient Drain from such Cesspool to such Common Sewer.

And if any Cesspool be built under a House or other Building, then such Cesspool must be built air-tight.

And every Privy built in the Yard or Area of any Building, or under any Street or Alley, must have a Door, and be otherwise properly inclosed, screened, and fenced from public View.

SCHEDULE (I.)—(See § 5 & 52.)

RULES concerning STREETS and ALLEYS hereafter formed.

Width.

With regard to every such Street or Alley hereafter to be formed, in reference to the Width thereof, every Street or Alley must be of at the least the following Width from Front to Front in every part thereof respectively; that is to say,—

Every Street (excepting any Mews) must be of the Width of Forty Feet at the least; but if the Buildings fronting any Street be more than Forty Feet high from the Level of the Street, then such Street must be of a Width equal at the least to the Height of the Buildings above such Level.

Every Alley and every Mews must be of the Width of Twenty Feet at the least; but if the Buildings fronting any Alley, or to any Mews, be more than Twenty Feet high from the Level of the Alley or Mews, then such Alley or Mews must be of a Width equal at the least to the Height of the Buildings above such Level.

Entrances to Alleys.

And with regard to every such Alley, in reference to the Entrance thereof, every Alley must have Two Entrances thereto, each being at the least of the full Width of the Alley, and one of the Two at the least open from the Ground upwards.

Measurement of Width.

And with regard both to such Streets and Alleys, the aforesaid Width is to be ascertained by measuring (at Right Angles to the Course thereof) from Front to Front of the Buildings on each Side of such Street or Alley.

SCHEDULE (K.)—(See § 5 & 53.)

RULES concerning DWELLING HOUSES hereafter built or rebuilt, with regard to Back Yards and Areas, and Rooms under Ground and in the Roof.

Back Yards.

With regard to Back Yards or open Spaces attached to Dwelling Houses,—

Every House hereafter built or rebuilt must have an inclosed Back Yard or open Space of at the least One Square, exclusive of any Building thereon, unless all the Rooms of such House can be lighted and ventilated from the Street, or from an Area of the Extent of at least Three Quarters of a Square above the Level of the Second Story, into which the Owner of the House to be rebuilt is entitled to open Windows for every Room adjoining thereto.

And if any House already built be hereafter rebuilt, then, unless all the Rooms of such House can be lighted and ventilated from the Street, or from an Area of the Extent of at the least Three Quarters of a Square, into which the Owner of the House to be rebuilt is entitled to open Windows for every Room adjoining thereto, there must be above the Level of the Floor of the Third Story an open Space of at least Three Quarters of a Square.

And with regard to every Building of the First Class,—

Every such Building must be built with some Roadway, either to it or to the Inclosure about it, of such Width as will admit to one of its Fronts of the Access of a Scavenger's Cart of the ordinary Size of such Carts.

Lowermost Rooms.

And with regard to the lowermost Rooms of Houses, being Rooms of which the Surface of the Floor is more than Three Feet below the Surface of the Footway of the nearest Street or Alley, and to Cellars of Buildings hereafter to be built or rebuilt,—If any such Room or Cellar be used or intended to be used as a separate Dwelling, then the Floor thereof must not be below the Surface or Level of the Ground immediately adjoining thereto, unless it have an Area, Fireplace, and Window as required for Rooms and Cellars of existing Buildings let separately, and used as a separate Dwelling, and unless it be properly drained.

And with regard to every such lowermost Room or Cellar in any existing Building used or intended to be used as a separate dwelling,—

There must be an Area not less than Three Feet wide in every Part, from Six Inches below the Floor of such Room or Cellar to the Surface or Level of the Ground adjoining to the front, back, or external Side thereof, and extending the full Length of such Side.

And such Area, to the Extent of at least Five Feet long and Two Feet Six Inches wide, must be in front of the Window of such Room or Cellar, and must be open, or covered only with open Iron Gratings.

And there must be made for every such Room or Cellar an open Fireplace, with proper Flue therefrom.

And there must be a Window Opening of at the least Nine superficial Feet in Area, which Window Opening must be fitted with a Frame filled in with glazed Sashes, of which at the least Four and a Half superficial Feet must be made to open for Ventilation.

Attic Rooms.

And with regard to Rooms in the Roof of any Building hereafter built or rebuilt, in reference to the Number of Floors of Rooms in the Roof, and to the Height of such Rooms, there must not be more than One Floor of such Rooms, and such Rooms must not be of a less Height than Seven Feet, except the sloping Part, if any, of such Roof, which sloping Part must not begin at less than Three Feet Six Inches above the Floor, nor extend more than Three Feet Six Inches on the Ceiling of such Room.

Rooms in other Parts.

And with regard to Rooms in other Parts of the Building, in reference to the Height thereof, every Room used or intended to be used as a separate Dwelling must be of, at the least, the Height of Seven Feet from the Floor to the Ceiling.

SCHEDULE (L.)

CAP. LXXXV.

AN ACT to attach certain Conditions to the Construction of future Railways authorized or to be authorized by any Act of the present or succeeding Sessions of Parliament; and for other Purposes in relation to Railways.

(9th August 1844.)

ABSTRACT OF THE ENACTMENTS.

1. If, after twenty-one years from the passing of the Act for the construction of any future railway, the profits shall exceed 10l. per cent., the Treasury may revise the scale of tolls, and fix a new scale.—Proviso.
2. Option of purchase of future railways.—Proviso.
3. Existing railways not to be subjected to the options.
4. Reservation to Parliament of the consideration of future policy in regard to the said options.
5. Accounts to be kept, and to be open to inspection.
6. Companies to provide one cheap train each way daily.
7. Penalty for non-compliance.
8. Board of Trade to have a discretionary power of allowing alternative arrangements.
9. When no tax to be levied.
10. Where companies run trains on the Sunday, cheap trains to be likewise provided.
11. Railway companies to afford additional facilities for the transmission of the mails.
12. Certain companies to convey military and police forces at certain charges.
13. Companies to allow lines of electrical telegraph to be established.
14. Electrical telegraph established by private parties to be open to the public.
15. Appointment of inspectors by Board of Trade.
16. Repealing provision of 3 & 4 Vict. c. 97.
17. If railway companies contravene or exceed the provisions of their Acts, or of any general Act, the Board of Trade to certify the same to the Attorney General, &c., who shall proceed against them.
18. Notice to be given to the company.—Prosecutions to be under the sanction of the Board of Trade, and within one year after the offence.
19. Issue of loan notes and other illegal securities by railway companies prohibited.—Loan notes already issued may be renewed.
20. Loan notes already issued to be paid when due.
21. Register of loan notes.

- 22. Remedy for recovery of tithe-rent charged on railway land.
- 23. Communications to and from Board of Trade, service of notices, &c.
- 24. Penalties.
- 25. Interpretation of Act.
- 26. Act may be amended this session.

By this Act,

After reciting that it is expedient that the concession of powers for the establishment of new lines of railway should be subjected to such conditions as are hereinafter contained for the benefit of the public:—

It is Enacted,

1. That if at any time after the end of twenty-one years from and after the 1st of January next after the passing of any Act of the present or of any future session of Parliament for the construction of any new line of passenger railway, whether such new line be a trunk, branch, or junction line, and whether such new line be constructed by a new company incorporated for the purpose, or by any existing company, the clear annual profits divisible upon the subscribed and paid-up capital stock of the said railway, upon the average of the three then last preceding years, shall equal or exceed the rate of 10*l*. for every 100*l*. of such paid-up capital stock, it shall be lawful for the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, subject to the provisions hereinafter contained, upon giving to the said company three calendar months notice in writing of their intention so to do, to revise the scale of tolls, fares, and charges limited by the Act or Acts relating to the said railway, and to fix such new scale of tolls, fares, and charges, applicable to such different classes and kinds of passengers, goods, and other traffic on such railway, as in the judgment of the said Lords Commissioners, assuming the same quantities and kinds of traffic to continue, shall be likely to reduce the said divisible profits to the said rate of 10*l*. in the 100*l*.: Provided always, that no such revised scale shall take effect, unless accompanied by a guarantee to subsist as long as any such revised scale of tolls, fares, and charges shall be in force, that the said divisible profits, in case of any deficiency therein, shall be annually made good to the said rate of 10*l*. for every 100*l*. of such capital stock: Provided also, that such revised scale shall not be again revised or such guarantee withdrawn, otherwise than with the consent of the company, for the further period of twenty-one years.

11. That whatever may be the rate of divisible profits on any such railway it shall be lawful for the said Lords Commissioners, if they shall think fit, subject to the provisions hereinafter contained, at any time after the expiration of the said term of twenty-one years, to purchase any such railway, with all its hereditaments, stock, and appurtenances, in the name and on behalf of Her Majesty, upon giving to the said company three calendar months notice in writing of their intention, and upon payment of a sum equal to twenty-five years purchase of the said annual divisible profits, estimated on the average of the three then next preceding years: Provided that if the average rate of profits for the said three years shall be less than the rate of 10*l*. in the 100*l*., it shall be lawful for the company, if they shall be of opinion that the said rate of twenty-five years purchase of the said average profits is an inadequate rate of purchase of such railway, reference being had to the prospects thereof, to require that it shall be left to arbitration, in case of difference, to determine what (if any) additional amount of purchase-money shall be paid to the said company: Provided also, that such option of purchase shall not be exercised, except with the consent of the company, while any such revised scale of tolls, fares, and charges shall be in force.

111. Provided and enacted, That the option of revision or purchase shall not be applied to any railway made or authorized to be made by any Act previous to the present session; and that no branch or extension of less than five miles in length of any such line of railway shall be taken to be a new railway within the provisions of this Act; and that the said option of purchase shall not be exercised as regards any branch or extension of any railway, without including such railway in the purchase, in case the proprietors thereof shall require that the same be so included.

And after reciting that it is expedient that the policy of revision or purchase should in no manner be prejudged by the provisions of this Act, but should remain for the future consideration of the legislature, upon grounds of general and national policy: And that it is not the intention of this Act that under the said powers of revision or purchase, if called into use, the public resources should be employed to sustain an undue competition against any independent company or companies:—

It is Enacted,

1*v*. That no such notice as hereinbefore mentioned, whether of revision or purchase, shall be given until provision shall have been made by Parliament, by an Act or Acts to be passed in that behalf, for authorizing the guarantee or the levy of the purchase money hereinbefore mentioned, as the case may be, and for determining, subject to the conditions hereinbefore mentioned, the manner in which the said options or either of them shall be exercised; and that no bill for giving powers to exercise the said options, or either of them, shall be received in either House of Parliament unless it be recited in the preamble to such bill that three months notice of the intention to apply to Parliament for such powers has been given by the said Lords Commissioners to the company or companies to be affected thereby.

v. That, from and after the commencement of the period of three years next preceding the period at which the option of revision or purchase becomes available, full and true accounts shall be kept of all sums of money received and paid on account of any railway within the provisions hereinbefore contained, (distinguishing, if the said railway shall be a branch railway, or one worked in common with other railways, the receipts, and giving an estimate of the expenses on account of the said railway, from those on account of the trunk line, or other railways,) by the directors of the company to whom such railway belongs or by whom the same may be worked; and every such railway company shall once in every half year during the said period of three years cause a half-yearly account in abstract to be prepared, shewing the total receipt and expenditure on account of the said railway for the half year ending the 30th of June and the 31st of December respectively, or such other convenient days as shall in each case be directed by the said Lords Commissioners, under distinct heads of receipt and expenditure, with a statement of the balance of such account, duly audited and certified under the hands of two or more directors of the said railway company, and shall send a copy of the said account to the said Lords Commissioners on or before the last days of August and February respectively, or such other days as shall in each case be directed by the said Lords Commissioners, in each year; and it shall be lawful for the said Lords Commissioners, if and when they shall think fit, to appoint any proper person or persons to inspect the accounts and books of the said company during the said period of three years; and it shall be lawful for any person so authorized, at all reasonable times, upon producing his authority, to examine the books, accounts, vouchers, and other documents of the company at the principal office or place of business of the company, and to take copies or extracts therefrom.

And after reciting that it is expedient to secure to the poorer class of travellers the means of travelling by railway at moderate fares, and in carriages in which they may be protected from the weather:—

It is Enacted,

VI. That on and after the several days hereinafter specified all passenger railway companies which shall have been incorporated by any Act of the present session, or which shall be hereafter incorporated, or which by any Act of the present or any future session have obtained or shall obtain, directly or indirectly, any extension or amendment of the powers conferred on them respectively by their previous Acts, or have been or shall be authorized to do any act unauthorized by the provisions of such previous Acts, shall, by means of one train at the least to travel along their railway from one end to the other of each trunk, branch, or junction line belonging to or leased by them, so long as they shall continue to carry other passengers over such trunk, branch, or junction line, once at the least each way on every week day, except Christmas Day and Good Friday (such exception not to extend to Scotland), provide for the conveyance of third class passengers to and from the terminal and other ordinary passenger stations of the railway, under the obligations contained in their several Acts of Parliament, and with the immunities applicable by law to carriers of passengers by railway; and also under the following conditions (that is to say,)

Such train shall start at an hour to be from time to time fixed by the directors, subject to the approval of the Lords of the Committee of Privy Council for Trade and Plantations:

Such train shall travel at an average rate of speed not less than twelve miles an hour for the whole distance travelled on the railway, including stoppages:

Such train shall, if required, take up and set down passengers at every passenger station which it shall pass on the line: The carriages in which passengers shall be conveyed by such train shall be provided with seats, and shall be protected from the weather in a manner satisfactory to the Lords of the said Committee:

The fare or charge for each third class passenger by such train shall not exceed one penny for each mile travelled:

Each passenger by such train shall be allowed to take with him half a hundred weight of luggage, not being merchandise or other articles carried for hire or profit, without extra charge; and any excess of luggage shall be charged by weight, at a rate not exceeding the lowest rate of charge for passengers luggage by other trains:

Children under three years of age accompanying passengers by such train shall be taken without any charge, and children of three years and upwards, but under twelve years of age, at half the charge for an adult passenger:—

And with respect to all railways subject to these obligations which shall be open on or before the 1st of November next, these obligations shall come into force on the said 1st of November; and with respect to all other railways subject to these obligations, they shall come into force on the day of opening of the railway, or the day after the last day of the session in which the Act shall be passed by reason of which the company will become subject thereunto, which shall first happen.

VII. That if any railway company shall refuse or wilfully neglect to comply with the provisions of this Act as to the said cheap trains within a reasonable time, or shall attempt to evade the operation of such order, such company shall forfeit to Her Majesty a sum not exceeding 20*l.* for every day during which such refusal, neglect, or evasion shall continue.

VIII. Provided and enacted, That, except as to the amount of fare or charge for each passenger by such cheap trains which shall in no case exceed the rates hereinbefore in such case provided, the Lords of the said Committee shall have a discretionary power, upon the application of any railway company, of dispensing with any of the conditions hereinbefore required, in regard to the conveyance of passengers by such cheap trains as aforesaid, in consideration of such other arrangements, either in regard to speed, covering from the weather, seats, or other particulars, as to the Lords of the said Committee shall appear more beneficial and convenient for the passengers by such cheap trains under the circumstances of the case, and shall be sanctioned by them accordingly; and any railway company which shall conform to such other conditions as shall be so sanctioned by the Lords of the said Committee shall not be liable to any penalty for not observing the conditions which shall have been so dispensed with by the Lords of the said Committee in regard to the said cheap trains and the passengers conveyed thereby.

IX. That no tax shall be levied upon the receipts of any railway company from the conveyance of passengers at fares not exceeding one penny for each mile by any such cheap train as aforesaid.

X. That whenever any railway company subject to the hereinbefore mentioned obligation of running cheap trains shall, from and after the days hereinbefore specified on which the said obligation is to accrue, run any train or trains on Sundays for the conveyance of passengers, it shall, under the obligations contained in its Act or Acts of Parliament, and with the immunities applicable by law to carriers of passengers by railway, by such train each way, on every Sunday, as shall stop at the greatest number of stations, provide sufficient carriages for the conveyance of third class passengers at the terminal and other stations at which such Sunday train may ordinarily stop; and the fare or charge for each third class passenger by such train shall not exceed one penny for each mile travelled.

And after reciting that by an Act, 1 & 2 Vict. c. 98, intituled, 'An Act to provide for the Conveyance of the Mails by Railways,' provision was made for the transmission of the mails by railway, and it is expedient that such provision should be extended:—

It is Enacted,

XI. That it shall be lawful for the Postmaster-general to require, in the manner and subject to the conditions as to payment for service performed prescribed by the said Act, that the mails be forwarded upon any such railway as is hereinbefore last mentioned at any rate of speed which the inspector general of railways for the time being shall certify to be safe, not exceeding twenty-seven miles in the hour including stoppages; and it shall be also lawful for the Postmaster-general to send any mail guard with bags not exceeding the weight of luggage allowed to any other passenger (or subject to the general rules of the company for any excess of that weight) by any trains other than a mail train, upon the same conditions as any other passenger; provided that in such last-mentioned case nothing herein or in the last-recited Act contained shall be construed to authorize the Postmaster-general to require the conversion of a regular mail train into an ordinary train, or to exercise any controul over the company in respect of any ordinary train, nor shall the company be responsible for the safe custody or delivery of any mail bags so sent.

And after reciting that, by an Act, 5 & 6 Vict. c. 55, intituled, 'An Act for the better Regulation of Railways, and for the Conveyance of Troops,' it was among other things enacted, that whenever it shall be necessary to move any of the officers or soldiers of her Majesty's forces of the line, Ordnance corps, marines, militia, or the police force, by any railway, the directors thereof shall and are hereby required to permit such forces respectively, with their baggage, stores, arms, ammunition, and other necessaries and things, to be conveyed at the usual hours of starting, at such prices or upon such conditions as may from time to time be contracted for between the Secretary at War and such railway companies for the conveyance of such forces, on the production of a route or order for their conveyance signed by the proper authorities: And that it is expedient to amend such provision in regard to the prices and conditions of conveyance by any new railway or any railway obtaining new powers from Parliament:—

It is Enacted,

XII. That all railway companies which have been or shall be incorporated by any Act of the present or any future session, or which by any Act of the present or any future session shall have obtained or shall obtain any extension or amendment of the powers conferred by their previous Acts or any of them, or have been or shall be authorized to do any Act unauthorised by the provisions of such previous Acts, shall be bound to provide such conveyance as aforesaid for the said military, marine, and police forces, at fares not exceeding twopence per mile for each commissioned officer proceeding on duty, such officer being entitled to conveyance in a first-class carriage, and not exceeding one penny for each mile for each soldier, marine, or private of the militia or police force, and also for each wife, widow, or child above twelve years of age of a soldier entitled by Act of Parliament or by competent authority to be sent to their destination at the public expense, children under three years of age so entitled being taken free of charge, and children of three years of age or upwards, but under twelve years of age, so entitled, being taken at half the price of an adult; and such soldiers, marines, and privates of the militia or police force, and their wives, widows, and children so entitled, being conveyed in carriages which shall be provided with seats, with sufficient space for the reasonable accommodation of the persons conveyed, and which shall be protected against the weather; provided that every officer conveyed shall be entitled to take with him one hundred weight of personal luggage without extra charge, and every soldier, marine, private, wife, or widow shall be entitled to take with him or her half a hundred weight of personal luggage without extra charge, all excess of the above weights of personal luggage being paid for at the rate of not more than 3d. per pound, and all public baggage, stores, arms, ammunition, and other necessaries and things, (except gunpowder and other combustible matters, which the company shall only be bound to convey at such prices and upon such conditions as may be from time to time contracted for between the Secretary at War and the company,) shall be conveyed at charges not exceeding 2d. per ton per mile, the assistance of the military or other forces being given in loading and unloading such goods.

And after reciting that electrical telegraphs have been established on certain railways, and may be more extensively established hereafter, and it is expedient to provide for their due regulation:—

It is Enacted,

XIII. That every railway company, on being required so to do by the Lords of the said Committee, shall be bound to allow any person or persons authorized by the Lords of the said Committee, with servants and workmen, at all reasonable times to enter into or upon their lands, and to establish and lay down upon such lands adjoining the line of such railway a line of electrical telegraph for her Majesty's service, and to give to him and them every reasonable facility for laying down the same, and for using the same for the purpose of receiving and sending messages on her Majesty's service, subject to such reasonable remuneration to the company as may be agreed upon between the company and the Lords of the said Committee, or in case of disagreement as may be settled by arbitration: Provided always, that, subject to a prior right of use thereof for the purposes of her Majesty, such telegraph may be used by the company for the purposes of the railway, upon such terms as may be agreed upon between the parties, or, in the event of difference, as may be settled by arbitration.

XIV. That where a line of electrical telegraph shall have been established upon any railway by the company to whom such railway belongs, or by any company, partnership, person or persons, otherwise than exclusively for her Majesty's service, or exclusively for the purposes of the railway, or jointly for both, the use of such electrical telegraph, for the purpose of receiving and sending messages, shall, subject to the prior right of use thereof for the service of her Majesty and for the purposes of the company, and subject also to such equal charges and to such reasonable regulations as may be from time to time made by the said railway company, be open for the sending and receiving of messages by all persons alike, without favour or preference.

And after reciting that by an Act, 3 & 4 Vict. c. 97, intituled, 'An Act to regulate Railways,' power is given to the Lords of the said Committee to appoint any proper person or persons to inspect any railway, and the stations, works, and buildings, and the engines and carriages belonging thereto; and in order to carry the provisions of this Act into execution it is expedient that the said power be extended:—

It is Enacted,

xv. That the said power given to the Lords of the said Committee of appointing proper persons to inspect railways shall extend to authorize the appointment by the Lords of the said Committee of any proper person or persons, for such purposes of inspection as are by the said Act authorized, and also for the purpose of enabling the Lords of the said Committee to carry the provisions of this and of the said Act and of any general Act relating to railways into execution; and that so much of the last-recited Act as provides that no person shall be eligible to the appointment as inspector who shall, within one year of his appointment, have been a director, or have held any office of trust or profit under any railway company, shall be repealed: Provided always, that no person to be appointed as aforesaid shall exercise any powers of interference in the affairs of the company.

And after reciting that by the said Act, 3 & 4 Vict. c. 97, intituled, 'An Act for regulating Railways,' it is among other things enacted, that whenever it shall appear to the Lords of the said Committee that any of the provisions of the several Acts of Parliament regulating any railway companies, or the provisions of that Act, have not been complied with on the part of any of the said companies or any of their officers, and that it would be for the public advantage that the due performance of the same should be enforced, the Lords of the said Committee shall certify the same to her Majesty's Attorney General for England or Ireland, or to the Lord Advocate for Scotland, as the case may require; and thereupon the said Attorney General or Lord Advocate shall, by information, or by action, bill, plaint, suit at law or in equity, or other legal proceeding (as the case may require), proceed to recover such penalties and forfeitures, or otherwise to enforce the due performance of the said provisions, by such means as any person aggrieved by such non-compliance, or otherwise authorized to sue for such penalties, might employ under the provisions of the said Acts: Provided always, that no such certificate as aforesaid shall be given by the Lords of the said Committee until twenty-one days after they shall have given notice of their intention to give the same to the company against or in relation to whom they shall intend to give the same: And that it is expedient that more effectual provision should be made, not only for enforcing a compliance on the part of railway companies with the provisions of their Acts, but also for restraining railway companies from performing Acts unauthorized by such provisions:—

It is Enacted,

xvi. That so much of the said Act as is hereinbefore recited shall be repealed.

xvii. That whenever it shall appear to the Lords of the said Committee that any of the provisions of the several Acts of Parliament regulating any railway company, or the provisions of this Act or of any general Act relating to railways, have not been complied with on the part of any railway company or any of its officers, or that any railway company has acted or is acting in a manner unauthorized by the provisions of the Act or Acts of Parliament relating to such railway, or in excess of the powers given and objects defined by the said Act or Acts, and it shall also appear to the Lords of the said Committee that it would be for the public advantage that the company should be restrained from so acting, the Lords of the said Committee shall certify the same to Her Majesty's Attorney General for England or Ireland, or to the Lord Advocate for Scotland, as the case may require; and thereupon the said Attorney General or Lord Advocate shall, in case such default of the railway company shall consist of non-compliance with the provisions of the Act or Acts relating thereto or of this Act, or of any general Act relating to railways, proceed by information, or by action, bill, plaint, suit at law or in equity, or other legal proceeding, as the case may require, to recover such penalties and forfeitures, or otherwise to enforce the due performance of the said provisions, by such means as any person aggrieved by such non-compliance, or otherwise authorized to sue for such penalties, might employ under the provisions of the said Acts; and in case the default of the railway company shall consist in the commission of some act or acts unauthorized by law, then the said Attorney General or Lord Advocate, upon receiving such certificate as aforesaid, shall proceed by suit in equity, or such other legal proceeding as the nature of the case may require, to obtain an injunction or order (which the Judge in equity or other Judge to whom the application is made shall be authorized and required to grant, if he shall be of opinion that the act or acts of the railway company complained of is or are not authorized by law,) to restrain the company from acting in such illegal manner, or to give such other relief as the nature of the case may require.

xviii. Provided and enacted, That no such certificate as aforesaid shall be given by the Lords of the said Committee until twenty-one days after they shall have given notice to the company against or in relation to whom they shall intend to give such certificate of their intention to give such certificate; and that no legal proceedings shall be commenced under the authority of the Lords of the said Committee against any railway company for any offence against any of the several Acts relating to railways or this Act, or any general Act relating to railways, except upon such certificate of the Lords of the said Committee as aforesaid, and within one year after such offence shall have been committed.

And after reciting that many railway companies have borrowed money in a manner unauthorized by their Acts of incorporation or other Acts of Parliament relating to the said companies, upon the security of loan notes or other instruments purporting to give a security for the repayment of the principal sums borrowed at certain dates, and for the payment of interest thereon in the meantime: And that such loan notes or other securities issued otherwise than under the provision of some Act or Acts of Parliament have no legal validity, and it is expedient that the issue of such illegal securities should be stopped; but such loan notes or other securities having been issued and received in good faith as between the borrower and lender, and for the most part for the lawful purposes of the undertaking, and in ignorance of their legal invalidity, it is expedient to confirm such as have been already issued:—

It is Enacted,

xix. That from and after the passing of this Act any railway company issuing any loan note or other negotiable or assignable instrument purporting to bind the company as a legal security for money advanced to the said railway company otherwise than under the provisions of some Act or Acts of Parliament authorizing the said railway company to raise such money and to issue such security, shall for every such offence forfeit to Her Majesty a sum equal to the sum for which such loan note or other instrument purports to be such security: Provided always, that any company may renew any such loan note or other instrument issued by them prior to the passing of this Act for any period or periods not exceeding five years from the passing of this Act.

xx. That where any railway company, before the 12th of July 1844, shall have issued or contracted to issue any such loan notes or other unauthorized instruments, the company may and shall pay off such loan notes or other instruments as the same may fall due, subject as hereinbefore provided; and until the same shall be so paid off the said loan notes or other instruments shall entitle the holders thereof to the payment by the company of the principal sum and interest thereby agreed to be paid.

xxi. That a register of all such loan notes or other instruments shall be kept by the secretary; and such register shall be open, without fee or reward, at all reasonable times, to the inspection of any shareholder or auditor of the undertaking, and of every person interested in any such loan note or other instrument, desirous of inspecting the same.

And after reciting that the remedies now in force for the recovery of the commutation rent-charges are in many instances ineffectual for such parts thereof as are charged upon lands taken for the purposes of a railway, and it is therefore expedient to extend the said remedies when the said rent-charges may have been duly apportioned:—

xxii. That in all cases in which any such rent-charge, or part of any rent-charge has been or hereafter shall be duly apportioned under the provisions of the Acts for the commutation of tithes in England and Wales, upon lands taken or purchased by any railway company for the purposes of such company, or upon any part of such lands, it shall be lawful for every person entitled to the said rent-charge or parts of such rent-charge, in case the same has been or shall be in arrear and unpaid for the space of twenty-one days next after any half-yearly day fixed for the payment thereof, to distrain for all arrears of the said rent-charge upon the goods, chattels, and effects of the said company, whether on the land charged therewith, or any other lands, premises, or hereditaments of such company, whether situated in the same parish or elsewhere, and to dispose of the distress when taken, and otherwise to demean himself in relation thereto, as any landlord may for arrears of rent reserved on a lease for years: Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall give or be construed to give a legal right to such rent-charge, when but for this Act such rent-charge was not or could not be duly apportioned.

xxiii. That all notices, requisitions, orders, regulations, appointments, certificates, certified copies, and other documents in writing, signed by some officer appointed for that purpose by the Lords of the said Committee, shall for the purposes of this Act be deemed to have been made by the Lords of the said Committee; and all certificates of anything done by the Lords of the said Committee in relation to this Act, and certified copies of the minutes of proceedings or correspondence of the Lords of the said Committee in relation thereto, signed by such officer, shall be deemed sufficient evidence thereof, and that in the absence of evidence to the contrary, without proof of the authority of the person signing the same or of the signature thereto, and service of the same at one of the principal offices of any railway company on the secretary or clerk of the said company, or by sending the same by post, addressed to him at such office, shall be deemed good service upon the said company; and all notices, returns, and other documents required by this Act to be given to or laid before the Lords of the said Committee, shall be delivered at or sent by post addressed to the office of the Lords of the said Committee.

xxiv. That all penalties under this Act for the application of which no special provision is made shall be recovered in the name and for the use of Her Majesty, and may be recovered in any of Her Majesty's courts of record, or in the court of session or in any of the sheriff courts in Scotland.

xxv. That where the word "Railway" is used in this Act it shall be construed to extend to railways constructed under the powers of any Act of Parliament; and when the words "Passenger Railway" are used in this Act, they shall be construed to extend to railways constructed under the powers of any Act of Parliament upon which one-third or more of the gross annual revenue is derived from the conveyance of passengers by steam or other mechanical power; and whenever the word "Company" is used in this Act it shall be construed to extend to include the proprietors for the time being of any such railway; and that where a different sense is not expressly declared, or does not appear by the context, every word importing the singular number or the masculine gender shall be taken to include females as well as males, and several persons and things as well as one person or thing.

xxvi. That this Act may be amended or repealed by any Act to be passed in this session of Parliament.

CAP. LXXXVI.

AN ACT for the Relief of Clerks to Attornies and Solicitors who have omitted to enrol their Contracts; and for amending the Law relating to the Enrolment of such Contracts, and to the Disabilities of such Clerks, in certain Cases.

(9th August 1844.)

[This Act is printed at length in the Appendix, p. i.]

CAP. LXXXVII.

AN ACT to amend the Law for regulating Places kept for slaughtering Horses.

10. Meaning of certain words used in this Act.

By this Act,

After reciting that by an Act, 26 Geo. 3, and also by an Act, 6 Will. 4, provision was made for the regulation and inspection of houses and places kept for the purpose of slaughtering horses: And that it is expedient to make further provision for the better and more effectual regulation and inspection of such houses and places:—

It is Enacted,

I. That every licence which shall after the passing of this Act be granted under or by virtue of the said Act, 26 Geo. 3, authorizing any person to keep or use any house or place for the purpose of slaughtering or killing any horse or other cattle (not killed for butchers meat), shall be granted, and shall continue in force, for a period not exceeding one year from the date at which the same was granted, determinable as hereinafter provided: Provided nevertheless, that in the case of the renewal of any such licence to any person to whom any such licence may have been previously granted as aforesaid it shall not be necessary for such person to obtain or produce to the Justices at such General Quarter Sessions of the Peace a certificate under the hands and seals of the minister, churchwardens, overseers, or householders, as required by the said last-mentioned Act.

II. That it shall be lawful for the Justices assembled at any General Quarter Sessions of the Peace to be holden for any county, upon application and complaint made to them in writing by any person, and upon due proof being made to them that the party so complaining had given fourteen days previous notice in writing thereof to the clerk of the peace for such county, and also to the party complained against, and upon due proof to their satisfaction that any person so licensed as aforesaid has been guilty of any breach or violation of the said two several hereinbefore recited Acts or either of them, or of this Act, or any part or parts thereof respectively, to cancel and wholly put an end to any and every licence which may have been granted to the person or persons so complained against, and from thenceforth the same shall be of no force or effect.

III. That if any such licensed or other person shall wantonly or cruelly beat, ill-treat, abuse, wound, or torture any horse or other cattle in any house, pound, stable, or other place in the occupation or use of such licensed person, every such person shall for every such offence, on conviction thereof, forfeit and pay a sum of money not exceeding 5*l*.

IV. That it shall be lawful for any constable from time to time, and as often as he shall think fit, at all reasonable times in the daytime, by authority of this Act, either alone or accompanied by any inspector appointed or to be appointed under the first-recited Act, to enter upon and view and inspect all and every the houses, stables, sheds, yards, grounds, and premises for the keeping of which any such licence shall have been granted as aforesaid, and also to inspect or take an account of all or any of the horses or other cattle which shall from time to time be found upon such premises or any part thereof.

V. That in case any person to whom any such licence shall be granted as aforesaid, or any other person, shall at any time or in any manner obstruct, hinder, molest, or assault any such inspector whilst in the discharge of his duty, or the exercise of his power or authority under or by virtue of the said first-recited Act or of this Act, every such offender shall for every such offence, on conviction thereof, forfeit and pay such a sum of money, not exceeding 10*l*., as any two or more Justices before whom such offender shall be brought shall deem fit.

VI. That in case any such inspector shall at any time be guilty of any neglect or violation of the duty required of him by law, then and in every such case such inspector shall, upon conviction, forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum of money not exceeding 10*l*.

VII. That all offences against this Act, or any of the provisions thereof, shall and may be heard and determined before and by any two or more Justices of the Peace for the county within which the offence shall have been committed; and all penalties and forfeitures incurred thereby respectively shall and may be recoverable, with costs, before and awarded by any such Justices, and shall be applied as follows; namely, such part as the Justices shall think fit to the person who shall inform and prosecute for the same, and the remainder thereof to the sheriff or other proper officer of the county in which such conviction shall take place, for Her Majesty's use, and shall be returned to the Court of Quarter Sessions, under the provisions of an Act, 3 Geo. 4. c. 46, intituled, 'An Act for the more speedy Return and levying of Fines, Penalties, and Forfeitures and Recognizances estreated; and in case of nonpayment of any such penalty or forfeiture respectively it shall and may be lawful for such Justices forthwith to commit the offender to the common gaol or prison within the jurisdiction of such Justices for any time not exceeding one calendar month, as to such Justices shall seem meet.

VIII. That the prosecution of every offence punishable under this Act shall be commenced within three calendar months next after the commission of the offence, and not otherwise; and the evidence of the party complaining shall be admitted in proof of the offence.

IX. That any person who shall think himself aggrieved by any summary order or conviction made by any Justice or Justices of the Peace under the authority of this Act may appeal to the Justices of the Peace at the next general or quarter sessions of the peace to be holden for the county wherein the cause of complaint shall have arisen, provided that such person at the time of the order or conviction, or within forty-eight hours thereafter, shall enter into a recognizance, with two sufficient sureties, conditioned personally to appear at the said sessions to try such appeal, and to abide the further judgment of the Justices at such sessions assembled, and to pay such costs as shall be by the last-mentioned Justices awarded; and it shall be lawful for the Justice or Justices of the Peace by whom such order or conviction shall have been made to bind over the witnesses who shall have been examined in sufficient recognizances to attend and be examined at the hearing of such appeal, and that every such witness, on producing a certificate of his being so bound under the hand of the Justice or Justices, shall be allowed compensation for his time, trouble, and expenses in attending the appeal, which compensation shall be paid in the first instance by the treasurer of the county, in like manner as in cases of misdemeanor, under the provisions of an Act, 7 Geo. 4. c. 64, intitled 'An Act for improving the Administration of Criminal Justice in England;' and in case the appeal shall be dismissed, and the order or conviction affirmed, the reasonable expenses of all such witnesses attending as aforesaid, to be ascertained by the Court, shall be repaid to the treasurer of the county by appellant.

X. That the words hereinafter mentioned, which in their usual signification have a more restricted or different meaning, shall in this Act (except where the nature of the provisions or the context of the Act shall exclude such construction) be interpreted as follows; (that is to say,) the word "County" shall include city, town, borough, cinque port, riding, liberty, or division; the word "Horse" shall include mare, gelding, mule, pony, colt, or filly; the word "Cattle" shall include bull, ox, cow, steer, heifer, calf, ass, sheep, lamb, goat, pig, or any other domestic animal; the word "Constable" shall include head-borough, peace officer, or police officer; and every word importing the singular number only shall extend and be applied to several persons and things as well as to one person or thing; and every word importing the masculine gender only shall extend to a female as well as a male.

CAP. LXXXIX.

AN ACT for auditing the Accounts of the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Woods, Forests, Land Revenues, Works, and Buildings.

ABSTRACT OF THE ENACTMENTS.

1. Commissioners for auditing the Public Accounts shall audit the accounts of the Commissioners of Woods, &c.—Proviso.
2. Accounts when audited and declared to be kept of record in the Land Revenue Record Office.
3. Records in the Land Revenue Record Office to be valid.
4. Act may be amended this session.

By this Act,

After reciting the passing of 2 & 3 Will. 4. c. 1: And that doubts have arisen as to the powers vested in the Commissioners for examining and auditing the public accounts of the kingdom, in examining and auditing the accounts referred to them under the said Act, and also the several accounts of other monies under the controul and management of the first-mentioned Commissioners:—

It is Declared and Enacted,

I. That the said Commissioners for auditing the public accounts of the kingdom shall examine, try, and audit the accounts of all monies which by any Act of Parliament are or shall be under the controul and management of the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Woods, Forests, Land Revenue, Works and Buildings, and in examining, trying, and auditing any of the said accounts shall be deemed to have had at all times heretofore and shall have all the powers which are vested in them under an Act, 25 Geo. 3. c. 52, intituled, 'An Act for better examining and auditing the Public Accounts of this Kingdom,' and under any other Act now in force, or any law, usage, custom, or otherwise howsoever: Provided always, that such audit, as to the accounts of the first-mentioned Commissioners, with respect to their execution of the powers intrusted to them under an Act, 53 Geo. 3. c. 121, intituled, 'An Act for making a more convenient Communication from Mary-le-bone Park and the Northern Parts of the Metropolis in the Parish of Saint Mary-le-bone to Charing Cross within the Liberty of Westminster, and for making a more convenient Sewage for the same,' or of any Act for amending the last-recited Act, or for extending the powers of the same, shall not include any period before the 31st of March 1841.

II. That every general account of the land revenue of the Crown referred or which may be referred by the first-recited Act to the Commissioners for auditing the public accounts of the kingdom, after the same shall have been audited, declared, and inrolled in the office of Her Majesty's Remembrancer of the Court of Exchequer, shall be delivered by the said Commissioners of Audit, so audited and declared, together with the several detailed and subsidiary accounts of the receivers, surveyors, rangers, gavellers, stewards, bailiffs, collectors, or other local officers for the time being charged or intrusted with the receipt or collection of rents or other monies, dues, royalties, or revenues of the Crown (which are or may be mentioned or referred to in such general account), to the keeper of land revenue records and inrolments, not later than three years after the declaration of the said general account, unless by special direction of the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury any of the said accounts shall be kept for a longer time, not more than seven years, for comparison with the accounts of following years; and such general and detailed and subsidiary accounts, and the declaration thereof, shall thenceforth remain of record in the said office of land revenue records and inrolments.

III. That where the rents, revenues, issues, or profits of any manors, lands, tenements, tithes, or hereditaments are or shall be specified or mentioned in the record of such accounts in the said office of the land revenue records and inrolments, such rents, revenues, issues, and profits shall be holden to be duly in charge by to or with the auditor or auditors or other proper officer or officers of the revenue; and the record of such accounts in the said office of land revenue records and inrolments shall be as valid and effectual, and shall be deemed to have the same effect and legal incidents, as the inrolment and record of such accounts in the office of Her Majesty's Remembrancer of the Court of Exchequer, or in any other office, or before or with any officer of any other court of record of law or equity of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, or before or with any auditor or auditors or other officer or officers of the revenue.

IV. That this Act may be amended or repealed by any Act to be passed in this session of Parliament.

CAP. XC.

39. The Act 8 Geo. 1. (1.) to be deemed to have been repealed.
40. Lists of fees to be placed up in office.
41. Act to extend to Ireland only.

By this ACT,

After reciting that, by 3 Geo. 2. (1.) it was enacted, that the officers therein mentioned should put into alphabetical docket entries of cognovits or judgments, and rules for judgments, and that such dockets should be put into and kept in books in the offices therein mentioned, and that such judgments should, as against purchasers or mortgagees, be judgments only from the time of their being docketed and entered under the provisions of the said Act, and should not have any preference against heirs, executors, or administrators in the administration of their ancestors, testators, or intestates estates, but from the time aforesaid: And that by an Act, 9 Geo. 4. c. 35, it was amongst other things provided, that judgments of the superior courts in Ireland should in certain cases be void as against purchasers, unless the same should be re-docketed, or a revival thereof entered in the manner therein mentioned: And that it is expedient to make further provisions for the protection of purchasers against judgments, and against Crown debts and lis pendens, and to establish one office in Dublin in which alone purchasers, and heirs, executors, or administrators, may find all judgments which would bind lands in the hands of a purchaser, or give a preference against heirs, executors, or administrators in the administration of their ancestors, testators, or intestates effects:

It is Enacted,

1. That from and after the 1st of November 1844, no judgment of any superior court of record, or rule for such judgment, shall be docketed or entered under the provisions of the said Act, 3 Geo. 2. (1.); and that from and after that day no such judgment, nor any revival of any such judgment, shall be re-docketed or entered under the said provisions of the said Act, 9 Geo. 4. c. 35; and that all books of or for such re-docketings or entries under either of the said Acts shall on the 1st of November 1844, be finally closed, without prejudice to the operation of any judgment which shall have been in that time docketed and entered, or re-docketed or entered, in the book of revivals, under the provisions of either of the said recited Acts, except so far as any such judgment may be affected by the provisions hereinafter contained; and that upon the close of the said 1st of November 1844, all the said re-docketing and revival books kept under the provisions of the said last-mentioned Act in every of the said superior courts of common law in Ireland shall, by the officer having in each of such courts respectively the custody of the same, be handed over to the officer to be appointed under this Act; and that such books, when so handed over, shall be forthwith deposited by the said last-mentioned officer in the office to be established under this Act, and shall be considered as part of the books to which access is to be had for the charge of 3s. or of 1s., as hereinafter provided; and that all judgments which have already been, or on or before the 1st of November 1844, shall be re-docketed or entered as revived in the said books, under the provisions of the said Act, 9 Geo. 4. c. 35, shall be deemed to be registered under the provisions of this Act, and shall operate from the time of such re-docketing or entry after the revival precisely as if the same had been registered under the authority of this Act, but with the benefit of its actual priority as the same existed before the passing of this Act, and shall be subject to the provision hereinafter contained with respect to the re-registering.

II. That no judgment of the said superior courts respectively, or rule for such judgment, already docketed under the said first-recited Act, and which has not already been, or shall not on or before the said 1st of November 1844, be re-docketed or entered after revival under the said Act, 9 Geo. 4. c. 35, shall, after the 1st of November, 1845, nor shall any judgment of the said superior courts respectively which on the said 1st of November 1844 shall not be docketed under the said first-recited Act, or which shall be obtained after that day, affect any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, as to purchasers, mortgagees, or creditors, unless and until a memorandum or minute thereof, containing the names, and the usual or last known place of abode, and the title, trade, or profession of the plaintiff and defendant or person whose estate is intended to be affected thereby, and the court in which such judgment or rule shall have been obtained, and the date of such judgment or rule, and the amount of the debt, damages, costs, or monies thereby recovered or ordered to be paid, shall be left with the officer to be appointed under this Act, who shall forthwith enter the same particulars in a book in alphabetical order, by the name of the defendant or person whose estate is intended to be affected by the said judgment or rule; or unless and until the same shall be duly revived according to the course and practice of the said superior courts respectively; and a like memorandum or minute as aforesaid, stating also the revival thereof, shall be left with the officer to be appointed under this Act, who shall forthwith enter the same particulars in a book of revivals to be kept by him in alphabetical order, by the name of the defendant or person whose estate is intended to be affected by such judgment or rule; and such officer shall be entitled for every such entry to the sum of 5s.

And after reciting that, under 3 & 4 Vict. c. 105, provision is made for entries of the decrees, orders, and rules therein mentioned, in like manner as the aforesaid judgments and rules are hereby required to be registered, in order to bind purchasers, mortgagees, and creditors:—

It is Enacted,

III. That from and after the 1st of November 1844, all such entries as last aforesaid shall be made by the officer for the time being appointed under the authority of this Act; and that all books belonging to the office established under the said last-mentioned Act shall, on the close of the said 1st of November, be deposited in the office established by this Act, and shall be considered as part of the books to which access is to be had for the charge of 3s. or of 1s. as hereinafter provided; and that all entries of decrees, orders, and rules which have already been, or on or before the said 1st of November 1844, shall be made in the said books, under the provisions of the said last-mentioned Act, shall be deemed to be entries made under the provisions of this Act, and shall operate from the time of such entries precisely as if the same had been registered under the authority of this Act, and be subject to the provisions hereafter contained with respect to re-registering.

IV. That no rule of a court of common law, nor any judgment, rule, or order of any of the inferior courts, in the Act of 3 & 4 Vict. c. 105, mentioned, which has already been or hereafter shall be removed into a superior court in manner therein mentioned, shall from and after the 1st of November 1844, affect any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, as to purchasers, mortgagees, or creditors, unless and until such a memorandum or minute thereof, containing the name or title of the cause or matter in which the same shall have been made or pronounced, and the names and the usual or last known place of abode, and the title, trade, or profession of the plaintiff, if there be such, and of the defendant or person whose estate is intended to be affected thereby, and the Court in which such judgment, rule, or order shall have been pronounced, and the date of the same, and the amount of the debt, damages, costs, and monies thereby recovered or ordered to be paid, shall be left with the officer appointed under this Act, who shall forthwith enter the same in manner aforesaid; and such officer shall be entitled for every such entry to the sum of 5s.

V. That, in addition to the entry by the said last-mentioned Act or by this Act required to be made in a book of the particulars to be contained in every memorandum or minute of any judgment, decree, rule, or order, or other matter, such officer so to be appointed as aforesaid shall insert in such book the year and the day of the month when every such memorandum or minute is so left with him.

VI. That all judgments already re-docketed or entered after revival, or which on or before the 1st of November 1844 shall be re-docketed or entered after revival, under the said Act, 9 Geo. 4. c. 35, shall, after the expiration of twenty years from the date of such re-docket or entry, and all judgments which, having been entered or docketed under the said Act, 3 Geo. 2. (1.), only, shall be registered under the provisions of this Act, and all judgments of the superior courts respectively which shall for the first time be docketed or registered under the provisions of this Act, shall respectively after the expiration of twenty years from the date of such registry under this Act, and all decrees or orders in any court of equity, rules in any court of common law, and orders in Bankruptcy or Lunacy, which since the passing of the said recited Act, 3 & 4 Vict. c. 105, have been or shall be registered under the provisions therein mentioned, or which shall be registered under the provisions of this Act, and all judgments, rules, and orders of any inferior courts which shall be registered under the provisions of this Act, shall, after the expiration of twenty years from the date of the entry thereof under the said last-mentioned Act or under the provisions of this Act (as the case may be), be null and void against lands, tenements, and other hereditaments, as to purchasers, mortgagees, or creditors, unless and until a like memorandum or minute, as was required in the first instance, be again left with such officer, to be appointed under this Act within twenty years before the execution of the conveyance, settlement, mortgage, lease, or other deed or instrument vesting or transferring the legal or equitable right to the estate or interest in or to any such purchaser or mortgagee for valuable consideration, or as to creditors within twenty years before the right of such creditor accrued, and so toties quoties at the expiration of every succeeding twenty years; and such officer as aforesaid shall forthwith re-enter the same in like manner as the same was originally entered; and such officer shall be entitled for any such re-entry to the sum of 1s.

VII. Provided and enacted, That an original entry under the said first-recited Act or under this Act shall be deemed binding, without any re-docket or registry under the said Act, 9 Geo. 4. c. 35, or under this Act, on all purchasers and mortgagees who claim or shall claim under any conveyance, settlement, mortgage, lease, or other deed or instrument vesting or transferring the legal or equitable right, title, estate, or interest in or to any such purchaser or mortgagee for valuable consideration, executed within twenty years after the date of such entry, and on all creditors whose right shall have accrued or shall accrue within that period, without prejudice to the provision hereinbefore contained requiring judgments and rules entered under the said Act, 3 Geo. 2. (I.), but not re-docketed or entered under the said Act, 9 Geo. 4. c. 35, to be registered under this Act; but that to affect any purchaser or mortgagee whose conveyance, settlement, mortgage, lease, or other deed or instrument vesting or transferring the legal or equitable right, title, or interest in or to any such purchaser or mortgagee for valuable consideration shall be executed at any time after twenty years from the date of such original entry, or any creditor whose right shall accrue at any time after the like period, every such judgment must be re-registered within twenty years before such subsequent conveyance, settlement, lease, deed, or instrument shall be executed or such right shall accrue, and so toties quoties, to bind later purchasers, mortgagees, and creditors: Provided always nevertheless, that no mortgagee or purchaser shall be affected in any manner by any judgment or rule which shall not have been registered or re-registered within twenty years before the execution of the conveyance, settlement, mortgage, lease, or other deed or instrument vesting or transferring the legal or equitable estate in or to any such mortgagee or purchaser, although such judgment or rule would, as between the person entitled to the benefit thereof and any subsequent incumbrancer within the twenty years, bind the lands, tenements, or hereditaments conveyed, settled, mortgaged, leased, or otherwise vested in such purchaser or mortgagee; nor shall any such subsequent incumbrancer be prejudiced by the protection hereby given to such mortgagee and purchasers as aforesaid.

VIII. Provided and enacted, That as against a purchaser or mortgagee, without notice of any such judgment, decree, rule, or order as aforesaid, none of such judgments, decrees, rules, or orders shall bind or affect any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, or any interest therein, further or otherwise or more extensively in any respect, although duly registered or re-registered, than a judgment of any of the superior courts aforesaid would have bound such purchaser or mortgagee before the said Act, 3 & 4 Vict. c. 105, where it had been duly docketed according to the law then in force.

IX. Provided and enacted, That nothing in the said recited Act of Her present Majesty or in this Act contained shall extend to revive or restore any judgment which shall be extinguished or barred, nor shall the same extend to affect or prejudice any judgment as between the parties thereto, or their representatives, or those deriving as volunteers under them, save so far as is herein expressly provided.

X. That from and after the 1st of November 1844 no lis pendens shall bind or affect a purchaser or mortgagee, without express notice thereof, unless and until a memorandum or minute containing the name and the usual or last known place of abode, and the title, trade, or profession of the person whose estate shall be intended to be affected thereby, and the court of equity, and the title of the cause or information, and the day when the bill or information was filed, shall be left with such officer so to be appointed as aforesaid, who shall forthwith enter the same particulars in a book as aforesaid, in alphabetical order, by the name of the person whose estate is intended to be affected by such lis pendens, and which book is to be intitled "The Index to Lis Pendens;" and such officer shall be entitled for every such entry to the sum of 2s. 6d.; and the provisions hereinbefore contained in regard to the re-registering of judgment every twenty years, and the operation thereof, and the fee payable to the officer thereon, shall extend to every case of lis pendens which shall be re-registered under the provisions of this Act.

XI. That from and after the 1st of November 1844 no judgment, statute, or recognizance which shall hereafter be obtained or entered into in the name or upon the proper account of Her Majesty, her heirs or successors, or inquisition upon which any debt shall hereafter be found due to Her Majesty, her heirs or successors, or obligation or specialty which shall hereafter be made to Her Majesty, her heirs or successors, or any acceptance of office which shall hereafter be accepted by officers whose lands shall thereby become liable for the payment and satisfaction of arrears under the provisions of an Act, 21 & 22 Geo. 3. (I.), intitled, 'An Act for the more speedy and effectual Recovery of the King's Debts,' shall affect any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, as to purchasers or mortgagees, unless and until a memorandum or minute, containing the name and the usual or last known place of abode, and the title, trade, or profession, of the person whose estate is intended to be affected thereby, and also in the case of any such judgment the court and the title of the cause in which such judgment shall have been obtained, and the date of such judgment, and the amount of the debt, damages, and costs thereby recovered, and also in the case of a statute or recognizance the sum for which the same was acknowledged, and before whom the same was acknowledged, and the date of the same, and also in the case of an inquisition the sum thereby found to be due, and the date of the same, and also in the case of an obligation or specialty the sum in which the obligor shall be bound, or for which the obligation or specialty shall be made, and the date of the same, and also in the case of acceptance of office the name of the office, and the time of the officer accepting the same, shall be left with such officer acting under this Act as aforesaid, who shall forthwith enter the same particulars in a book, to be intitled "The Index to Debtors and Accountants to the Crown," in alphabetical order, by the name of the person whose estate is intended to be affected by such judgment, statute, or recognizance, inquisition, obligation, or specialty, or the acceptance of any office; and such officer shall be entitled for every such entry to the sum of 2s. 6d.; and all persons shall be at liberty to search the said book, and also the other books which are to be handed over as aforesaid to the officer to be appointed under this Act, and also all the books which are to be kept under the provisions of this Act, or any or either of the said books, on payment of the sum of 3s., until 1863, and after that period for the charge of 1s., and no more, whether some only or all of the said books shall be searched, and no multiplication of books is to increase the fee.

XII. That the secondary of the Court of Exchequer and the clerk of the recognizances of the Court of Chancery respectively shall, on or before the 1st of November 1844, cause to be carefully prepared a book or books, to be called "The Index to Debtors and Accountants to the Crown," containing in alphabetical order all the particulars hereinbefore mentioned; and that such book, when so completed before, and containing a correct entry of all the particulars which can be derived from the various bonds, recognizances, and judgments which shall on the said 1st of November be in force as of record in the said offices of secondary and clerk of the recognizances respectively, shall be by them handed over to the officer to be appointed under this Act; and that said book or books shall be subject to all the regulations prescribed by this Act with respect to the "Index to Debtors and Accountants to the Crown" hereinbefore mentioned; and that all persons shall be at liberty to search or inspect the same book or books, and no additional fee shall be paid for such search or inspection; and the cost of preparing such book or books in the Court of Chancery shall be allowed by the Lord Chancellor, and be paid by his direction out of the Suits Fee Fund of that court; and the costs of preparing such book or books in the Court of Exchequer shall be allowed by the Lord Chief Baron, and be paid by his direction out of the Suits Fee Fund of that court.

XIII. That wherever a quietus, or a certificate or order in the nature of a quietus, shall be obtained by a debtor or accountant to the Crown, and an office copy thereof, and of the certificate or consent of the Attorney General for Ireland, shall be left with such officer so to be appointed as aforesaid, that the same may be registered, such officer shall forthwith enter the same in the said book of debtors and accountants to the Crown, in alphabetical order, by the name of the persons whose estate is intended to be discharged thereby, with the date, and shall for every such entry be entitled to a fee of 2s. 6d.

And after reciting that it is expedient to make further provision for the discharge of an estate belonging to a debtor or accountant to the Crown from the claim of the Crown in the lands of a purchaser or mortgagee, although the debt or liability shall not be fully discharged:—

It is Enacted,

XIV. That it shall be lawful for the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland for the time being, or any three of them, by writing under their hands, upon payment of such sums of money as they may think fit to require, into the receipt of Her Majesty's Exchequer, to be applied in liquidation of the debt or liability of any debtor or accountant to the Crown, or upon such other terms as they may think proper, to certify that any lands, tenements, or hereditaments of any such Crown debtor or accountant shall be held by the purchaser or mortgagee, or intended purchaser or mortgagee thereof, his or their executors, administrators, and assigns, wholly exonerated and discharged from all further claims of Her Majesty, her heirs or successors, for or in respect of any debt, claim, or liability, present or future, of the debtor or accountant to whom such lands, tenements, or hereditaments belonged, or in case of leases for fines, to certify that the lessees, their heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns, shall hold, so exonerated and discharged, without prejudice to the rights and remedies of the Crown against the reversion of the lands, tenements, or hereditaments comprised in any such leases, and the rents and covenants reserved and contained by and in the same, and thereupon the same lands, tenements, and hereditaments shall respectively be held wholly exonerated and discharged as aforesaid, but in cases of leases without prejudice as aforesaid.

XV. Provided also, and be it enacted, That any such certificate, or the discharge of any such lands, tenements, or hereditaments by virtue of this Act, shall in nowise impeach, lessen, or affect the right or power of Her Majesty, her heirs or successors, to levy the whole of any debt or demand which may at any time be due from any such debtor or accountant to the Crown out of or from any other lands, tenements, or hereditaments which would have been liable thereto in case no such certificate had been granted, and no such discharge had been obtained.

XVI. That from and after the 1st of November 1844 every person who shall require a negative search to be made in the office to be established under this Act, and a certificate of such search to be given, shall deliver unto or leave with the said registrar a note or requisition, fairly written on paper or parchment, in the words or to the effect following, and the same shall be deemed one search; (that is to say,)

NEGATIVE Search for Judgments, Revivals, Decrees, Rules, and Orders registered or re-registered against
'for	Years last past, or from the	Day of	in the Year to the 'Day of	in the Year	and for Judgments at the Suit of the Crown, Statutes, Recognizances, 'Crown Bonds, Lis Pendens, Inquisitions, and Acceptances of Office, registered or re-registered against for '	Years last past, or from the	Day of	in the Year to the 'Day of	in the Year

XVII. That the registrar shall upon the delivery of such requisition file the same in the order in which it shall be received, and shall with all due diligence give to the person making such requisition for a negative search a certificate in the words or to the effect following; (that is to say,)

'ON Search made in the Office for the Registration of Judgments and Incumbrances affecting Real Estates, in pursuance of the foregoing Requisition, I do not find any [but the above-mentioned (these Words to be omitted when none appear)] Judgments, Revivals, Decrees, Rules or Orders, Judgments at the Suit of the Crown, Statutes, Recognizances, or Crown Bonds, Lis Pendens, Inquisitions, or Acceptances of Office, registered or re-registered within the respective Periods aforesaid, against the said [Name of Registrar.]'

'Witness or Witnesses present when
'the Search was made.'

And if said registrar shall be guilty of any fraud, collusion, or wilful neglect in making out such certificate of a negative search, whereby any person shall be aggrieved or damaged, such person so damaged, his heirs, executors, or administrators, shall recover full damages against such registrar, with full costs of suit: provided always, that from and after the 1st of November 1845 no search shall be made for any of the matters authorized to be registered under this Act, except at the office to be established under the provisions of this Act.

XVIII. That from and after the 1st of November 1844 every person who shall require a common search to be made in the office to be established under this Act, and a certificate of such search to be given, shall deliver unto or leave with the said registrar or his deputy a note or requisition, fairly written on paper or parchment, in the words or to the effect following, and the same shall be deemed one search; (that is to say,)

'SEARCH for Judgments, Revivals, Decrees, Rules, and Orders registered or re-registered against
 'for Years last past, or from the Day of in the Year to the 'Day of in the Year (as the Case may be), and for Judgments at the Suit of the Crown, Statutes, 'Recognizances, Crown Bonds, Lis Pendens, Inquisitions, and Acceptances of Office registered or re-registered against the 'said for Years last past, or from the Day of in the Year
 'to the Day of in the Year'

xix. That the registrar shall upon the delivery of such requisition file the same in the order in which it shall be received, and shall with all due diligence give to the person making such requisition for a common search a certificate setting forth such of the foregoing as he shall find registered or re-registered in the said office against such person.

xx. That every docket or requisition for a negative or common search respectively shall, from and after the said 1st of November 1844, be liable, in lieu of the existing stamp duty, to a duty of the following amount; that is to say, a duty of 11. upon every docket or requisition for a negative search against each person, and a duty of 7s. for every docket or requisition for a common search against each person; but no more than one docket or requisition shall be necessary in any case against any one person; and the said stamp duties shall be subject to all the laws and regulations to which the existing duty is now liable, or under which it is levied and regulated.

xxi. That it shall be lawful for the Lord Chancellor, the Chief Justice, the Master of the Rolls, the Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, and the Chief Baron of the Exchequer in Ireland, or the majority of them, at any time hereafter, in case they shall deem it fit, to direct that duplicate copies shall for the purposes of this Act be made of the said books by this Act directed to be handed over to the officer appointed under this Act, or of the books directed to be by the said officer kept under the provisions of this Act, or of any of such books, and thereupon the said officer to be appointed under this Act shall have such duplicate copies forthwith made out, and shall for that purpose employ a fit and proper clerk or clerks, and shall pay the expenses of making out such book or books out of the fees received or to be received under the provisions of this Act; and said officer shall be entitled to credit for such payments in passing his accounts under the provisions hereinafter contained, after the same shall be directed by the Judges aforesaid.

And after reciting that by the said Act, 3 & 4 Vict. c. 105, it was provided that the entries for the purpose of the registration of decrees, rules, and orders as therein mentioned should be made by an officer to be appointed as therein mentioned, and the registrations which may be made under this Act render it expedient to make further and other provisions upon this subject:—

xxii. That the officer constituted by the said last-mentioned Act shall cease to act from the 1st of November 1844; and it shall be lawful for the Lord Chancellor, the Lord Chief Justice, the Master of the Rolls, the Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, and the Lord Chief Baron in Ireland, or the majority of them, and they are hereby required, forthwith, and from time to time when occasion shall require, to appoint an officer, to be called the "Registrar of Judgments," whose duty it shall be to attend daily in his office, and to superintend the business thereof and to sign a certificate of all searches issuing from said office, and to receive an account for all fees payable under this Act in manner hereinafter directed; and it shall also be lawful for the Lord Chancellor, the Lord Chief Justice, the Master of the Rolls, the Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, and the Lord Chief Baron, or the majority of them, and they are hereby required, forthwith, and from time to time as occasion may require, to appoint two assistant clerks, whose duty it shall be to attend daily in the said office, and make entries in the several books by this Act directed to be kept, and to act generally in the despatch of the business of the said office, under the direction of the said registrar; and the Lord Chancellor, the Lord Chief Justice, the Master of the Rolls, the Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, and the Lord Chief Baron are hereby required to assign an office within the public buildings called the Four Courts, Dublin, or within the buildings or offices contiguous thereto and attached to or connected therewith, and the said registrar and clerks shall discharge the duties of the said office in the place so to be appointed and in no other place; and any expense attendant on such arrangement shall be charged amongst the incidental expenses hereinafter provided for.

xxiii. That for the purpose of making searches under this Act it shall and may be lawful for the registrar appointed under this Act and he is hereby required to employ two competent clerks, to be removable at his pleasure, who shall be paid in respect to each distinct search, for the quantity of their work, at the rate of 1s. for every period of twenty years or fractional portion thereof over which each search made by them respectively against any one person shall extend: Provided always, that no more than one clerk shall be so paid in respect of each common search, but both may be employed and paid in respect of each negative search, such payments to be charged in the incidental expenses in manner hereinafter provided: Provided always, that the first appointment of assistant clerks and of searching clerks shall be filled up with persons now holding the same office or offices, with duties of a like nature, in the common law courts, and whose offices are about to be abolished, if any such persons shall be willing to accept of such appointments; and any such searching clerks so re-appointed as aforesaid shall not be removable by the registrar under this Act without the consent of the Lord Chancellor.

And in order to secure the services of competent persons to perform the said business of searching clerks,— xxiv. That each of the said clerks to be employed therein by the registrar appointed under this Act as aforesaid shall be entitled to receive for and during the time he shall be so employed a salary at the rate of 100l. per year, over and above the said allowance of 1s. per search, such salary to be paid to them in manner hereinafter provided.

It is Enacted,

xxv. That the registrar to be appointed from time to time under this Act shall quarterly on the 25th of March, the 24th of June, the 29th of September, and the 24th of December, retain and pay out of the produce of the fees to be received under the authority of this Act the several sums following; (that is to say,) to and for the use of him the said registrar the sum of 200l., being 800*l.* yearly; to and for the use of the first clerk the sum of 62*l.* 10*s.*, being 250*l.* yearly; to and for the use of the second clerk the sum of 25*l.*, being 100*l.* yearly; and to each of the said searching clerks the sum of 25*l.*, being 100*l.* yearly; and to and for the use of the registrar of decrees, rules, and orders (whose office is hereby transferred to the registrar under this Act,) the sum of 25*l.* quarterly, being 100*l.* yearly, as compensation for the loss of his said office; and the said registrar shall also pay quarterly, on the days before mentioned, the compensation which shall be awarded under the provisions hereinafter contained to the registrar of decrees and orders appointed under the said Act, 3 & 4 Vict. c. 105, and shall also pay all such compensations as may be at any time hereafter payable under the provisions hereinafter contained; and the said registrar shall also retain and pay out of the said fees all such other sums for books, stationery, coals, candles, and other incidental expenses; and such registrar shall, in ten days after the 25th of March, 24th of June, 29th of September, and 24th of December respectively in each year, pay into the receipt of Her Majesty's Exchequer in Ireland the balance of all such sum and sums of money as shall remain in his hands after making such payments as aforesaid (retaining, however, a sum sufficient to discharge the current expenses of the said office), and which sum or sums so to be paid into the said Exchequer by the said registrar shall thereupon be carried to and made part of the Consolidated Fund of Great Britain and Ireland; and such registrar shall, in fourteen days after the 24th of December in each year, deliver unto the office of Her Majesty's Commissioners for auditing the Public Accounts for the time being an account, signed by such registrar, of all fees received by him under this Act for the year ending such 24th of December, and of all disbursements and sums of money paid by him according to the directions of this Act, properly vouched and verified by a declaration, as in such cases usual, at the foot thereof, by such registrar, if required, before one of the Masters of the Court of Chancery, who is hereby authorized and required to administer such declaration, and in case of the death of such registrar then his executors or administrators shall, within six calendar months after his death, deliver in like manner to the said Commissioners for auditing the Public Accounts, an account, signed by such executors or administrators respectively, of all fees received and of all disbursements and sums paid by such registrar from the latest day to which he shall have so accounted to his death, which account shall be verified in like manner by such executors or administrators; and the said Commissioners for auditing the Public Accounts shall and are hereby required to inquire into, audit, and settle, with all convenient speed, every such account so delivered, and to verify under their hands the balance (if any) due thereon; and such registrar, or his executors or administrators, shall, within six days after each such account respectively shall be so audited and certified, pay into the receipt of Her Majesty's Exchequer in Ireland all such sum or sums of money as shall be so certified as the balance in his or their hands, which payment shall thereupon be carried to and made part of the said Consolidated Fund of Great Britain and Ireland; and the said Commissioners for auditing the Public Accounts, in examining, trying, and auditing the said accounts, shall have all the powers which are vested in them under an Act, 25 Geo. 3. c. 52, intituled 'An Act for better examining and auditing the Public Accounts of this Kingdom,' and under any other Act now in force, or any law, usage, or custom, or otherwise howsoever, save and except where other provision shall be made for the same by this Act: Provided always, that in case the fees so to be received by the registrar to be appointed pursuant to the provisions of this Act shall not be sufficient in any one quarter to pay the salaries, compensations, allowances, and other expenses hereby made payable thereout, it shall be lawful for the said registrar to certify to the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury the gross amount received on account of such fees during such period, and the salaries, compensations, and other disbursements payable thereout; and thereupon the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury may inquire into the correctness of such account, and shall be at liberty to direct that any deficiency in such receipts to meet the said several salaries, compensations, allowances, and other expenses shall be paid out of the Consolidated Fund of Great Britain and Ireland.

XXVI. That in case the said registrar, his executors or administrators, shall at any time neglect or make default in lodging his balances quarterly as aforesaid, or in delivering in such account as hereinbefore directed to the said Commissioners for auditing the Public Accounts, or in paying over any balance which may be certified as due thereon within the periods aforesaid, then and in any such case such registrar, or such executors or administrators having assets sufficient to make such payments, shall pay into the said Exchequer, together with such balance, interest on all such balances as shall appear from time to time to have been retained by him at the rate of 20*l.* per centum per annum from the expiration of the said periods aforesaid until paid in.

To the end that such quarterly payment of such balance, if any, on the foot of such account, may be ascertained,—

It is Enacted,

XXVII. That upon payment thereof a receipt or discharge for the same shall be signed by the proper officer in the Exchequer, which shall be produced and exhibited by the said registrar to the said Commissioners for auditing the Public Accounts, at the passing of such account, or within one calendar month from the date thereof, as the case may be, or by his executors or administrators within three calendar months from the date thereof; and the said Commissioners are hereby required to demand and have the receipt for such quarterly payment produced to them before they shall audit said account, and shall also require the receipt for the balance due on any former account to be produced to them before they shall audit and certify by subsequent account for such registrar, in manner hereinbefore directed.

XXVIII. That, if it shall hereinafter appear to the Lord Chancellor, the Lord Chief Justice, the Master of the Rolls, the Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, and the Lord Chief Baron, or the majority of them, that the business of the said office established under the authority of this Act cannot be discharged with due despatch without the assistance of an additional clerk or clerks, then and in such case it shall be lawful for the said Lord Chancellor, the Lord Chief Justice, the Master of the Rolls, the Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, and the Lord Chief Baron, or the majority of them, by and with the consent of the Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury, from time to time to direct that one or more additional clerk or clerks shall be appointed, with such salary and salaries as they shall deem proper, to be paid out of the fees received or to be received under the authority of this Act.

XXIX. That whenever it shall appear to the Lord Chancellor, the Lord Chief Justice, the Master of the Rolls, the Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, and the Lord Chief Baron, or the majority of them, that the fees hereinbefore directed to be payable under this Act shall be more than sufficient to answer and pay the several salaries and other payments for the time being chargeable thereon, it shall be lawful for the Lord Chancellor, the Lord Chief Justice, the Master of the Rolls, the Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, the Lord Chief Baron, or a majority of them, by and with the consent of the Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury for the time being, from time to time to abolish any fee, or to reduce such fees, as may to them, or to a majority of them, with such consent as aforesaid, from time to time seem fit, and if it should be deemed proper, with the like consent, again from time to time to revive or increase any of the fees so reduced, but not beyond the amounts hereby directed to be paid.

xxx. That it shall and may be lawful to and for the Lord Chancellor, the Lord Chief Justice, the Master of the Rolls, the Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, the Lord Chief Baron, or the majority of them, on complaint duly made, or on any offence or misconduct of which they may otherwise acquire judicial knowledge, and after full inquiry into the alleged grounds thereof, by affidavit or otherwise, as they shall think fit respectively, to remove the said registrar or any assistant clerk of the said office appointed under the provisions of this Act from his office, for any offence or misconduct in such office which they or the majority of them shall deem deserving of such punishment, and thereupon such registrar or assistant clerk shall cease to hold or be entitled to such office; and it shall be lawful for the Lord Chancellor, the Lord Chief Justice, the Master of the Rolls, the Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, and the Lord Chief Baron, or the majority of them, on complaint and inquiry as aforesaid, to inflict upon such registrar or clerk for any minor offence such punishment by way of fine as they or the majority of them shall deem expedient.

xxx. Provided and enacted, That nothing in this Act contained shall extend or be construed to extend to limit, abridge, bar, prejudice, or defeat any action or indictment, or any remedy or proceeding whatsoever, which at any time heretofore may or might have been brought, found, had, or taken against any officer or clerk heretofore appointed under the said recited Acts or any of them, for or in respect of any misconduct in office which may have occurred or taken place, but that all such actions, indictments, remedies, and proceedings for any such misconduct may be brought forward, had, or taken as if this Act had never been made.

xxxii. That from and after the commencement of this Act the registrar and clerks appointed under this Act shall respectively perform their duties in person, except only in case of absence under the sanction hereinafter provided; (that is to say,) in case of illness or other necessary or proper cause of absence it shall be lawful for the said registrar or assistant clerks, or either or any of them, from time to time as occasion may require, to appoint a deputy (such deputy, and also the occasion for such appointment, to be first approved of by the Lord Chancellor, upon a petition being verified), for such time and under such regulations as the Lord Chancellor shall direct; and no such appointment of a deputy shall continue for any longer time than shall be allowed and specified in and by the order which shall be made on such petition; and that such deputy shall be paid, out of the salary of such registrar or clerk, such sum as shall be directed by the said order; and that at all times during the temporary absence of the said registrar under such permission as aforesaid the signature of his deputy shall be good and valid to any search or other document requiring the signature of such registrar.

xxxiii. That every person who shall at any time after the passing of this Act be appointed to be registrar or clerk of or in the office established under this Act shall be and he is hereby declared to be incapable of practising as a barrister, or as an attorney or solicitor, or as agent or clerk of an attorney or solicitor, of any court of law or equity in Ireland, either separately or in partnership with any other, or in the name of any other person or persons, during such time as such person shall hold the situation, office, or employment of registrar or clerk in such office; and if the said registrar or clerks, or any of them, shall, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this Act, so practise as such barrister, attorney, solicitor, agent, or clerk, while he shall hold such situation, office, or employment under this Act, the Lord Chancellor shall, on sufficient proof of the same, dismiss the person so offending from his office or employment, and the person so dismissed shall be rendered incapable of ever after holding any office or employment in any of the said courts.

And after reciting that the office of secondary of the Court of Exchequer is held by virtue of her Majesty's letters patent, during good behaviour, by Andrew Carew O'Dwyer, esquire, barrister at law, and the rights thereof will be injuriously affected by the operation of this Act, and it is just to provide a remedy for the same:—

xxxiv. That immediately after the passing of this Act the Court of Exchequer, or any two Barons thereof, shall proceed to inquire into and ascertain the official receipts of the said secondary for each year of the period directed in an Act, 6 & 7 Vict. c. 55, intituled, 'An Act for the Amendment of the Proceedings and Practice of the Equity Side of the Court of Exchequer in Ireland,' on account of all matters and things done and transacted in the said office for the said period; and the said Court of Exchequer or Barons aforesaid shall strike an average of the said annual receipts, and shall certify the amount of the said average so struck to the Lords Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury; and thereupon the said officer, so long as he shall retain his said office, shall render an account quarterly, verified upon oath, and shall be entitled to claim and receive quarterly and every quarter, and in such manner as other compensations shall be payable under this Act, the amount of any deficiency of income, if such should occur, in each or any quarter, between his receipt of fees, to be taken into account from the 1st of November next, and one-fourth part of the average income to be struck and certified as hereinbefore directed, in order that the said officer shall suffer no loss in his office by the operation of this Act.

xxxv. That all other officers and persons employed in the offices of any her Majesty's courts whose offices are hereby transferred, or whose salary or emoluments shall, in consequence of the passing of this Act, fall short in amount of the salary or emoluments received by them in right of their respective offices or employments, shall be entitled to receive such compensation in respect thereof as the Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury shall ascertain to be just and proper, according to an average of the income enjoyed by any such persons for the seven years next preceding the day appointed for the commencement of this Act, the amount of such compensation to be ascertained in such manner and by such means as the said Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury shall think proper to direct, and to be charged and chargeable, and paid and payable to the several persons entitled thereto, out of the same fund, at the same periods, and in the same manner as hereinbefore provided for the salaries and expenses hereby directed to be paid.

And after reciting that it is expedient that further provisions should be made for the security of persons dealing with bankrupts;—

It is Enacted,

XXXVI. That all conveyances by any bankrupt bond fide made and executed, and all contracts, dealings, and transactions by and with any bankrupt really and bond fide made and entered into before the date and issuing of the commission against such bankrupt, and all executions and attachments against the lands and tenements or goods and chattels of such bankrupt which shall be bond fide executed or levied before the date and issuing of such commission, shall be deemed to be valid, notwithstanding any prior act of bankruptcy by such bankrupt committed, provided the person or persons to whom such bankrupt so conveyed, or the person or persons so dealing with such bankrupt, or at whose suit or on whose account such execution or attachment shall have been issued, had not at the time of such conveyance, contract, dealing, or transaction, or at the time of executing or levying such execution or attachment, notice of any prior act of bankruptcy by such bankrupt committed: Provided also, that nothing herein contained shall be deemed or taken to give validity to any payment made by any bankrupt, being a fraudulent preference of any creditor or creditors of such bankrupt, or to any execution founded on a judgment on a warrant of attorney or cognovit given by any bankrupt by way of such fraudulent preference.

XXXVII. That no purchase from any bankrupt bond fide and for valuable consideration, where the purchaser had notice at the time of such purchase of an act of bankruptcy by such bankrupt committed, shall be impeached by reason thereof, unless the commission against such bankrupt shall have been sued out within twelve calendar months after such act of bankruptcy.

And after reciting, that by an Act, 6 & 7 Will. 4. c. 14, intituled, 'An Act to amend the Laws relating to Bankrupts in Ireland,' it is provided that no creditor, though for a valuable consideration, who shall sue out execution upon any judgment obtained by default, confession, or nil dicit, shall avail himself of such execution to the prejudice of other fair creditors, but shall be paid rateably with such creditors; and that by reason of such provision plaintiffs in actions have been and may be deterred from accepting a cognovit actionem, with stay of execution, whereby the expense of further proceedings in such actions might have been and may be saved or diminished; for remedy whereof,—

It is Enacted,

XXXVIII. That no judgment signed or execution issued after the passing of this Act on a cognovit actionem signed after declaration filed or delivered, or judgment by default, confession, or nil dicit, according to the practice of the Court, in any action commenced adversely, and not by collusion for the purpose of fraudulent preference, should be deemed or taken to be within the said provision of the said Act, 6 & 7 Will. 4. c. 14.

And after reciting, that by an Act, 8 Geo. 1. (I.), intituled, 'An Act for the more effectual quieting and securing Possessions, and preventing vexatious Suits at Law,' it was amongst other things provided, that all actions and suits in law or in equity for recovery of any debt due by single bill, or bond under hand and seal, or by judgment, statute staple, statute merchant, or recognizance, should after the lapse of time therein mentioned be barred, unless upon certain proceedings being taken, or payments or satisfaction being made, as therein respectively mentioned: And that since the passing of the said Act certain other statutes have been passed for the limitations of actions upon judgments and other charges upon land, bonds, and other specialties and recognisances: And that doubts have been entertained whether the provisions of the said Act have been altered or affected by the said later statutes: now, for quieting and putting an end to such doubts,—

It is hereby declared and Enacted,

XXXIX. That the said later Acts were and shall be deemed to be a repeal of the said Act, 8 Geo. 1. (I).

XL. That the registrar to be appointed under this Act shall place up in proper and conspicuous parts of his office lists or schedules of the several fees payable under this Act, so that the public may at all times have access to the same.

XLI. That this Act shall extend to Ireland only.

By this Act,

After reciting that Her Majesty was, on the 7th of October 1843, pleased to issue a commission to certain persons therein named, directing them, amongst other things, to make a full and diligent inquiry into the state of the laws as administered in South Wales which regulate the maintenance and repair of turnpike roads, highways, and bridges: And that the said Commissioners made their report to Her Majesty, bearing date the 6th of March 1844: And that the said Commissioners, by their said report, among other things, recommended that the debts then chargeable upon the several turnpike trusts in South Wales should be ascertained and redeemed, and also that the several trusts in each of the respective counties then existing should be consolidated and placed under uniform management and controul; and that the laws and regulations relating to the collection and application of tolls should be revised and amended: And that it is expedient that these and certain other recommendations of the said Commissioners should be adopted, with certain modifications thereof:—

It is Enacted,

1. That it shall be lawful for the Lord High Treasurer, or the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury for the time being or any three or more of them, by any writing under their hands, to appoint any competent persons, not being more than three in number, to be Commissioners for carrying this Act into execution, one of whom shall be in manner aforesaid appointed chief Commissioner for the time being, and upon any vacancy in the number of Commissioners appointed, either by removal or by death or otherwise, to appoint some other fit person to supply the same; and the said Commissioners for the time being, and each and every of them, are and is hereby vested with the same powers and authorities as if he or they had been named in this present Act, and had been thereby appointed a Commissioner or Commissioners for executing the trusts reposed in him or them by this Act: Provided always, that the powers hereby given to such Commissioners shall absolutely cease and determine on the 29th of September 1845, or on such earlier day as the said Lord High Treasurer, or the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, shall think fit to declare the same to be determined, and notice of the determination of the said commission shall be published in the London Gazette.

11. That the said Commissioners shall be styled "The Commissioners for consolidating and adjusting the Turnpike Trusts in South Wales," and the powers and authorities hereby vested in such Commissioners shall include and comprise the six counties following; (that is to say,) the counties of Glamorgan, Brecknock, Radnor, Carmarthen, Pembroke, and Cardigan respectively; and the said Commissioners or any two of them may sit from time to time and at such place or places as they may deem expedient as a board of Commissioners, and all acts, matters, and things done by any two of such Commissioners acting in execution of this Act shall be valid and effectual; and the said chief Commissioner shall have a casting vote in all matters to be decided by such board, in addition to his own vote; and the said Commissioners shall cause a seal to be made, and all orders, regulations, awards, or other instruments made or executed by or by the authority of the said Commissioners acting as such board, or copies thereof, purporting to be sealed with such seal, shall be received in evidence in all courts, and by all Judges, Justices, and others, without further proof thereof; and all orders, regulations, awards, and other instruments so made as aforesaid by the said Commissioners acting in execution of this Act shall be binding and conclusive on all parties, and to all intents and purposes whatsoever, and shall not be removed or removeable by certiorari, or by any other writ or process, into any of Her Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, any law or statute to the contrary thereof in anywise notwithstanding.

111. That it shall be lawful for the said board of Commissioners to be appointed by virtue of this Act, with the consent of the Lord High Treasurer or Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, to appoint a fit and proper person to be their secretary, and from time to time at their discretion to remove the secretary for the time being, and appoint another in his stead; and it shall be lawful for the said board of Commissioners, with the like consent as aforesaid, from time to time to appoint such accountant or accountants, clerk or clerks, or other officers as may be necessary to assist in carrying the provisions of this Act into execution, and from time to time at their discretion to remove the said accountant or accountants, clerk or clerks, or other officers, and to appoint other persons, with the like consent, in their stead.

1V. That the salaries and allowances of the said Commissioners to be appointed by virtue of this Act, and of their secretary, and of the accountants, clerks, or other officers to be appointed by virtue thereof, shall be from time to time regulated by the Lord High Treasurer, or by the said Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury: Provided always, that the said Lord High Treasurer, or the said Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, may allow to any Commissioner, secretary, accountant, clerk, or other officers any such reasonable travelling and other expenses as may be incurred by them respectively in the performance of their duties under this Act, in addition to their salaries or allowances respectively; and the said salaries, allowances, and expenses shall be paid out of the Consolidated Fund of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

v. That the said Commissioners or any two of them shall, on some day or days between the 1st of August and the 31st of December in this present year, sit as a board for the execution of this Act at the several towns or places, or within a convenient distance thereof, within each of the said counties before mentioned respectively, at which the trustees or Commissioners of any turnpike trusts have been, before the passing of this Act, accustomed to hold their regular meetings for transacting the business relating to such trusts: Provided always, that the said Commissioners shall cause notice to be given of the several days and times at which they shall determine to hold their sittings at the said several towns or places in each of the said counties respectively, by causing one or more advertisements thereof to be inserted in some newspaper or newspapers circulating in such county twenty-one days at least before the time fixed for holding any sitting under this Act: Provided also, that in case the trustees of any trust within any of the said counties shall have heretofore been accustomed to hold their meetings at two or more places alternately, it shall be lawful for the said Commissioners at their discretion to sit at one or more of such places as they shall deem convenient; and the said Commissioners shall have power to adjourn their sittings from time to time, and from place to place, as may be found necessary.

vi. That the said Commissioners or any two of them, sitting as aforesaid, shall make full and diligent inquiry into the management, revenue, debts, condition, and circumstances of the several turnpike trusts lying or partly lying within each of the said counties respectively, and shall examine and ascertain the amount, nature, and value of all debts due or claimed to be due by or from any turnpike trust which shall have been contracted under the powers and in conformity with the provisions of any Act of Parliament relating to such trust, and shall inquire how much of such debts consists of unpaid interest, and for what period such interest shall be in arrear, and all such other particulars respecting the same, and respecting the administration of such trusts and the roads comprised in the same respectively, as the said Commissioners shall deem necessary in order to the execution of the several powers and duties hereby vested in them; and the said Commissioners shall then require all persons being or claiming to be creditors or mortgagees of the tolls of the said several turnpike trusts to produce or cause to be produced before the said Commissioners all mortgages, deeds, contracts, or other securities in respect of which such creditors or mortgagees claim to be entitled to any principal monies or interest out of the tolls of such trusts, and the said Commissioners shall examine and compare the said mortgages or other securities with the registers thereof, and shall take a full and particular account of the same; and in case it shall appear to the said Commissioners, by the books kept by the clerk or treasurer to any trust, or by any other evidence satisfactory to the said Commissioners, that any person is a bona fide creditor or mortgagee of the tolls of such trust, though the mortgage or security before granted or assigned to such person in respect thereof may have been lost, mislaid, or destroyed, it shall be lawful for the said Commissioners to include such person in the list of creditors or mortgagees of such trust in respect thereof; and the said Commissioners are hereby empowered, by summons under their hands, to require the attendance of all clerks, surveyors, treasurers, and other officers of any of the said trusts, as well as of all other persons whom they may think fit to call before them upon any question or matter connected with or relating to the subject of the said inquiry, and also to examine all such persons, and to require the production of all books, contracts, agreements, accounts, maps, plans, Acts of Parliament, papers, and documents, or copies thereof, in anywise relating thereto; and the said Commissioners may, if they shall think fit, require any person whom they shall examine with respect to any of the matters aforesaid to make or subscribe a declaration of the truth of the matters respecting which such person shall have been or shall be examined: Provided always, that no such person shall be obliged by any such summons to go or travel more than twenty miles from the place of his usual abode.

VII. That if any person being examined by the said Commissioners, or the arbitrators or umpire after mentioned, under the authority of this Act, shall wilfully and corruptly give false evidence, or shall subscribe a false declaration, or if any person shall wilfully refuse to attend in obedience to the summons of the said Commissioners, or shall wilfully refuse to give evidence, or to make and subscribe such declaration as aforesaid, or shall wilfully alter, suppress, conceal, destroy, or refuse to produce any books, contracts, agreements, accounts, writings, plans, maps, Acts of Parliament, papers, or documents, which may be required to be produced before the said Commissioners, every person so offending shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanour.

VIII. That the said Commissioners acting as aforesaid under the authority of this Act, and the arbitrators and umpire after mentioned, shall make or cause to be made a full and particular record in writing of their proceedings, and of all such matters and things in the course of the several examinations and inquiries hereinbefore directed to be made by them, as they shall deem essential.

IX. That so soon as the said examination and inquiry into the affairs and finances of any of the said trusts respectively shall have been made as aforesaid, and all such evidence as the said Commissioners shall deem necessary shall have been heard and received touching the same, the said Commissioners shall forthwith proceed to determine respecting the claims of the several persons being or claiming to be mortgagees or creditors of such trust, and shall estimate and determine the fair and actual value of every 100*l.* of debt secured by mortgage or assignment of or other charges on the tolls of such trust, and also the value, if any, of every 100*l.* of interest remaining due upon any such mortgage debts, excluding nevertheless all such interest as shall have been due and in arrear for more than six years previous to the 1st of August in this present year, which said last-mentioned interest the said Commissioners shall in all cases deduct and disallow; and as to any turnpike trusts wherein are comprised any roads or portions of roads locally situated in two or more counties, the said Commissioners shall decide in what manner and according to what proportions the debts outstanding upon such trusts shall be apportioned and made chargeable upon each of such counties respectively, and the said Commissioners shall thereupon make their award in writing under their hands and seals, and shall specify therein the names of all such persons as they shall have determined to be entitled to any monies, in respect of principal or interest, as mortgagees or creditors of such trust, together with the sums to which in the judgment of the said Commissioners the said persons shall be respectively entitled, according to the value of their respective debts; and the said Commissioners shall forthwith deliver their said award to the clerk of such trust, and the said clerk shall, within three days from the delivery of such award, give or send notice in writing to the several persons therein specified as creditors of such trust, or to the lawful representatives or agents of such persons, of the sums thereby awarded to them respectively, according to the tenor and effect of the said award; provided that all notices directed by this Act to be served or given, except such as are to be given by advertisement in any newspaper, may be sent by post.

X. That where any monies shall be due to any infant, the award may be made for the payment of the sum therein specified to the parent or guardian of such infant, or if there shall be no parent or guardian, then to any trustee or trustees for such infant; and if any monies shall be due to a lunatic or idiot, then the award may be made for such payment to the committee of such lunatic or idiot; and where any monies shall be due to any person in trust for others, the award may be made for such payment to the trustee or trustees; or in case of the refusal to act or incapacity of such trustee or trustees, then the said Commissioners, by their said award, or by any writing under their hands and seal, may appoint another or other trustees for the purpose of receiving such payment.

XI. That in case any person so adjudged to be entitled to any monies as a mortgagee or creditor of any such turnpike trust (or the executor, administrator, parent, guardian, trustee, or committee of any such person, in case the person so adjudged to be entitled shall have died, or shall be a minor, cestuique trust, lunatic, or idiot,) shall be dissatisfied with the amount determined by the award of the said Commissioners to be payable in respect of the debt due to such person, then such person, or such executor, administrator, guardian, trustee, or committee, shall, within twenty-one days from the receipt of the said notice of award, signify his dissent from such award by notice in writing to be served upon the clerk of the said trust; and the said clerk shall, within three days after the expiration of the said twenty-one days, transmit a list of the names of all such dissentients to the said Commissioners or to their secretary; and all such creditors or persons authorized to act on their behalf who shall fail to give notice of dissent within the time hereby limited shall not afterwards be at liberty, except only in the case hereinafter described, to question or object to such award; and the said award shall be binding and conclusive upon all such creditors and persons to all intents and purposes whatsoever.

XII. That in case any creditor mentioned in such award, or person authorized to act on behalf of such creditor, shall have duly given notice of such dissent as aforesaid, and the same shall have been duly certified by the clerk of such trust to the said Commissioners, the said Commissioners shall thereupon appoint some convenient time and place, whereof they shall cause not less than fourteen days notice to be given by advertisement in one or more newspapers circulating in any county wherein such trust shall be situate, for determining the claims of all dissentient parties by arbitration, according to the provisions hereinafter contained.

XIII. That the said dissentients shall attend before the said Commissioners in person, or by their agents, at the time and place which shall have been so appointed as aforesaid, and the majority in number of such dissentients, if more than two, and if two or one, then such two or one, shall elect and appoint some one fit and competent person, not being in anywise interested in the subject matter of such award, to be an arbitrator on their or his behalf, and shall signify the appointment of such arbitrator to the Commissioners; and the Commissioners, if they shall approve of such appointment, shall thereupon nominate one other indifferent person to be an arbitrator on their part; provided always, that the said dissentients shall have no power to revoke the appointment of the arbitrator by them appointed after the same shall have been signified to and approved by the Commissioners; and in case the said dissentients shall refuse or neglect to appoint such arbitrator, then it shall be lawful for the said Commissioners to appoint one arbitrator to act on behalf of both parties, and in such case the award or determination of such one arbitrator shall be final and conclusive, in the same manner as if two arbitrators had been appointed and had concurred in the same.

XIV. That if before the matters referred to such arbitrators shall have been determined any arbitrator appointed by either party shall die, or become incapable or refuse or neglect to act as arbitrator, the party by whom such arbitrator was appointed may appoint in manner aforesaid some other indifferent person to act in his stead.

XV. That in case the said arbitrators so to be appointed as aforesaid shall be unable to agree upon and determine the matters referred to them, they shall jointly nominate and appoint some third person, to be approved by the said Commissioners, to act as umpire, or if the said arbitrators cannot agree in such appointment, then an umpire shall be named by one of Her Majesty's principal Secretaries of State; and the decision of such umpire on the matters so referred to shall be final.

XVI. That the said arbitrators, or their umpire, shall inquire and determine what sums of money shall be paid to the said dissentients in respect of their debts, and shall have the same powers and authorities for the purpose of the said arbitration as are hereinbefore given to the said Commissioners touching the examining of witnesses, as well the persons on whose behalf any such arbitration shall have been instituted as others, and touching the production of any books, papers, contracts, writings, or documents which they or he shall deem necessary for the purpose of such arbitration.

XVII. That the said arbitrators, or their umpire, shall make their or his award in writing touching all the several matters referred, under their hands and seals or hand and seal, and shall forthwith deliver one copy or duplicate thereof to the said Commissioners, and another copy or duplicate thereof to the clerk of such trust; and such clerk shall forthwith give notice to the said persons on whose behalf such arbitration shall have been instituted of the tenor and effect of such award; and such award shall be final, conclusive, and binding on the said persons, and on all other persons whomsoever, and shall have the same force and effect as any award made by the said Commissioners in pursuance of this Act.

XVIII. That the said Commissioners shall allow to any person acting as arbitrator or umpire, according to the provisions of this Act, such sums for his services and loss of time therein as the said Commissioners shall deem reasonable; and the said sums, and all other expenses incurred in and about such arbitration, shall be borne and paid as follows; (that is to say,) if the sum awarded by such arbitrators or umpire to be paid to the parties dissenting from the award of the said Commissioners shall be a greater sum than the sum specified in the said last-mentioned award, then all the said costs, charges, and expenses attending the proceedings before the said arbitrators or umpire shall be paid in like manner as other charges and expenses which shall be incurred by the said Commissioners, or by their authority, in carrying this Act into execution; and in case the sum or sums awarded by such arbitrators or umpire shall not be a greater sum or sums than the sum or sums specified in the award of the said Commissioners, then such costs, charges, and expenses as aforesaid shall be borne and paid rateably by the several parties on whose behalf the said arbitration shall have been instituted: Provided always, that all costs, charges, and expenses to be borne by such parties, may, in default of their paying the same, be paid in like manner as other charges and expenses incurred in the execution of this Act as aforesaid; and in that case the same shall be fairly and rateably apportioned by the said Commissioners among the said parties respectively, and the same shall be deducted from the payments thereafter to be made to such parties in respect of the several sums awarded to them, according to the provisions hereinafter contained.

XIX. That no award or other instrument relating to or arising out of any arbitration which shall take place in pursuance of this Act, and no advertisement which, in pursuance of this Act, and by direction of the said Commissioners, shall be inserted in the London Gazette or in any newspaper, shall be chargeable with any stamp duty.

XX. That in case any person claiming to be a mortgagee or creditor of any turnpike trust shall, by reason of absence from the realm, or any other unavoidable and necessary cause, fail to give notice to the Commissioners of such mortgage or debt within the time and according to the regulations hereinbefore limited and provided, or in case any person who shall have been proved to the satisfaction of the Commissioners to be a mortgagee or creditor of any turnpike trust, and with respect to whose mortgage or debt any award shall have been made by the Commissioners shall, by reason of such unavoidable and necessary cause as aforesaid, fail to give notice of dissent from such award within the time and according to the regulations hereinbefore limited and provided, it shall nevertheless be lawful for the said Commissioners, upon the application of such person at any time within twelve months from the passing of this Act, provided they shall be satisfied with the cause alleged, to receive evidence of such mortgage or debt, and to make their award respecting the same as hereinbefore directed, or otherwise to direct an arbitration to be instituted, as the case may be, according to the regulations hereinbefore contained, at such time and place, and on such terms and conditions, with reference to the circumstances of the case, as to the said Commissioners shall appear just and reasonable: Provided always, that all parties omitting to give such notice or to make such application within twelve months from the passing of this Act shall be thereafter finally barred and concluded from any further application, appeal, or other proceeding with respect to any such debt or mortgage, or with respect to any award of the Commissioners concerning the same.

XXI. That the said Commissioners, so soon as they shall have made the said examination and inquiry hereinbefore directed to be made into the condition, circumstances, and affairs of the several turnpike trusts in all or any of the said six counties, and so soon as they shall have estimated and ascertained the sums payable to the several creditors of the said trusts respectively, and shall have made or caused to be made the several awards concerning the same, shall make a full and particular report, under their hands and seal, to one of Her Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, and shall therein specify in detail the sums by them or by their authority awarded to be due and payable to the several creditors of each of the said trusts respectively, and also the total or aggregate sums which they shall have determined to be chargeable in respect of such debts to or upon each of the said counties respectively, and shall also make such further report or returns respecting any other matters and things thereto appertaining as the said Commissioners shall deem necessary, or as one of Her Majesty's said Principal Secretaries of State shall require; and the said Commissioners shall also make such other and additional reports from time to time respecting any matters and things by them done in the execution of this Act, or relating to the same, as Her Majesty's said Principal Secretary of State shall require.

XXII. That when the said Commissioners shall have made their report of the sums awarded to be paid to the said creditors in respect of their said debts and interest, and such report shall have been approved of by one of Her Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, then it shall be lawful for the Commissioners for carrying into execution an Act, 5 & 6 Vict. c. 9, intituled 'An Act to authorize the Advance of Money out of the Consolidated Fund to a limited Amount for carrying on Public Works and Fisheries, and Employment of the Poor; and to amend the Acts authorizing the Issue of Exchequer Bills for the like Purposes,' (and which said Commissioners are hereinafter designated as the Public Works Loan Commissioners,) in manner after mentioned, to cause to be paid the several sums of money so fixed by such awards respectively to the parties entitled to receive the same under the said awards, together with interest thereon after the rate of 3l. per cent. per annum from the date of the said awards respectively to the day which shall be appointed by the said Public Works Loan Commissioners for the payment thereof; and the payment to the persons named in such awards respectively, their executors, administrators, or assigns, or to the parent or guardian of any infant, or to the committee of any lunatic or idiot, shall be a valid and effectual payment and discharge of and in respect of such monies so awarded, and of all claims of such persons in respect of the same.

XXIII. That for the purpose of providing a fund for such payments the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland for the time being are hereby empowered, by warrant under the hands of any three or more of them, to direct to be charged upon and paid out of the Consolidated Fund of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, or out of the growing produce thereof from time to time, to the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt, a sum or sums of money not exceeding 225,000*l.* to be by them held in trust for the purposes hereafter mentioned.

XXIV. That the Commissioners for the time being for the Reduction of the National Debt shall be and they are hereby appointed trustees on the part of the public for holding the said monies to be issued and paid out of the Consolidated Fund as aforesaid, and they shall cause a separate account to be opened at the Bank of England with them for such purpose, under the title of "The Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt on account of the South Wales Turnpike Trust Fund," which account the Governor and Company of the Bank of England shall and they are hereby required to open in their books accordingly, and to which account shall be carried all such monies as shall be issued and paid out of the Consolidated Fund for the purposes aforesaid; and there shall be provided and kept in the office of the said Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt a book or books, in which all the monies transferred to the account of the said last-mentioned Commissioners by virtue of this Act shall be entered and kept separate and apart from all other monies; and such monies shall be by them held subject to the disposal and orders of the said Public Works Loan Commissioners for the purposes of payments to be made by them in pursuance of this Act.

XXV. That the Governor and Company of the Bank of England shall and they are hereby required to open an account in their books with the Public Works Loan Commissioners, under the title of "The Commissioners for the Issue of Loans for Public Works and Fisheries, et cetera, (South Wales Turnpike Trusts,)" and to the credit of which account shall be carried all principal monies and interest which shall from time to time become payable in respect of the monies hereinafter directed to be secured to such last-mentioned Commissioners, and shall be paid to the cashiers of the said Bank of England, upon such or the like certificates, under the hands of the said last-mentioned Commissioners, as by the said recited Act is provided or referred to in the case of payments to be made into the Bank as therein is provided, or as near thereto as the difference of circumstances will admit.

XXVI. That all and every sum and sums of money which shall be paid into the Bank of England to the account of the last-mentioned Commissioners, under or by virtue of this Act, shall from time to time, immediately on such payments being made to the said account, be transferred by the Governor and Company of the Bank of England to the account kept by the said Bank of England with Her Majesty's Exchequer, and when so transferred shall be carried to and be made part of the Consolidated Fund of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

XXVII. That when and so soon as the said last-mentioned Commissioners shall have determined upon any amount of money to be paid under the provisions of this Act, the said Commissioners or any three or more of them shall forthwith certify such amount to the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt for the time being; and at the foot of every such certificate the Secretary of the said Public Works Loan Commissioners shall state the name or names of the person or persons by whom every such certificate is to be presented to the said Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt; and upon every such certificate being produced to the officer of the said Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt, the comptroller general or assistant comptroller, or chief clerk acting under the said last-named Commissioners, shall upon the back of every such certificate indorse and sign an order for the payment of the sum mentioned in every such certificate to the person or persons named at the foot of every such certificate, or to one of such persons, and which order of such officer previously to the issuing thereof shall be entered by the clerk or other proper officer, and shall be countersigned by the actuary or other check officer acting under the said last-named Commissioners, and shall be addressed to the Governor and Company of the Bank of England; and such cashiers or one of them shall upon the production of every such order pay the sum mentioned therein to the person or persons mentioned in every such order; and the signature of such person or persons, jointly or severally, shall be a sufficient discharge to the said Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt, and to the said governor and company respectively; provided the total amount directed to be paid by such certificates or certificates respectively shall not at any time exceed the amount for the time being standing to the credit of the said account of the said Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt under the provisions of this Act.

XXVIII. That the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt shall cause to be made up, for examination and audit, an annual account to the 31st of December in each year of the receipts, payments, and balances on the said account so directed to be kept by them in respect of the said "South Wales Turnpike Trust Fund" as aforesaid, and shall deliver the same to the Commissioners for auditing the Public Accounts.

XXIX. That an account shall be made up on the 25th of March and the 29th of September in every year of the monies which shall have been paid by the said Public Works Loan Commissioners as aforesaid, together with interest thereon from the respective days of payment up to the said 25th of March or the 29th of September, as the case may be, distinguishing the same so as to show the amount paid to creditors on tolls within each of the aforesaid counties respectively, together with such interest as aforesaid; and thereupon the said Commissioners for carrying this Act into execution, in consideration of the sums so respectively paid to the creditors on the tolls of each of the said counties respectively, together with such interest as aforesaid, shall charge the county roads fund hereinafter mentioned, and the rates to be levied in aid thereof as after mentioned, with the payment to the said Public Works Loan Commissioners, on account of the South Wales Turnpike Trust Fund, of such an annuity as shall be equal to 5*l.* 5*s.* for every sum of 100*l.* so paid as aforesaid by the last-named Commissioners, together with such interest as aforesaid in respect of each separate county, and so in proportion for any fractional part of 100*l.* paid, such annuity to be payable from the said 25th of March or the 29th of September up to which such account shall have been made, for the term of thirty years, and to be paid half-yearly, and without deduction, on the 25th of March and the 29th of September in every year, and the first payment to be made on such of the said half-yearly days of payment as shall next happen after such charge shall have been made, and so as the county roads fund aforesaid, and such rates in aid thereof as aforesaid of each county be charged with such an annuity as aforesaid in respect of the sums paid to the creditors on the tolls within that county, and such interest thereon as aforesaid, and no more.

XXX. That with respect to any monies to be paid by the Public Works Loan Commissioners after the powers hereby given to the Commissioners for carrying this Act into execution shall have ceased, then such charge as aforesaid shall be made and executed by one of her Majesty's principal Secretaries of State.

XXXI. That all such charges to be made as aforesaid shall be made and prepared in such form as the said Public Works Loan Commissioners shall from time to time order or direct, and, when executed by the parties hereby authorized to make such charges, shall be valid in the law, and shall be made to the secretary for the time being of the said Commissioners last mentioned, and in all respects as by the said recited Act, 5 & 6 Vict. c. 9, and the Acts therein recited, is directed and provided with regard to securities and charges to be made to the secretary for the time being of the Commissioners last mentioned; and all provisions and directions in the said recited Act and the Acts therein recited shall apply to such charges or securities to be made in pursuance of this Act in such manner as if the same were herein repeated; and the fact of the secretary of the said Commissioners being a party to such charge shall be deemed conclusive evidence of the same having been prepared in the form prescribed by and under the order and direction of the said last-mentioned Commissioners.

XXXII. Provided and enacted, That nothing in this Act contained shall authorize the Commissioners for carrying this Act into execution to award to the Commissioners for carrying into execution the said recited Act, 5 & 6 Vict. c. 9, or to any of the Commissioners for carrying into execution any of the several Acts therein recited, in respect of any mortgage or other charge on the tolls of any turnpike trust in South Wales heretofore made to any such Commissioners respectively, or their secretary, and to which no other fund or payment is now by any law or statute made applicable, any sum less than the full amount which shall be due thereon for principal and interest up to the day of the date of such award as aforesaid; but all such principal monies and interest which shall be so due shall be awarded in full to the said Public Works Loan Commissioners, or their secretary for the time being, in lieu of such debts and interest being valued in manner hereinbefore specified with respect to such other debts or charges and interest so as aforesaid directed to be valued, and shall be paid accordingly.

XXXIII. That it shall be lawful for the Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury for the time being, by warrant under the hands of any three or more of them, from time to time to direct the payment of any part of the monies by the said recited Act, 5 & 6 Vict. c. 9, authorized to be paid to the Commissioners for the time being for the Reduction of the National Debt (as in the said Act is provided) to be paid into the Bank of England to the account kept by the said Bank of England with her Majesty's Exchequer, and when so paid the same shall be carried to and made part of the Consolidated Fund of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, so as such sums so to be paid shall not exceed the amount of the sums from time to time to be advanced for the purposes of this Act.

XXXIV. That all local Acts of Parliament for making, repairing, or regulating any turnpike road or roads within any of the said counties respectively shall, so far as relates to the several turnpike roads locally situated within the said counties respectively, be repealed by virtue of this Act; and the repeal of every such local Act respectively shall date and take effect from and after such day as the said Commissioners, by order under their hands and seal, and whereof notice shall be published in the London Gazette, shall appoint and declare with respect to such local Act or Acts as shall be specified in such order respectively; and the provisions of this Act hereinafter contained for consolidating the several trusts in each of the said counties, and for altering and remodelling the management of the same, shall thenceforward come into full operation and effect: Provided always, that the repeal of the said Acts shall not have the effect of reviving any former Acts which have been repealed by those Acts or any of them, but such former Acts shall continue repealed in the same manner as if this Act had not been passed.

XXXV. That the said Commissioners shall, so soon as the said inquiry hereinbefore directed to be made into the debts and circumstances of the several turnpike trusts shall have been completed, cause a notice in writing to be addressed to the clerk of the peace of each of the said counties respectively, and her Majesty's Justices of the Peace acting in and for each of the said counties respectively shall, at their General Quarter Sessions of the Peace to be held for such county next after the date of such notice, or if the regular time for holding such General Quarter Sessions shall not happen within thirty days from such date, then at some General Sessions to be duly summoned for that purpose, according to the regulations now in force for the summoning of the same, and to be held within thirty days from the date of such notice, elect and appoint not less than six nor more than twelve fit and competent persons, being Justices of the Peace acting in and for the said county, to be members of the board to be constituted in pursuance of this Act for the management and controul of all turnpike roads lying within each of the said counties respectively; and in case the said Justices shall, at their said General or Quarter Sessions which shall be held next after the said notice, or in pursuance thereof, elect a less number than twelve persons to be members of the said board, then it shall be lawful for the said Justices from time to time, at any subsequent General Quarter Sessions, to elect so many other persons, being Justices as aforesaid, as, together with the said persons before elected, shall not exceed the said number of twelve; and whenever any of the persons who shall have been so elected respectively shall die or resign, or if any of the said persons shall absent themselves from the meetings of the said boards for the space of twelve months, the said Justices of the Peace shall, at their General Quarter Sessions held next after such vacancy shall have occurred, elect and appoint another or other person or persons in the room of the person or persons who shall have died or resigned as aforesaid: Provided always, that notice of any election to take place in pursuance of this Act shall in all cases be given by the clerk of the peace for such county, by inserting an advertisement thereof in one or more of the newspapers circulating in such county fourteen days at least before the said General Quarter Sessions at which such election is intended to take place.

XXXVI. That in each of the said counties respectively the several persons herein next mentioned shall be ex officio members of the said board; that is to say, the Lord Lieutenant and the Vice Lieutenant (if any) of such county for the time being, all eldest sons of peers, and all members of her Majesty's Privy Council, who shall respectively reside in such county, or be rated in respect of any property therein, and all members of the House of Commons who shall have been elected to serve in Parliament for such county, or for any borough or place therein, and the chairman of Quarter Sessions for such county for the time being.

XXXVII. That the said board to be constituted by virtue of this Act in each of the said counties respectively shall be styled "The County Roads Board," and shall subject to the provisions and restrictions hereinafter contained, have the superintendence, controul, and management of all turnpike roads, and parts of turnpike roads, situated in any of the said counties respectively, which shall have been heretofore regulated by any local Act or Acts of Parliament to be repealed in pursuance of this Act, and which shall be determined by the said Commissioners in manner hereinafter provided to be maintainable as turnpike roads in any of the said counties respectively.

XXXVIII. That the several powers, provisions, and regulations of the Acts mentioned in the first Schedule to this Act annexed (and which are hereinafter called the general Turnpike Acts) shall, except so far as the same are varied, altered, or repealed by this Act, continue to apply to all roads which shall hereafter be maintained, pursuant to the said determination of the said Commissioners, as turnpike roads within any of the said counties respectively; and all powers, privileges, rights, exemptions, penalties, restrictions, and liabilities belonging or appertaining, by virtue of the said general Turnpike Acts or any of them, to any trustees or Commissioners acting in execution of any local Act for regulating any turnpike roads, shall, except so far as the same are varied, altered, or repealed by this Act, or are repugnant or contradictory thereto, apply to all persons who shall be members of any of the said county roads, boards, and also, so far as the same shall be found applicable, to all members of any district boards to be constituted by virtue of this Act in manner hereinafter provided.

XXXIX. That in each of the said counties respectively the present collectors of tolls, surveyors, clerks, and all other officers and persons who shall have received any tolls or other money under or by virtue of any local Act for regulating turnpike roads to be repealed in pursuance of this Act, shall, so soon as they shall be required by the county roads board acting in and for the county to which the tolls or roads included in such local Act shall respectively be determined to belong, account for, pay, and deliver over such tolls or other money to the said county roads board, or to some person to be by the said county roads board appointed for that purpose, in the same manner as they are by the said general Turnpike Acts required to do to the trustees by or under whom they have been appointed, and shall be subject to the like provisions and penalties for enforcing the production of such account, and such payment and delivery over, as they would have been subject to under the said general Turnpike Acts if they had refused or neglected to produce, pay, or deliver over the same as thereby required to the said trustees: Provided always, that in case any road or roads included in any turnpike trust shall lie in more than one of the said counties, the officers acting under the local Act regulating the same shall pay and deliver over the monies in their hands, and other property of or belonging to such trust as aforesaid, in such proportion between two or more such county roads boards as the said Commissioners shall order and direct.

And after reciting that many persons may at the time of the repeal of the said local Acts be farmers of the tolls arising on turnpike roads, and may hold leases or contracts with the trustees acting in execution of such Acts, which leases or contracts may be unexpired at the time of such repeal: And that the rates of such tolls, and the distances within which the same shall be payable, may be altered by virtue of this Act, and the roads to which such contracts relate may be situated in different counties, and may be placed by virtue of this Act under different management and controul:

It is Enacted,

XL. That it shall be lawful for the county roads board acting in and for the county wherein the roads to which such leases or contracts relate shall lie, upon application made to such board by such farmer of tolls, lessee, or contractor, to release and discharge such farmer, lessee, or contractor from such lease or contract, and the same shall thenceforth become void and of no effect as to the residue of the term or time then to come and unexpired therein, anything contained in such lease or contract, to the contrary notwithstanding: Provided always, that it shall be lawful for the said county roads board to make such composition and agreement with the parties interested therein for apportionment of rents or payments, and also to make such compensation or allowance to the said parties, as to the said county board shall seem just and reasonable: Provided also, that in case the roads to which such leases, contracts, or agreements relate shall lie, as to part thereof, in more than one of the said counties, then such apportionment of rent or payment shall be made, and such compensation and allowance shall be paid, as between the several county boards interested therein, in such manner and according to such rules and proportions as the said Commissioners shall determine.

XLII. That all persons who shall, at the time of the repeal of any of the said local Acts to be repealed in pursuance of this Act, owe any sum or sums of money to the trustees theretofore acting under such local Act shall pay the same, as soon as they shall be required so to do, to the county roads board acting in and for the county wherein the roads theretofore regulated by such local Act shall lie, instead of such trustees; and such county roads board shall have the same benefit of all bonds and securities, and of all other remedies for recovering and obtaining payment of such sums respectively, as the said trustees might or could have had in case this Act had not been passed, or in case such sums of money had been originally due and owing to such county roads board; and all sums of money (other than such sums of money as have been advanced on the security of the tolls of any turnpike road) which at the time of the repeal of any of the said local Acts shall be owing from the trustees theretofore acting under any such local Act, and which shall have been bond fide incurred, applied, or expended in the execution of any such local Acts, shall be paid to the parties thereto entitled by such county roads board, instead of such trustees, and such trustees shall be and are hereby discharged therefrom: Provided always, that where any such sums of money shall be due to or by the trustees of any turnpike road or roads which shall lie, as to part thereof, in more than one of the said counties, the same shall be payable to or by the county roads boards of the several counties respectively in which the said roads shall lie, according to such rules and proportions as the said Commissioners shall determine.

XLIII. That all and every turnpike roads and road regulated by any local Act to be repealed in pursuance of this Act, and all turnpikes, toll houses, gates, weighing machines, carts, watch-boxes, lamps, lamp posts, and other erections and buildings on the said roads, which shall have been erected under the powers of the said local Acts or any of them, or of any former Acts for the making or repairing of the said roads respectively, or of the said general Turnpike Acts, shall from and after the repeal of the said local Acts respectively be and remain vested in the several county roads boards acting in and for the several counties wherein such roads respectively shall lie, in like manner and to the same extent as they are now respectively vested in the trustees acting in execution of such local Acts; and all the estate, right, title, and interest of the several trustees acting in execution of the said local Acts to be repealed in pursuance of this Act of and in all lands, houses, quarries, gravel pits, or other hereditaments whatsoever purchased for widening, improving, altering, or repairing the said roads or any of them, and of and in all estates devised or settled in trust for the repair of the said roads or any of them, or charged with any payments in respect thereof, shall from and after the repeal of the said local Acts respectively be and remain vested in the county roads boards of the several counties in which the said turnpike roads shall respectively lie: Provided always, that where any such turnpike road or roads shall lie, as to part thereof, in any two or more counties, such estate, right, title, and interest shall be divided and apportioned between, according to such rules and proportions, and on such principles of division, as the said Commissioners shall determine.

XLIV. That all materials, and all tools or implements, purchased or provided for the repair of any turnpike road or roads regulated by any local Act to be repealed in pursuance of this Act, and which at the time of the repeal of the said Acts respectively shall belong to the trustees acting in the execution thereof, shall from thenceforth belong to and be the property of the county roads board or boards of the county or counties which the said Commissioners shall, by their order, determine to be entitled to the same, or shall be divided between any two or more such boards in such proportion as the said Commissioners shall determine; and in any action, suit, or other proceeding brought or instituted by or on behalf of any county roads board for or in respect of or in anywise relating to the said roads, materials, or other estate or effects, or any other property, real or personal, which shall hereafter belong to any county roads board, or in any bill of indictment preferred by or by the direction of any county roads board against any person or persons who shall dig up, break or pull down, take or carry away, spoil, injure, or destroy, any of the said roads, lands, materials, or other estate and effects or other property as aforesaid, it shall be sufficient to state generally such roads, lands, materials, or other estate, effects, or property to be the property of such county roads board, and it shall not be necessary to specify the names of any member or members of the same.

XLV. That, as soon as conveniently may be after the repeal of the said local Acts respectively, the county roads board in each of the said counties respectively may, by themselves or by such person or persons as they shall appoint in that behalf, take possession of all the said turnpike roads, and of all lands and other property hereby vested in the said county boards respectively; and the said several trustees acting under the authority of the said local Acts to be repealed in pursuance of this Act shall surrender and give up to the said county roads boards respectively, or to the persons whom they shall respectively appoint in that behalf, the roads for which they shall respectively be trustees, together with all lands and other property hereby vested in the said county roads boards which shall then be in the possession of the said trustees respectively, and also the title deeds of such lands and other property, and all leases and counterparts of leases thereof, and all other instruments, books, papers, accounts, vouchers, writings, and all other matters and things, in the possession of such trustees respectively, or of their respective clerks, treasurers, surveyors, collectors, or other officers, relating to the said roads respectively; and the said trustees shall also deliver to the said county roads boards, or other person appointed by them in that behalf, accounts of all balances in their hands or in the hands of any bankers or other persons for the use of the said roads, and shall pay over or transfer such balances to or to the credit of the respective treasurers of the said county roads boards hereafter to be appointed; and any trustee, clerk, treasurer, surveyor, collector, or other officer of any trustees who shall refuse or neglect to surrender, or give up to such county roads board, or to the person appointed by them in that behalf, any road, land, or other property, or to deliver an account of or pay over or transfer any balance, pursuant to the directions in this Act contained, for the space of one month after he shall have been required so to do by order of such county roads board shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

XLVI. That from and after the repeal of the said local Acts respectively no mortgagee of the tolls of any turnpike road in any of the said counties shall have any right to sue for, recover, or take possession of any tolls, toll gate, or lands mortgaged in any mortgage deed relating thereto, or to sue for any principal sums lent to such trust, or any part thereof, or any interest thereon, anything contained in the said general Turnpike Acts, or in any other Act notwithstanding.

XLVI. That every mortgagee or other person who shall, previously to the repeal of the said local Acts respectively, have taken possession of any tolls, toll house, or toll gate of or upon any turnpike road in any of the said counties, or of any lands or tenements the rents and profits whereof are appropriated to the repair of any such turnpike road, shall, on some day to be hereafter appointed by the county roads board acting in and for that county in which any such toll gates or lands shall lie, deliver up to such county roads board, or to such person as the said board shall appoint, possession of all such tolls, toll houses, or lands, and shall at the same time render to the said county roads board, or to such other person as aforesaid, an exact account of all the tolls received by such mortgagee, or by any other person for his use and benefit, or by his authority, and also of the manner in which he shall have applied such tolls; and in case he shall not give up possession as aforesaid, or shall remain in possession of the said tolls, toll houses, and lands, or any of them respectively, after the time so appointed by such county roads board as aforesaid, he shall forfeit and pay to such board the sum of 50*l.* for every day that he shall thereafter continue in possession, over and above all tolls which he shall receive while so continuing in possession; and in case he shall fail to render an account as aforesaid, or shall wilfully render an account wrong or false in any respect as hereinbefore mentioned, he shall forfeit and pay to the said county roads board the sum of 50*l.* for every day after such failure to account, or to render a true and correct account, as aforesaid, until such account be rendered or made right, and until such balance as may be due from such mortgagee or other person upon such account shall be paid: Provided always, that in all actions of ejectment for the recovery of any tolls, toll houses, or lands which shall be pending at the time of the repeal of the said local Acts respectively, the parties instituting such actions shall be entitled, in case they shall obtain a verdict therein, to such costs of suit as if this act had not been passed; and that the county roads board of any county comprising any turnpike roads, for the recovery of the tolls or toll gates on which any action of ejectment shall be so pending, shall be at liberty, immediately after the repeal of the said local Acts respectively, to apply to one of the Judges of the superior courts at Westminster to order that such actions be stayed on payment to the parties instituting such actions of the costs thereof only, and such Judge shall make such order accordingly.

XLVII. That in every case where any hundred, parish, hamlet, or place, or any particular person or persons, body or bodies politic or corporate, or any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, is or are now by law chargeable with or towards the repairing or maintaining of any turnpike road or roads regulated by any local Act to be repealed in pursuance of this Act, or any part thereof, or any bridges, causeways, drains, or sewers upon or in the same, the inhabitants of every such hundred, parish, hamlet, or place, and every such person, body politic or corporate, and the owners and proprietors, feoffees and trustees, of such lands, tenements, and hereditaments respectively, shall, except such as are expressly exempted by this Act, still remain chargeable with or towards the repairing or maintaining of such roads, bridges, causeways, drains and sewers respectively, in like manner as they would have been in case this Act had not been passed; and all bodies politic or corporate, trustees, and other persons, who, by reason of any Act of Parliament, grant, deed, charter, will, or otherwise, are liable to pay or apply any sums of money whatsoever arising from the rent of lands, tenements, hereditaments, or the interest arising from any monies in the funds, or otherwise, in, for, or towards the repair or improvement of the said roads or any of them, shall, except as aforesaid, from time to time account for and pay over such sum or sums of money, rents, or interest to the said county roads boards acting in and for the county in which such roads shall lie, or to the respective treasurers of such boards for the time being, or otherwise as the said boards shall respectively order in that behalf, and the said boards shall apply such sum or sums of money, rent, or interest in, for, or towards the repair or improvement of the said roads respectively: Provided always, that in all cases in which the liability to pay any sum or sums of money as aforesaid shall be in respect of the repair or improvement of any turnpike road or roads lying, as to part thereof, in more than one of the said counties, such sum or sums of money shall be paid to or to the account of the several county roads boards acting in and for the respective counties in which such road or roads shall lie, according to such rules and proportions as the said Commissioners for carrying this Act into execution shall determine.

XLVIII. That the said county roads boards acting in and for each of the said counties respectively may, subject to the restrictions hereinafter contained, continue all or any of the toll gates, toll bars, and toll houses in any of the said counties erected by virtue of any of the local Acts to be repealed in pursuance of this Act, or by virtue of any former Act relating to any turnpike roads within or partly within any of the said counties, and may, subject as aforesaid, erect such other toll gates, toll bars, and toll houses in, upon, or across, or at the sides of such parts of any of the turnpike roads within any of the said counties respectively as the said county roads boards shall think proper and expedient, and from time to time may repair, renew, and rebuild, as occasion shall require, such toll gates, toll bars, and toll houses, and cause all such other erections, buildings, and other conveniences to be made and put up, as in their opinion shall be necessary and proper for the collecting and levying of the tolls hereinafter authorized to be taken upon the said turnpike roads, or for any other purposes connected therewith.

XLIX. That it shall be lawful for the county roads board of any of the said counties respectively, when and so often as they shall think proper, to cause any of the toll gates, toll bars, or toll houses, or other erections or buildings appertaining thereto, already erected or to be hereafter erected in, upon, across, or on the side of any of the said turnpike roads, to be removed to, and erected in, upon, across, or on the side of such other parts of the said turnpike roads or any of them, or otherwise wholly to be removed or taken away, as the said county roads board shall respectively from time to time order and direct.

L. That from and after the repeal of the said local Acts respectively it shall be lawful for the county roads board of any of the said counties respectively, or their respective lessees, collectors, or agents, and they are hereby authorized, to demand, receive, and take, on or at the side of the said several turnpike roads in their respective counties, before the horse or other animal, carriage or other vehicle, in respect of which any toll shall be payable, shall be allowed to pass through any gate or bar erected or to be erected upon, across, or on the side of the said roads, the several tolls specified in the second Schedule hereto annexed, subject to the restrictions, exemptions, in this Act mentioned, and also to the restrictions, exemptions, and provisions in the said general Turnpike Acts mentioned, except so far as the same are varied, altered, or repealed by this Act: Provided always, that the same rate or rates of toll for every horse or other animal not drawing, and for every horse or other animal.

drawing, any carriage or vehicle of the same class or description according to the said second Schedule, shall, subject as hereinafter is mentioned, be respectively taken and received at every gate and bar within the same county.

LI. That from and after the repeal of the said local Acts respectively no higher or different rate of toll shall in any case be taken or demanded upon any turnpike roads within any of the said counties respectively by reason of any regulation or distinction relating to the breadth, size, form, or construction of the wheels of any carriage, cart, or other vehicle used or employed upon such roads, but one and the same uniform rate of toll according to the second Schedule herewith annexed, and subject to the provisions and exemptions of this Act, shall in all cases be taken in respect of each several description of carriage or vehicle in the said second Schedule mentioned, without reference to the dimensions or construction of the wheels thereof, anything contained in the said general Turnpike Acts or in any other Act to the contrary notwithstanding: Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to repeal, vary, alter, or affect any regulations in the said general Turnpike Acts or any of them contained with respect to any additional tolls or penalties thereby imposed or made chargeable on any carriage, cart, or other vehicle by reason of or in proportion to the weights carried or conveyed in any such carriage, cart, or other vehicle respectively.

LII. That from and after the repeal of the said local Acts respectively when any toll shall have been once taken in respect of any horse or other animal not drawing, or of any horse or other animal drawing, any carriage or vehicle, at any toll gate or bar within any of the said counties, no toll shall thereafter be taken in respect of the same horse or other animal, or in respect of the same carriage or other vehicle, on the same day (to be computed from twelve of the clock of the night to twelve of the clock in the next succeeding night), for repassing through the same gate or bar, or for passing or repassing through any other gate or bar in the same county, within the distance of seven miles from the gate or bar at which such toll shall have been taken, such distance measured along turnpike roads only, nor for passing or repassing through any gate or bar in any other of the said counties adjoining, within the distance of two miles from the gate or bar at which such toll shall have been taken, to be measured as aforesaid, along and in respect of turnpike roads within either of such counties, nor within one mile, measured as aforesaid, from the boundary of such counties.

LIII. Provided and enacted, That in case any horse or other animal, carriage or other vehicle, shall be subject to a higher rate of toll on repassing through the same gate or bar as aforesaid, or on passing or repassing through any other gate or bar, within the said distances respectively before specified, by reason of a different use made of the same horse or other animal, or of the carriage or other vehicle drawn by the same, or by reason of a toll larger than the toll first paid being payable in any other of the said counties adjoining, then and in every such case the difference only between the toll so first paid and such larger toll shall be paid on such subsequent passing or repassing.

LIV. That from and after the repeal of the said local Acts respectively the tolls authorized to be taken by this Act shall be paid in respect of all horses or other animals drawing any stage coach, stage waggon, or other stage carriage conveying passengers or goods for hire or reward, the same being customarily used and employed to convey passengers or goods for hire or reward, for every time of passing or repassing through any toll gate or bar at which such tolls shall be payable: Provided always, that in every case in which toll shall have been taken at any toll gate or bar in respect of any such stage coach, stage waggon, or other stage carriage, no second or other toll shall be taken in respect thereof, by reason of any change of the horses drawing the same, at any toll gate or bar either in the same or in any adjoining county within the limits of this Act at which such second or other toll would not have been payable if such horses had not been changed.

LV. That the tolls hereby made payable shall be paid for any horse or horses or other animals drawing any post chaise or other carriage travelling for hire as often as a new hiring shall take place, in the same manner as if no previous payment of toll in respect of such horses or other animals had been made on the same day.

LVI. That all exemptions from tolls enacted and contained in the said general Turnpike Acts or any of them shall be and the same are hereby extended to this Act, and made applicable thereto, in the same manner as if the same had been expressly re-enacted herein.

And after reciting that doubts have arisen with respect to the construction of certain portions of the said general Turnpike Acts relating to such exemptions from toll; and that toll has been paid or demanded in certain cases, and with respect to certain matters and things which it is expedient should be exempted therefrom; and it is also expedient that such doubts as aforesaid should be removed:—

It is Enacted,

LVII. That from and after the repeal of the said local Acts respectively no toll shall be taken on any turnpike road within any of the said counties for any horse or other animal carrying, drawing or conveying any agricultural produce which shall have grown or arisen on land or ground in the occupation of, or cultivated, used, or enjoyed by, the owner of any such agricultural produce, and which shall not have been bought, sold, or otherwise profitably exchanged or disposed of, nor be going to be bought, sold, or otherwise profitably exchanged or disposed of, or for any sheep going to be washed or returning therefrom, or for any horse or other animal drawing or not drawing which shall not go or pass more than 300 yards along or upon such turnpike road, whether the whole or any part of such 300 yards shall have been traversed before passing through any gate or bar, or shall be traversed after passing through the same.

LVIII. That none of the said exemptions from toll in the said general Turnpike Acts or in this Act contained shall be in anywise qualified, restrained, or taken away by reason of any regulation or distinction with respect to the size, form, construction, or dimensions of the wheels of any carriage, cart, or other vehicle used or employed upon any turnpike road within the limits of this Act, or by reason of any regulations as to weight contained in the said general Turnpike Acts or any of them.

LIX. That from and after the repeal of the said local Acts respectively it shall not be lawful to demand or take on any turnpike road within any of the said counties respectively, for or in respect of any horse or other animal employed in carrying, drawing, or conveying any lime to be used for the purposes of manure, more than one half of the tolls which would be otherwise payable in respect of such horse or other beast drawing any such carriage or vehicle according to the said second Schedule to this Act annexed.

LX. That from and after the repeal of the said local Acts respectively no toll shall be taken, and no money arising from tolls on any turnpike roads shall be laid out, on any road or roads, or part of any road or roads, which by or under any local Act of Parliament in force for the time being for the improvement of any city, borough, or town, or any part or parts thereof, is or are repaired or maintained by any Commissioners or trustees for executing such local Act, nor in paving, repairing, or cleansing any street, road, or highway within the limits of any city or market or borough town for which there shall not be any such local Act as aforesaid, and which said limits shall be fixed and determined for the purposes of this Act, with respect to every such city, or market or borough town respectively, by the said Commissioners upon the report and recommendation of the county roads board acting in and for the county to which any such city or market or borough town shall belong; and no street, road, or highway comprised within such limits, or maintained by any such local Commissioners as aforesaid, shall be deemed or held to be a turnpike road to any intent or purpose within the meaning of this Act.

LXI. That the county roads board of each of the said counties respectively shall and they are hereby required to put up or cause to be put up, and afterwards to be continued, at every toll gate and toll bar within such county, a table, painted in distinct and legible black letters on a board with a white ground, or in white letters on a board with a black ground, containing: at the top thereof the name of the gate or bar at which the same shall be put up, and also a list of all the tolls payable at such gate or bar under the authority of this Act; and such table shall specify the several sorts or descriptions of vehicles in respect of which any different rates of tolls shall be payable, and also a list of all the gates or bars which shall be wholly or partially cleared by the payment of toll at such toll gate or bar; and any lessee of tolls who shall collect or receive any tolls at any gate or bar at which such table of tolls shall not be affixed as aforesaid shall be liable to forfeit and pay a sum not less than 40s. per diem for every day during which he shall continue to collect tolls without such table being affixed: Provided always, that no lessee of tolls shall be liable to any forfeiture or penalty under this Act by reason of such table of tolls not being affixed as aforesaid, in case it shall appear to the Justice or Justices before whom information or complaint in such case shall be made that such table has been, by some other person, without the privity of such lessee, unlawfully removed or destroyed, and that sufficient time has not elapsed for restoring or supplying the same: Provided also, that in case any county roads board shall omit to provide a proper table of tolls according to the requirement of this Act, it shall be lawful for the lessee of tolls at any such toll gate or bar, of his own authority, to cause such table to be made and affixed, and in that case such lessee shall be entitled to deduct the expenses necessarily incurred by him in providing such table of tolls from the monies next payable by him to the said county roads board in respect of the rent of such toll gate or bar, and the said county roads board shall allow such deduction upon receipt of the residue of the said rent, and the said lessee shall be acquitted and discharged of so much money as the said expenses shall amount to, in the same manner as if the same had been actually paid to the said board.

LXII. That it shall be lawful for the county roads board of each of the said counties respectively, at any time, with the consent of the Commissioners to be appointed by virtue of this Act, or, after such commission shall have determined, of one of Her Majesty principal Secretaries of State, to lessen and reduce the said tolls specified in the said second Schedule to this Act annexed, and again at any time, with the like consent, to advance the same, so that the tolls payable in any of the said counties do not at any time exceed the rates specified in the said second Schedule, and so that in every such county the said tolls be always advanced or reduced according to one uniform scale and proportion, as to the several descriptions of horses or beasts, carriages or vehicles, chargeable therewith: Provided nevertheless, that it shall be lawful for the said county roads board of any of the said counties respectively, when and for so long as they shall think proper, to reduce the toll payable for any horse or other animal drawing peat or fern to any sum not less than one half of the sum otherwise chargeable under the said second Schedule, without reducing any other toll at the same time: Provided also, that the entire sum of 3d. shall be taken in lieu of any fractional part thereof which would otherwise become payable in consequence of any advancing or reducing of the said tolls: Provided also, that no alteration in the said tolls, either by advancing or reducing the same, shall be made to take effect until one calendar month at the least after notice of the same shall have been given by advertisement twice published in one or more newspapers circulating in the county to which the same shall relate.

LXIII. That the county roads boards acting in and for each of the said counties respectively shall hold not less than four regular meetings in each year, including the general annual meeting hereinafter referred to, at some convenient place or places within each of the said counties respectively, and may adjourn themselves to meet at any other place or places within such counties respectively, and at such time or times, as the said county roads boards, or the major part of the members thereof present at any meeting respectively, shall appoint; and all acts, orders, proceedings, matters, and things by this Act authorized or directed to be done by the said county roads boards, or by the said general Turnpike Acts authorized or directed to be done by any trustees or Commissioners of turnpike roads, shall and may, except so far as the same are altered, varied, or repealed by this Act, be made, done, and exercised by the major part of the members of the said county roads boards who shall be present at the respective meetings to be held by virtue of this Act, or of the said general Turnpike Act, the whole number present together at any such meeting of any county roads board not being less than five: Provided always, that at any meeting of any county roads board which shall be held for the purpose of letting to farm the tolls of any district or districts of any county, such tolls may be lawfully let, and all acts and proceedings relating to such letting of tolls at such meeting shall be valid and effectual, although not more than three members of such county roads board shall be present at such meeting; and the time and manner of holding and convening and also of giving notice of any special or extraordinary meeting of such board which it may be thought necessary to hold upon any emergency shall be regulated as nearly as may be according to the provisions and regulations of the said general Turnpike Acts with respect to the like meetings of trustees or Commissioners of any turnpike roads.

LXIV. That whenever any tolls shall hereafter be let to farm by virtue of the powers given by this or by any other Act or Acts of Parliament, it shall not be necessary, in the notice to be given according to the provisions of the said general Turnpike Acts previously to such letting, to specify the sum which the said tolls shall have produced during any time previous to such letting, nor to state that the said tolls will be put up at the sum which they were let for or produced during any such previous time; and the county roads board acting in and for each county may and they are hereby authorized to let such tolls at every general meeting to be held in pursuance of this Act for the best price they may then be enabled to obtain for the same, without being compelled to put up the said tolls at the sum for which they were at any previous time let, or to have any second or other meeting for letting the same, any law or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

And after reciting that by 3 Geo. 4. c. 126, it is enacted, "that the trustees or Commissioners of every turnpike road shall and they are hereby required, at their general annual meeting in each year, to examine, audit, and settle the accounts of the respective treasurers, clerks, and surveyors appointed by them, and to require such treasurers, clerks, and surveyors to produce their books, accounts, papers, and vouchers, and to examine into the revenues and debts, distinguishing bond from simple contract debts, of the several roads for which they shall act as treasurer, clerk, or surveyor; and when the account of the said several treasurers, clerks, and surveyors shall be settled and allowed by the trustees or Commissioners present at such meeting, the same shall be signed by the chairman of such meeting; and if any treasurer, clerk, or surveyor shall refuse or neglect to produce his accounts, or any book, paper, or voucher required to be produced by him, such treasurer, clerk, or surveyor shall be dealt with according to the provisions hereinbefore contained with regard to officers refusing to account or deliver up books or papers, or pay over any money in their hands; and when and as soon as the said accounts of the said respective treasurers, clerks, and surveyors shall be audited, allowed, and signed, the clerks to the trustees or Commissioners holding such meeting shall forthwith make out a statement of the debts, revenues, and expenditure received or incurred on account of the trust for which the meeting shall be held, in the form contained in the Schedule to this Act annexed, which said statement shall be submitted to the trustees or Commissioners assembled at such meeting, and when approved by the majority of them shall be signed by the chairman of the said meeting; and the said statement being so approved and signed, the said clerk shall, within thirty days thereafter, transmit the same to the clerk of the peace of the county in which the road, or the major part thereof, to which the said statement relates, shall lie; and if any clerk shall refuse or neglect to make out such statement as aforesaid, or to transmit the same within the time hereinbefore mentioned, every clerk so offending shall for such offence forfeit and pay the sum of 50*l.* to be recovered as hereinafter directed." And that by the same Act it is enacted, "that the clerk of the peace of every county to whom such statements shall be transmitted shall, on receiving such statements, cause the same to be produced to the Justices assembled at the Quarter Sessions to be held next after the receipt thereof, and also to be registered and kept amongst the records of the Quarter Sessions of the county for which such clerk of the peace shall act; and the said statements so to be transmitted to the said respective clerks of the peace shall, when registered, be open to the inspection of all and every person and persons whatsoever, who may take extracts therefrom or copies thereof, paying to the clerk of the peace in whose custody the same shall be the sum of 6*s.* for each inspection, and the sum of 6*d.* for every seventy-two words of such extract or copy taken;"—

It is Enacted,

LXV. That so much of the said Act 3 Geo. 4. c. 126, as is hereinbefore recited shall, so far as relates to the said counties respectively, be and the same is hereby repealed.

And after reciting that by 3 & 4 Will. 4. c. 80, it is enacted, "that the several and respective clerks to the said trustees or Commissioners holding such annual meetings respectively as aforesaid shall, within thirty days from the passing of this Act, transmit to one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State for the time being copies of all such annual statements as already sent by them respectively to the clerks of the peace as aforesaid, and shall also transmit to one of His Majesty's principal Secretaries of State for the time being copies of all such general annual statements for any future year or years so directed to be transmitted to the clerks of the peace as aforesaid, within thirty days after the same shall have been so approved and signed as aforesaid; and if any such clerk to the said trustees or Commissioners shall refuse or neglect to transmit such copies of such annual statements within the time hereinbefore prescribed for that purpose, then and in every such case every such clerk so offending shall for every such offence forfeit any sum not exceeding 10*l.* nor less than 5*l.*, at the discretion of any Justice or Justices of the Peace before whom complaint of such offence shall be made." And that by the same Act it is enacted, "that from and after the expiration of the present year the trustees and Commissioners of every turnpike road shall hold their general annual meeting on or before the 25th of March in every future year, and not at any other time, anything in the said recited Acts or either of them to the contrary notwithstanding;"—

It is Enacted,

LXVI. That so much of the said recited Act 3 & 4 Will. 4. c. 80, as is hereinbefore recited shall, so far as relates to the said counties respectively, be and the same is hereby repealed.

LXVII. That the several county roads boards of and for each of the said counties respectively shall and they are hereby required to hold one general meeting in every year in each of the said counties, for auditing and examining the accounts relating to the several roads under their management, on some day or days to be appointed for the same by each county roads board respectively at their first meeting to be held after the passing of this Act, or at some subsequent regular meeting of the said board, and which said annual general meeting shall always take place in each of the said counties respectively in the months of January or February in each year; and the times of holding such annual general meetings in the said counties respectively shall be so fixed and arranged with reference one to another as to enable the general superintendent of county roads, to be appointed as hereinafter mentioned by virtue of this Act, to be present at such annual general meeting in each of the said several counties successively; and if at any time they shall not be so fixed and arranged respectively as aforesaid, it shall be lawful for the said Commissioners, or, after the said commission has determined, for one of Her Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, by their or his order directed to any county roads board, to alter the time appointed for holding the said annual general meeting in any of the said counties, and to appoint such other time for holding the same as may be found convenient.

LXVIII. That the said last-mentioned meeting shall be called and known as the "Annual General Meeting of the County Roads Board;" and the said boards respectively shall at the said meeting in each year examine, audit, and settle the accounts of the respective treasurers, clerks, surveyors, collectors, and other officers appointed by them respectively, and shall then, or at any other time as may be found necessary, be authorized to require such treasurers, clerks, surveyors, collectors, and other officers to produce their books, accounts, papers, and vouchers, and shall also audit, examine, and settle the accounts of the several district roads boards, to be appointed in manner hereinafter mentioned, in each of the said counties respectively, and of the several officers acting under such district roads boards, and shall also receive and examine the several estimates, reports, and accounts which shall be made and submitted to the said county roads boards by the general superintendent of county roads hereinafter mentioned: Provided always that if any treasurer, clerk, surveyor, collector, or other officer shall refuse or neglect to produce his accounts, or any book, paper, or voucher required by any such county roads board, or by the general superintendent of county roads hereinafter mentioned, to be produced by him, such treasurer, clerk, surveyor, collector, or other officer shall be dealt with according to the provisions contained in the said general Turnpike Acts with respect to officers refusing to account or deliver up books or papers, or pay over money in their hands, to the trustees or Commissioners appointed by or acting under any local Act.

LXIX. That it shall be lawful for one of Her Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, by any writing under his hand, to appoint a fit and proper person (or two fit and proper persons if required,) to superintend the management, maintenance, and repair of all the several turnpike roads within the said counties respectively, and from time to time, at the discretion of the said principal Secretary of State, to remove the said person from such office, and appoint another in his stead.

LXX. That the said person so to be appointed as aforesaid shall be called "The General Superintendent of County Roads for South Wales," and shall from time to time examine, inspect, and overlook the management and repairs of the several turnpike roads within each of the said counties respectively, and the execution of all alterations, improvements, and works relating to the same, and shall have the superintendence and controul of all surveyors and other officers employed by or under the several district boards in each county hereinafter referred to, and shall be entitled to be present at and to take part in the proceedings and business transacted at all meetings of the several county roads boards, and also of the several district roads boards hereinafter referred to, within any of the said counties respectively, and to inspect and examine all the accounts, books, and other documents of or relating to the same, and shall attend the said annual general meetings of the said county roads boards in each of the said counties respectively, and shall examine, audit, and check, and ascertain the legality of, all accounts, bills, charges, and vouchers which shall be presented to or laid before such county roads boards at such annual general meetings, and shall also prepare and submit to them, at such meetings, a general statement of the debts, revenue, and expenditure incurred or received in and for the year preceding on account of the several turnpike roads within each of the said counties respectively; and shall also prepare and submit to the said county roads boards respectively, at such meetings, an estimate of the revenue and expenditure on account of the said roads to be received or incurred in and for the ensuing year, specifying in such statements and estimates the amount and proportion of revenue and expenditure received or incurred or to be received or incurred in respect of the several districts to be constituted by virtue of this Act in each of the said counties respectively, according to the provisions hereinafter contained, and shall sign such statements and estimates respectively; and so soon as the said statements and estimates shall have been submitted to and examined by such county roads boards shall transmit the same or copies thereof to the said Commissioners, or, after the said commission shall have determined, to one of Her Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, to be by them or him laid before both Houses of Parliament, according to the provisions of the said general Turnpike Acts, and shall also cause the same to be published in one or more of the newspapers circulating in the county; and shall also from time to time, and whenever he shall be required by any county roads board so to do, prepare and submit to such county roads board an estimate or estimates of the probable expense to be incurred in respect of any proposed improvement, alteration, or work relating to the roads under the management of such board, and shall make such further reports from time to time to the said county roads board, or to the said Commissioners, or to the said Secretary of State, respecting the management and administration of any roads hereby placed under his charge or controul, as he shall be required by them or any of them to do.

LXXI. That every county roads board shall cause a book to be kept by their clerk, in which such clerk shall enter or cause to be entered true and regular accounts of all sums of money received and expended for the purposes of this Act, and of the several matters for which such sums of money shall have been received or expended; and the said board shall cause notes, minutes, or copies, as the case may require, of all the orders and proceedings of such board at the several meetings thereof to be duly entered in books to be from time to time provided for that purpose, and such books shall be evidence in all proceedings at law or in equity, without further proof of the contents thereof, and shall at all reasonable times be open to the inspection of all members of such boards and of all district boards within the same county, and of every person paying any rate by this Act authorized to be made, without any fee being demanded for such inspection; and all such members and persons respectively shall be entitled, at reasonable times, to take copies or extracts from the said books, without paying any fee for the same; and if, on request made for that purpose, the clerk of any county roads board shall refuse to permit any of such members or persons respectively to inspect any such books, or to take copies or extracts therefrom as aforesaid, such clerk shall for every such refusal forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding 5*l*.

LXXII. That the first meeting of each and every county roads board to be held in and for the said counties respectively shall take place on such day or days, and at such place within each of the said counties respectively, as the said Commissioners by their order shall direct.

LXXIII. That the county roads board of each county respectively at such first meeting assembled shall, in the first place, elect and appoint two fit and proper persons, being members of such board, to be the chairman and vice chairman respectively of such board; and the said chairman, or in his absence the said vice chairman, shall preside at all meetings to be thereafter held of such board, and shall have a casting vote in addition to his own vote; and in case at any meeting the said chairman and vice chairman shall both be absent, then some other member of such board, to be chosen by the major part of the members present at the time being, shall preside as chairman for such meeting; and whenever any chairman or vice chairman shall die or resign, or shall refuse to act, the said county roads board shall, at their general meeting to be held next after such death, resignation, or refusal, elect and appoint some other fit and proper person, being a member of the said board, in his stead.

LXXIV. That every county roads board shall at such first meeting respectively elect and appoint a fit and proper person to be the clerk of such board, and shall also appoint a treasurer to the said board; and the said board shall at their said first meeting, or afterwards, from time to time appoint such number of surveyors as in their judgment shall be required to overlook the management and repairs of the several turnpike roads in their county, and shall also determine the salaries to be paid to such clerk and surveyors respectively out of the county toll fund hereinafter mentioned; and the said board may from time to time at their discretion remove the said clerk or treasurer or surveyors, and so often as the said offices or either of them shall become vacant shall elect other fit and proper persons for the same.

LXXV. That every county roads boards respectively shall at such first meeting determine and appoint the times and places for holding their general meetings to be held in pursuance of this Act, and shall also from time to time determine and agree upon such rules and regulations for the guidance of their own proceedings at such meetings, and otherwise, as they shall deem expedient.

LXXVI. That the said county roads boards respectively shall at their said first meeting, with the aid and advice of the said general superintendent of county roads, make a full examination and inquiry into the limits, extent, condition, and circumstances of all the several turnpike roads within or partly within their respective counties which shall, at the time of the passing of this Act, be regulated by or comprised in any local Act for making or regulating turnpike roads therein; and shall also examine and consider, with the aid and advice aforesaid, what portions (if any) of such turnpike roads it may be expedient thereafter to maintain and continue as main turnpike roads; and what portions (if any) of such roads it may be expedient wholly to reject and discontinue as turnpike roads, so that the same may thereafter be subject to the laws now in force concerning highways; and also what division or arrangement of the several roads which they shall deem proper to be maintained as turnpike roads within their respective counties it may be expedient to make for the purpose of district management, as hereinafter provided; and the said county roads boards respectively shall, as soon as may be, in pursuance of the said inquiry, make or cause to be made a full and particular report in writing to the Commissioners for carrying this Act into execution respecting the several matters hereinbefore directed to be examined and considered by them, together with such other recommendations and suggestions as may be necessary for any other purposes of this Act, or as they may deem essential to the due execution thereof.

LXXVII. That the said Commissioners shall, upon due consideration of such reports and recommendations respectively, make such determination respecting the premises as to them shall seem meet, and shall, by their orders to be made under their hands and seal, direct, with respect to each of the said counties respectively, what portions of the said roads regulated by or comprised in any local Act as aforesaid shall thereafter continue to be maintained as turnpike roads, and also what portions thereof (if any) shall be wholly rejected and discontinued as turnpike roads; and the said Commissioners shall also, by their said order, direct such and so many districts as in their judgment shall be necessary to be formed and constituted in each of the said counties respectively in which they shall deem the formation of such districts to be expedient for the separate management and repair of the several turnpike roads within the said districts, according to the regulations hereinafter contained: Provided always, that in case in any of the said counties the said Commissioners shall not deem it expedient to constitute any such division of districts as aforesaid, then the management and repair of all the turnpike roads within such county, and all powers and things necessary thereto, shall belong, and shall be carried on, done, and executed by or under the direction of the county roads board of such county.

LXXVIII. That the said Commissioners, in pursuance of their said orders as aforesaid, shall cause a map or plan to be made for each of the said counties, wherein shall be distinctly set out and delineated the several roads thereafter to be maintained in and for such county as turnpike roads, as well as the several districts into which such county shall be divided, and to which the said turnpike roads shall thenceforth respectively be annexed and belong; and the said map or plan, or a copy thereof, stamped with the seal of the said Commissioners, shall be deposited with the clerk of every county roads board respectively, and shall be received as evidence, and shall be referred to, in all suits, controversies, and disputes touching the limits, boundaries, situation, or classification of any such roads or districts respectively: Provided always, that the said map or plan may be altered or amended by authority of the said Commissioners, or, after such commission has determined, of one of Her Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, if it should become necessary so to do, through the operation of any of the provisions hereinafter contained.

LXXIX. That all such roads or portions of roads within any of the said counties respectively as the said Commissioners, by their order as aforesaid, shall direct to be discontinued as turnpike roads shall thenceforth cease to be repaired or maintained as such, and no tolls shall be collected thereon, and all toll gates or toll bars now standing thereon shall be removed, and the said roads shall thenceforth be repaired and maintained according to the laws for the time being in force relating to highways, or by the parties otherwise liable by law to repair the same.

LXXX. That it shall be lawful for the said county roads boards respectively, at any of their regular meetings to be held under the authority of this Act, with the aid and advice of the said general superintendent of county roads, to make or cause to be made any special report to the said Commissioners, or, after the said commission shall have determined, to the said Secretary of State, and by such report to recommend that any roads or portions of roads theretofore maintained as turnpike roads should cease to be so maintained, or that any deviation or diversion of or from the course of any such roads should be made, or that any other alteration, improvement, or work should be executed, other than for the ordinary maintenance and repair of such roads, and whereof the probable expense, according to the estimate of the said general superintendent, would exceed 100*l.*; and thereupon it shall be lawful for the said Commissioners, or, after the said commission shall have determined, for the said Secretary of State, by their or his authority, to order that such recommendations respectively or any of them be carried into effect, and that such additions, diversions, deviations, alterations, improvements, or other works be made and executed as the said Commissioners or the said Secretary of State respectively may approve; and the said county roads boards respectively shall then have full power to make and execute the same out of the monies or on the credit of the county toll fund hereinafter mentioned, subject to the restrictions and limitations hereinafter contained: Provided always, that no such special report as aforesaid relating to any such addition, diversion, deviation, alteration, improvement, or other work shall be made, adopted, or agreed to at any meeting of any county roads board unless notice of the proposed undertaking or work to which such report shall have reference, and of the estimated cost thereof, shall have been previously given by advertisement twice published in some or one of or more of the newspapers circulating in the county to which the same shall relate twenty-one days at least before such meeting of the said county roads board.

LXXXI. That no money shall be hereafter raised or borrowed for any purpose whatsoever by or on account of any county roads board, or by or on account of any person or body of persons acting in the execution of this Act, upon the credit of the tolls to be raised and collected in any of the said counties, or upon the credit of any county road fund or county road rate hereinafter referred to, save and except upon such terms and conditions as to the repayment thereof as will necessarily provide for the extinction of the debt thereby created, both in respect of the principal monies borrowed and of interest for the same, before the expiration of twenty-one years from the time of borrowing such monies, nor without the consent of the said Commissioners, or, after the said commission shall have determined, of the said Secretary of State.

LXXXII. That the maintenance and repairs of the several turnpike roads situate and being within the several districts which shall be marked out and defined in each of the said counties respectively by the said Commissioners, according to the provisions hereinbefore contained, shall, subject to the superintendence and authority of the said county roads boards and of the said Commissioners as aforesaid, be placed under the care and management of local boards, to be styled "District Roads Boards," and which shall be constituted in manner following: (that is to say,) the said Commissioners shall so soon as any district shall have been marked out and defined as aforesaid, by order under their hands and seal, nominate and appoint a certain number, not exceeding ten in any one district, of fit and proper persons, not being Justices of the Peace, qualified as hereinafter next mentioned, to be members of such district roads board; and every person who shall reside within such district, and who in his own right or in right of his wife shall be the owner or occupier, or shall be in the actual possession of the rents or profits, of any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, whether freehold or copyhold, within the county wherein such district is situated, which shall be rated or rateable to the relief of the poor in the parishes or places in which the same shall lie at not less than 80*l.* per annum, shall be duly qualified to be and be capable of being appointed a member of such board; and whenever any of the said persons who shall have been so nominated and appointed by the said Commissioners as aforesaid shall die or resign, or shall absent himself for twelve months from the meetings of the said board, or shall cease to be qualified in respect of residence and estate or interest as aforesaid, then the other members of such board shall elect other fit and proper persons, qualified as hereinbefore described, to be members of such board in their stead; and whenever any of such last-mentioned persons shall die or resign, or be absent as aforesaid, or shall cease to be qualified as aforesaid, the vacancy or vacancies thereby occasioned shall be from time to time supplied by election in like manner; and all Her Majesty's Justices of the Peace residing within or acting at any petty sessions within any such district shall be ex officio members of such district roads board.

LXXXIII. That in case in any of the said counties the said Commissioners shall not deem it expedient to constitute any such division of districts for the purpose of district management as aforesaid, then the said Commissioners shall, by their order as aforesaid, nominate and appoint certain persons, not less than six nor more than twelve in number, to be additional members of the county roads board of such county, who shall be chosen in manner following; that is to say, an equal number of such persons shall be chosen in respect of each hundred of such county, and shall be persons resident within such hundred respectively, and qualified in respect of property in such county in like manner as is hereinbefore provided with respect to the qualification of members of district boards; and whenever any of the persons who shall have been so nominated by the said Commissioners as aforesaid shall die or resign, or shall cease to be qualified in respect of residence and estate or interest as aforesaid, then the said county roads board shall elect other fit and proper persons, resident and qualified as hereinbefore described, in their stead, and all other vacancies which shall thereafter occur shall be from time to time supplied by election in like manner; provided that among the persons so from time to time constituted as additional members of such county roads boards there shall always be two persons at least, resident and qualified as aforesaid, for and in respect of each hundred of such county.

LXXXIV. That the persons who shall hereafter be appointed as members of district boards, or as additional members of county roads boards in counties having no district boards, shall after certain periods cease to be members of the same respectively by rotation, and the vacancies thereby occasioned shall in either case be supplied from time to time in manner following; that is to say, of the persons who shall have been originally nominated by the said Commissioners as members thereof respectively three persons (who shall be selected by ballot) shall at the expiration of three years from the time of such nomination cease to be such members, and at the expiration of four years from the said time a like number of such persons (to be also selected by ballot) shall cease in like manner, and at the expiration of five years from the said time the residue of the said persons who shall have been so originally nominated as aforesaid shall cease to be members of such board respectively in like manner; and in every such case, and at each of such periods as aforesaid, for the purpose of supplying the vacancies which shall then arise, the other members of such boards respectively shall elect an equal number of fit and proper persons, qualified as hereinbefore described, to be members of such boards in their stead; provided that at the expiration of every year successively after the said fifth year those persons who shall have been elected as aforesaid, and shall have served for the period of three years from such election as members of district boards, or as additional members of county roads boards, shall respectively cease to be such members, and the vacancies thereby occasioned shall be from time to time supplied by election in like manner; and all persons who shall have been elected at any time after the passing of this Act to supply any casual vacancies in such boards, occasioned by death, resignation, or otherwise as aforesaid, shall at the expiration of three years from their said election cease to be members thereof, and the vacancies thereby occasioned shall be from time to time supplied by election in like manner.

LXXXV. That no person shall be qualified to act as a member of any district roads board unless and until he shall in the presence of one of Her Majesty's Justices of the Peace acting in and for the county to which such district board shall belong, or of any two persons who shall have duly qualified themselves to act as members of such district roads board, make and subscribe the declaration following; (that is to say,)

'I A. B. do solemnly and sincerely affirm, That I will truly and impartially, according to the best of my Judgment and Ability, execute and perform the several Powers, Authorities, and Trusts reposed in me by virtue of an Act passed in the Session held in the Seventh and Eight Years of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, intituled An Act to consolidate and amend the Laws relating to Turnpike Trusts in South Wales.'

And if any person shall act as a member of any district board before he shall have made and subscribed the said declaration, every such person shall for every such offence forfeit and pay the sum of 50*l.*, with full costs of suit, to any person or persons who shall inform or sue for the same in any of Her Majesty's courts of record at Westminster.

LXXXVI. That the said county roads board acting in and for each of the said counties respectively shall, at their meeting to be held next after the division of such county into districts shall have been determined and declared by the said Commissioners as aforesaid, elect and appoint such number of fit and proper persons as they shall deem necessary, not exceeding the number of the districts into which such county shall have been divided, to be the clerks to the several district roads boards acting in and for such districts respectively, and shall from time to time fix and appoint the salaries to be paid out of the said county toll fund to such clerks respectively; and such county roads board may at any subsequent meeting appoint such new and additional clerks, not exceeding in the whole such number as aforesaid, as they may from time to time deem necessary, and may fix the salaries to be paid to them respectively, and also at any such meeting, at their discretion, make orders for the removal of any such clerk, and whenever any such clerk shall be removed, or shall die or resign, or refuse to act, may at any subsequent meeting appoint some other fit and proper person in his stead.

LXXXVII. That the district roads board for each district respectively shall have power to direct and superintend all matters and things relating to the maintaining, repairing, and draining of the several turnpike roads within such district, and also the maintaining and repairing the turnpike gates, toll bars, and toll houses belonging to the same, and also the execution of any work or improvement which shall respectively have been placed under the direction and superintendence of such district roads board by the county roads board acting in and for the same county, and to direct and superintend the expenditure of all monies, and the use and application of all materials and things, which shall be appropriated to such district by the order of the said county roads board; and the acts, orders, regulations, and proceedings of such district roads boards, as to all the matters and things aforesaid, shall be binding and effectual; and such district roads boards shall cause accounts to be kept of the expenditure and application of such monies and materials as aforesaid, and of all debts incurred by them, and of the balance of money and materials remaining at their disposal, and the clerk of any district roads board shall, as often as he shall be required so to do, deliver or transmit such accounts to the said general superintendent of county roads, to be by him submitted to the county roads board of such county.

LXXXVIII. That it shall be lawful for the county roads board of each county, by their order, to assign and place to the credit or at the disposal of the several district roads boards in each county respectively such sum or sums of money out of the county toll fund hereinafter mentioned, and such quantity of materials or other necessary things purchased out of the said county toll fund, as the said general superintendent, by his estimate, to be laid before the said county roads board at their annual general meeting as hereinbefore provided, shall certify to be necessary and sufficient for the ordinary maintenance and repairs of the several turnpike roads within such districts respectively; and it shall also be lawful for the said county roads board, by their order as aforesaid, to place under the controul and superintendence of the said district roads boards respectively, subject to the restrictions and limitations hereinbefore made and provided, any works or improvements to be done or executed in or upon any of the roads within such districts respectively; and for the purpose of enabling them to carry on and execute such works and improvements to place to their credit or at their disposal such monies, materials, and other things as aforesaid as the said general superintendent, by his estimate, shall certify to be necessary and sufficient for the performance thereof.

LXXXIX. That the several district roads boards to be appointed and constituted in manner aforesaid shall meet first at such time and place as the said Commissioners shall, by their order, appoint for them respectively, and shall from time to time hold other meetings not less in number than six in each year, for executing the several powers and duties hereby vested in them, at such times, and at such convenient place or places within their respective districts, as the said Commissioners, upon the report and recommendation of the county roads board acting in and for the county to which any such district roads board shall belong, shall order and appoint; and all acts, matters, and things executed or done by any district roads board, in pursuance of this Act, at any such meeting, the whole number present at the time being not being less than three, shall be valid and effectual; and for the purpose of adjourning and voting at all such meetings, and generally for the regulation of their proceedings at all such meetings, as to all such things as may be done by such district roads boards, the several provisions of the said general Turnpike Acts, except so far as the same may be altered, varied, or repealed by the provisions of this Act, shall be applicable to the meetings of the said last-mentioned boards.

XC. That every district roads board, at their said first meeting, shall in the first place elect and appoint two fit and proper persons, being members of such board, to be the chairman and vice-chairman respectively of such board for three years; and the said chairman, or in his absence the said vice-chairman, shall preside at all meetings of such board, and shall have a casting vote in addition to his own vote; and in case at any meeting such chairman and vice-chairman shall both be absent then such other member as shall be chosen by the major part of the members present for the time being shall preside as chairman of such meeting; and whenever any chairman or vice-chairman shall die or resign, or shall refuse to act, such board shall, at their regular meeting to be held next after such death, resignation, or refusal, elect and appoint some other member or members of such board in his stead.

XCI. That every district roads board shall at their said first meeting after the passing of this Act, and afterwards in every year at the regular meeting of such board which shall take place next before the 31st of December in each year, elect and appoint two fit and proper persons, being members of such board, to serve for the year then next ensuing as members of the county roads board acting in and for the same county to which such district roads boards shall belong, and the said persons so elected shall thereupon become and be duly qualified as lawful members of such county roads board, and shall have all the same rights, powers, and authorities as any other members of the same; and in case the persons so elected, or either of them, shall die, resign, or refuse to act, then it shall be lawful for the said district roads board, at their next regular meeting after such death, resignation, or refusal, to elect and appoint one or more fit and proper persons in their or his stead: Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall prevent the said district roads boards from re-electing the same persons, or either of them, for the year next ensuing, nor from electing as a member of such county roads board any person who may have previously been chosen to serve as such member by any other district roads board.

XCII. That no person shall be capable of acting as a member of any county roads board, or of any district roads board, in any case in which he shall be personally interested within the meaning and according to the provisions and subject to the penalties declared and enacted in the said general Turnpike Acts, and the provisions in the said Acts contained, by which it is declared unlawful for the trustees or Commissioners of any turnpike roads under any local Act to hold any place of profit under such Act, or to be concerned or engaged in any contract for making or repairing, or in any way relating to, the road or roads for which they shall respectively act, shall, together with all exceptions, restrictions, penalties, and clauses thereto relating, be applicable, except so far as the same may be varied, altered, or repealed by this Act, to all members of county roads boards and district roads boards respectively appointed under or acting in execution of this Act.

XCIII. Provided and enacted, That no person shall be incapable of acting as a Justice of the Peace in any matter relating to the execution of this Act by reason of his being a member of any county roads board, or of any district roads board.

XCV. That from and after the repeal of the said local Acts respectively the tolls to be collected on the several turnpike roads in each and every of the said counties by virtue of this Act shall be respectively accounted for, and paid to the treasurer of the county roads board, and shall form in each county one common fund to be called the "County Roads Funds," and the said county roads fund shall be administered and applied, subject to the provisions and restrictions hereinbefore contained by the said county roads board, and shall be applicable in the first place to the payment of such annuity as shall be charged upon such county roads fund, and such rates as aforesaid, according to the provisions hereinbefore contained; and the treasurer of every county roads board respectively is hereby directed and required, from and out of the first monies which shall come to his hands, to pay such annuity so charged as aforesaid when and as the same shall become due according to this Act; and, subject to such payment, the said county roads fund shall be applicable to the repair, maintenance, management, and improvement of the several turnpike roads within such county, and to the salaries of the officers of the several county and district boards respectively, and to such other just and necessary expenses as may be incurred in and about the management of the said turnpike roads, and in execution of the powers and provisions of this Act.

XCVI. That in case it shall appear to any county roads board acting in and for any of the said counties respectively, at the annual general meeting of such board to be held under this Act, upon comparing the estimated receipts and expenditure of and for such county in respect of turnpike roads for the year next ensuing, which shall be made out and submitted to such board by the said general superintendent as aforesaid, that the said county roads fund will in the year next ensuing be insufficient for the several purposes to which the same is by this Act made applicable, such county roads board shall thereupon proceed to determine what amount of money will be necessary and sufficient, in addition to such county roads fund, to meet and supply the several purposes aforesaid; and the said county roads board shall then certify the sum of money necessary as aforesaid by a certificate in writing, to be signed by the chairman of the said board at their said meeting, and which shall be forthwith transmitted by the clerk of such board to the clerk of the peace or deputy clerk of the peace for such county; and the said clerk of the peace, or his deputy, shall produce the said certificate to the Justices of the Peace for such county at their general Quarter Sessions assembled which shall be held next after he shall have received the same: Provided always, that the sum so certified by any county roads board to be required in aid of such county roads fund shall in no case exceed the yearly sum which shall be payable by way of annuity as aforesaid to the said Public Works Loan Commissioners by the county in which such sum shall be required.

XCVI. That the Justices of such county in such general Quarter Sessions assembled shall, for the purpose of raising the monies specified in such certificate, make a fair and equal rate, to be called "The County Road Rate," and for that purpose shall assess and tax the whole of such county according to a certain pound rate of and upon the full and fair annual value of all messuages, lands, tenements, and hereditaments within the said county, to be computed according to the valuation for the time being acted upon in assessing the county rate of such county, which said county road rate shall be levied, collected, and paid in the same manner, and by the same persons, and under the same powers, provisions, and authorities, as any county rate now by law authorized to be collected from the persons liable to contribute to the same: Provided always, that whenever the said county road rate shall be collected together with and as part of the ordinary county rate, the warrants issued by the said Justices to the high constables, and by the high constables to the overseers and others required by law to collect the county rates, shall state how much is levied for the ordinary county rate, and how much for the said county roads rate, and the said rates shall be levied accordingly.

XCVII. That for the purpose of obtaining the sum which ought to be contributed towards the said county roads rate by any liberty or franchise not contributing to the county rate of any such county, it shall be lawful for the said Justices so assembled as aforesaid to make a rate, in just and equal proportion to the pound rate to be levied upon property liable to the county rate as aforesaid, upon all property within any liberty or franchise which shall be liable to any liberty rate, or rate in the nature of a county rate therein, according to the valuation of such property acted upon, and for the time being, in assessing the said liberty rate, or rate in the nature of a county rate, in such liberty or franchise; and the said Justices shall thereupon issue their warrant under the hands of two or more of them, by which warrant they shall require the treasurer, or other person having the receipt of any liberty rate, or rate in the nature of a county rate, within such liberty or franchise, to pay to the treasurer of such county, out of the monies collected by way of liberty rate, or rate in the nature of a county rate, the amount mentioned in such warrant; and every such warrant shall specify the rate in the pound at which the sum therein mentioned shall be computed.

xcviii. That the Justices of such liberty or franchise shall order a rate to be made, at the rate mentioned in the said warrant, upon the property so liable as aforesaid within such liberty or franchise, which shall be levied and collected therein as part of the liberty rate, or rate in the nature of a county rate, to which such liberty or franchise is liable, in like manner as the said county road rate is hereinbefore directed to be levied and collected in such parts of any county as are liable to any county rate, and shall be paid over by the treasurer, or other person having the receipt of any liberty rate, or rate in the nature of a county rate, within such liberty or franchise, within forty days from the receipt of such warrant, to the treasurer of the county from the Justices of which such warrant shall have issued.

xcix. That if payment shall not be made within the said forty days, according to the exigency of the said warrant, or if there shall be no person to whom such warrant can be directed, or no liberty rate, or rate in the nature of a county rate, to which the inhabitants of such liberty or franchise contribute, or if for any other reason it shall seem more convenient to the said last-mentioned Justices, it shall be lawful for them to levy upon any liberty or franchise the full amount of the rate to which they shall have determined such liberty or franchise to be liable as aforesaid; and for the purpose of levying and collecting such rate, the said Justices shall have, for the purposes of this Act, within every such liberty or franchise respectively, the same powers which they have for levying and collecting county rates within the limits of their own commission, and such rate may be levied and collected by the like methods and subject to the same right of appeal as are applicable to any county rate collected within the parts of any county liable to the same; and the high constable of every hundred or other division in which such liberty or franchise shall be wholly or in part locally situated, on the receipt of a warrant to that effect, under the hands of two or more of the said Justices, shall collect the said rate; and the overseers of the poor, or in default of overseers, or in case there shall be no separate rate for the relief of the poor in any portion of such liberty or franchise, then such person or persons as the said Justices in Quarter Sessions assembled shall appoint for that purpose, in every parish or place to which such liberty or franchise or any part thereof shall belong, upon receipt of a warrant to that effect from the said high constable, shall pay the amount assessed upon their parish or place respectively, or upon that part of it which is liable thereto, in like manner, and subject to the like penalties in case of default, as if such liberty or franchise were, for the purpose of a county rate, and for all other intents and purposes, a part of such county.

c. That the treasurer of any of the said counties, or any person having an order for that purpose under the hand of such treasurer, may inspect any liberty rate, or rate in the nature of a county rate, made or to be made for any liberty or franchise locally situate within such county, and may also inspect any returns relating to any of the parishes or places the inhabitants of which shall be liable to be rated as aforesaid, which have been or are to be delivered in pursuance of any of the Acts relating to county rates, and may take copies or extracts of or from any such rates or returns without payment of any fee or reward; and if any person having the custody of any such rate or return shall wilfully neglect or refuse to permit any such treasurer or other person authorized as aforesaid to inspect the same, or to take copies of or extracts from the same, for two days after such order shall have been produced and shewn to him, or a copy thereof left at his usual place of abode, he shall, on conviction thereof before any two Justices of the Peace, forfeit and pay for every such offence such sum, not exceeding 10*l.*, as they shall think meet.

And after reciting that it is expedient that the charge to be created in respect of such county road rate should be imposed upon the owners and proprietors of land within the said counties respectively:—

It is Enacted,

ci. That any person who shall occupy any lands or tenements in any of the said counties, or in any liberty or franchise locally situated therein, having any interest not amounting to a freehold interest in the same, and not being tenant thereof for any term exceeding thirty years certain from the commencement of such term, who shall be called upon to pay any monies in respect of such rate, shall be entitled to demand a receipt in writing for the same, and upon producing such receipt shall be entitled to deduct from the rent next payable to the landlord or person under whom he holds or occupies such lands or tenements so much as he shall have paid on account of such rate during the same period in respect of which such rent shall be due and payable, and such landlord or other person shall allow such deduction upon receipt of the residue of the said rent; and such occupier, lessee, or tenant shall be acquitted and discharged of so much money as he shall have paid in respect of such rate in the same manner as if the same had been actually paid to such landlord or other person.

cii. That the treasurer of any county in which such rate shall have been levied as aforesaid shall, so soon as the same shall have been collected, pay over all monies received in respect of the same to the treasurer of the county roads board acting in and for such county, and such monies when so paid over shall form a part of the county roads fund for such county, and shall be applicable as such to the several purposes to which the said county roads fund is hereinbefore directed to be applied.

ciii. That it shall be lawful for any county roads board, at any regular meeting held under this Act, if in their judgment, with reference to the state of the county roads fund, and the state and condition of the roads in their county, or otherwise, it shall be necessary or expedient so to do, to determine what proportion, if any, of the carriage or haulage of materials required to be carried or drawn for the purpose of making or repairing any turnpike roads in such county shall be done and performed by or at the cost of the inhabitants of any parish, township, or place in which any part of such roads shall be locally situate, and in pursuance of such determination to make such order in writing as to them shall seem meet, which said order shall be signed by the chairman of such meeting, and shall be addressed and delivered to any surveyor of highways of the parish, township, or place to which such order shall relate: Provided always, that no such order shall be valid which shall require or direct the performance of any other kind of work, labour, or duty, except as is hereinbefore mentioned, or which shall require or direct the payment of any money, or the supply of any materials by or at the cost or charge of the inhabitants of any such parish, township, or place.

civ. That the surveyor of turnpike roads of the district wherein shall be comprised the road or roads with respect to which such carriage or haulage shall be required as aforesaid shall fix a certain fair and reasonable rate or scale of prices to be allowed for the carriage or conveyance of materials according to the weight or measurement thereof, and according to the distance to be traversed in carrying or conveying the same, and shall contract and agree with any inhabitant or inhabitants of the said parish or place having the requisite means or ability for performing the same for the carrying and conveying of such materials as may be required, in pursuance of the said order of the said county roads board; and when such carriage or conveyance shall have been done and performed then the said surveyor shall pay to such inhabitant or inhabitants the price or rate fixed as aforesaid in respect of the same; and all monies so paid by such last-mentioned surveyor shall be repaid to him by the surveyor of highways to whom any such order as aforesaid shall have been addressed, out of the monies collected or to be collected by him as and for the highway rate of the parish, township, or place to which such order shall relate, and the said surveyor of turnpike roads shall give to the said surveyor of highways receipts in writing for all monies so paid.

cv. That in case the said surveyor of turnpike roads shall be unable to agree with any inhabitant thereof for the performance of such carriage and conveyance of materials as aforesaid, or in case any dispute shall arise between such surveyor and any inhabitant of such parish, district, or place respecting the liability of such inhabitant to perform such carriage and conveyance as aforesaid, or respecting the price or sum by the said surveyor to be allowed for such carriage or conveyance, or otherwise, then and in every such case it shall be lawful for any two or more Justices of the Peace acting in and for the county in which such parish, district, or place shall be, upon application made to them by such surveyor, or by such inhabitant, to hear and determine the said several matters in dispute, and the said Justices may either order that such inhabitant shall perform some certain portion of such carriage or conveyance, or that the rate or scale to be allowed for such carriage or conveyance shall be altered or amended, or shall make such other order respecting the premises as justice shall require, and such order shall be final and conclusive as to all matters therein specified; and any such inhabitant who shall have been commanded by such order to perform any carriage or conveyance of materials, and who shall neglect or refuse to obey such order for seven days after he shall have received notice of the same, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding 40s.

And after reciting that a certain public bridge, called the Llandilo Rhynws Bridge has been erected over the River Towy in the county of Caermarthen, and the same has been maintained and repaired under the provisions of a certain local Act of Parliament to be repealed in pursuance of this Act as aforesaid: And that a certain other bridge over the same river called the Towy Suspension Bridge, and in the same county, has been erected and maintained under the provisions of a certain other local Act to be in like manner repealed:—

It is Enacted,

cv. That all debts due to any mortgagees or creditors in respect of the said bridges or either of them, or secured upon the tolls thereof respectively, shall be dealt with, estimated, and redeemed by the said Commissioners in manner hereinbefore directed with respect to the debts of all turnpike trusts in the said county, but that from and after the repeal of the said last-mentioned local Acts respectively the same shall become to all intents and purposes county bridges, and shall be repaired and maintained by and at the charge of the said county of Caermarthen, in like manner as any county bridges ought now by law to be maintained and repaired.

And after reciting that a certain public bridge called "The Wych Tree Bridge" in the said county of Glamorgan has been erected and maintained under the provisions of a certain local Act of Parliament to be repealed in pursuance of this Act:—

cvii. That all debts due to any mortgagees or creditors in respect of the said bridge, or secured upon the tolls thereof, shall be dealt with, estimated, and redeemed by the said Commissioners in manner aforesaid, but that from and after the repeal of the said last-mentioned local Act the said last-mentioned bridge shall become to all intents and purposes a county bridge, and shall be repaired and maintained by and at the charge of the said county of Glamorgan, in like manner as any county bridges ought now by law to be repaired and maintained.

And after reciting that the trustees acting in execution of the local Act regulating the said Wych Tree Bridge and avenues leading thereto have heretofore agreed with the trustees of the Swansea district of roads in the said county of Glamorgan for the consolidation of the said Wych Tree trust with the said Swansea district, and the arrangements necessary to such consolidation have been partly carried into effect, and such arrangements have been bona fide made by the said trustees, and would if this Act had not been passed have been beneficial to the said county:—

It is Enacted,

cviii. That the said Wych Tree trust, and the accounts, debts, and liabilities thereof, shall be treated, considered, and dealt with by the said Commissioners in their said inquiry, and in estimating the said debts, in like manner to all intents and purposes as if the said Wych Tree trust had been heretofore by law consolidated with the Swansea district.

And after reciting that a certain public bridge called the Loughor Bridge has been erected over a certain river or estuary called the Loughor River, which divides the said county of Caermarthen from the said county of Glamorgan, and the same has been maintained and repaired under the provisions of a certain local Act of Parliament to be repealed in pursuance of this Act: and that the said last-mentioned bridge is useful and beneficial to both of the said last-mentioned counties respectively:—

It is Enacted,

CIX. That all debts due to any mortgagees or creditors in respect of the said last-mentioned bridge, or secured upon the tolls thereof, shall be dealt with, estimated, and redeemed as aforesaid by the said Commissioners; and when the total amount or value of the said debts shall have been by them fixed and determined a sum equal to one-fourth part thereof shall be charged by the said Commissioners, according to the provisions of this Act, upon the said county of Glamorgan, and the residue thereof shall be charged in like manner upon the said county of Carmarthen; and after the said local Act regulating the said last-mentioned bridge shall have been repealed as aforesaid the said bridge, so soon as it shall have been certified under the hand of the general superintendent of county roads to be appointed under this Act to be in good and sufficient repair, which repair, if required, shall be done at the cost and charge of the said county of Carmarthen, shall become a county bridge, and shall be repaired and maintained in equal share and proportion, and at the joint charge and expense of the counties of Carmarthen and Glamorgan, in like manner as any county bridges ought now by law to be repaired and maintained, and each of the said counties shall be and continue severally liable in respect of one moiety of the said bridge and of the repairs thereof.

And after reciting that a certain public bridge called the Rumney Bridge has been erected over the River Rumney, which divides the said county of Glamorgan from the county of Monmouth, and the same has been maintained and repaired under the provisions of a certain local Act of Parliament to be repealed in pursuance of this Act: And that the said last-mentioned bridge has been and is useful and beneficial to both of the said last-mentioned counties respectively: —

It is Enacted,

CX. That all debts due to any mortgagees or creditors in respect of the said last-mentioned bridge, or secured upon the tolls thereof, shall be dealt with, estimated, and redeemed by the said Commissioners as aforesaid in like manner as the debts of any turnpike trust in the said county of Glamorgan: Provided nevertheless, that the sum of 1,000*l.* shall be paid and contributed for and towards the redemption and payment of the said debts by the trustees appointed under and acting in execution of a certain Act of Parliament, 2 & 3 Will. 4. c. xiv., intituled, 'An Act for diverting, altering, repairing, maintaining, and improving the several Turnpike Roads within the District of Newport in the county of Monmouth,' which said sum of 1,000*l.* shall, after the repeal of the local Act regulating the said bridge, be due and payable by and from the said last-mentioned trustees unto or to the account of the county roads board acting in and for the said county of Glamorgan; and the said trustees are hereby authorized and empowered to charge the tolls of the said Newport turnpike trust with the payment to the said last-mentioned county roads board of such an annuity as shall be equal to 5*l.* 6*s.* for every 100*l.* of the said principal sum of 1,000*l.* together with interest thereon, and so in proportion for every fractional part of 100*l.*, such annuity to be payable for the term of thirty years, commencing from a certain day to be named by the said Commissioners for carrying this Act into effect, after the repeal of the local Act regulating the said bridge, and to be paid half-yearly and without deduction on certain days to be fixed by the said Commissioners, the first payment whereof shall be made on such of the said half-yearly days of payment as shall next happen after such annuity shall have commenced and become payable as aforesaid; and after the said local Act regulating the said last-mentioned bridge shall have been repealed as aforesaid the said bridge shall (so soon as it shall have been certified under the hand of the general superintendent of county roads to be appointed under this Act to be in good and sufficient repair, such repairs to be done at the cost and charge of the said county of Glamorgan,) become a county bridge, and shall be thenceforth repaired and maintained in equal share and proportion, and at the joint charge and expense of the said counties of Glamorgan and Monmouth, in like manner as any county bridges ought now by law to be repaired and maintained, and each of the said counties shall be and continue severally liable in respect of one moiety of the said bridge, and of the repairs thereof; and no part of the said repairs or of the expense thereof shall be thereafter required to be done or contributed by any person or persons, or by the inhabitants of any parish or place, heretofore liable or accustomed to repair the same.

CXI. That nothing in this Act contained shall extend or apply to a certain bridge erected over and across the River Wye called the Hay Bridge, and which is situated on or between the confines of the said county of Radnor and of the said county of Brecknock, nor to a certain other bridge lately erected over and across the River Dungleddau at or in the town and county of Haverfordwest, nor to a certain other bridge erected over and across the said river Wye called the Broughrood Bridge, and which is situated on or between the confines of the said county of Brecknock and of the said county of Radnor, nor to any local Act or Acts of Parliament for making, erecting, maintaining, or regulating the said last-mentioned bridges respectively, anything hereinbefore contained to the contrary thereof in anywise notwithstanding.

And after reciting that a certain portion of road heretofore made and maintained under a certain local Act of Parliament, 4 Geo. 4. c. iv., intituled, 'An Act for making and maintaining a Road from Rhayader in the County of Radnor to Llangerrig in the County of Montgomery,' is locally situated in the said last-mentioned county of Montgomery: —

It is Enacted,

CXII. That from and after the repeal of the said last-mentioned local Act the said last-mentioned portion of road shall, for the purpose of this Act, and for the purpose of maintaining the same, be annexed to and become part of the next adjoining district of roads of and belonging to the said county of Montgomery; and all the powers, clauses, and provisions of an Act, 4 & 5 Will. 4. c. xxxi., intituled, 'An Act for improving and maintaining certain Roads in the Counties of Montgomery, Merioneth, Salop, and Denbigh,' shall apply to and include such last-mentioned portion of road, in like manner as if the same had been expressly mentioned and comprised in the said Act: Provided always, that it shall not be lawful for the trustees, or other persons acting in execution of the said last-recited Act, to erect or maintain any toll-gate or toll-bar, or to collect or cause to be collected any toll, upon, across, or at the side of the said portion of road, anything in the said last-recited Act to the contrary notwithstanding.

CXIII. That all fines and penalties imposed by this Act shall be recovered and applied in the same manner as fines and penalties imposed by the said general Turnpike Acts or any of them; and the several clauses and provisions in the said last-mentioned Acts contained respecting the recovery and application of penalties shall be applicable for the purposes of this Act as if the same were expressly re-enacted herein.

CXIV. That in construing this Act the following words and expressions shall have the several meanings hereinafter assigned to them, unless there be something in the subject or context repugnant to such constructions; (that is to say,)

Words importing the singular number shall include the plural number, and words importing the plural number shall include the singular number:

By this Act,

After reciting that the regulations for the elections of coroners for counties are insufficient: and that such elections are made with much inconvenience, and are attended with great and unnecessary expense: and that for remedy of such grievances, it is expedient that an alteration should be made in the manner of making such elections:—

It is Enacted,

- I. That an Act, 58 Geo. 3. c. 95, intituled, 'An Act to regulate the Elections of Coroners for Counties,' shall be repealed.
- II. That when and as often as it shall seem expedient to the Justices of any county that such county should be divided into two or more districts for the purposes of this Act, or that any alteration should be made of any division theretofore made under this Act, it shall be lawful for the said Justices, in general or quarter session assembled, to resolve that a petition shall be presented to Her Majesty, praying that such division or alteration be made, and thereupon to adjourn the further consideration of such petition until notice thereof shall be given to the coroner or coroners of such county as hereinafter provided.
- III. That the clerk of the peace shall give notice of any such resolution to every coroner for such county, and of the time when the petition will be taken by the said Justices into consideration, and the Justices shall confer with every such coroner, who shall attend the meeting of the Justices for that purpose, touching such petition, having due regard to the size and nature of each proposed district, the number of the inhabitants, the nature of their employments, and such other circumstances as shall appear to the Justices fit to be considered in carrying into execution the provisions of this Act; and such petition, with a description of the several proposed districts, and of the boundaries thereof, with the reasons upon which the petition is founded, shall be certified to Her Majesty under the hands and seals of two or more of the Justices present when such petition shall be agreed to, and the clerk of the peace for such county shall forthwith give or send a true copy of such petition, certified under his hand, to every coroner for such county.
- IV. That it shall be lawful for Her Majesty, if she shall think fit, with the advice of her Privy Council, after taking into consideration any such petition, and also any petition which may be presented to her by any coroner of the same county concerning such proposed division or alteration, or whenever it shall seem fit to Her Majesty to direct the issue of a writ de coronatore eligendo, for the purpose of authorizing the election of an additional coroner above the number of those who have been theretofore customarily elected in such county, to order that such county shall be divided into such and so many districts, for the purposes of this Act, as to Her Majesty, with the advice aforesaid, shall seem expedient, and to give a name to each of such districts, and to determine at what place within each district the court for the election of coroner for such district shall be holden as hereinafter provided, and every such order shall be published in the London Gazette.
- V. That the Justices in general or quarter session assembled shall assign one of such districts to each of the persons holding the office of coroner in such county, and upon the death, resignation, or removal of any such person each of his successors, and also every other person thereafter elected into the office of coroner in such county, shall be elected to and shall exercise the office of coroner, according to the provisions of this Act, and shall reside within the district in and for which he shall be so elected, or in some place wholly or partly surrounded by such district, or not more than two miles beyond the outer boundary of such district.
- VI. That whenever it shall appear to Her Majesty, with the advice aforesaid, and shall be set forth in the said Order in Council, that any such county has been customarily divided into districts for the purpose of holding inquests during the space of seven years before the passing of this Act, and it shall seem expedient to Her Majesty, with the advice aforesaid, that the same division of the county be made under this Act, each of such districts shall be assigned to the coroner usually acting in and for the same district before the passing of this Act; but if it shall appear expedient to Her Majesty, with the advice aforesaid, that a different division of such county be made, and any such coroner shall present a petition to Her Majesty, praying for compensation to him for the loss of his emoluments arising out of such change, it shall be lawful for Her Majesty, with the advice aforesaid, to order the Lord High Treasurer or Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury to assess the amount of compensation which it shall appear to him or them ought to be awarded to such coroner, and the amount of such compensation shall be paid by the treasurer of the county to such coroner, his executors or administrators, out of the county rate.
- VII. That such Justices so assembled as aforesaid shall order a list to be prepared by the clerk of the peace for their respective counties of the several parishes, townships, or hundreds, as the case may be, in each and every of the several districts into which the respective counties shall be divided under the authority of this Act, specifying in such list the place within each district at which the court for the election of coroner is to be holden, and also the place or places at which the poll shall be taken, inserting the parishes, townships, and places for each of such polling places, and shall cause such order to be enrolled among the records of the county.
- VIII. That all isolated or detached parts of counties shall be considered, for the purposes of this Act, as forming a part of that county, riding, or division respectively whereby such isolated or detached parts shall or may be wholly surrounded, but if any such isolated or detached part shall be surrounded by two or more counties, ridings, or divisions, then as forming part of that county, riding, or division with which such isolated or detached part shall have the longest common boundary.
- IX. That from and after the time when any county shall have been so as aforesaid divided every election of a coroner for any such district shall be held at some place within the district in which he shall be elected to serve the office of coroner; and that every person to be so elected shall be chosen by a majority of such persons residing within such district as shall at the time of such election be duly qualified to vote at the elections of coroners for the said county.
- X. That from and after the division of any counties as aforesaid into coroners districts, upon every election to be made of any coroner or coroners for any county the sheriff of the county where such election shall be made shall hold a court for the same election at some convenient place within the district for which the election of coroner shall take place, on some day to be by him appointed, which day shall not be less than seven days nor more than fourteen days after the receipt of the writ de coronatore eligendo; and in case the said election be not then determined upon the view, with the consent of the electors there present, but that a poll shall be demanded for determination thereof, then the said sheriff, or in his absence his under-sheriff, shall adjourn the same court to eight of the clock in the forenoon of the next day but one, unless such next day but one shall be Saturday or Sunday, and then of the Monday following; and the said sheriff, or in his absence the under-sheriff, with such others as shall be deputed by him shall then and there proceed to take the said poll in some public place or places by the same sheriff, or his under-sheriff as aforesaid in his absence, or others appointed for the taking thereof as aforesaid; and such polling shall continue for two days only, for eight hours in each day; and no poll shall be kept open later than four of the clock in the afternoon of either of the said days.

XI. That for more conveniently taking the poll at all elections of coroners under the authority of this Act the poll for the election of the coroner in each district shall be taken at the place to be appointed for holding the court for such election, and at such other places within the same district as may for the time being be appointed by the Quarter Sessions.

XII. That at every contested election of coroner for any district of the said county the sheriff, under-sheriff, or sheriff's deputy shall, if required by or on the behalf of any candidate on the day fixed for the election, and, if not so required, may, if it shall appear to him expedient, cause a booth or booths to be erected for taking the toll at the court or principal place of election, and also at each of the polling places within the district hereinbefore directed to be used for the purposes of such election, and shall cause to be affixed on the most conspicuous part of each of the said booths the names of the several parishes, townships, and places for which such booth is respectively allotted; and no person shall be admitted to vote at any such election in respect of any property situate in any parish, township, or place, except at the booth so allotted for such parish, township, or place, and if no booth shall be allotted for the same, then at any of the booths for the same districts; and in case any parish, township, or place, or part of any parish, township, or place, shall happen not to be included in any of the districts, the votes in respect of property situate in any parish, township, or place, or any part of any parish, township, or place, so omitted, shall be taken at the court or principal place of election for such district of the said county.

And for the more due and orderly proceeding in the said poll;—

It is Enacted,

XIII. That the said sheriff, or in his absence the under-sheriff, or such as he shall depute, shall appoint such number of clerks as to him shall seem meet and convenient for the taking thereof, which clerks shall take the said poll in the presence of the said sheriff or his under-sheriff, or such as he shall depute; and before they begin to take the said poll every clerk so appointed shall by the said sheriff or his under-sheriff, or such as he shall depute as aforesaid, be sworn truly and indifferently to take the same poll, and to set down the names of each elector, and the place of his residence, and for whom he shall poll, and to poll no elector who is not sworn, if required to be sworn by the candidates or either of them; and which oaths of the said clerks, the said sheriff or his under-sheriff, or such as he shall depute, shall have authority to administer; and the sheriff, or in his absence his under-sheriff, as aforesaid, shall appoint for each candidate such one person as shall be nominated to him by each candidate to be inspector of every clerk who shall be appointed for taking the poll; and every elector, before he is admitted to poll at the same election, shall, if required by or on behalf of any candidate, first take the oath hereinafter mentioned; which oath the said sheriff, by himself or his under-sheriff, or such sworn clerk by him appointed for taking the said poll as aforesaid, shall have authority to administer; (that is to say),

'I SWEAR [or, being one of the People called Quakers, or entitled by Law to make Affirmation, solemnly affirm], That I am a Freeholder of the County of _____ and have a Freehold Estate, consisting of _____ lying at _____ within the said County; and that such Freehold Estate has not been granted to me fraudulently or colourably on purpose to qualify me to give my Vote at this Election; and that the Place of my Abode is at _____ [and, if it be a Place consisting of more Streets or Places than One, specifying what Street or Place]; that I am Twenty-one Years of Age, as I believe; and that I have not been before polled at this Election [adding, except in Cases of solemn Affirmations] 'So help me GOD.'

XIV. That every elector or other person who shall wilfully and falsely take the said oath or affirmation hereby appointed to be taken by the electors as aforesaid shall for every such offence incur the penalties by law inflicted on persons guilty of perjury; and every person who shall unlawfully and corruptly procure or suborn any freeholder or other person wilfully and falsely to take the said oath or affirmation in order to be polled shall for every such offence incur such pains and penalties as are by law inflicted on persons guilty of subornation of perjury.

XV. That the poll clerks shall, at the close of the poll, inclose and seal their several books, and shall publicly deliver them, so inclosed and sealed, to the sheriff, under-sheriff, or sheriff's deputy presiding at such poll, who shall give a receipt for the same; and every such deputy who shall have received any such poll-books shall forthwith deliver or transmit the same, so inclosed and sealed, to the sheriff or his under-sheriff, who shall receive and keep all the poll-books unopened until the reassembling of the court on the day next but one after the close of the poll, unless such next day but one shall be Sunday, and then on the Monday following, when he shall openly break the seals thereon, and cast up the number of votes as they appear on the said several books, and shall openly declare the state of the poll, and shall make proclamation of the person chosen, not later than two of the clock in the afternoon of the said day.

XVI. That all the reasonable costs, charges, and expenses which the said sheriff, or his under-sheriff or other deputy shall expend or be liable to in and about the providing of poll-books, booths, and clerks (such clerks to be paid not more than one guinea each for each day), for the purpose of taking the poll at any such election, shall be borne and paid by the several candidates at such election in equal proportions.

And after reciting that great difficulty and delay is frequently occasioned by the non-attendance of jurors and witnesses summoned to attend the coroner on taking an inquest;—

It is Enacted,

XVII. That if any person, having been duly summoned as a juror or witness to give evidence upon any coroner's inquest, as well of liberties and franchises contributing to the county rates, as of counties, cities, and boroughs, shall not, after being openly called three times, appear and serve as such juror, or appear and give evidence on such inquest, every such coroner shall be empowered to impose such fine upon every person so making default as he shall think fit, not exceeding 40s.; and every such coroner shall make out and sign a certificate, containing the name and surname, the residence, and trade or calling of every such person so making default, together with the amount of the fine imposed, and the cause of such fine, and shall transmit such certificate to the clerk of the peace for the county, riding, division, or place in which such defaulter shall reside, on or before the first day of the Quarter Session of the peace then next ensuing, and shall cause a copy of such certificate to be served upon the person so fined, by leaving it at his residence twenty-four hours at the least before the first day of the said next Quarter Session of the peace; and every such clerk of the peace shall copy the fine or fines so certified on the roll on which all fines and forfeitures imposed at such Quarter Session of the peace shall be copied, and the same shall be estreated, levied, and applied in like manner, and subject to the like powers, provisions, and penalties in all respects, as if such fine or fines had been part of the fines imposed at such Quarter Session: Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to affect any power now by law invested in the coroner for compelling any person to appear and give evidence before him on any inquest or other proceeding, or for punishing any person for contempt of court in not so appearing and giving evidence, or otherwise.

XVIII. That from and after the passing of this Act in all cases in which any person shall be charged by any coroner's inquisition with the commission of any crime, and shall be subsequently put upon his trial, either on such inquisition, or in pursuance of any bill of indictment found for the same, the coroner before whom such inquisition shall have been found shall be wholly incompetent to act as an attorney in prosecution or defence of such person for such crime, either by himself or his partner (directly or indirectly); and that in all cases in which it shall appear to the Judge before whom such person shall be tried that any coroner shall have so acted contrary to the provision and intention of this Act, such Judge shall impose upon every coroner so offending such penalty, not exceeding 50*l.*, as the said Judge shall in his discretion think fit.

XIX. That every coroner elected under the authority of this Act, although such coroner may be designated as the coroner for any particular district of a county, and may be elected by the electors of such district, and not by the freeholders of the county at large, shall for all purposes whatsoever, except as hereinafter mentioned, be considered as a coroner for the whole county, and shall have the same jurisdiction, rights, powers, and authorities throughout the said county as if he had been elected one of the coroners of the said county by the freeholders of the county at large.

XX. That, except as aforesaid, every coroner for any county, or any district thereof, or his deputy, after he shall, in pursuance of the provisions of this Act, have been assigned to or elected by the electors of any particular district, shall, except during illness or incapacity, or unavoidable absence as aforesaid of any coroner for any other district, or during a vacancy in the office of coroner for any other district, hold inquests only within the district to or for which he shall have been assigned or elected: Provided always, that the coroner who shall, by himself or deputy, hold any inquest in any other district, save that to which he shall have been assigned or elected as aforesaid, shall, in his inquisition to be returned on such inquest, certify the cause of his attendance and holding such inquest; which certificate shall be conclusive evidence of the illness or incapacity or unavoidable absence as aforesaid of the coroner in whose stead he shall so attend, or of there being a vacancy in the office of coroner for the district in which such inquest shall be holden.

And after reciting that doubts have arisen as to the power of the Justices to order the payment of allowances for travelling in any case where an inquisition has not been taken, although such coroner has been compelled to travel from his usual place of abode for the purpose of taking an inquisition;—

It is Enacted,

XXI. That it shall and may be lawful for the Justices of the Peace in their general or quarter sessions assembled for the county, riding, division, or liberty, where such inquisition would have been taken, or the major part of them, if they shall see fit, to order the payment of such allowances for travelling to any coroner who shall shew, to the satisfaction of the said Justices, that he had been compelled, in the discharge of his office, to travel from his usual place of abode for the purpose of taking an inquisition, but which, in the exercise of his discretion, he deemed to be unnecessary, and declined to take.

And after reciting that in cases where the sheriff is a party, or otherwise disqualified to act, and in various other cases, writs and processes in civil actions and suits, and also extents and other process where the Queen is interested, are frequently directed to and executed by the coroner in the place and stead of the sheriff, but the coroner is not in any such case allowed any fee or reward for the execution of any such writs, process, or extents:—

It is Enacted,

XXII. That in all cases where any writ, process, or extent whatsoever shall be directed to and executed by any coroner or coroners in the place or stead of any sheriff or sheriffs, such coroner or coroners shall have and receive such and the same poundage fees or other compensation or reward for executing the same as the sheriff or sheriffs, if he or they had executed the same, would have been entitled to receive for so doing, and shall also have such and the same right to retain, and all other remedies for the recovery of the same, as the sheriff or sheriffs would have had in whose place and stead such coroner or coroners shall have been substituted; and if the fees or compensation payable to the sheriffs shall at any time after the passing of this Act be increased by Act of Parliament or otherwise, that in every such case the coroner or coroners shall be entitled to such increased fees or compensation.

And after reciting that by an Act, 6 & 7 Vict. c. 12, intituled, 'An Act for the more convenient holding of Coroners Inquests,' it was enacted, that for the purpose of holding coroners inquests every detached part of a county, riding, or division shall be deemed to be within that county, riding, or division by which it is wholly surrounded, or where it is partly surrounded, by two or more counties, within that one with which it has the longest common boundary: And that as to some such detached parts of counties, ridings, or divisions there were at the time of the passing of the last-mentioned Act coroners appointed expressly for and having jurisdiction in such detached parts only, and doubts have arisen whether such last-mentioned coroners were superseded by such last-mentioned Act:—

It is Enacted,

XXII. That as to every such detached part of any county for which at the time of the passing of the said last-mentioned Act there was a coroner appointed for and acting in such detached part such last-mentioned coroner shall (if now living, and not having resigned or been removed from his office otherwise than by the operation of the said Act,) continue to hold and exercise his former office and jurisdiction within such detached part for so long a time and in such manner as such coroner would have held and exercised the said office and jurisdiction if the said last-mentioned Act had not passed.

XXIV. That the treasurer of every county shall keep an account of all expenses occasioned to such county by any inquest in or with respect to any such detached part of any other county, and shall twice in every year send a copy of such account to the treasurer of the other county to which such detached part belongs; and the treasurer of such other county shall, out of the monies in his hands as treasurer, pay the same to the order of the treasurer sending the account, with all reasonable charges of making and sending the account; and in case any difference shall arise concerning the said account, and such difference shall not be adjusted by agreement, it shall be lawful for either of the parties to apply to the Justices of Assize of the last preceding circuit or of the next succeeding circuit, or to one of such Justices, who shall, by writing under their or his hands or hand, nominate a barrister-at-law, not having any interest in the question, to arbitrate between the parties; and such arbitrator may, if he shall see fit, adjourn the hearing from time to time, and require all such further information to be afforded by either of the parties as shall appear to him necessary, and shall by his award in writing determine the matters in difference; and his award shall be final and conclusive between the parties; and such arbitrator shall also assess the costs of the arbitration, and shall direct by whom and out of what fund the same shall be paid.

XXV. That no coroner of the Queen's household and the verge of the Queen's Palaces, nor any coroner of the Admiralty, nor any coroner of the city of London and borough of Southwark, or of any franchises belonging to the said city, nor any coroner of any city, borough, town, liberty, or franchise which is not contributory to the county rates, or within which such rates have not been usually assessed, shall be entitled to any fee, recompence, or benefit given to or provided for coroners by this Act; but that it shall be lawful for all such coroners as are last-mentioned to have and receive all such fees, salaries, wages, and allowances as they were entitled to by law before the making of this Act, or as shall be given or allowed to them by the person or persons by whom they have been or shall be appointed.

XXVI. That the provisions of this Act touching the allowance for the travelling expenses of coroners shall be deemed and taken to extend to coroners appointed and acting for the jurisdiction of the Cinque Ports, anything hereinbefore contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

XXVII. That nothing in this Act contained touching the divisions of counties into districts, or the appointment or election of coroners shall extend to the county of Chester, or any county palatine, city, borough, town, liberty, franchise, part, or place the appointment or election of coroner whereof takes place by law otherwise than under the writ De coronatore eligendo.

XXVIII. That in construing this Act the word "County" shall be taken to mean, county, riding, or division of a county in and for which a separate coroner hath been customarily elected; and that in the counties of York and Lincoln all things hereinbefore directed to be done by and with respect to the Justices in general or quarter sessions assembled, and by their clerk, shall be done by and with respect to the Justices of the said counties of York and Lincoln in general gaol sessions assembled, and by their clerk.

XXIX. Provided, declared and enacted, That nothing herein contained shall be construed to abridge or affect the royal prerogative, or the authority of the Lord Chancellor, for issuing a writ De coronatore eligendo as fully as if this Act had not been passed.

XXX. That this Act shall extend only to England.

XXXI. That this Act may be amended or repealed by any Act to be passed during the present session of Parliament.

CAP. XCIII.

AN ACT to enable Barristers appointed to arbitrate between Counties and Boroughs to submit a Special Case to the Superior Courts.

ABSTRACT OF THE ENACTMENTS.

1. Arbitrating barrister, upon receiving a requisition in writing from treasurer of the county or visiting Justices of the peace, &c. may state a special case, touching any matter referred to him, for the opinion of a superior court.
 2. In case barrister die before making his award another one to be chosen.

By this Act,

After reciting that by 5 & 6 Will. 4. c. 76, and 5 & 6 Vict. c. 98, provision was made for the appointment of barristers-at-law to arbitrate in cases of difference concerning certain accounts and the amounts of certain expenses therein mentioned: And that it is expedient that the treasurer of the county, the visiting Justices of the prison, and the council of the borough, or any of them, affected by any award which may be made by any barrister under the authority of either of the said Acts, should be enabled to obtain in a summary way the opinion of one of the superior courts of common law at Westminster upon any point of law arising out of any of the matters referred to such barrister:—

It is Enacted,

I. That in any case in which a barrister-at-law shall have been or shall hereafter be named, as in the said recited Acts or either of them is mentioned, to arbitrate between the parties, such barrister-at-law, upon the requisition in writing of the treasurer of the county, or of the visiting Justices of the prison, or of the town clerk of the borough, on behalf of the council of the borough who shall be interested in the decision of such barrister, shall be empowered, if he shall think fit, before making his award, to state one or more special case or cases touching any of the matters referred to such barrister-at-law for the opinion of such one of the superior courts of common law at Westminster as he shall direct, or to raise in any award to be at any time made by him any question or questions for the opinion of such Court; and such Court shall hear and determine the matter according to the practice of the court upon special cases, and make such order as to the costs, and by and to whom and in what manner the same shall be paid or borne, as to such Court shall seem meet, and the decision of the Court shall be binding on such barrister in making his award.

II. And it is declared and enacted, That in case any barrister who shall have been or shall hereafter be named, in pursuance of the said recited Acts or either of them, or of this Act, shall die, or refuse to act, or be disabled from acting, either from ceasing to practise as a barrister or for any other reason, before making his award, the several parties in the said several Acts mentioned shall be authorized and required to name another barrister-at-law for all the purposes in the said several Acts mentioned, or any of them, in like manner as if no appointment had been made under the same; and the barrister so newly named shall have the same authority to decide the matters in difference as if no other appointment had been made; and in every such case in which, before the passing of this Act, a second barrister has been appointed to settle or determine any matters in difference, left unsettled or undetermined by the barrister first appointed for that purpose, the appointment of such second barrister shall be deemed good, and the barrister so secondly appointed shall be deemed to have and to have had from his appointment the same authority as if appointed under this Act.

CAP. XCIV.

AN ACT to explain and amend an Act for making better Provision for the Spiritual Care of populous Parishes.

(9th August 1844.)

ABSTRACT OF THE ENACTMENTS.

2. Bishop may license, as to any existing perpetual curacy.
3. Warrant without fee.—Fee for licence.
4. How scheme to be served where incumbent or patron absent from England.
5. How where incumbent incapacitated or benefice sequestered.
6. How where patrons numerous.
7. Construction of certain terms in 6 & 7 Vict. c. 37.
8. Original map or plan may be registered.
9. Bounds of districts may be varied within limited time.
10. Until minister licensed, cure of souls not affected.
11. Form of grant or conveyance.
12. Act may be altered this session.

By this Act,

After reciting the passing of 6 & 7 Vict. c. 37, and that it is expedient to explain and amend certain of the provisions of the said Act;—

It is Enacted,

I. That wherever any right of patronage of any district or new parish constituted under the authority of the said Act, and nomination of the minister or perpetual curate thereof, shall be assigned to or vested in or may be exercised by Her Majesty, according to or under the provisions of the same Act, it shall be lawful for Her Majesty to nominate to the bishop of the diocese a spiritual person to be licensed to such district or new parish as minister or perpetual curate thereof, as the case may be, by warrant under her royal sign manual; and such warrant shall be full and sufficient authority to such bishop to license such spiritual person accordingly.

II. And it is declared and enacted, That wherever any right of patronage of any such district or new parish shall in like manner be assigned to or vested in or may be exercised by any bishop, it shall be lawful for such bishop to license a spiritual person to such district or new parish as minister or perpetual curate thereof, as the case may be, in the same manner, mutatis mutandis, as he may now by law license a spiritual person to any perpetual curacy.

III. Provided and enacted, That no fee whatever shall be payable for or in respect of any such warrant as aforesaid; and that a fee of 1*l.* and no more, shall be receivable by the secretary of any bishop for and in respect of each and every licence granted by such bishop of a spiritual person as minister or perpetual curate of any such district or new parish as aforesaid, or of any building licensed by such bishop within any such district for the performance of Divine Service, pursuant to the provisions of the said Act; and no further or larger fee or gratuity shall be receivable by any person whomsoever for or in respect of the making, issuing, or granting of any such licence as aforesaid.

IV. And it is declared and enacted, That wherever any incumbent or patron to whom, according to the provisions of the said recited Act, it shall be necessary to transmit or deliver the draft of any scheme proposed to be laid before Her Majesty in council, shall be beyond the seas, it shall be and be deemed to be a sufficient compliance with such provisions to leave such draft, in the case of an incumbent, at the house of residence belonging to his benefice or church, or if there be no such house of residence then at his last usual place of abode in England, and in the case of a patron at his last usual place of abode in England: Provided always, that in any such case of an absent incumbent or patron such scheme shall not be laid before Her Majesty in council until after the expiration of two calendar months from the day on which the draft thereof shall have been so left, unless such incumbent and patron shall in the meantime consent to the same.

V. And it is declared and enacted, That in the case of any such incumbent being an idiot or lunatic or of unsound mind, or of any benefice or church being under sequestration, or of the duties thereof being performed by a curate duly appointed in consequence of the suspension or the reputed incapacity of the incumbent thereof, it shall be and be deemed to be a sufficient compliance with the same provisions to deliver or transmit the draft of any such scheme to the committee of such idiot, lunatic, or person of unsound mind, or to the sequestrator, or to such curate of such benefice or church, as the case may be; and the consent of such committee, sequestrator, or curate shall be deemed to be the consent of the incumbent, within the meaning of the said Act.

VI. And it is declared and enacted, That in any case in which the patronage of any church or chapel of any parish, chapelry, or district is or shall be vested in and exercised by the inhabitants generally of such parish, chapelry, or district, or by any body or class of persons exceeding five in number, it shall be and be deemed to be a sufficient compliance with the same provisions to deliver or transmit the draft of any such scheme to one of such patrons, and to the churchwardens or chapelwardens of any such church or chapel, as the case may be; and such churchwardens or chapelwardens, or one of them, shall thereupon cause notice of the contents of such draft to be given to such patrons, and shall ascertain their objections, if any, or their consent to such scheme, in such manner as the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for England shall direct, and such churchwardens or chapelwardens, or one of them, shall communicate the same to the said Commissioners or to the bishop of the diocese; and the said Commissioners shall not lay such scheme before Her Majesty in council until after the expiration of two calendar months from the day on which such draft shall have been so delivered or transmitted, unless such consent shall in the meantime be given.

VII. And it is declared and enacted, That in the construction of the said recited Act the words "goods and chattels" shall be construed to extend to and comprehend all personal estate and property whatsoever; and the word "testament" shall be construed to extend to and comprehend any will or testamentary paper whatsoever, including under such definition the execution by any such will, testament, or testamentary paper of any appointment, in pursuance of any power, howsoever conferred or acquired.

VIII. And it is declared and enacted, That, notwithstanding anything in the said recited Act contained, it shall be lawful to transmit the original map or plan annexed to any scheme laid before Her Majesty in council under the provisions of the said recited Act, to be registered in the registry of the diocese, instead of a copy thereof, as provided by the same Act.

IX. And it is declared and enacted, That it shall be lawful, by the authority in the said recited Act provided, at any time or times within twelve months after the date of the licence of the minister first licensed to any separate district constituted under the provisions of the same Act, to alter the bounds of such district, although any alteration be not required with a view to the constituting of another separate district; provided always, that the scheme for making any such alteration shall be subject to all the provisions in the same Act and in this Act contained relating to schemes for constituting separate districts thereunder; and that any portion of any such separate district which by any such alteration as aforesaid shall become detached or excluded therefrom shall to all intents and purposes again belong to and form part of the parish, chapelry, or district out of which such portion was taken, upon such separate district being originally constituted, or to and of any new district, as shall be determined by the like authority.

X. And it is declared and enacted, That in the case of any district constituted under the provisions of the said recited Act nothing contained in the scheme or order for constituting the same shall in any manner whatever affect any parish, chapelry, or district, as to the pastoral superintendence of the inhabitants thereof or otherwise, until a minister shall have been duly licensed to such newly constituted district.

XI. That any grant, conveyance, or assurance which shall be made to the said Commissioners by deed, under the authority of the said recited Act, of any lands, tithes, tenements, or other hereditaments, may be made according to the form in the Schedule hereunto annexed contained, or as near thereto as the circumstances of the case will admit; and every such conveyance and assurance shall be valid and effectual in the law to all intents and purposes.

XII. That this Act may be amended or repealed by any Act to be passed during this present session of Parliament.

SCHEDULE.

I [or We, or the Corporate Title, if a Corporation], under the Authority of Acts passed in the Sessions of Parliament held in the Sixth and Seventh and Seventh and Eighth Years of the Reign of Her present Majesty, intituled respectively, "An Act to make better Provision for the Spiritual Care of populous Parishes," and "An Act to explain and amend an Act to make better Provision for the Spiritual Care of populous Parishes," do by these Presents freely and voluntarily, and without any valuable Consideration, give, grant, convey, and assure to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for England all [describe the Premises to be conveyed], and all [my, or our, or the] Right, Title, and Interest [of, if a Corporation,] to and in the same and every Part thereof, to hold to the said Commissioners and their Successors for the Purpose of [describe the particular Purpose, being some Purpose within the Provisions of the said Acts, or say, generally, for the Purposes of the said Acts]. CAP. XCV.

AN ACT to amend an Act of the Ninth Year of King George the Fourth, for the Preservation of the Salmon Fisheries in Scotland.

ABSTRACT OF THE ENACTMENTS.

1. Persons fishing for salmon within one mile of the shore, not having a legal right or permission, liable to penalty.
2. Provisions of recited Act extended to this Act.
3. Saving rights of proprietors.
4. Saving rights of the Crown.

By this Act,

After reciting the passing of 9 Geo. 4. c. 39: And that it is expedient to prevent the destruction of salmon, or fish of the salmon kind, in the sea or shores thereof: And that doubts are entertained of the provisions of the said Act being applicable to the sea or sea shore:—

It is Enacted,

i. That if any person not having a legal right or permission from the proprietor of the salmon fishery shall from and after the passing of this Act wilfully take, fish for, or attempt to take, or aid or assist in taking, fishing for, or attempting to take, in or from any river, stream, lake, water, estuary, firth, sea loch, creek, bay, or shore of the sea, or in or upon any part of the sea, within one mile of low-water mark, in Scotland, any salmon, grilse, sea trout, whitling, or other fish of the salmon kind, such person shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than 10s. and not exceeding 5l. for each and every such offence, and shall, if the sheriff or Justices shall think proper, over and above, forfeit each and every fish so taken, and each and every boat, boat tackle, net, or other engine used in taking, fishing for, or attempting to take fish as aforesaid; and it shall be lawful for any person employed in the execution of this Act to seize and detain all fish so taken, and all boats, tackle, nets, and other engines so used, and to give information thereof to the sheriff or any Justice of the Peace, and such sheriff or Justice may give such orders concerning the immediate disposal of the same as may be necessary.

ii. That the regulations as to the recovery and application of penalties and the apprehension of offenders, and all other enactments and provisions of the said recited Act, shall extend and apply to what is herein above enacted, and this Act shall be construed and applied in the same manner and in all respects as if it had formed part of the said recited Act.

iii. That nothing herein contained shall be construed as depriving any proprietor of salmon fishery of any right now by law vested in such proprietor to prevent any person from fishing either within or beyond the limits specified in this Act.

iv. That nothing herein contained shall affect the rights or property of the Crown.

CAP. XCVI.

AN ACT to amend the Law of Insolvency, Bankruptcy, and Execution.

(9th August 1844.)

21. Who may examine persons on oath respecting such accounts.
22. Commencement of Act.
23. Act may be amended this session.

By this Act,

After reciting that it is expedient that the pious intentions of charitable persons should not be defeated by the concealment and misapplication of their donations and bequests to public and private charities in Ireland: and that the provisions of 3 Geo. 3. (1.) and 40 Geo. 3. (1.) have been found insufficient for such purposes; and it is expedient and necessary that provision should be made for the better management of such charitable donations and bequests as have been heretofore made, and such as hereafter may be made:—

It is Enacted,

I. That from and after the commencement of this Act the hereinbefore recited Acts shall be repealed, save as to anything done at any time before the commencement of this Act, all which shall be and remain good to all intents and purposes whatsoever as if this Act had not passed.

II. That the Master of the Rolls in the High Court of Chancery of Ireland for the time being, the Chief Baron of the Court of Exchequer in Ireland for the time being, and the Judge of Her Majesty's Court of Prerogative for Causes Ecclesiastical and Court of Faculties in and throughout Ireland for the time being, together with ten other proper and discreet persons, to be from time to time appointed by Her Majesty in council, by warrant under the sign manual, of which ten persons five and not more than five shall at all times be persons professing the Roman Catholic religion, shall be one body politic and corporate, by the name of "The Commissioners of Charitable Donations and Bequests for Ireland," and by that name shall have perpetual succession and a common seal, and by that name may sue and be sued.

III. That the said Commissioners shall be at all times removable by Her Majesty in council, by warrant under the sign manual; and that whenever, by death, resignation, removal, or otherwise, any person shall cease to be a Commissioner under this Act, it shall be lawful for Her Majesty, by warrant as aforesaid, to appoint one other person instead of the person so ceasing to be such Commissioner; and every appointment of the said Commissioners and their successors shall be published in the Dublin Gazette.

IV. That all things which the said Commissioners are by this Act authorized to do may be done by any five of such Commissioners: Provided always, that such five Commissioners be for such purpose assembled at a meeting whereof due notice shall have been given to all the said Commissioners.

V. That at each meeting of the said Commissioners the said Master of the Rolls, or in his absence the said Chief Baron of the Court of Exchequer, or in his absence the said Judge of the Prerogative Court, if present, and, in the absence of all, the senior Commissioner in the order of appointment, shall preside; and the chairman at all such meetings shall not only vote as a Commissioner, but, in case of the equality of votes, shall have also the casting or decisive vote.

VI. Provided and enacted, That the consideration of all charitable donations and bequests, and of matters relating to them, in which any question shall arise before the said Commissioners concerning the usages or discipline of the united Church of England and Ireland, or of any body of protestant nonconformists, shall be referred to a committee of the said Commissioners consisting of those Commissioners who are protestants; and that the consideration of all charitable donations and bequests, and of matters relating to them, in which any question shall arise before the said Commissioners, concerning the usages or discipline of the Church of Rome, shall be referred to a committee of the said Commissioners consisting of those Commissioners who profess the Roman Catholic religion; and that whenever, by reason of reference to or intendment of any usage of any such church or body, or any district or division, in use according to the discipline of any such church or body, the object of the donation, devise, or bequest shall not be defined with legal certainty in the deed or will creating the trust, the committee to which the same shall be referred shall certify to the Commissioners who is, according to the uses and intendment of such church or body, the person for the time being intended to take the benefit of such donation, devise, or bequest, or other particular facts concerning the usages or discipline of such church or body necessary to be known, for the due administration of the trust, according to the true intent and meaning of the donor; and the Commissioners shall receive every such certificate as evidence of the facts certified, and shall give effect to such donation, devise, or bequest accordingly, so far as the same may be lawfully executed according to the provisions of this Act: Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to limit or affect the jurisdiction of any court of law or equity.

VII. That it shall be lawful for the Lord Lieutenant or other chief governors of Ireland, with the consent and approbation of the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, from time to time to appoint during his pleasure a secretary or secretaries to the said Commissioners, and also such officers, clerks, and servants as may be necessary for the purposes of this Act; and the said Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury shall fix the salary or salaries of the said secretary or secretaries, officers, clerks, and servants in fit proportion, according to the duties which they from time to time may have to perform.

VIII. That the salaries of the said secretaries, officers, clerks, and servants, and also the necessary expenses of carrying on the business of the said Commissioners of Charitable Donations and Bequests for Ireland, not herein otherwise provided for, shall be paid by the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury out of the Consolidated Fund of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

IX. That one of the secretaries, or some other officer of the said Commissioners, shall make minutes of the proceedings of the said Commissioners at their several meetings, and shall keep a book, in which he shall enter a fair copy of such minutes, and the names of the Commissioners present; and the fair copy of the minutes of the proceedings of each meeting shall be read at the next meeting of the Commissioners, and if approved as correct shall be signed by the chairman of the meeting at which they shall be so read.

X. That the Commissioners shall, once at least in every year, and also whenever Her Majesty's pleasure shall be signified to them in that behalf, report to Her Majesty their proceedings under this Act; and a copy of every such report shall be communicated to both Houses of Parliament within six weeks after the same shall be made, if Parliament be then sitting, or if not then within six weeks next after the next meeting of Parliament.

XI. That from and after the first publication in the Dublin Gazette of the appointment of the Commissioners of Charitable Donations and Bequests for Ireland under this Act the property, estate, and effects, rights, claims, titles, and possessions, of what nature or kind soever, of or belonging or which of right ought to belong to the said body politic and corporate created by the said recited Act, 40 Geo. 3. (I.) and vested in the said body by virtue of the said Act or otherwise, shall vest in and devolve upon the Commissioners of Charitable Donations and Bequests for Ireland created by this Act, subject to such trusts and conditions, liabilities, contracts, and engagements, as the same shall then be subject and liable to.

XII. That the said Commissioners of Charitable Donations and Bequests for Ireland may sue for the recovery of every charitable donation, devise, or bequest intended to be applied in Ireland, which shall be withheld, concealed, or misapplied, and shall apply the same, when recovered, to charitable and pious uses, according to the intention of the donor or donors; and the said Commissioners shall be empowered to deduct out of all such charitable donations, devises, and bequests as they shall recover all the costs, charges and expenses which they shall be put to in the suing for and recovery of the same: Provided always, that no information shall be filed, or petition presented, or other proceeding at law or in equity undertaken or prosecuted, by the said Commissioners, until the same shall be submitted to and allowed by Her Majesty's Attorney or Solicitor General for Ireland, and such allowance certified by him.

XIII. That no action or suit at law or in equity shall be abated by the dissolution of the said corporation created by the said Act, 40 Geo. 3. (I.) but that the Court in which any action or suit shall be depending at the time of the commencement of this Act may, if such Court shall so think fit, upon the application of any party to the said action or suit, allow the name of the Commissioners of Charitable Donations and Bequests for Ireland incorporated by this Act to be substituted in the place of the said Commissioners created by the said statute, 40 Geo. 3. (I.) and such action or suit may be prosecuted and defended in the same manner as if the same had been originally instituted by or against the said Commissioners incorporated by this Act.

XIV. That no sum shall be paid by the said Commissioners of Charitable Donations and Bequests for Ireland to any attorney or solicitor, as and for costs, charges, or expenses, unless the amount of such payment shall first have been approved of by the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury; and before any such sum shall be allowed by the said Commissioners of the Treasury on such account as aforesaid the particulars of all such costs, charges, and expenses shall be laid before them.

XV. That every person or body corporate having in his, her, or their own right any estate or interest, in possession, reversion, or remainder, of or in any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, or any property of or in any goods or chattels, shall have full power, at his, her, and their will and pleasure, by deed duly executed, and attested by two credible witnesses, or by his or her last will in writing, duly executed according to law, to give and grant to and vest in the said Commissioners of Charitable Donations and Bequests for Ireland, and their successors, all such his, her, or their estate, interest, or property in such lands, tenements, hereditaments, goods, and chattels, or any part or parts thereof, in trust for building, enlarging, upholding, or furnishing any chapel or place of religious worship of persons professing the Roman Catholic religion, or in trust for any archbishop or bishop or other person in holy orders of the Church of Rome officiating in any district, or having pastoral superintendence of any congregation of persons professing the Roman Catholic religion, and for those who shall from time to time so officiate or shall succeed to the same pastoral superintendence, or for building a residence for his and their use; and such estate, interest, or property in such lands, tenements, or other hereditaments, goods and chattels, shall vest in and be holden by the said Commissioners, subject to the trusts of such deed and will respectively, without any writ or licence other than this Act: Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to render lawful any donation, devise, or bequest to or in favour of any religious order, community, or society of the Church of Rome bound by monastic or religious vows prohibited by an Act, 10 Geo. 4. c. 7, intitled 'An Act for the Relief of His Majesty's Roman Catholic Subjects,' or to or in favour of any member or members thereof.

XVI. That after the commencement of this Act no donation, devise, or bequest for pious or charitable uses in Ireland shall be valid to create or convey any estate in lands, tenements, or hereditaments for such uses, unless the deed, will, or other instrument containing the same shall be duly executed three calendar months at the least before the death of the person executing the same, and unless every such deed or instrument, not being a will, shall be duly registered in the office for registering deeds in the city of Dublin within three calendar months after the execution thereof.

XVII. That it shall not be lawful for any such archbishop, bishop, or person in holy orders of the Church of Rome to alien, set, let, or in any manner demise for any period whatever such lands, tenements, or hereditaments, or any part thereof, or in any manner whatever to charge or incur the same, or any property enjoyed by him under this Act, but that all charges and incumbrances upon such lands, tenements, and hereditaments, or other property, and all conveyances, gifts, grants, demises, or sub-demises of the same or any part thereof, made or to be made by any such archbishop, bishop, or other person in holy orders of the Church of Rome, shall be absolutely void: Provided always, that it shall and may be lawful for the said archbishop, bishop, or other person in holy orders of the Church of Rome to execute such leases as hereinafter are mentioned.

XVIII. That it shall and may be lawful for the said Commissioners of Charitable Donations and Bequests for Ireland, from time to time, by deed under the common seal of the said Commissioners, to demise or lease the said lands, tenements, or hereditaments, or any part thereof, by and with the consent of the said archbishop, bishop, or other person in holy orders of the Church of Rome, or those who respectively shall succeed them as aforesaid, testified by his or their being a party to and executing such lease, for any term not exceeding twenty-one years, unless on building lease, in which case such lease may be granted for any term not exceeding one hundred years: Provided always, that the said lease shall take effect in possession, and not in reversion or by way of future interest, and that there be made payable during the estate or interest thereby created the best yearly rent that can be reasonably obtained for the same, without any fine, premium, or foregift for the making thereof being paid or payable to the said Commissioners, or to the said archbishop, bishop, or other person in holy orders of the Church of Rome; and provided that there be contained in every such demise or lease a covenant for the payment of the rent thereby reserved, and a condition for re-entry on non-payment of the rent or any part thereof for twenty-one days next after the same shall become due, and so that the lessee or lessees therein named do execute a counterpart of the said demise or lease, and be not in any manner made punishable for committing waste.

XIX. That from and after the commencement of this Act the vicar general or his surrogate, and the registrar of the Prerogative Court, shall make a return upon oath to the Commissioners of Charitable Donations and Bequests for Ireland, between the 1st of July and the 1st of November in every year, of every charitable devise or bequest contained in any will which shall be entered in the office of such vicar general, surrogate, or registrar, which return shall likewise contain the name of the testator, the name or names of the person or persons to whom probate of any such will, or letters of administration with such will annexed, shall be granted, with the date of such will, probate, or administration; which return shall be lodged with one of the secretaries of the said Commissioners; and every such officer as aforesaid who shall neglect to make such return as aforesaid shall forfeit the sum of 5*l*. sterling, to be recovered by any person who shall sue for the same by civil bill; and the person or persons to whom the probate of any such will or letters of administration as aforesaid shall be granted, shall, within three calendar months next after obtaining the same, publish in the Dublin Gazette, three times successively, every charitable devise or bequest contained in such will, the name of the testator and date of such will or codicil, and the name of the person or persons to whom such charitable devise or bequest is given and bequeathed, and the name of the person or persons appointed by the testator for the management and direction thereof; and the expense of such publication shall be paid by the said executors or administrators out of the said respective charities; and every such person or persons who shall neglect to publish the same in manner herein required shall forfeit for every such neglect the sum of 5*l*. sterling, to be recovered by any person who shall sue for the same, by any action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of Her Majesty's courts of record.

XX. That the accounts of the said Commissioners of the sums passing through their hands arising from charitable donations and bequests shall, from and after the commencement of this Act, be from time to time audited and declared by the chief remembrancer or second remembrancer of the Court of Exchequer in Ireland; and that the said Commissioners of Charitable Donations and Bequests in Ireland shall cause the said accounts to be made out in such form as the said chief or second remembrancer shall direct, and shall send the same to him, with proper vouchers for their receipts and payments; and the said chief remembrancer or second remembrancer, after examining each account rendered to him as aforesaid, with the documents annexed thereto, shall settle and declare the same, and shall lodge such account, when so settled and declared, with the clerks of Her Majesty's Privy Council in Ireland, who shall send one copy thereof to the said Commissioners.

of Charitable Donations and Bequests for Ireland, and keep one other copy thereof in the Privy Council Office in Ireland.

XXI. That it shall be lawful for the said chief remembrancer or second remembrancer to call before him and examine on oath any person whom he may deem it necessary to examine on the matter of such accounts; and every person who on such examination on oath shall wilfully make any false statement shall be deemed guilty of perjury.

XXII. That this Act shall commence from and after the 1st of January 1845; and that nothing herein contained shall be taken to avoid or render unlawful any donation, devise, or bequest which but for this Act would be lawful, except as to the time within which the deed, will, or instrument containing such donation, devise, or bequest for pious or charitable uses is heretofore required to be executed and registered.

XXIII. That this Act may be amended or repealed by any Act to be passed in this session of Parliament.

CAP. XCIII.—IRELAND.

AN ACT to enable the Commissioners of Public Works in Ireland to accept a certain Sum of Money in satisfaction of their Mortgage on the Branch Canals communicating with the Grand Canal in Ireland.

(9th August 1844.)

ABSTRACT OF THE ENACTMENT.

1. On payment of 10,000*l.* by the Grand Canal Company the branch canals herein set forth to vest in the company.
2. Commissioners of Public Works to reconvey mortgages.
3. Act may be amended this session.

By this Act,

After reciting that the late Commissioners for the Loan of Public Money in Ireland did, in pursuance of the powers vested in them, lend to the Company of Undertakers of the Grand Canal in Ireland the sum of 47,108*l.* 1*8s.* 3*d.*, for the employment of the poor, by making a branch canal from the river Shannon near Banagher in the King's County, to the town of Ballinasloe, in the county of Galway, communicating with the said Grand Canal by the river Shannon, upon a mortgage of the lands taken for the said branch canal, and of the expected rates, rents, tolls, and profits to be derived from the said branch canal; and that the said Commissioners did also lend to the said company the further sum of 33,416*l.* 6*s.* 3*d.*, for the employment of the poor, by making another branch canal from the town of Monasterevan, in the county of Kildare to the town of Mountmellick in the Queen's County, communicating with the said Grand Canal, upon a like mortgage of the lands taken for the last-mentioned branch, and also of the expected rates, rents, tolls, and profits of the said last-mentioned branch canal; and that the said Commissioners did also lend to the said company the further sum of 18,000*l.* for the purpose of making a third branch canal, extending from the said Grand Canal at Ballycommon Lock, in the King's County, to the town of Kilbeggan, in the county of Westmeath, upon a mortgage of the lands taken for the last-mentioned branch canal; and also of the expected rates, rents, tolls, and profits of the said last-mentioned branch canal; and that it appears that the tolls and profits of the said branch canals, after paying the costs and charges of maintenance, have been and are wholly inadequate to discharge the principal sums of money lent on the security thereof, or the interest thereof; and that the duties of the said Commissioners are now exercised by, and the said mortgage securities were afterwards transferred to, the Commissioners of Public Works in Ireland; and that it is expedient that the said last-mentioned Commissioners should be empowered to accept the sum hereinafter mentioned, instead of all demands against the said company on account of the said several loans:—

It is Enacted,

1. That upon payment of the sum of 10,000*l.* by the said Company of Undertakers of the Grand Canal into the Bank of Ireland, to the credit and for account of the Paymaster of Civil Services in Ireland, all the estate, right, title, property, or interest whatsoever of the said Commissioners of Public Works in Ireland, or of any person or persons in trust for them, of, in, and to the several lands, tenements, and hereditaments, waters, watercourses, bridges, locks, sluices, drains, banks, dams, roads, towing paths, and other ways of the said three branch canals, extending from the said river Shannon to the town of Ballinasloe, and from the said town of Monasterevan to the said said town of Mountmellick, and from the said Grand Canal at Ballyshannon Lock, to the town of Kilbeggan as aforesaid, shall be vested in the said company and their successors, and that all the said lands, tenements, and hereditaments, waters, watercourses, bridges, locks, sluices, drains, roads, towing paths, and other ways, shall, from and after such payment as aforesaid, be deemed to be parts of the said Grand Canal, and be vested in the said company and their successors, freed and discharged from the said mortgages and all interest accruing thereon, and from all claims and demands whatever in respect thereof: and the said company shall thereafter hold the same to their own use and benefit, and to the use and benefit of their successors for ever, subject and according to the powers and provisions which constitute them undertakers and proprietors of the said Grand Canal.

II. That upon payment of the said sum of 10,000*l.* as aforesaid the said Commissioners of Public Works in Ireland shall, upon the request and at the cost of the said company, assign over and reconvey, or cause to be assigned over and reconveyed, to the said company, any assignment or assignments, mortgage or mortgages of the said lands, rates, rents, tolls, and profits of the said three branch canals, taken or holden by them or by any person or persons in trust for them, or for securing payment of the said several sums of 47,108*l.* 13*s.* 3*d.*, 33,416*l.* 16*s.* 3*d.*, and 18,000*l.*, and surrender up the same to the said Company of Undertakers or their public officer; and that the said company and their successors shall thereupon be freed and discharged from all claim by the said Commissioners of Public Works on account of the said several loans of money, or any interest due thereon.

III. That this Act may be amended or repealed by any Act to be passed in this session of Parliament.

CAP. XCIX.—IRELAND.

AN ACT to extend the Time limited by an Act passed in the Fourth and Fifth Years of Her present Majesty, empowering the Commissioners for the Issue of Exchequer Bills for Public Works to complete the Works for improving the Navigation and Harbour of Tralee in the County of Kerry.

(9th August 1844.)

ABSTRACT OF THE ENACTMENTS.

1. The time limited by the last-recited Act for the execution of the works extended for three years.
2. The powers given by the first-recited Act to cease at the end of the said term, save as to works certified by Justices of Kerry to have been completed.

By this Act,

After reciting the passing of an Act, 9 Geo. 4. c. cxviii., intituled, 'An Act for making and maintaining a Navigable Cut or Canal from a Point at or near the Black Rock in the Harbour of Tralee in the County of Kerry to Croompanrickard near the Town of Tralee in the said county; and for otherwise improving the said Harbour of Tralee;' and of another Act, 6 & 7 Will. 4. c. 114, intituled, 'An Act to extend the Time limited by an Act passed in the Ninth Year of the Reign of His late Majesty King George the Fourth, for improving the Navigation and Harbour of Tralee in the county of Kerry;' and of another Act, 4 & 5 Vict. c. 46, intituled, 'An Act to empower the Commissioners for the Issue of Exchequer Bills for Public Works to complete the Works authorized to be made by an Act of the Sixth and Seventh Year of the Reign of His late Majesty King William the Fourth, for improving the Navigation and Harbour of Tralee in the County of Kerry; and to extend the Time for that Purpose;' and reciting certain provisions contained in the said Acts:—

It is Enacted,

1. That the time limited by the said last-recited Act for the completion of the said canal and other works by the said first-recited Act authorized and required to be made and executed shall be and the same is hereby extended for the further term of three years, to be computed from the expiration of the said term of three years by the said last-recited Act limited for such purposes as aforesaid.

II. Provided and enacted, That in case the said canal and other works by the said first-recited Act authorized to be made and executed shall not be made and completed within the said term of three years, to be computed from the expiration of the term of three years by the said last-recited Act limited for such purposes as aforesaid, then from and after the expiration of the said term of three years limited by this Act all the powers, authorities, and privileges by the said first-recited Act given to or conferred upon the said Commissioners for making such canal, and the several works, matters, and things belonging thereto or connected therewith, shall cease and determine, save only and except as to so much of the said canal and other works as shall have been declared and certified to have been completed within the said term by the Justices of the Peace of the said county of Kerry assembled at any quarter sessions of the peace to be holden for the said county at any time before the expiration of the said term of three years limited by this Act, or within six calendar months next after the expiration thereof, upon the evidence of any one or more witness or witnesses upon oath to be produced before them for that purpose.

CAP. C.—IRELAND.

AN ACT to supply an Omission in an Act of the Sixth and Seventh Years of Her present Majesty, for amending and continuing the Laws in Ireland relative to the registering of Arms, and the Importation, Manufacture, and Sale of Arms, Gunpowder, and Ammunition.

(9th August 1844.)

ABSTRACT OF THE ENACTMENTS.

1. Sect. 49, in recited Act, to have the effect intended notwithstanding the omission.
2. Recited Act and this Act to be construed as one Act.
3. Act may be amended this session.

By this ACT,

After reciting the passing of 6 & 7 Vict. c. 74, and that the 49th section of the said Act is in the words following; (that is to say,) "And be it enacted, That it shall be lawful for the grand jury of every county of a city and county of a town in Ireland at each assizes, and for the grand juries at each presenting term for the county of Dublin and county of the city of Dublin, and they are hereby respectively required, to present such sums to be raised off the county as shall have been necessarily disbursed in marking arms under the provisions of this Act in such county of a city or town, and such sums as shall appear to them to have been necessarily disbursed shall be paid to the officer by whom such disbursements shall have been made; and it shall be also lawful for the said grand juries at each assizes or presenting term to present such sums as may be necessary to pay the clerks of the peace and petty sessions respectively for their trouble and expenses in the execution of this Act:" And that in the phrase in the said section, "And be it enacted, That it shall be lawful for the grand jury of every county of a city and county of a town in Ireland," the word "county" was inadvertently omitted, and it is expedient to supply such omission:—

It is declared and Enacted,

I. That the said hereinbefore recited section of the said Act shall be deemed, construed, and taken to have such and the same effect to all intents and purposes whatsoever as if the words following, (that is to say,) "And be it enacted, That it shall be lawful for the grand jury of every county, county of a city, and county of a town in Ireland," had been originally inserted in the said section, instead of the said words "And be it enacted, That it shall be lawful for the grand jury of every county of a city and county of a town in Ireland;" and that the presentments to be made in every county in Ireland at the next assizes for raising off the county such sums as shall have been necessarily disbursed in marking arms in such county, under the authority of the said recited Act and this Act, shall respectively include such sums as shall have been so disbursed for such purpose before the passing of this Act; and that it shall be also lawful for the grand jury of every county in Ireland to include in each such presentment respectively such sums as may be necessary to pay the clerks of the peace and petty sessions respectively for the trouble and expenses incurred by them in the execution of the said recited Act before the passing of this Act.

II. That the provisions of the said last-recited Act (save and except such parts thereof as are by this Act amended) shall apply and extend to this Act, and that the said recited Act and this Act shall be construed together as one Act.

III. That this Act may be amended or repealed by any Act to be passed in the present session of Parliament.

CAP. CI.

AN ACT for the further Amendment of the Laws relating to the Poor in England.

(9th August 1844.)

[This Act will be found in the Appendix, p. xv.]

CAP. CII.

AN ACT to repeal certain Penal Enactments made against Her Majesty's Roman Catholic Subjects.

ABSTRACT OF THE ENACTMENTS.

1. Certain Acts and parts of Acts repealed.
2. Act may be altered this session.

By this Act,

After reciting that Roman Catholics, and persons professing the Roman Catholic religion, were, by certain Acts made and passed by the Parliament of England and the Parliament of Great Britain rendered liable to punishments, pains, penalties, and disabilities for or on account of their religious belief or profession, to which punishments, pains, penalties, and disabilities none other of Her Majesty's subjects are liable: And that it is expedient to amend the law in this respect;—

It is Enacted,

1. That from and after the passing of this Act the several Acts hereinafter mentioned, or so much and such parts of any of them as are hereinafter specified, shall be repealed; (that is to say,)

So much of an Act, 5 & 6 Edw. 6. c. 1, intituled, 'An Act for the Uniformity of Service and Administration of Sacraments throughout the Realm,' as relates to the offence of willingly and wittingly hearing and being present at any other manner or form of common prayer, of administration of the sacraments, of making of ministers in the churches, or of any other rites contained in the book annexed to that Act, than is mentioned and set forth in such book, so far as the same in any manner affects Roman Catholics:

Also so much of an Act, 1 Eliz. c. 1, intituled, 'An Act to restore to the Crown the ancient Jurisdiction over the Estate, ecclesiastical and spiritual, and abolishing all Foreign Powers repugnant to the same,' whereby, after the following enactment, "that if any person or persons dwelling or inhabiting within this your realm, or in any other your highnesses realms or dominions, of what estate, dignity, or degree soever he or they be, after the end of thirty days next after the determination of this session of this present Parliament, shall, by writing, printing, teaching, preaching, express words, deed, or act, advisedly, maliciously, and directly affirm, hold, stand with, set forth, maintain, or defend the authority, preeminence, power, or jurisdiction, spiritual or ecclesiastical, of any foreign prince, prelate, person, state, or potentate whatsoever, heretofore claimed, used, or usurped within this realm, or any dominion or country being within or under the power, dominion, or obeysance of your highness, or shall advisedly, maliciously, and directly put in ure or execute any thing for the extolling, advancement, setting forth, maintenance, or defence of any such pretended or usurped jurisdiction, power, preeminence, and authority, or any part thereof, that then every such person and persons so doing and offending, their abettors, aiders, procurers, and counsellors, being thereof lawfully convicted and attainted, according to the due order and course of the common laws of this realm, for his or their first offence shall forfeit and lose unto your highness, your heirs and successors, all his and their goods and chattels, as well real as personal; and if any such person so convicted or attainted shall not have or be worth of his proper goods and chattels to the value of 20*l*. at the time of his conviction or attainder, that then every such person so convicted or attainted, over and besides the forfeiture of all his said goods and chattels, shall have and suffer imprisonment by the space of one whole year, without bail or mainprize;" it is enacted, "that if any such offender or offenders, after such conviction or attainder, do afterwards commit or do the said offences or any of them in manner and form aforesaid, and be thereof duly convicted and attainted as is aforesaid, that then every such offender and offenders shall for the same second offence incur into the dangers, penalties, and forfeitures ordained and provided by the Statute of Provision and Premunire made in the sixteenth year of the reign of King Richard the Second; and if any such offender or offenders, at any time after the said second conviction and attainder, do the third time commit and do the said offences or any of them in manner and form aforesaid, and be thereof duly convicted and attainted as is aforesaid, that then every such offence or offences shall be deemed and adjudged high treason; and that the offender or offenders therein, being thereof lawfully convicted and attainted according to the laws of this realm, shall suffer pains of death, and other penalties, forfeitures, and losses, as in cases of high treason by the laws of this realm:"

Also so much of an Act, 1 Eliz. c. 2, intituled, 'An Act for the Uniformity of Common Prayer and Service in the Church, and Administration of the Sacraments,' whereby it is enacted, "that all and every person and persons inhabiting within this realm or any other the Queen's Majesty's dominions shall diligently and faithfully, having no lawful or reasonable excuse to be absent, endeavour themselves to resort to their parish church or chapel accustomed, or upon reasonable let thereof to some usual place where common prayer and such service of God shall be used in such time of let, upon every Sunday and other days ordained and used to be kept as holy days, and then and there to abide orderly and soberly during the time of the common prayer, preaching, or other service of God there to be used and ministered," upon the pains, penalties, and punishments therein mentioned, so far as these enactments of the last-mentioned Act relate to or affect Roman Catholics:

Also so much of an Act, 5 Eliz. c. 1, intituled, 'An Act for the Assurance of the Queen's Royal Power over all Estates and Subjects within Her Dominions,' as renders any person violating its provisions liable to the penalties of treason, or of the Statute of Præmunire:

Also the whole of an Act, 23 Eliz. c. 1, intituled, 'An Act to retain the Queen's Majesty's Subjects in their due Obedience:'

Also the whole of an Act, 27 Eliz. c. 2, intituled, 'An Act against Jesuits, Seminary Priests, and other such like disobedient Persons:'

Also so much of an Act, 29 Eliz. c. 6, intituled, 'An Act for the more speedy and due Execution of certain Branches of the Statute made in the Twenty-third Year of the Queen's Majesty's Reign, intituled, "An Act to retain the Queen's Majesty's Subjects in their due Obedience,"' as relates to or in any manner affects Roman Catholics:

Also the whole of an Act, 35 Eliz. c. 1, intituled, 'An Act to retain the Queen's Majesty's Subjects in their due Obedience:'

Also the whole of an Act, 35 Eliz. c. 2, intituled, 'An Act for restraining Popish Recusants to some certain Places of Abode:'

Also an Act, 1 Jac. 1. c. 4, intituled, 'An Act for the due Execution of the Statutes against Jesuits, Seminary Priests, Recusants, &c.,' except so much of the same Act as relates to the keeping any school, or to the being a schoolmaster, or to the retaining or maintaining a schoolmaster:

Also so much of that part of an Act, 3 Jac. 1. c. 1, intituled, 'An Act for a public Thanksgiving to Almighty God every Year on the Fifth of November,' whereby it is enacted, "that all and every person and persons inhabiting within this realm of England and the dominions of the same shall always upon that day diligently and faithfully resort to the parish church or chapel accustomed, or to some usual church or chapel where the said morning prayer, preaching, or other service of God shall be used, and then and there to abide orderly and soberly during the time of the said prayers, preaching, or other service of God then to be used and ministered," as relates to or in any manner affects Roman Catholics:

Also so much and such parts of an Act, 3 Jac. 1. c. 4, intituled, 'An Act for the better discovering and repressing of Popish Recusants,' as relate to Popish recusants, to the treasons created by the same Act, and to the compelling any Roman Catholic to resort to the church of the parish where he or she shall most usually abide or be within the year, and to receive the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper:

Also another Act, 3 Jac. 1. c. 5, intituled, 'An Act to prevent and avoid Dangers which grow by Popish Recusants,' except those parts of the same Act whereby it is enacted, "that every person or persons that is or shall be a Popish recusant convict during the time that he shall be or remain a recusant shall from and after the end of the then present session of Parliament be utterly disabled to present to any benefice with cure or without cure, prebend or other ecclesiastical living, or to collate or nominate to any free school, hospital, or donative whatsoever, and from the beginning of the then present session of Parliament shall likewise be disabled to grant any avoidance to any benefice, prebend, or other ecclesiastical living," and which specify the counties, cities, and other places and limits or precincts, within which the chancellor and scholars of the University of Oxford and the chancellor and scholars of the University of Cambridge respectively have the presentation, nomination, collation, and donation of and to every such benefice, prebend, living, school, hospital, and donative as shall happen to be void during such time as a patron thereof shall be and remain a recusant convict as aforesaid; and whereby it is provided, "that neither of the said chancellors and scholars of either of the said universities shall present or nominate, to any benefice with cure, prebend, or other ecclesiastical living, any such person as shall then have any other benefice with cure of souls, and if any such presentation or nomination shall be had or made of any such person so beneficed, the said presentation or nomination shall be void, anything in this Act to the contrary notwithstanding:"

Also so much of an Act, 7 Jac. 1. c. 6, intituled, 'An Act for administering the Oath of Allegiance and Reformation of married Women Recusants,' as relates to recusants or to the penalties of recusancy:

Also the whole of an Act, 3 Car. 1. c. 2, intituled, 'An Act to restrain the passing or sending of any to be Popishly bred beyond the Seas:'

Also so much and such parts of two Acts respectively, the one 3 Car. 1. c. 4, intituled, 'An Act for Continuance and Repeal of divers Statutes,' and the other 16 Car. 1. c. 4, intituled, 'An Act for the further Relief of His Majesty's Army and the Northern Parts of the Kingdom,' relating to the continuance of an Act, 35 Eliz. c. 1, intituled, 'An Act to retain the Queen's Majesty's Subjects in their due Obedience,' as in any manner affect Roman Catholics:

Also so much of an Act, 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 4, intituled, 'An Act for the Uniformity of public Prayers and Administration of Sacraments and other Rites and Ceremonies; and for establishing the form of making, ordaining, and consecrating Bishops, Priests, and Deacons in the Church of England,' as confirms any Act or part of any Act hereby repealed:

Also so much of an Act, 25 Car. 2. c. 2, intituled, 'An Act for preventing dangers which may happen from Popish Recusants,' whereby it is enacted, "that if any person or persons, not bred up by his or their parent or parents from their infancy in the Popish religion, and professing themselves to be Popish recusants, shall breed up, instruct, or educate his or their child or children, or suffer them to be instructed or educated, in the Popish religion, every such person being thereof convicted shall be from thenceforth disabled of bearing any office or place of trust or profit in Church or State;" and whereby it is enacted, "that all such children as shall be so brought up, instructed, or educated are and shall be thereby disabled of bearing any such office or place of trust or profit until he and they shall be perfectly reconciled and converted to the Church of England, and shall take the oaths of supremacy and allegiance aforesaid before the Justices of the Peace in the open Quarter Sessions of the county or place where they shall inhabit, and thereupon receive the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper after the usage of the Church of England, and obtain a certificate thereof under the hands of two or more of the said Justices of the Peace:"—

Also so much of an Act, 1 W. & M. c. 8, intituled, 'An Act for the abrogating of the Oaths of Supremacy and Allegiance,' and appointing other oaths, as renders liable any person or persons who shall refuse to take the oaths therein mentioned, or either of them, to imprisonment, fine, and disability to hold any office, civil or military, within this kingdom;

And also so much of the said last-mentioned Act as renders liable any person or persons who shall refuse to make and subscribe the declaration therein mentioned to the pains, penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities of and to be taken and deemed a Popish recusant convict:

Also the whole of an Act, 1 W. & M. c. 9, intituled, 'An Act for the removing Papists and reputed Papists from the Cities of London and Westminster, and Ten Miles Distance from the same:'

Also the whole of another Act, 1 W. & M. c. 15, intituled, 'An Act for the better securing the Government by disarming Papists and reputed Papists;'

Also the whole of another Act, 1 W. & M. c. 17, intituled, 'An Act for rectifying a mistake in a certain Act of this present Parliament, for removing Papists from the Cities of London and Westminster.'

II. That this Act or any part thereof may be repealed, altered, or varied at any time within this session of Parliament.

By this Act,

After reciting that it is expedient to amend the law for the trial of controverted elections of members to serve in Parliament:—

It is Enacted,

I. That an Act, 9 Geo. 4. c. 22, intituled, 'An Act to consolidate and amend the Laws relating to the Trial of controverted Elections or Returns of Members to serve in Parliament,' and also so much of an Act, 42 Geo. 3. c. 106, intituled, 'An Act for regulating the Trial of controverted Elections or Returns of Members to serve in the United Parliament for Ireland,' and also so much of an Act, 47 Geo. 3. c. 14, intituled, 'An Act to amend several Acts for regulating the Trial of controverted Elections or Returns of Members to serve in Parliament, so far as the same relate to Ireland,' as requires the parties appearing before any select committee to interchange before the said committee lists of the votes and names of voters to which either of the parties purposes and intends to object, and statements in writing respecting the matters which either of the said parties mean to insist upon, contend for, or to object to, or as provides that no witness shall be called or examined to anything not specified in such lists or statements, shall be repealed, except as to anything done under either of the said Acts; but this enactment shall not revive any Act, or part of any Act, repealed by the firstly-recited Act.

II. That every petition which shall be presented to the House of Commons within such time as shall be from time to time limited by the House, complaining of an undue election or return of a member or members to serve in Parliament, or complaining that no return has been made to any writ issued for the election of any member or members to serve in Parliament on or before the day on which such writ is made returnable, or if such writ be issued during any session or prorogation of Parliament, that no return has been made to the same within fifty-two days after the day on which such writ bears date, or that any return is not according to the requisition of the writ, or complaining of the special matters contained in any such return, shall be deemed an election petition; but no election petition shall be received by the House unless at the time it is presented it shall be subscribed by some person claiming therein to have had a right to vote at the election to which the same shall relate, or to have had a right to be returned or elected thereat, or alleging himself to have been a candidate at the election.

III. That before any election petition shall be presented to the House the person or persons subscribing the same, or some one or more of them, shall personally enter into a recognizance to our Sovereign Lady the Queen, according to the form given in the Schedule (A.) to this Act annexed, for the sum of 1,000*l.*, with one, two, three, or four sufficient sureties, either in the same recognizance or in separate recognizances for the additional sum of 1,000*l.*, in a sum or sums of not less than 250*l.* each, for the payment of all costs and expenses which any committee of the House selected to try such petition in the manner hereinafter provided shall adjudge to be payable by the person or persons subscribing the said petition, and also for the payment of all costs and expenses which shall become due from the person or persons subscribing such petition to any witnesses summoned in his or their behalf, or to any party who shall appear in opposition to such petition, in case such petition shall be withdrawn, as hereinafter allowed.

IV. That every person who shall enter into any such recognizance as surety for any other person shall testify upon oath in writing, to be sworn at the time of entering into the said recognizance, and before the same person by whom his recognizance shall be taken, that he is seised or possessed of real or personal estate (or both), above what will satisfy his debt, of the clear value of the sum for which he shall be bound by his said recognizance, and every such affidavit shall be annexed to the recognizance; and that in every such recognizance shall be mentioned the name and usual place of residence of the persons proposed to become sureties as aforesaid, with such other description of the proposed sureties as may be sufficient to identify them easily.

V. That the Speaker of the House of Commons shall appoint a fit person to be examiner of recognizances; and every person so appointed shall hold his office during the pleasure of the Speaker, and shall execute the duties of his office conformably to such directions as he may from time to time receive from the Speaker.

VI. That in case of the illness, temporary disability, or unavoidable absence of the examiner of recognizances, the Speaker may appoint a fit person to perform the duties of examiner of recognizances during such illness, disability, or absence; and throughout this Act the expression "Examiner of Recognizances" shall be deemed to include and apply to the person so appointed and for the time being performing such duties.

VII. That every recognizance hereinbefore required shall be entered into, and every affidavit hereinbefore required shall be sworn, before the examiner of recognizances or one of Her Majesty's Justices of the Peace; and the said examiner, and also every Justice of the Peace, is hereby empowered to take the same; and every such recognizance and affidavit which shall be taken before a Justice, being duly certified under the hand of the Justice before whom they shall have been taken, shall be delivered to the examiner of recognizances.

VIII. Provided and enacted, That it shall be lawful for any person by whom the said petition shall be signed, instead of entering into a recognizance for the full amount of the sums hereinbefore required, to pay into the Bank of England, on the account of the examiner of recognizances as trustee for the like purposes for which the recognizance is hereinbefore required, any amount of money which he shall think fit, in a sum or sums not less than 250*l.* each; and in such case the person by whom the petition shall be signed shall still be required to enter into his personal recognizance for the sum of 1,000*l.*, but shall be required to find a surety or sureties as aforesaid for so much only of the additional sum of 1,000*l.* as the sum paid into the Bank shall fall short of the sum of 1,000*l.*; and no money shall be deemed for the purposes of this Act to be paid into the Bank of England until a bank receipt for the same shall be procured and delivered to the examiner of recognizances.

IX. That in every case in which payment of any money as aforesaid shall have been made into the Bank of England the examiner of recognizances shall be bound, in the first place, and in such order of payment as he in his discretion shall think 64, to satisfy out of the said money all the costs and expenses for securing payment of which such investment was made, or so much thereof as can be thereby satisfied, and thereafter to transfer the residue (if any), wholly discharged of the said trust, to the account of the party by whom the same shall have been paid in.

x. That no election petition shall be received unless, at the time it is presented to the House, it shall be indorsed by a certificate under the hand of the examiner of recognizances, that the recognizance hereinbefore required has been entered into and received by him, with the affidavits thereunto annexed; and, if the recognizance shall not have been taken for the whole amount, that the necessary amount of money has been paid into the Bank of England as hereinbefore required.

xi. That on or before the day when any such petition shall be presented to the House the names and usual places of residence of the sureties, when there are sureties, shall be entered in a book to be kept by the examiner of recognizances in his office; and the said book, and also the recognizances and affidavits and bank receipt for any money paid into the Bank of England, if any, shall be open to the inspection of all parties concerned.

xii. That it shall be lawful for any sitting member petitioned against, or for any electors petitioning and admitted parties to defend the election or return, to object to the sureties, or any of them, who shall have entered into such recognizance, on the ground of insufficiency, or that a surety is dead, or that he cannot be found or ascertained from the want of a sufficient description in the recognizance, or that a person named in the recognizance has not acknowledged the same; provided that the ground of objection shall be stated in writing under the hand of the objecting party, or his or their agent, and shall be delivered to the examiner of recognizances within ten days, or not later than twelve of the clock at noon of the eleventh day, after the presentation of the petition, if the surety objected to reside in England, or within fourteen days, or not later than twelve of the clock at noon of the fifteenth day, after the presentation of the petition, if the surety objected to reside in Scotland or Ireland: Provided also, that if either such eleventh or such fifteenth day shall happen to be a Sunday, Good Friday, or Christmas-day, it shall be sufficient if such notice of objection be delivered to the examiner of recognizances not later than twelve of the clock at noon of the following day.

xiii. That as soon as any such statement of objection shall be received by the examiner of recognizances he shall put up an acknowledgment thereof in some conspicuous part of his office, and shall appoint a day for hearing such objections not less than three and not more than five days from the day on which he shall have received such statement; and the petitioner or petitioners, and his or their agent, shall be allowed to examine and take copies of every such objection.

xiv. That at the time appointed the examiner of recognizances shall inquire into the alleged insufficiency of the surety or sureties objected to on the grounds stated in the notice of objection, but not on any other ground; and for the purpose of such inquiry the examiner of recognizances is hereby authorized to examine upon oath any persons who may be tendered by either party for examination by him, and also to receive in evidence any affidavit relating to the matter in dispute before him which shall be sworn before him, or before any Master of the High Court of Chancery, or Justice of the Peace, each of whom is hereby authorized to take and certify such affidavit; and the examiner of recognizances shall have power, if he shall think fit, to adjourn the said inquiry from time to time until he shall decide on the validity of such objection, and, if he shall think fit, to award costs to be paid by either party to the other, which costs shall be taxed and recovered as hereinafter provided for the costs and expenses of prosecuting or opposing election petitions; and the decision of the examiner of recognizances shall be final and conclusive against all parties.

xv. That if any surety shall die, and his death shall be stated as a ground of objection before the end of the time allowed for objecting to the sureties, it shall be lawful for the petitioner to pay into the Bank of England, on the account of the examiner of recognizances, the sum for which the deceased surety was bound; and upon the delivery of a bank receipt for such sum to the examiner of recognizances, within three days after the day on which the statement of such objection shall have been delivered to the examiner of recognizances, the sureties shall be deemed unobjectionable if no ground of objection shall be stated to any other of the sureties within the time before mentioned for stating objections to sureties.

xvi. That in case the examiner of recognizances shall have received any statement of objection to the sureties or any of them to any such election petition, and shall have decided that such sureties or any of them are objectionable, he shall forthwith report to the Speaker that such sureties are objectionable; but if he shall have decided that such sureties are unobjectionable, or in case he shall not have received any such statement of objection, then as soon as the time hereinbefore allowed for stating any such objection shall have elapsed after the presentation of the petition (or as soon thereafter as he shall have decided upon the statement of objection) the examiner of recognizances shall report to the Speaker that the sureties to such petition are unobjectionable; and he shall make out a list of all election petitions on which he shall have reported to the Speaker that the sureties are unobjectionable, in which list the petitions shall be arranged in the order in which they shall be so reported upon; and a copy of such list shall be kept in the office of the examiner of recognizances, and shall be open to the inspection of all parties concerned.

xvii. That it shall be competent to the petitioner or petitioners at any time after the presentation of the petition to withdraw the same, upon giving notice in writing under his hand or their hands, or under the hand of his or their agent, to the Speaker, and also to the sitting member or his agent, and also to any party who may have been admitted to oppose the prayer of such petition, that it is not intended to proceed with the petition; and in such case the petitioner or petitioners shall be liable to the payment of such costs and expenses as may have been incurred by the sitting member, and also by any party who may have been admitted to oppose the prayer of such petition, to be taxed as hereinafter provided.

xviii. That if at any time before the appointment of a select committee to try any such petition as hereinafter provided the Speaker of the House of Commons shall be informed, by a certificate in writing subscribed by two of the members of the said House, of the death of any sitting member whose election or return is complained of in such petition, or of the death of any member returned upon a double return, whose election or return is complained of in such petition, or that a writ of summons has been issued under the Great Seal of Great Britain to summon any such member to Parliament as a peer of Great Britain, or if the House of Commons shall have resolved that the seat of any such member is by law become vacant, or if the House of Commons shall be informed, by a declaration in writing subscribed by any such member, and delivered to the Speaker within fourteen days after the day on which any such petition shall have been presented, that it is not the intention of such member to defend his election or return, in every such case notice thereof shall immediately be sent by the Speaker to the General Committee of Elections, and to the members of the chairmen's panel hereinafter mentioned, and also to the sheriff or other returning officer for the county, city, borough, district, or burghs, port or place, to which such petition shall relate; and such sheriff or other returning officer shall cause a true copy of such notice to be affixed on or near the door of the county hall or town hall, or the parish church nearest to the place where such election has usually been held; and such notice shall also be inserted, by order of the Speaker, in one of the next two London Gazettes, and shall be communicated by him to the House.

XIX. That at any time within fourteen days after the day on which any election petition shall have been presented, or within twenty-one days after the day on which any notice shall have been inserted in the Gazette, to the effect that the seat is vacant, or that the member returned will not defend his election or return, or if either of the said periods shall expire during a prorogation of Parliament, or during an adjournment of the House of Commons for the Easter or Christmas holidays, then on or before the second day on which the House shall meet after such prorogation or adjournment it shall be lawful for any person or persons claiming to have had a right to vote at the election to which the petition shall relate to petition the House of Commons, praying to be admitted as a party or parties to defend such return, or to oppose the prayer of such election petition; and such person or persons shall thereupon be admitted as a party or parties, together with the sitting member, if he be then a party against such petition, or in the room of such member, if he be not then a party against the petition, and shall be considered as such to all intents and purposes whatever; and every such petition shall be referred by the House to the General Committee of Elections hereinafter mentioned.

XX. That whenever the member whose election or return is so complained of in such petition shall have given notice as aforesaid of his intention not to defend the same, he shall not be afterwards allowed to appear or act as a party against such petition in any proceedings thereupon, and he shall also be restrained from sitting in the House of Commons, or voting on any question, until such petition shall have been decided upon.

XXI. That in the first session of every Parliament, on the day after the last day allowed by any order or resolution of the House of Commons then in force for questioning the returns of members to serve in Parliament, and in every subsequent session, as soon as conveniently may be after the commencement of the session, the Speaker of the House of Commons shall by warrant under his hand, appoint six members of the House, who shall be willing to serve, and against whose return no petition shall be then depending, and none of whom shall be a petitioner complaining of any election or return, to be members of a committee, which shall be called "The General Committee of Elections;" and every such warrant shall be laid on the table of the House, and, if not disapproved by the House in the course of the three next days on which the House shall meet for the despatch of business, shall take effect as an appointment for such General Committee.

XXII. That in case the House shall disapprove any such warrant the Speaker shall, on or before the third day on which the House shall meet after such disapproval, lay upon the table of the House a new warrant for the appointment of six members, qualified as aforesaid, and so from time to time until six members shall have been appointed by a warrant which shall not be disapproved by the House as aforesaid.

XXIII. That the disapproval of the warrant may be either general in respect of the constitution of the whole committee, or special in respect of any member or members named in the warrant.

XXIV. That the Speaker may, if he shall think fit, but shall not be bound to name in the second or any subsequent warrant all or any of the members named in any former warrant, whose appointment shall not have been specially disapproved by the House as aforesaid.

XXV. That after the appointment of the General Committee every member appointed shall continue to be a member of the committee until the end of that session of Parliament, or until he shall cease to be a member of the House of Commons, or until he shall resign his appointment, or until the General Committee shall report that he is disabled by continued illness from attending the committee, or until the committee shall be dissolved as hereinafter provided.

XXVI. That in every case of vacancy in the General Committee of Elections, the Speaker, on the first day on which the House shall meet after such vacancy shall be known by him, shall make known the vacancy to the House, and thereupon all proceedings of the General Committee shall be suspended until the vacancy shall be supplied as hereinafter provided.

XXVII. That in case the General Committee of Elections shall at any time report to the House of Commons that, by reason of the continued absence of more than two of its members, or by reason of irreconcilable disagreement of opinion, the said committee is unable to proceed in the discharge of its duties, or in case the House of Commons shall resolve that the General Committee of Elections be dissolved, the General Committee shall be thereby forthwith dissolved.

XXVIII. That every appointment to supply a vacancy in the General Committee, and every re-appointment of the General Committee after the dissolution thereof, shall be made by the Speaker, by warrant under his hand, and laid upon the table of the House, on or before the third day on which the House shall meet after the dissolution of the committee, or notification of the vacancy (as the case may be); and the warrant shall be subject to the disapproval of the House, in the like manner as is hereinbefore provided in the case of the first warrant for the appointment of the General Committee; and upon any re-appointment of the General Committee, the Speaker may re-appoint as many members of the former committee as he shall think fit, who shall then be willing and not disqualified to serve on it, but shall not be bound to re-appoint any of them.

XXIX. That the Speaker shall appoint the time and place of the first meeting of the General Committee of Elections, and the committee shall meet at the time and place so appointed; but no member appointed or re-appointed to be of the General Committee of Elections shall act upon such committee until he shall have been sworn at the table of the House, by the clerk.

truly and faithfully to perform the duties belonging to a member of the said committee, without fear or favour, to the best of his judgment and ability.

XXX. That no business shall be transacted by or before the General Committee of Elections unless at the least four members of the General Committee shall be then present together; and no appointment of a select committee by the General Committee, to be made as hereinafter provided, shall be of force unless at the least four members then present of the said General Committee shall agree in the appointment.

XXXI. That, subject to the provisions of this Act, the said committee shall make regulations for the order and manner of conducting business to be transacted by and before them.

XXXII. That the General Committee shall be attended by one of the committee clerks of the House, who shall be selected by the clerk of the House of Commons for the time being, and shall make a minute of all the proceedings of the committee, in such form and manner as shall be from time to time directed by the committee; and a copy of the minutes so kept shall be laid from time to time before the House of Commons.

XXXIII. That if, at the time of the dissolution or suspension of all the proceedings of the General Committee of Elections, there shall be any business appointed to be transacted by or before such General Committee on any certain day, it shall be lawful for the Speaker to adjourn the transaction of such business to such other day as to the Speaker shall seem convenient, and so as often as the case may happen.

XXXIV. That every member who shall be more than sixty years old shall be wholly excused from serving on election committees; provided that on or before the reading over of the names of such excused members as hereinafter mentioned, or upon his afterwards becoming entitled to make such claim, he shall claim to be excused by declaring in his place, or in writing under his hand, to be delivered to the clerk at the table, that he is more than sixty years old; but no member shall be so excused who shall not claim to be excused before he shall be chosen to serve as hereinafter provided.

XXXV. That in the first session of every Parliament on the next meeting of the House after the last day allowed for questioning returns of members to serve in Parliament, and in every subsequent session on the next meeting of the House after the Speaker shall have laid on the table of the House his warrant for the appointment of the General Committee of Elections, the clerk of the House of Commons shall read over the names of all the members who shall so have claimed to be excused.

XXXVI. That every member who shall have leave of absence from the House shall be excused from serving on election committees during such leave; and if any member in his place shall offer any other excuse, either at the reading over the said names or at any other time, the substance of the allegations shall be taken down by the clerk, in order that the same may be afterwards entered on the journals, and the opinion of the House shall then be taken thereon; and if the House shall resolve that the said member ought to be excused, he shall be excused from serving on election committees for such time as to the House shall seem fit, but no member shall be so excused who shall not claim to be excused before he shall be chosen to serve as hereinafter provided; and every member who shall have served on one select committee for trying an election petition, and who, within seven days after such committee shall have made its final report to the House, shall notify to the clerk of the General Committee his claim to be excused from so serving again, shall be excused during the remainder of the session, unless the House shall at any time resolve, upon the report of the General Committee, that the number of members who have not so served is insufficient; but no member shall be deemed to have served on an election committee who, on account of inability or accident, shall have been excused from attending the same throughout.

XXXVII. That every member whose return shall not have been brought in for a time exceeding that allowed for questioning the returns of members, or who shall be a petitioner complaining of an undue election or return, or against whose return a petition shall be then depending, shall be disqualified to serve on election committees during the continuance of such ground of disqualification; and every member of any select committee appointed to try an election petition shall be disqualified to serve again on an election committee during seven days after the final report of the committee on which he so served.

XXXVIII. That the clerk of the House of Commons shall make out an alphabetical list of all the members, omitting the names of such members as shall have claimed to be wholly excused from serving on election committees as aforesaid; and the clerk shall also distinguish in such list the name of every member who shall be for a time excused or disqualified, and shall also note in the list every cause of such temporary excuse or disqualification, and the duration thereof; and such list shall be printed and distributed with the votes of the House, and the names of all the members so omitted shall be also printed and distributed with the votes.

XXXIX. That during three days next after the day of the distribution of such corrected list further corrections may be made in such list by leave of the Speaker, if it shall appear that any name has been improperly left in or struck out of such list, or that there is any other error in such list.

XL. That the list so finally corrected shall be referred to the General Committee of Elections, and the General Committee shall thereupon select, in their discretion, six, eight, ten, or twelve members, whom they shall think duly qualified, to serve as chairmen of election committees; and the members so selected shall be formed into a separate panel, to be called the chairmen's panel, which shall be reported to the House; and while the name of any member shall be upon the chairmen's panel he shall not be liable or qualified to serve on an election committee, otherwise than as chairman; and every member who shall have been placed on the chairmen's panel shall be bound to continue upon it until the end of the session, or until he shall sooner cease to be a member of the House, or until, by leave of the House, he shall be discharged from continuing upon the chairmen's panel: Provided always, that every member of the chairmen's panel, who shall have served on one or more election committees, and who shall notify to the clerk of the General Committee of Elections his claim to be discharged from continuing upon the chairmen's panel, shall be so discharged accordingly; and every such member shall be excused from serving upon any election committee, either as chairman or otherwise, during the remainder of the session; but no member of the chairmen's panel shall be deemed to have served on an election committee who, on account of inability or accident, shall have been excused from attending the same throughout.

XLII. That after the chairmen's panel shall have been so as aforesaid selected the General Committee shall divide the members then remaining on such list into five panels, in such manner as to them shall seem most convenient, but so nevertheless that each panel may contain as nearly as may be the same number of members, and shall report to the House the division so made by them; and the clerk shall decide by lot at the table the order of the panels as settled by the General Committee, and shall distinguish each of them by a number denoting the order in which they shall have been drawn; and the panels shall then be returned to the General Committee of Elections, and shall be the panels from which all members shall be chosen to serve on election committees.

XLIII. That the General Committee of Elections shall correct the said panels from time to time by striking out of them the name of every member who shall cease to be a member of the House, or who from time to time shall become entitled and shall claim as aforesaid to be wholly excused from serving on election committees, and by inserting in one of the panels to be chosen by the General Committee, at their discretion, the name of every new member of the House who shall not be entitled and claim as aforesaid to be wholly excused, and shall also from time to time distinguish, in the manner aforesaid, in the said panels the names of those members who shall be for a time excused or disqualified for any of the reasons aforesaid; and the General Committee shall, as often as they shall think fit, report to the House the panels as they shall then stand corrected; and as often as the General Committee of Elections shall report the said panels to the House they shall be printed and distributed with the votes of the House.

XLIV. That when leave of absence for a limited time shall have been granted by the House to any member, it shall be lawful for the General Committee of Elections to transfer the name of such member from the panel in which it shall have been placed to some other panel subsequent in rotation, if they shall think fit so to do, having regard to the length of time for which such leave of absence shall have been granted, and to the number of select committees then about to be appointed.

XLV. That whenever any member of the chairmen's panel shall cease to be a member of the House, or shall be, by leave of the House, discharged from continuing upon the chairmen's panel, or shall be so discharged by reason of service, under the provisions hereinbefore contained, the General Committee shall forthwith select another member to be placed upon the chairmen's panel in his room; and in case it shall at any time appear to the General Committee that the chairmen's panel is too small, it shall be lawful for the General Committee to select two, four, or six additional members to place upon it, so nevertheless that the chairmen's panel shall not at any time consist of more than eighteen members, without the leave of the House first obtained.

XLVI. That it shall be lawful for the members who are upon the chairmen's panel from time to time to make such regulations as they may find convenient for securing the appointment or selection of chairmen of election committees, and for distributing the duties of chairman among all of them.

XLVII. That all election petitions which shall be received by the House shall be referred by the House to the General Committee of Elections, for the purpose of choosing select committees, as hereinafter provided, to try such petitions; and the Speaker shall communicate to the House and the General Committee every report by the examiner of recognizances to him concerning the sureties to any election petition; and in every case in which any election petition shall be withdrawn or the examiner of recognizances shall have reported to the Speaker that the sureties are objectionable, the order for referring such petition to the General Committee of Elections shall be discharged, and no further proceeding shall be had upon such petition; and the general committee shall make out a list of all election petitions in which the examiner of recognizances shall have reported to the Speaker that the sureties are unobjectionable, and in which the proceedings are not suspended, in which list the petitions shall be arranged in the order in which they shall have been so reported upon; and in every case in which the proceedings in any petition inserted in such list shall be afterwards suspended the petition shall be struck out of the list, and shall be again inserted at the bottom of the list at the end of such suspension of proceedings.

XLVIII. That when notice of the death or vacancy of the seat of any member petitioned against, or that it is not the intention of such member to defend his election or return, shall be given to the General Committee of Elections by the Speaker as hereinbefore provided, the General Committee shall suspend their proceedings in the matter of the petition referred to in such notice until twenty-one days after the day on which notice of such death or vacancy, or intention not to defend, shall have been inserted in the Gazette under the provision hereinbefore contained, unless the petition of some person or persons claiming to be admitted as a party or parties in the room of such member shall be sooner referred to them.

XLIX. That when more than one election petition relating to the same election or return shall be referred to the General Committee of Elections they shall suspend their proceedings in the matter of all such petitions until the report of the examiner of recognizances upon each of such petitions, or such of them as shall not have been withdrawn, shall be received by them; and upon receipt of the last of such reports they shall place such petitions at the bottom of the then list of election petitions, bracketed together, and such petitions shall afterwards be dealt with as one petition.

L. That the General Committee of Elections shall choose the committees to try the election petitions standing in the said list of petitions in the order in which such petitions stand in the said list, and they shall from time to time determine how many committees shall be chosen in each week for trying such petitions, and the day or days on which they will meet for choosing such committees, having regard to the number of select committees which may then be sitting for the trial of election petitions, and to the whole number of such committees then to be appointed; and they shall report to the House from time to time the days appointed by them for choosing such committees.

L. That notice of the time and place at which the committee will be chosen to try any election petition shall be published with the votes, not less than fourteen days before the day on which such committee shall be appointed to be chosen; and in case the conduct of the returning officer is complained of, such notice shall be sent to him through the post, not less than fourteen days before the day on which such committee shall be appointed to be chosen; and every such notice shall direct all parties interested to attend the General Committee of Elections, by themselves, their counsel or agents, at the time and place appointed for choosing the select committee; and if (after any such notice shall have been published with the votes, or sent to the returning officer as aforesaid,) the proceedings in the matter of such petition shall become suspended, notice of such suspension shall be immediately published with the votes; and in case the conduct of the returning officer is complained of such notice shall be sent to him through the post.

LII. Provided and enacted, That in case notice of the death or vacancy of the seat of any member petitioned against or that it is not the intention of such member to defend his election or return, shall have been inserted in the Gazette, by order of the Speaker as hereinbefore provided, and no party shall have been admitted to defend such election or return, then, if the conduct of the returning officer is not complained of in such petition, it shall not be necessary to insert such petition at the bottom of the then list of petitions, but the General Committee of Elections shall meet for choosing the select committee to try such petition as soon as conveniently may be after the expiration of the time allowed for parties to come in to defend such election or return, as hereinbefore provided; and not less than one day's notice of the time and place appointed for choosing such committee shall be given in the votes.

LIII. That it shall be lawful for the General Committee of Elections to change the day and hour appointed by them for choosing a select committee to try any election petition, and to appoint some subsequent day and hour for the same, if it shall in their judgment be expedient so to do, giving notice in the votes of the day and hour so subsequently appointed; and in every case in which any such change shall be made by them they shall forthwith report the same to the House, with their reasons for making such change.

LIII. That notice shall be published with the votes of the petitions appointed for each week, and of the panel from which committees will be chosen to try such petitions.

LIV. That in all cases of controverted elections or returns of members to serve in Parliament all the parties complaining of or defending such elections or returns shall, by themselves or their agents, deliver in to the clerk of the General Committee lists of the voters intended to be objected to, giving in the said lists the several heads of objections, and distinguishing the same against the names of the voters excepted to, not later than six of the clock in the afternoon on the sixth day next before the day appointed for choosing the committee to try the petition complaining of such election or return; and the said clerk shall keep the lists so delivered to him in his office, open to the inspection of all parties concerned.

LV. That the General Committee shall meet at the time appointed for choosing the committee to try any election petition, and shall choose from the panel then standing next in order of service, exclusive of the chairmen's panel, four members, not being then excused or disqualified for any of the causes aforesaid, and who shall not be specially disqualified for being appointed on the committee to try such petition for any of the following causes; (that is to say,) by reason of having voted at the election, or by reason of being the party on whose behalf the seat is claimed, or related to the sitting member or party on whose behalf the seat is claimed, by kindred or affinity in the first or second degree according to the canon law; and each panel shall serve for a week, beginning with the panel first drawn and continuing by rotation in the order in which they were drawn, and not reckoning those weeks in which no select committee shall be appointed to be chosen.

LVI. That in case at the least four members then present of the General Committee of Elections shall not agree in choosing a committee to try any petition appointed for that day, the General Committee shall adjourn the choosing of that committee and of the remaining committees appointed to be chosen on that day to the following day, and the parties shall be directed to attend on the following day, or if such following day shall happen during an adjournment of the House then on the day to which the House shall stand adjourned, and so from day to day until all such committees shall be chosen, or until the General Committee of Elections shall be dissolved, as hereinbefore provided; and the General Committee shall not in any case proceed to choose a committee to try an election petition until they shall have chosen a committee to try every other election petition standing higher in the list aforesaid, the order for referring which shall not be then discharged, except in the case where the day originally appointed for choosing a committee shall have been changed under the provision hereinbefore contained.

LVII. That on the day appointed by the General Committee to choose a committee to try an election petition the members who are upon the chairmen's panel shall select one of such members to act as the chairman of such election committee, and when they shall have been informed by the General Committee that four members of such election committee have been chosen, they shall communicate the name of the member so selected by them to the General Committee, but no member shall be so selected who would be disqualified from serving on such committee if not upon the chairmen's panel: Provided always, that if, with reference to any petition for trying which they are about to appoint a chairman, the members of the chairmen's panel shall receive notice from the Speaker, under the provision hereinbefore contained, of the death or vacancy of the seat of the sitting member petitioned against in such petition, or that it is not his intention to defend his seat, the members of the chairmen's panel shall suspend their proceedings with regard to the appointment of a chairman to try such petition until the day appointed by the General Committee of Elections for selecting a committee to try such petition.

LVIII. That as soon as the General Committee of Elections shall have chosen four members of a committee to try any such petition, and shall have received from the members of the chairmen's panel the name of a chairman to serve on such committee, the parties in attendance shall be called in, and the names of the members so chosen and of the chairman shall be read over to them.

LIX. That after hearing the said names the parties present shall be directed to withdraw, and the General Committee may proceed to choose another committee to try the next petition appointed for that day, and so on until all the committees appointed to be chosen on that day shall be chosen, or until the choosing of any committee shall be adjourned as aforesaid; and after any such adjournment the General Committee shall not transact any more business on that day, except with regard to those petitions for trying which committees shall have been previously chosen.

LX. That within one half hour at furthest from the time when the parties to any election petition shall have withdrawn, or if the parties to any other election petition shall then be before the General Committee of Elections, then after such other parties shall have withdrawn, the parties in attendance shall be again called before the General Committee, in the same order in which they were directed to withdraw; and the petitioners and sitting member or members, or such party as may have been admitted as aforesaid to defend the return or right of election, their counsel or agents, beginning on the part of the petitioners, may object to all or any of the members chosen, or to such chairman, as being then disqualified or excused, for any of the reasons aforesaid, from serving on the committee for the trial of that election petition, but not for any other reason.

LXI. That if at the least four members then present of the General Committee shall be satisfied that any member so objected to is then disqualified or excused for any of the reasons aforesaid, the parties present shall be again directed to withdraw, and the General Committee shall proceed to choose another committee from the same panel to try that petition, or if the member to whom any such objection shall be substantiated be the chairman, they shall send back his name to the members on the chairman's panel, and the members on the chairman's panel shall proceed to choose another chairman to try that petition, and shall communicate his name to the General Committee, and so as often as the case may happen.

LXII. That in the second or any following committee the General Committee may, if they shall think fit, include all or any of the members previously chosen by them to whom no objection shall have been substantiated; and no party shall be allowed to object to any member who may be included in the second or any following committee who was not objected to when included in the committee first chosen to try that petition.

LXIII. That when four members and a chairman shall have been chosen, to none of whom any objection shall have been substantiated, the clerk of the General Committee of Elections shall give notice thereof in writing to each of the members as chosen by the General Committee; and with every such notice shall be sent a notice of the general and special grounds of disqualification and excuse from serving which are hereinbefore mentioned, and of the time and place when and where the General Committee will meet on the following day; and notice of the time and place of such meeting shall be published with the votes.

LXIV. That the General Committee shall meet on the following day at the time and place mentioned in such notice as last aforesaid; and if any such member shall then and there prove, to the satisfaction of at least four members then present of the General Committee, that for any of the reasons aforesaid he is disqualified or excused from serving on the committee for which he shall have been so chosen, or if any such member shall prove, to the satisfaction of at least four members then present of the General Committee, that there are any circumstances in his case which render him ineligible to serve on such select committee, such circumstances having regard not to his own convenience but solely to the impartial character of the tribunal, the General Committee shall proceed to choose a new committee to try that petition, in like manner as if that member had been objected to by any party to the petition; and if within the space of one quarter of an hour after the time mentioned in the notice no member shall so appear, or if any member so appearing shall not prove his disqualification or excuse, to the satisfaction of at least four members then present of the General Committee, the select committee shall be taken to be appointed.

LXV. That at the meeting of the House of Commons for the despatch of business next after any such select committee shall be appointed, the members chosen, including the chairman, shall attend in their places, and the General Committee of Elections shall report to the House the names of the select committee appointed, and shall annex to such report all petitions referred to them by the House which shall relate to the return or election of which such select committee is appointed to try the merits, and all lists of voters which shall have been delivered to them by either party; and the members chosen to be of the said select committee shall not depart the House till the time for the meeting of such select committee shall be fixed.

LXVI. That the five members appointed as hereinbefore is mentioned shall, before departing the House, be sworn at the table, by the clerk, well and truly to try the matter of the petitions referred to them, and a true judgment to give according to the evidence, and shall be taken to be a select committee legally appointed to try and determine the merits of the return or election so referred by the House to them; and the member so appointed from the chairman's panel shall be the chairman of such committee.

LXVII. That if any member of the said select committee shall not attend in his place within one hour after the meeting of the House on the day appointed for swearing the said committee, or if after attending any member shall depart the House, before the said committee shall be sworn, unless the committee shall be discharged, or the swearing of the said committee shall be adjourned as hereinafter provided, he shall be ordered to be taken into the custody of the serjeant-at-arms attending the House for such neglect of his duty, and shall be otherwise punished or censured, at the discretion of the House, unless it shall appear to the House by facts specially stated, and verified upon oath, that such member was by a sudden accident or by necessity prevented from attending the House.

LXVIII. That if any such absent member shall not be brought into the House within three hours after the meeting of the House on the day first appointed for swearing the said committee, and if no sufficient cause shall be shewn to the House before its rising whereon the House shall dispense with the attendance of such absent member, the swearing of the committee shall be adjourned to the next meeting of the House; and all the members of the said committee shall be bound to attend in their places for the purpose of being sworn at the next meeting of the House, in like manner as on the day first appointed for that purpose.

LXIX. That if on the day to which the swearing of the said committee shall be so adjourned all the members of the committee shall not attend and be sworn, within one hour after the meeting of the House, or if on the day first appointed for swearing the said committee sufficient cause shall be shewn to the House before its rising why the attendance of any member of the committee should be dispensed with, the said committee shall be taken to be discharged, and the General Committee shall meet on the following day, or if such following day shall happen during an adjournment of the House, then on the day to which the House shall stand adjourned, and shall proceed to choose a new committee from the panel on service for the time being in the manner hereinbefore provided, and notice of such meeting shall be published with the votes.

LXX. That the House shall refer the petitions and lists entered to the report of the General Committee of Elections to the select committee so appointed and sworn, and shall order the said select committee to meet at a certain time, to be fixed by the House, which shall be within twenty-four hours of their being sworn at the table of the House, unless a Sunday, Christmas Day, or Good Friday shall intervene; and the place of their meeting shall be some convenient room or place adjacent to the House of Commons properly prepared for that purpose.

LXXI. That every such select committee shall sit from day to day, Sunday, Christmas Day, and Good Friday only excepted, and shall never adjourn for a longer time than twenty-four hours, unless a Sunday, Christmas Day, or Good Friday intervene, and in such case, not for more than twenty-four hours, exclusive of such Sunday, Christmas Day, or Good Friday, without leave first obtained from the House, upon motion, and special cause assigned for a longer adjournment; and in case the House shall be sitting at the time to which such select committee is adjourned, then the business of the House shall be stayed, and a motion shall be made for a further adjournment for any time to be fixed by the House: Provided always, that if such select committee shall have occasion to apply or report to the House, and the House shall be then adjourned for more than twenty-four hours, such select committee may also adjourn to the day appointed for the meeting of the House.

LXXII. That no member appointed as aforesaid to be of any such select committee shall absent himself from the same without leave obtained from the House, or an excuse allowed by the House at the next sitting thereof, for the cause of sickness, verified upon the oath of his medical attendant, or for other special cause shewn, and verified upon oath; and in every such case the member to whom such leave shall be granted or excuse allowed shall be discharged from attending, and shall not be entitled again to sit or vote on the said committee; and such select committee shall never sit until all the members to whom such leave has not been granted, nor excuse allowed, are met; and in case all such members shall not meet within one hour after the time appointed for the first meeting of such select committee, or within one hour after the time to which such select committee shall have been adjourned, a further adjournment shall be made, and reported by their chairman, with the cause thereof, to the House.

LXXIII. That every member whose absence without leave or excuse shall be so reported shall be directed to attend the House at its next sitting, and shall then be ordered to be taken into the custody of the serjeant-at-arms attending the House for such neglect of his duty, and shall be otherwise punished or censured, at the discretion of the House, unless it shall appear to the House, by facts specially stated, and verified upon oath, that such member was by a sudden accident or by necessity prevented from attending the said select committee.

LXXIV. That the committee shall not be dissolved by reason of the death or necessary absence of one member or two members thereof only, but the remaining members shall thenceforward constitute the committee; and in case there shall ever be occasion for electing a new chairman on the death or necessary absence of the chairman first appointed, the remaining members of the committee shall elect one of themselves to be chairman, and if in that election there shall be an equal number of voices, the member whose name stands foremost in the list of the committee, as reported to the House, shall have a second or casting vote.

LXXV. That in case the number of members able to attend any such select committee shall be, by death or otherwise, unavoidably reduced to less than three, and shall so continue for the space of three sitting days, such select committee shall be dissolved (except in the case hereinafter provided), and another shall be appointed to try such petition in manner aforesaid; and the General Committee and members of the chairmen's panel shall meet for that purpose as soon as conveniently may be after the occasion shall have arisen, at a day and hour to be appointed by the General Committee, and notice of such meeting shall be published with the votes; and all the proceedings of such former committee shall be void and of no effect: Provided always, that if all the parties before the committee shall consent thereto the two remaining members of the committee, or the sole remaining member if only one, shall continue to act, and shall thenceforward constitute the committee.

LXXVI. That every such committee shall be attended by a person skilled in the art of writing shorthand, who shall be specially appointed by the clerk of the House of Commons for the time being, and sworn by the chairman faithfully and truly to take down the evidence given before such committee, and from day to day, as occasion may require, to write or cause the same to be written in words at length for the use of the committee.

LXXVII. That every such select committee shall have power to send for persons, papers, and records, and to examine any person who may have subscribed the petition which such select committee shall have been appointed to try, unless it shall otherwise appear to such committee that such person is an interested witness, and shall examine all the witnesses who come before them upon oath, which oath the clerk attending such select committee is hereby empowered to administer; and if any person summoned by such select committee, or by the warrants of the Speaker of the House of Commons (which warrants the Speaker is hereby authorized to issue from time to time as he shall think fit), shall disobey such summons, or if any witness before such select committee shall give false evidence, or perjure, or shall otherwise misbehave in giving or refusing to give evidence, the chairman of such select committee, by their direction, may at any time during the course of their proceedings report the same to the House for the interposition of the authority or censure of the House, as the case may require, and may, by a warrant under his hand directed to the serjeant-at-arms attending the House of Commons, or to his deputy or deputies, commit such person (not being a peer of the realm or lord of Parliament) to the custody of the said serjeant, without bail or mainprize, for any time not exceeding twenty-four hours, if the House shall then be sitting, and if not, then for a time not exceeding twenty-four hours after the hour to which the House shall then be adjourned.

LXXVIII. That where in this Act anything is required to be verified on oath to the House of Commons, it shall be lawful for the clerk of the House of Commons to administer an oath for that purpose, or an affidavit for such purpose may lawfully be sworn before any Justice of the Peace or Master of the High Court of Chancery.

LXXIX. That every person who shall wilfully give any false evidence before the House of Commons, or any committee or chamber of recognizances, under the provisions of this Act, or who shall wilfully swear falsely in any affidavit authorized by this Act to be taken, shall, on conviction thereof, be liable to the penalties of wilful and corrupt perjury.

LXXX. That no evidence shall be given before the select committee, or before any commission issued by the said committee, against the validity of any vote not included in one of the lists of voters delivered to the General Committee as aforesaid, or upon any head of objection to any voter included in any such list other than one of the heads specified against him in such list.

LXXXI. That every such select committee shall try the merits of the return or election, or both, and shall determine by a majority of voices, if for the time being consisting of more than one member, whether the petitioners or the sitting members, or either of them, be duly returned or elected, or whether the election be void, or whether a new writ ought to issue, which determination shall be final between the parties to all intents and purposes; and the House, on being informed thereof by the committee, shall order such report to be entered in their journals, and shall give the necessary directions for confirming or altering the return, or for ordering a return to be made, or for issuing a new writ for a new election, or for carrying the said determination into execution, as the case may require.

LXXXII. That if any such select committee shall come to any resolution other than the determination above mentioned they shall, if they think proper, report the same to the House for their opinion at the same time that they shall inform the House of such determination, and the House may confirm or disagree with such resolution, and make such orders thereon as to them shall seem proper.

LXXXIII. That whenever any such select committee shall think it necessary to deliberate among themselves upon any question which shall arise in the course of the trial, or upon the determination thereof, or upon any resolution concerning the matter of the petition referred to them as aforesaid, as soon as they shall have heard the evidence and counsel on both sides relative thereto, the room or place in which they shall sit shall be cleared, if they shall think proper, whilst the members of the committee consider thereof.

LXXXIV. That all questions before the committee, if for the time being consisting of more than one member, shall be decided by a majority of voices, and whenever the voices shall be equal the chairman shall have a second or casting voice.

LXXXV. That whenever the select committee shall be divided upon any question the names of the members voting in the affirmative and in the negative shall be entered in the minutes of the said committee, and shall be reported to the House, with the questions on which such divisions arose, at the same time with the final report of the committee; and no member of the committee shall be allowed to refrain from voting on any question on which the committee shall be divided.

LXXXVI. That whenever it shall happen that Parliament shall be prorogued after any petition complaining of an undue election or return, or of the omission to return, shall have been presented, but before the appointment of a select committee to try such petition, the General Committee of Elections shall, within two days after their first meeting, in case the surties shall have been then reported unobjectionable, appoint a day and hour for selecting a committee or committees to try the petition or petitions so standing over as aforesaid: Provided always, that if the number of petitions so standing over as aforesaid shall be so great that the times for selecting committee of elections be conveniently appointed within two days after their first meeting, the said General Committee shall, within two days after their first meeting, appoint the times for selecting committees to try such number of the said petitions as the said General Committee shall deem convenient, and shall afterwards from time to time, as soon as conveniently may be, appoint the times for selecting the committees to try the remainder of such petitions.

LXXXVII. That if the Parliament shall be prorogued after the appointment of any select committee for the trial of any such petition as aforesaid, and before they shall have reported to the House their determination thereon, such committee shall not be dissolved by such prorogation, but shall be thereby adjourned to twelve of the clock on the day immediately following that on which Parliament shall meet again for the despatch of business (Sunday, Good Friday, and Christmas Day always excepted); and all proceedings of such committee, and of any commission to take evidence issued under the authority of such committee, shall remain and continue to be of the same force and effect as if Parliament had not been so prorogued; and such committee shall meet on the day and hour to which it shall be so adjourned, and shall thenceforth continue to sit from day to day in the manner hereinbefore provided, until they shall have reported to the House their determination on the merits of such petition.

LXXXVIII. That whenever any committee appointed to try an election petition shall report to the House with respect to any such petition that the same appeared to them frivolous or vexatious, the party or parties, if any, who shall have appeared before the committee in opposition to such petition shall be entitled to recover from the person or persons, or any of them, who shall have signed such petition, the full costs and expenses which such party or parties shall have incurred in opposing the same, such costs and expenses to be ascertained in the manner hereinafter directed.

LXXXIX. That whenever such committee shall report to the House, with respect to the opposition made to such petition by any party or parties who shall have appeared before them, that such opposition appeared to be frivolous or vexatious, the person or persons who shall have signed such petition shall be entitled to recover from such party or parties, or any of them, with respect to whom such report shall be made, the full costs and expenses which such petitioner or petitioners shall respectively have incurred in prosecuting their petition, such costs and expenses to be ascertained in the manner hereinafter directed.

xc. That whenever no party shall have appeared before any such committee in opposition to such petition, and such committee shall report to the House, with respect to the election or return, or to the alleged omission of a return, or to the alleged insufficiency of a return, complained of in any such petition, that the same appeared to them to be vexatious or corrupt, the person or persons who shall have signed such petition shall be entitled to recover from the sitting member or sitting members (if any) whose election or return shall be complained of in such petition (such sitting member or sitting members not having given notice as aforesaid of his or their intention not to defend the same), or from any other person or persons whom the House shall have admitted or directed to be made a party or parties to oppose such petition, the full costs and expenses which such petitioner or petitioners shall have incurred in prosecuting their petition, such costs and expenses to be ascertained in the manner hereinafter directed.

xcI. That if any ground of objection shall be stated against any voter in any list of votes intended to be objected to as hereinbefore provided, and if such select committee shall be of opinion that such objection was frivolous or vexatious, the said committee shall report the same to the House of Commons, together with their opinion on the other matters relating to the said petition, and the opposite party shall in such case be entitled to recover, from the party or parties by whom or on whose behalf any such objections were made, the full costs and expenses incurred by reason of such frivolous or vexatious objections, which costs and expenses shall be ascertained and recovered in the same manner and form as is hereinafter provided for the recovery of costs and expenses in cases of frivolous or vexatious petitions.

xcII. That if either party shall make before the said select committee any specific allegation with regard to the conduct of the other party or his agents, and shall either bring no evidence in support thereof, or such evidence that the committee shall be of opinion that such allegation was made without any reasonable or probable ground, it shall be lawful for the committee to make such orders as to them shall seem fit for the payment, by the party making such unfounded allegation to the other party, of all costs and expenses which shall have been incurred by reason of such unfounded allegation, which costs and expenses shall be ascertained and recovered in the same manner and form as is hereinafter provided for the recovery of costs and expenses in cases of frivolous and vexatious petitions.

xcIII. That the costs and expenses of prosecuting or opposing or preparing to oppose any petition presented under the provisions of this Act, and the costs and expenses which shall be due and payable to any witness summoned to attend before the examiner of recognizances, or before any committee, under the provisions of this Act, shall be ascertained in manner following; (that is to say,) on application made to the Speaker of the House of Commons by any such petitioner, party, or witness for ascertaining such costs and expenses, not later than three calendar months after the determination of the merits of such petition, or after any order of the House for discharging the order of reference of such petition to the General Committee of Elections, or after the withdrawal of any petition, as hereinbefore provided, the Speaker shall direct the same to be taxed by the examiner of recognizances; and the said examiner shall examine and tax such costs and expenses, and shall report the amount thereof, together with the name of the party or parties liable to pay the same, and the name or names of the party or parties entitled to receive the same, to the Speaker, who shall, upon application made to him, deliver to the party or parties a certificate, signed by himself, expressing the amount of the costs and expenses allowed in such report, with the name of the party liable to pay the same, and the name of the party entitled to receive the same; and such certificate so signed by the Speaker shall be conclusive evidence, as well of the amount of such demands as of the title of the several parties to recover the same, in all cases and for all purposes whatsoever; and the party claiming under the same shall, upon payment thereof, give a receipt at the foot of such certificate, which shall be a sufficient discharge for the same.

xcIV. That the examiner of recognizances is empowered to examine upon oath any party claiming any such costs or expenses, and any witnesses tendered to him for examination, and to receive affidavits sworn before him, or before any Master of the High Court of Chancery, or any of Her Majesty's Justices of the Peace, who are severally empowered to take the same, relative to such costs or expenses, or the taxation or non-payment thereof.

xcV. That it shall be lawful for the party or parties entitled to such taxed costs and expenses, or for his, her, or their executors or administrators, to demand the whole amount thereof, so certified as above, from any one or more of the persons herein made liable to the payment thereof in the several cases hereinbefore mentioned, and in case of non-payment thereof to recover the same by action of debt in any of Her Majesty's courts of record at Westminster or Dublin, or in the court of session in Scotland, in which action it shall be sufficient for the plaintiff or plaintiffs to declare that the defendant or defendants is or are indebted to him or them in the sum mentioned in the said certificate; and the said plaintiff or plaintiffs shall, upon filing the said declaration, together with the said certificate and affidavit of such demand as aforesaid, be at liberty to sign judgment as for want of plea by nil dicit, and take out execution for the said sum so mentioned in the said certificate, together with the costs of the said action, according to due course of law: Provided always, that the validity of such certificate (the handwriting of the Speaker thereunto being duly verified) shall not be called in question in any court upon the allegation of any matter or thing anterior to the date thereof.

xcVI. That in every case it shall be lawful for any person or persons from whom the amount of such costs and expenses shall have been so recovered to recover in like manner from the other persons, or any of them (if such there shall be), who are liable to the payment of the same costs and expenses, a proportionate share thereof, according to the number of persons so liable, and according to the extent of the liability of each person.

xcVII. That if any person or persons who shall have subscribed an election petition shall neglect or refuse, for the space of seven days after demand, to pay to any witness who shall have been summoned on his or their behalf before the examiner of recognizances, or any committee, under the provisions of this Act, the sums so certified as aforesaid by the Speaker to be due to such witness, or if such petitioner or petitioners shall neglect or refuse, for the space of six months after demand, to pay to any party who shall appear in opposition to the said petition the sum so certified by the Speaker as aforesaid to be due to such party for their costs or expenses, and if such neglect or refusal shall, within one year after the granting of such certificate, be proved to the Speaker's satisfaction, by affidavit sworn before any Master of the High Court of Chancery (and such Master is hereby authorized to administer such oath, and is authorized and required to certify such affidavit under his hand,) in every such case every person who shall have entered into a recognizance relating to such petition under the provisions hereinbefore contained shall be held to have made default in his said recognizance; and the Speaker of the House of Commons shall thereupon certify such recognizance into the Court of Exchequer, and shall also certify that such person or persons have made default therein, and such certificate shall be conclusive evidence of such default; and the recognizance, being so certified, shall be delivered by the clerk or one of the clerks assistant of the House of Commons into the hands of the Lord Chief Baron of the Court of Exchequer, or of one of the Barons of the Exchequer, or of such officer as shall be appointed by the Court to receive the same, and shall have the same effect as if the same were estreated from a court of law; and the validity thereof (the handwriting of the Speaker to such certificate being duly verified) shall not be called in question upon the allegation of any matter anterior to the date of such certificate.

xcviii. That if any sheriff or other returning officer or officers shall wilfully delay, neglect, or refuse duly to return any person who ought to be returned to serve in Parliament for any county, city, borough, district of burghs, port, or place within Great Britain or Ireland, such person may, in case it shall have been determined by a select committee appointed in the manner hereinbefore directed that such person was entitled to have been returned, sue the sheriff or other officer or officers having so wilfully delayed, neglected, or refused duly to make such return at his election, in any of Her Majesty's courts of record at Westminster or Dublin, or in the court of session in Scotland, and shall recover double the damages he shall sustain by reason thereof, together with full costs of suit, provided such action is commenced within one year after the commission of the Act on which it is grounded, or within six months after the conclusion of any proceedings in the House of Commons relating to such election.

xcix. That this Act shall commence and take effect from the end of this present session of Parliament.

c. That if at the close of the present session of Parliament there shall be any election petition or petitions before the House, the order for taking which into consideration shall not have been discharged, and for trying which no committee or committees shall have been appointed, such election petition or petitions shall, in case the sureties relating thereto shall have been reported unobjectionable, be tried by a committee or committees to be chosen under the provisions of this Act, and shall be referred to the General Committee of Elections before any petition presented in the next session, and the General Committee shall, within two days after their first meeting, appoint a day and hour for selecting a committee to try every such petition; and the recognizances entered into in respect of such petitions shall be taken to remain in force for securing payment of all costs and expenses which the petitioners shall be liable to pay under the provisions of this Act: Provided always, that if the Parliament shall be prorogued after the appointment of a select committee for the trial of any such petition as aforesaid, and before they shall have reported to the House their determination thereon, such committee shall not be dissolved by such prorogation, but shall be thereby adjourned to twelve of the clock on the day immediately following that on which Parliament shall meet again for the despatch of business (Sunday, Good Friday, and Christmas Day always excepted); and all proceedings of such committee, and of any commission to take evidence issued under the authority of such committee, shall remain and continue to be of the same force and effect as if Parliament had not been so prorogued, and as if the Act, 4 & 5 Vict. c. 58, intituled, 'An Act to amend the Law for the Trial of controverted Elections,' had continued in force; and such committee shall meet on the day and hour to which it shall be so adjourned, and shall thenceforward continue to sit from day to day in the manner provided in the last-mentioned Act, until they shall have reported to the House their determination on the merits of such petition; and all further proceedings shall be had, with reference to such petition, as if the said last-mentioned Act had continued in force.

ci. That this Act may be amended or repealed by any Act to be passed in this present session of Parliament.

SCHEDULE (A.)

Form of Recognizance.

BE it remembered, That on the _____ Day of _____ in the Year of our Lord _____ before me A. B. (Examiner of Recognizances for the House of Commons) [or One of Her Majesty's Justices of the Peace for the County of _____], came C. D. of, &c., E. F. of, &c., G. H. of, &c., I. K. of, &c., and L. M. of, &c., and severally acknowledged themselves to owe to our Sovereign Lady the Queen the following sums: (that is to say,) the said C. D. the Sum of One Thousand Pounds, and the said E. F. the Sum of _____ Pounds, [the said G. H. the Sum of _____ Pounds, the said I. K. the Sum of _____ Pounds, and the said L. M. the Sum of _____ Pounds,] to be levied on their respective Goods and Chattels, Lands and Tenements, to the Use of our said Sovereign Lady the Queen, Her Heirs and Successors.

The Condition of this Recognizance is, that if the said C. D. and X. Y., (the other petitioner, if any), or either of them, shall well and truly pay all Costs and Expenses which any Committee of the House of Commons selected to try the Matter of the Petition signed by the said C. D. and X. Y. (complaining of an undue Election or Return for the [here state the Place]) [or (complaining that no return has been made for the said _____ within the time limited by Act of Parliament), or (complaining that the Return made for the said _____ is not a Return of a Member or Members according to the Requisition of the Writ), or (complaining of the special Matters contained in any such Return)] shall adjudge to be payable by the said C. D. and X. Y., (the other Petitioner, if any), or either of them, and shall also well and truly pay the Costs and Expenses due and payable by the said C. D. and X. Y., (the other Petitioner, if any), and each of them, to any witness summoned in his or their behalf, or to the party who shall appear in opposition to the said Petition, in case the said C. D. and X. Y. (the other Petitioner, if any), shall be allowed to withdraw his or their said Petition, then this Recognizance to be void, otherwise to be of full force and effect.

By this Act,

After reciting that by 6 & 7 Will. 4. c. 116, intituled 'An Act to consolidate and amend the Laws relating to the Presentment of public Money by Grand Juries in Ireland,' whereby provision was made for the above purpose in all parts of Ireland, except in the county and city of Dublin; and it is expedient to assimilate the law in the county of Dublin, as far as may be practicable, to that in other parts of Ireland:—

It is Enacted,

1. That from and after the 1st of January 1845 the following Acts and parts of Acts shall be and are hereby repealed, save and except so far as they or any of them repeal any other Act, and also save and except as to matters and things heretofore done under the said Acts or any of them; (that is to say,) an Act, 26 Geo. 3. (1.), intituled 'An Act for making, widening, and repairing public Roads in the County of Dublin, and for repealing Parts of several Acts formerly made for that purpose' (except such parts thereof as authorize the grand jury to accept from and the late Sir Nicholas Lawless to make a conveyance of so much of Gallows Hill as might be deemed sufficient for erecting a county gaol, and provide that the person or persons to whom such conveyance should be made should in nowise be reputed to derive or claim as a freeholder or freeholders, and as empower the grand jury to levy and pay to the said Sir Nicholas Lawless, his heirs and assigns, the annual rent therein mentioned); also an Act, 43 Geo. 3. c. xxv., intituled 'An Act to alter and amend the aforesaid Act made in the Twenty-sixth Year of His said Majesty's Reign'; also an Act, 50 Geo. 3. c. lx., intituled 'An Act to amend so much of an Act made in the Parliament of Ireland in the Twenty-sixth Year of King George the Third, for making and repairing public Roads in the County of Dublin, as relates to the Roads within the Barony of Rathdown'; and also an Act, 51 Geo. 3. c. xxxvi., intituled 'An Act to amend an Act made in the Parliament of Ireland in the Twenty-sixth Year of King George the Third, for making and repairing public Roads in the County of Dublin,' with respect to those roads within those parts of the baronies of Uppercross and Newcastle which are situate on the south-east side of the great turnpike road leading from Dublin to Cork by Rathcoole and Naas.

II. That it shall not be lawful for any grand jury of the county of Dublin to present, or for the Judges or Justices of any court to allow any presentments for the raising or levying any money off the county of Dublin at large, or off any barony within the said county, except at Easter term in every year; and such Easter term shall be designated the presenting term for the county of Dublin; and on the first day of every such term the clerk of the Crown in open court shall administer to each of the grand jurors to be impanelled the oath following; (that is to say,)

'YOU shall diligently inquire, on behalf of the County of Dublin, and true Presentment make, of all such Matters and Things as shall be lawfully given to you in charge, or as shall come before you in anywise relating to the raising of any Money upon the said County of Dublin, or upon any Barony, Half Barony, District, or Parish therein, or relating to the Expenditure of any such Money: You shall not present, nor allow, nor disallow, any Matter or Thing, through Hatred, Malice, or Ill-will, nor through Fear, Favour, Affection, nor Reward.
So help you GOD.'

III. That the grand jury of the said county of Dublin, so impanelled at the presenting term in each year, shall be and be deemed to be the grand jury of the said county for all the purposes of this Act, and shall transact the fiscal business of the said county in open court, and in such place or room, and within such times, during term, as the Judges of the Court of Queen's Bench from time to time shall appoint, not exceeding twelve days from the first day of each presenting term; and that the secretary of the grand jury shall cause to be laid before the Court of Queen's Bench, two days at least before the last day that shall be appointed by the Judges as aforesaid for the finishing of the fiscal business, all accounts of presentments to be filed by the Court; and that each grand jury shall for the whole period during which they shall sit be called over each morning at sitting by the foreman or person acting as such, and at all other times when the number of grand jurors present shall be less than by law required for the performance of the functions of a grand jury; and any grand juror who shall make default in his attendance at any of such times shall for every such default incur a penalty of 40s.; and such default shall be reported by the foreman to the Court of Queen's Bench, and unless the same shall be excused on the ground of illness, or other good and substantial reason, to the satisfaction of the Court, such fine and penalty shall be by the said Court confirmed and declared absolute, and recovered and applied in the same manner as fines and penalties imposed on jurors for any defaults or misbehaviour may now by law be recovered and applied; and if the foreman shall fail to call over the jury at the times hereinbefore appointed, or to report the absence of any juror upon such call, he shall incur a penalty of 40s. for each such default, to be in like manner recovered and applied: Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall limit or affect the authority of the said Court to enforce the attendance of any grand juror as said Court may now enforce such attendance.

IV. That upon the death, resignation, or removal of the present secretary of the grand jury it shall be lawful for the grand jury at any such presenting term to appoint a proper person to act as their secretary; and the present secretary of the grand jury, or any secretary who shall be appointed hereafter under the provisions of this Act, shall continue to act as such until he shall be removed by the grand jury, or until another person, duly qualified, shall be in like manner appointed; and if any person appointed secretary shall happen to die, the clerk of the peace or his known deputy is hereby required to act as such until the last day of the ensuing presenting term; and for the performing all and singular the duties of such secretary such clerk of the peace or his said deputy shall be entitled to receive a rateable proportion of the salary of such secretary for the time during which he shall have performed such duties; but in case of the illness of the secretary it shall and may be lawful for such secretary to appoint a deputy, for whom he shall be responsible, and who shall perform the duties of said secretary during his illness: Provided always, that it shall not be lawful to appoint or continue joint secretaries or more than one person as secretary in the said county.

V. That it shall not be lawful for the same person to be appointed, after the 1st of January 1845, secretary of the grand jury and clerk of the peace, or clerk of the Crown, or treasurer of any county, or collector of grand jury cess, or inspector of gaols; and in case the secretary of the grand jury shall at any time refuse or neglect to perform any of the duties imposed upon him by the provisions of this Act, such secretary, being convicted thereof before the Judge of the Court of Queen's Bench, shall for such refusal or neglect forfeit any sum not exceeding 50*l.*, at the discretion of such Judge; and no presentment shall be made of any salary to him.

VI. That it shall be lawful for the Lord Lieutenant, by order in council, at any time and from time to time hereafter, to require and direct the grand jury of the said county, at the Easter or Michaelmas term next following the making of such order, to divide the said county into as many road districts as in and by such order shall be directed, or to alter any districts, and fix and declare the salary of the surveyors to be appointed for each district, and the scale by which such salary shall be at any time augmented; and the said grand jury shall thereupon declare and define by presentment the boundary of each such district, and set forth the townlands or denominations to be contained therein; provided, however, that no barony shall be divided, but the whole of each barony shall be placed in one district; and the presentment for such division or alteration of division of the county shall be laid before the Court, and filed with the other presentments; and from and after the filing of such presentment the several districts to be formed shall be and constitute the road districts respectively of the said county for the purposes of this Act.

VII. That it shall be lawful for the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland at any time to appoint a board of three civil or military engineers, to act without salary or emolument, in Dublin, who shall from time to time examine into and certify the qualifications of persons desirous to act as district surveyors for the said county under this Act; and such board of engineers, after due examination, shall give certificate of qualification to any person who, in their opinion, shall be duly and properly qualified to undertake the duties of such office; and it shall be lawful for the grand jury of the said county, at the next Michaelmas term after the passing of this Act, or at any succeeding presenting term, to appoint from amongst the persons who shall have obtained such certificate one surveyor for each road district, at such salary and subject to such augmentation as shall have been so fixed and determined by the Lord Lieutenant in council.

VIII. That each surveyor to be appointed as aforesaid shall attend at each presentment sessions hereinafter directed to be held in and for his district for the reception of applications for presentments, and also at the presentment sessions for the county at large, and shall afford such professional advice and assistance in the consideration thereof as may be required of him under the direction of the grand jury, the finance committee hereinafter directed to be appointed, or presentment sessions, and shall prepare forms of tenders and proposals, estimates, specifications, maps, plans, sections, or elevations of any work approved thereat, and shall himself make such application, when necessary, as hereinafter directed, and shall also attend upon the grand jury, and as far as possible make to them a full and particular report on all applications for presentments lodged with the secretary as aforesaid, and the necessity or utility of the same, and on the correctness of the maps, plans, specifications, and estimates prepared as aforesaid, and how far it may be expedient to alter, vary, or modify the objects stated in such applications; and the said surveyor or surveyors shall also report generally on the state of public works in their respective districts, and on all applications on the part of contractors, and on the progress and execution of all public works formerly presented, and on the performance of all contracts, and on the state, repairs, progress, and condition of all buildings, roads, bridges, gulleys, walls, or other work; and the said surveyor or surveyors, or one of them, as the grand jury or finance committee shall direct, shall audit all accounts of such works, and ascertain and certify the correctness thereof, and whether each contractor is entitled to payment, and how far and whether such contractor has conformed to the provisions of this Act and the laws in force in Ireland, and shall also report the name and description of all persons by him prosecuted for any nuisance or injury to any road, or any other offence of like nature, and the result of such prosecution, and the proceedings therein, and generally on all matters and things relating to the office of surveyor, or which may be given to him in charge by the grand jury or finance committee.

IX. That any surveyor appointed under this Act may be at any time suspended or dismissed or his salary withheld for neglect or misconduct, at the pleasure of the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, or by the grand jury at any presenting term; and in such case, and on every other vacancy, however occasioned, the grand jury at the next presenting term shall appoint a successor from and out of the persons who shall be from time to time certified to be qualified as aforesaid: Provided always, that in case of indisposition or other unavoidable cause, proved on oath to the satisfaction of the grand jury or of any three Justices of the Peace for the said county, such surveyor may depute another person, duly certified as hereinbefore mentioned, to act for him; and such deputy shall be removable in like manner as his principal.

X. That upon the death, removal, or resignation of any of the present collectors the grand jury of the said county shall at any presenting term appoint a proper person, not being a magistrate or attorney, to be collector for each barony in such county, to collect all money which shall be presented to be raised on such barony or any parish or townland therein, and also the proportion which such barony may be liable to pay towards the money presented to be raised on the county at large; and every such collector shall have all power and authority and shall exercise and perform all duties now or hereafter to be by law required of any high constable or collector: Provided always, that if any such collector shall happen to die before he shall have collected the whole of the money presented to be raised as aforesaid on such barony for which he shall be collector, or if any case of vacancy should occur, or if any collector shall become incapable of performing his duty by illness or otherwise, it shall be lawful for the finance committee for the said county to appoint another fit and proper person to be collector pro tempore until a collector shall be appointed by the grand jury as aforesaid.

XI. Provided and enacted, That no person shall act as collector unless he shall have given security before the acting foreman of the grand jury at some presenting term, or before some Justice of the Peace, being a member of the finance committee (if such collector shall have been appointed by the finance committee), by two sufficient sureties, to be approved of by the grand jury or finance committee, joining with him in executing a bond and warrant of attorney, without stamp, to confess judgment to the secretary of the grand jury, conditioned for his duly collecting and paying into the Bank of Ireland, to the credit of the finance committee, from time to time, so long as he shall continue collector, or till the grand jury shall otherwise determine, all such public money as he is or shall be required to collect, and that he shall at no time retain in his possession a larger sum than 100*l.*, and it shall be lawful for the grand jury to fix a sum not exceeding 1*s.* in the pound on the amount of the collection to be paid to each of the present collectors for his trouble therein, and a sum not exceeding 9*d.* in the pound on the amount of the collection to be paid to every collector hereafter to be appointed for his trouble therein: Provided always, that no presentment for the payment of such poundage, or any balance thereof, shall be made by any grand jury, or fixed by the Court, unless the warrant under which such collector has levied such public money shall be annexed to such presentment, nor unless such collector and his deputy respectively shall make affidavit before the acting foreman of the said grand jury that such public money has been fairly and impartially levied, and that no more than the sum authorized by the warrant has been collected, to the best of his and their knowledge and belief; and every collector as aforesaid may, by writing under his hand and seal, appoint a deputy collector or deputy collectors, for whom he shall be answerable, to assist him in collecting the public money; and every such bond, and any judgment entered thereon, shall vest in and may be sued for by the secretary of the grand jury for the time being, who shall be entitled to continue the proceedings of any former secretary on filing a suggestion stating his appointment to such office, or on his making it otherwise appear to the Court in which such proceeding may be pending that he is the acting secretary.

XII. That every collector shall commence his collection with as little delay as possible after receipt of his warrant, and shall lodge the amount collected from time to time in the Bank of Ireland to the credit of the finance committee of the county, and shall not at any time retain in his hands more than 100*l.*, but shall lodge the same with all convenient expedition in the said Bank of Ireland, and shall attend the finance committee from time to time, and make up the accounts of his collection when and as such finance committee shall direct, and furnish them with a copy or vouchers of all receipts and lodgments; and in case of any inattention, neglect, or misconduct on the part of any such collector it shall be lawful for the said finance committee to suspend or dismiss such collector, and to appoint another person to act in his place in completing such collection, whereupon the said collector shall hand over his warrant, with a list of the persons whose grand jury cess may have been paid or may remain unpaid; and if such collector shall refuse or neglect for one week to deliver over such warrant and list as aforesaid, after being required so to do, he shall forfeit the sum of 20*l.*, to be recovered by civil bill, or before any Justice of the Peace, at the suit of the finance committee; and the person so appointed to act in the place of the collector so suspended or dismissed shall, after having entered into security as aforesaid, have and possess all the rights, powers, and privileges of a collector duly appointed by the grand jury under this Act until the first day of the then next presenting term, but no longer.

XIII. That it shall and may be lawful for the grand jury of the said county at any presenting term, application being previously made at presentment sessions as hereinafter directed, to present such sum or sums of money, to be raised off the county at large, as shall be necessary for building, rebuilding, enlarging, repairing, altering, hiring, furnishing, or fitting up any court house or sessions house therein, whether for any other purpose required by law, or for the purposes of presentment sessions under this Act; and whenever any presentment shall be made for any of such purposes, or any other public works, and the sum necessary to be raised for the same shall be greater than it may be proper to levy off the county at one time, then and in every such case it shall be lawful for such grand jury to present, in the first instance, the whole sum required for such purpose, and to direct in and by such presentment that the same shall be raised off the county by such half-yearly sums or instalments, and in such proportions, as to such grand jury may seem expedient, and the same shall be so raised accordingly: Provided always, that it shall be lawful for any subsequent grand jury to present that any of the said instalments shall be increased to any sum that shall be found necessary or proper.

XIV. That if, in any town or place at which the Lord Lieutenant hath directed or may hereafter direct that a Quarter Sessions of the Peace, or any adjournment thereof, shall be holden for the despatch of civil or criminal business, there be not a sufficiently commodious or convenient sessions house, it shall be lawful to and for the said Lord Lieutenant to direct any architect or engineer as he shall deem advisable to prepare such specifications, maps, plans, sections, and elevations as may be necessary for the erection of a sessions house, therein expressing the nature and probable expense of the works, and the materials proper to be employed, and the same shall be delivered to the secretary of the grand jury, who shall lay the same, together with the copy of the warrant of the Lord Lieutenant, before the grand jury, at the presenting term next after the time at which he shall receive the same; and the grand jury shall examine such specifications, maps, plans, sections, and elevations, and such others as may be laid before them, and either adopt the same, or make such alterations therein as they may think proper, or reject the same, and shall present that a proper and sufficient sessions house shall be provided or built in such town or place within the period of one year from the last day of such presenting term, and that a sum not exceeding 1000*l.* shall be levied off the county for that purpose at one time, or by instalments to be completed within the period of five years; and the architect or engineer shall thereupon prepare a proper form of tender for the execution of such work, and shall deliver the same to the secretary of the grand jury, who shall forthwith advertise for tenders for the execution thereof, and shall lay the same, together with the presentment, and the specifications, maps, plans, sections, and elevations, as approved of by the grand jury, and the tenders for execution thereof, before the next adjourned presentment sessions holden for the county at large; and the tenders that shall be made for the execution of such works shall be opened at such sessions, and dealt with in all respects in like manner as any other tender for a work approved of and presented is: Provided always, that if such presentment shall not be made, and a valid contract for executing such work shall not be entered into, within the period of two calendar months from the last day of the presenting term in which such warrant shall have been laid before the grand jury, it shall be lawful for the Lord Lieutenant to direct the Commissioners of Public Works in Ireland to build or provide such sessions house; and on the production to the grand jury at any presenting term of the certificate of the secretary of such Commissioners that a sum not exceeding the sum of 1000*l.* has been expended in building such sessions house and purchasing a site for the same, or for either of such purposes, the grand jury shall and they are hereby required to present the sum so certified to be levied off such county in one payment, and to be paid to the secretary of the said Commissioners, in satisfaction of the sum so expended: Provided also, that in case the said Commissioners of Public Works shall find it convenient to take a lease of any premises for the purpose of building such sessions house thereon, they shall be at liberty to do so, and to engage to pay an annual or other rent for the same, not exceeding the sum of 50*l.* per annum, and the grand jury shall and they are hereby required from time to time to present a sum equal to the amount of such rent, to be levied off the county, and paid in discharge of the same.

XV. That it shall be lawful for the secretary of the grand jury, under direction of any presentment sessions for the county at large, to advertise in the public newspapers for surveys, specifications, maps, plans, sections, and elevations from professional engineers and architects, for the erection, alteration, and repair of such buildings as may be required for the public use of the county, or for the construction of any bridge or other public work, the probable cost, of which shall exceed 1000*l.* and to offer a sum not exceeding 50*l.* as remuneration to the engineer or architect whose plans shall be approved of; and it shall be lawful for the grand jury to make presentment of such remuneration, and to employ such engineer or architect, should they judge it necessary, in superintending the work to be executed pursuant to his plan, on such terms as may be determined by the grand jury.

XVI. That whenever any presentment shall be or has been made for the purpose of building a new or enlarging any court house or sessions house in and for the said county, it shall be lawful for the grand jury of the said county to authorize such Commissioners as such grand jury shall appoint to contract and agree with any person or persons, or body or bodies corporate or politic, for the purchase or renting of any houses, buildings, lands, tenements, or hereditaments convenient for the site of any new court house or sessions house, or adjoining to any old court or sessions house, and convenient for the purpose of enlarging the same or the courts or outlets thereunto belonging; and the lands, tenements, or hereditaments so contracted or agreed for shall be demised or conveyed to such Commissioners, and to their heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns, in trust, for the uses and purposes aforesaid; and such Commissioners shall be appointed and such demise or conveyance made in such manner and under such and the like rules and regulations as are prescribed in an Act, 7 Geo. 4. c. 74, intituled, 'An Act for consolidating and amending the Laws relating to Prisons in Ireland,' with respect to the appointment of Commissioners, and the demising and conveying of any lands, tenements, or hereditaments to such Commissioners, under that Act: Provided always, that in case such Commissioners shall be unable to agree with the owners of any lands, tenements, or hereditaments proper or necessary to be purchased for the purposes of any such presentment, and if the grand jury by which such presentment shall have been made, or any subsequent grand jury, shall direct that the same be purchased or rented by and under the valuation of a jury, it shall be lawful for the Commissioners appointed as aforesaid, or any three or more of them, to issue their warrant to the sheriff, in the manner directed by the said Act, 7 Geo. 4. c. 74, and thereupon such and the like proceedings shall and may be had and taken for summoning, impanelling, and swearing juries, and valuing the premises so directed to be purchased or rented, and each and every part thereof respectively, and for obtaining the full possession and seisin thereof, and a good title thereto, in the said Commissioners, and with and subject to all the same rules, regulations, conditions, and jurisdictions as in the said Act provided concerning any premises to be purchased by such valuation under the aforesaid Act, 7 Geo. 4. c. 74; and the said Commissioners shall in that behalf have, possess, and exercise all and every the like powers and authorities as by the said Act are granted to and vested in the Commissioners therein mentioned; and it shall be lawful for any such or any subsequent grand jury to present the sum so agreed upon or fixed as the purchase money of such premises, and the costs attending such purchase, to be levied off such county, either at one time or by half-yearly instalments, in such manner as they may think proper; and such presentment may be made without any previous application to any presentment sessions.

XVII. That it shall be lawful for the grand jury of the said county and they are hereby required to present at each presenting term, without previous application at presentment sessions, to be raised upon such county, all such sum or sums of money as shall be necessary for paying such rent or rents of any court house or sessions house, or their appurtenances respectively, as now are or shall at any time hereafter be payable for the same.

XVIII. That it shall be lawful for the Commissioners appointed as aforesaid by any grand jury of the said county to sell and dispose of or to authorize the sale and disposal of any old court house or sessions house belonging to the said county in which the sessions have been discontinued or have ceased to be held, together with the ground or site on which the same is built, according to the title or interest which the county may have in the same, and also to sell and dispose of or to authorize the sale and disposal of all or any part of the materials of which such old court house or sessions house may be composed; and the money arising therefrom shall be paid to the credit of the finance committee of such county, and applied to defray the purchase-money of any premises required for the erection of any new court house, or to the erection of such new court house, or such other purposes connected with the county at large as any other public money raised off such county, and coming to the credit of such finance committee, may be applied.

XIX. That it shall be lawful for the grand jury of the said county, at any presenting term, without any previous application to presentment sessions, to present, to be levied off such county at large, such reasonable sum or sums as they shall think proper, for providing fuel or light for each and every or any court house or sessions house in or belonging to such county; provided that no sum so presented shall be paid by the finance committee of such county until the person to whom any such sum so to be presented for fuel shall be payable under such presentment shall prove, to the satisfaction of the said finance committee, by an affidavit sworn by him before some Justice of the Peace, or by other evidence, that the sum required to be paid hath been duly expended in the purchase of fuel for the use of such court house or sessions house, pursuant to such presentment, and that the whole of such fuel hath been consumed in the said court house or sessions house, and for the use and benefit thereof, or, if any part of such fuel shall not have been consumed, stating how much thereof has been consumed, and that the residue then remains in safe keeping, to be applied to the use of the said court house or sessions house in like manner.

XX. That it shall be lawful for the grand jury of the said county to present, to be levied off the county at large, for each of the places wherein petty sessions shall be appointed to be held, an annual sum not exceeding 10*l*. for the rent of a room or rooms for the holding of petty or presentment sessions thereat, and of a lock-up room or house: Provided always, that such room or rooms shall not be in a house where spirituous or fermented liquors are sold, nor in any police barrack, nor in any other building maintained either wholly or in part at the public expense: Provided also, that whenever a public court house shall have been built and provided at any place so appointed, no such presentment shall be made, but the petty and special sessions shall be holden in such public court house, and not elsewhere: Provided also, that it shall be proved, to the satisfaction of the county presentment sessions where application shall be made for such rent, that six meetings of Justices, during the six months immediately preceding such application, have been held in such room or rooms.

XXI. That it shall be lawful for the grand jury of the said county to present, without any previous application at sessions, to be levied off such county at large, any sum not exceeding 20*l*. for the court keeper of Kilmainham, and not exceeding 8*l*. at each presenting term, as a salary or payment for the keeper of any other sessions house belonging to such county where the General Quarter Sessions of the Peace are held, and for any sum not exceeding 10*l.*, at each presenting term, for an interpreter, if such payment shall be recommended by the Court.

XXII. That it shall be lawful for the grand jury as aforesaid (application being previously made at presentment sessions) to present, to be raised off the county at large, any sum or sums of money for making or repairing a gallows, or for bolts and shackles, not exceeding in the whole in any one year the sum of 20*l.*, and also for erecting or repairing direction posts, milestones, mile posts, or depôts for materials, not exceeding 1*l.* for each direction post, milestone, mile post, or depôt, also the necessary expenses incurred in printing the several notices and other documents, accounts, and abstracts herein directed or authorized by the grand jury at any presenting term, and sanctioned by the Court, to be printed.

XXIII. That where any fever hospital or dispensary for the purpose of furnishing medicine and affording medical and surgical aid to the poor of any town or place in the said county is now or shall be hereafter established in such county by private subscriptions or donations, and a certificate of the sum or sums of money actually received by the treasurer of such fever hospital or dispensary from private subscription or donation since the last application to presentment sessions, or since the establishment of such fever hospital or dispensary, and a statement of the number of persons admitted or relieved, together with an account of the receipt and disbursement of all monies raised by virtue of any presentment for such fever hospital or dispensary, as well as of all monies actually received from private subscription or donation for the use of such fever hospital or dispensary, since the date of such last application or establishment, shall have been laid before the presentment sessions ensuing the disbursement thereof, and such certificate and account, verified upon the oath of such treasurer, shall, together with the application for a presentment for such fever hospital or dispensary, have been allowed and approved of at such sessions, it shall be lawful for the grand jury of the said county at any presenting term to present, to be raised off the said county, or any barony or baronies thereof, as to such grand jury shall seem fit, in case of a fever hospital a sum not exceeding double the amount, and in the case of a dispensary a sum not exceeding the amount, of such private subscriptions or donations so received, to be paid to the treasurer of such fever hospital or dispensary, and applied (under the direction of the subscribers of any annual sum of not less than 1*l.* 1*s.*, or such committee of them, not fewer in number than five, as they shall appoint for that purpose at any general meeting of such subscribers), together with the monies received by private subscription and donation, in fitting up and supporting such fever hospital or dispensary, and in providing medicine and medical and surgical aid for the poor of such place and its neighbourhood: Provided always, that when any fever hospital shall be attached to any dispensary the treasurer of the same shall separate the accounts of the receipts and expenditure of each such fever hospital and dispensary, and the application for presentments for each shall be separate and distinct; provided also, that no such presentment shall be made unless it shall appear by the certificate of such treasurer, verified as aforesaid, that the medical attendant, if appointed after the 1st of January 1845, resided since the creation of such dispensary or hospital, or since the last presenting term, (as the case may be,) at or within one statute mile of such dispensary or hospital.

XXIV. That whenever it shall be made appear by statement on oath to the grand jury of the said county that there has been actually received from private subscriptions or donations any sum or sums of money for the purpose of erecting any house to be applied to the reception of fever patients, and either connected with any local dispensary or not, as the case may happen, and upon a certificate by one or more physicians that there is a necessity for providing accommodation for such patients, it shall and may be lawful for such grand jury to present, to be raised off such county at large, any sum not exceeding double the amount of the sum or sums so raised by donation or subscription, and actually received by the treasurer, to be applied, together with the monies so received by private donation or subscription, in erecting such house for fever patients, in such manner as the subscribers of any sum not less than 1*l.* 1*s.*, or such committee of them, not fewer than five, as they shall appoint for that purpose at any general meeting of such subscribers, shall in their discretion deem most advisable: Provided always, that the affidavit and certificate herein mentioned shall, together with the application for such presentment, have also been laid before the presentment sessions, and approved thereat; provided also, that an account of the receipt and expenditure of such fever hospital from the time of its establishment to the time of the first presentment required, and afterwards from the time of each presentment required till the time when any further presentment is required, shall, together with an application for the sum so proposed to be presented, be laid before the presentment sessions to be holden under this Act for the purpose of considering applications for presentments, and that such account and application shall be approved at such sessions.

XXV. That where any ward or wards for the reception and support of idiots and incurable insane persons is or may be established in conjunction with or under the direction of any lunatic asylum connected with the said county, it shall and may be lawful for the grand jury at each presenting term, without previous application at sessions, to present such sum or sums, not exceeding the sum of 100*l.*, as shall appear to be necessary for the support of such ward connected with such lunatic asylum; and such sum shall be raised off the county at large, or off any barony or baronies thereof, as the grand jury shall direct.

XXVI. That whenever the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland shall at any time have ordered any sum or sums of money to be advanced out of the Consolidated Fund of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, for the payment of the expenses incurred by any Commissioners appointed by such Lord Lieutenant or other Chief Governor or Governors, to form a board of health in any town or district within the said county, it shall be lawful for the grand jury and they are hereby required to present, without previous application to presentment sessions, all sums so advanced to be raised off such county, or any barony or baronies thereof: Provided always, that it shall be lawful for the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, if they shall think fit, to direct that such sum shall be repaid by such instalments as they may think proper.

XXVII. That at any time after any order in council shall be made by the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, by and with the advice of Her Majesty's Privy Council in Ireland, under and by virtue of the provisions of an Act, 1 & 2 Geo. 4. c. 33, intitled, 'An Act to make more effectual Provision for the Establishment of Asylums for the Lunatic Poor, and for the Custody of Insane Persons charged with Offences in Ireland,' or any Act or Acts amending the same, and after such order shall have been published in the Dublin Gazette, it shall and may be lawful for the grand jury of the said county at any presenting term to present, without previous application to presentment sessions, such sum or sums of money, to be raised off such county at large, or any barony or baronies thereof, as shall be requisite for defraying the expenses of erecting and establishing an asylum for the lunatic poor, or for erecting any ward for the reception of idiots or incurable lunatics for such district or any proportion thereof, ascertained by any order made by the said Lord Lieutenant and Privy Council.

XXVIII. That it shall be lawful for the grand jury of the said county, without previous application at presentment sessions, to present, at each presenting term, to be levied off such county at large, or barony or baronies thereof, such sum or sums of money as shall be necessary for the expenses of supporting, supplying, and maintaining any such asylum, or the officers thereof, or the patients therein, or any proportion of such expenses, ascertained by order of the said Lord Lieutenant and Privy Council, under the provisions of the said last-recited Act.

XXIX. That whenever the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, by and with the advice of Her Majesty's Privy Council in Ireland, shall, under the provisions of the said last-recited Act, or any Act amending the same, have ordered and directed any sum or sums of money to be advanced, issued, and paid out of the growing produce of the said Consolidated Fund arising in Ireland for the purpose of erecting and establishing, opening, carrying on, enlarging, maintaining, or supporting, any such asylum, the grand jury of the said county shall and they are hereby required (after any such asylum shall be fit for the reception of such lunatic poor) to present at each presenting term, without any previous application at presentment sessions, such sum or sums of money, to be levied off such county at large, as shall be necessary for the repayment of any such sum or sums so advanced, or any part thereof, at such times and in such proportions as shall be directed and ascertained by any order or orders to be made by such Lord Lieutenant in council as aforesaid.

XXX. That in each and every case when the Commissioners appointed for general controul and correspondence, and for the superintending and directing the erection, establishment, and regulation of district lunatic asylums, shall have rented or purchased any houses, buildings, lands, tenements, or hereditaments on the site or sites of which it shall be proposed to erect or maintain any such asylum for the said county, it shall be lawful for the grand jury of the said county, and such grand jury are hereby required, at the presenting term next ensuing the day or time when such purchase shall be made or such rent shall become due, or as soon after as shall be requisite, and so from time to time whenever the case shall happen, to present, without previous application to presentment sessions, to be levied off such county at large, such sum or sums of money as they shall be directed to present by the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland in council as aforesaid, for the purpose of completing such purchase or paying such rent or rents.

XXXI. That it shall be lawful for the grand jury of the said county, at each presenting term, to present any sum not exceeding in the whole the sum of 100*l.* for each and every coroner in such county, to be levied off such county at large, or any barony therein, as such grand jury shall think advisable; and such grand jury shall apportion the whole of such sum so presented among the several coroners of such county according to the number of inquests which may appear to have been respectively held upon the body of any person by each of such coroners since the date of the last application for a presentment; and such sums shall be paid to the coroners respectively who shall have held such inquests, and for whom such sums shall have been presented: Provided always, that no coroner shall receive more than at the rate of 1*l.* 10*s.* for each inquest so held by him.

XXXII. Provided and enacted, That it shall not be lawful for any grand jury to make any presentment for any such remuneration to any such coroner, unless, together with the application for the same at the county presentment sessions, there be laid before such sessions a certificate of each inquest respectively taken by such coroner made and signed by such coroner, in the form following:—

'I A. B., a Coroner in the County of Dublin, do hereby certify, That on the _____ Day of _____ I held an Inquest on the Body of C. D. at _____ in this County, and that the Names of the Jurors impanelled on such Inquest were as follows;
'and that the Names of the Witnesses examined before such Jurors were as follows;
'and that the Verdict of such Jury was _____ 'All which I certify. Dated this _____ Day of _____

A. B., Coroner of this County.'

And it shall be lawful for such sessions or the grand jury in case they shall so think fit, to examine any such coroner upon oath as to matters relating to said inquest, or as to the truth of any such certificate.

XXXIII. That whenever any coroner shall deem it necessary to hold any inquest, and shall summon any medical witness to attend the same, he shall summon such legally qualified medical practitioner as shall reside nearest to the place where such inquest is to be taken, unless there be some sufficient reason to the contrary.

XXXIV. That for payment and remuneration of every medical witness who, having been summoned by any coroner as aforesaid to attend at any inquest, shall attend same, and, pursuant to the directions which he shall receive from such coroner, shall examine any dead body, and give evidence upon the inquest taken thereon, it shall be lawful for the said coroner and he is hereby empowered to sign and issue to such medical witness, upon obtaining his receipt for same, an order upon the finance committee of the county of Dublin for the sum of 1*l.* 1*s.*, and no more, for such attendance, examination, and evidence as aforesaid; and if it should appear necessary to such coroner that a post-mortem examination should be made by any such medical witness, it shall be lawful for such coroner to order and direct that such post-mortem examination shall take place; and such coroner shall and may in like manner sign and issue to such medical witness, for every such post-mortem examination and evidence, an order upon the finance committee as aforesaid for the further sum of 1*l.* 1*s.*, upon obtaining a like receipt; but in no case shall any coroner sign or issue to or for any medical witness, for or on account of any one inquest, any order for a greater sum than the sum of 2*l.* 2*s.*; and the amount of all such payments shall be presented by the grand jury, to be raised off the county at large, or any barony thereof, in like manner as the same presented for the inquest whereat such parties may attend: Provided always, that the coroner shall certify to the presentment session of the barony in which the inquest was held the amount and particulars of all sums so by him ordered to be paid.

xxxv. Provided and enacted, That it shall not be lawful for any grand jury to present any money to be paid to any coroner who shall appear to them to have been guilty of neglect of duty in not attending to take any inquest, or otherwise, nor in any case to present any money for the remuneration of any coroner for or in respect of any inquest other than such as shall have been held since the date of the application for the last presentment.

xxxvi. That it shall be lawful for the grand jury of the said county at each presenting term, and they are hereby required to present, to be levied off the county at large, or off any barony or half barony or any portion of a barony (as the case may be), all and every such sum or sums of money as may be chargeable upon and directed to be presented and levied off such county, barony, half barony, or portion of a barony, by and under the provisions of any Act or Acts for the appointment, maintenance, and regulation of the constabulary force in Ireland; and every such presentment shall be made without any previous application to presentment sessions, and in all respects pursuant to the regulations of the said Acts or such of them as may be applicable to the case; and the money levied under every such presentment shall be paid over in such manner and to such bank or person as the said Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, or any three or more of them, shall direct, save and except in the case of the superannuations hereinafter and by the said Acts, or any one of them, directed to be paid to the parties entitled to the same: Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall extend or be construed to extend to authorize any grand jury to present any sums of money for the maintenance or support of the constabulary to be raised off such parts of the said county as are assessed for the support of the metropolitan police, and exempted from assessment for the constabulary under an Act, 1 & 2 Vict. c. 25, for the regulation of the metropolitan police of Dublin.

xxxvii. That whenever the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland shall, under and by virtue of the provisions of an Act, 5 Geo. 4. c. 28, intituled 'An Act to amend an Act of the Third Year of His present Majesty's Reign, for the Appointment of Constables in Ireland,' or under the provisions of any other Act, have ordered any sum or sums of money to be paid and advanced, out of the produce of the Consolidated Fund of Great Britain and Ireland arising in Ireland, as an annual remuneration or superannuation to any chief constable, constable, or sub-constable disabled by any maim, wound, or hurt, or other grievous injury received by him in the execution or performance of the duty of his office, and to be defrayed by the said county of Dublin, or any barony thereof, it shall and may be lawful for the grand jury of the said county, and such grand jury is hereby required, upon the production of the certificate of the chief secretary of the Lord Lieutenant for the time being, or of the under secretary, of the amount of the sum or sums so paid and advanced out of the Consolidated Fund for the superannuation of such constables, to present (without previous application to presentment sessions) one moiety of such sum or sums so paid, advanced, and certified as aforesaid, to be levied off such county or barony; and the same when levied shall be paid over in such manner and to such bank or person as the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, or any three or more of them, shall direct.

xxxviii. That it shall be lawful for the grand jury of the said county and they are hereby required to present (without previous application to presentment sessions), to be raised off the county at large, such yearly allowance, superannuation, compensation, gratuity, or remuneration as the Lord Lieutenant or other Chief Governor or Governors of Ireland for the time being shall order, or at any time have ordered, to be paid by such county, or such proportion thereof as he or they shall direct or have directed to be paid to any magistrate, inspector, deputy inspector, county inspector, sub-inspector, chief constable, constable, or sub-constable, who has been or shall hereafter be superannuated by virtue of the provisions of any Act or Acts now in force authorizing such Lord Lieutenant or other chief governor or governors to grant such superannuation; and such allowance, superannuation, compensation, gratuity, or remuneration shall be presented during the life of each person so entitled thereto, on proof to the grand jury from time to time that such person is living.

xxxix. That when in the said county any special constable shall have been appointed by virtue of an Act, 2 & 3 Will. 4. c. 108, intituled 'An Act for amending the Laws in Ireland relative to the Appointment of Special Constables and for the better Preservation of the Peace,' and the Justices of the Peace of such county, acting at a special sessions held for that purpose, or the major part of them, shall, in pursuance of the powers given to them by the said Act, have made any order or orders upon the finance committee for the payment to such special constables of a reasonable allowance for their trouble and loss of time, or to defray expenses incurred in providing staves or other necessary articles for such special constables, it shall and may be lawful for the grand jury of such county, and such grand jury is hereby required, to present (without previous application to presentment sessions), to be raised off such county at large, or any barony thereof, within which such special constables may have served, the amount of all sums paid by the finance committee pursuant to such order or orders.

xl. That where any person shall have been tried for any felony or misdemeanour whatsoever committed or alleged to have been committed in the said county of Dublin, it shall be lawful for the Court before whom such person shall have been tried, in case it shall appear that there was a reasonable ground of prosecution, and cause for the same being defrayed by the county of Dublin, to order the finance committee of the said county (to pay to the prosecutor, upon his application, such sum of money as to such Court shall seem reasonable, not exceeding the expenses which it shall appear to the Court that such prosecutor may have bond fide incurred in carrying on such prosecution; and in case such prosecutor shall appear to the Court to be in poor circumstances, such Court may make a further reasonable allowance to such prosecutor for trouble and loss of time, which order the clerk of the Crown or clerk of the peace respectively is hereby directed and required forthwith to make out and deliver to such prosecutor, without fee or reward; and when any person shall appear on recognizance or subpoena to give evidence as to any felony or misdemeanour whatsoever committed or alleged to have been committed in the said county of Dublin, whether the prosecution of such felony be commenced or carried on by or under the direction of any law officer of the Crown, or any other person, it shall be lawful for the Court before which such person shall appear, whether any bill of indictment be preferred or not to any grand jury, in case such person shall have bond fide attended in obedience to such recognizance or subpoena, to order the finance committee of the said county to pay unto such person such sum of money as shall seem reasonable, not exceeding the expenses which it shall appear that such person has bond fide incurred by reason of the said recognizances or subpoenas; and in case such person shall appear to be in poor circumstances, such Court may make a further reasonable allowance to such person for trouble and loss of time, which order the clerk of the Crown or the clerk of the peace respectively is hereby directed and required forthwith to make out and deliver to such person; and such finance committee is hereby authorized and required to pay to any such prosecutor or witness respectively, or to any person by him or her authorized, any such sum of money so ordered; and the grand jury of the said county shall, at each presenting term, present all sums so paid to such prosecutors and witnesses respectively, to be raised either off the county at large, or upon any barony thereof, as to such grand jury shall seem fit; and such presentment may be made without any previous application to presentment sessions.

XLII. That if it shall appear that any person, having given information or evidence against any person or persons charged with any offence against the public peace, shall have been murdered or maimed within the said county of Dublin, previous to the trial of the person or persons accused by such information or evidence, or of any of them, or on account of any such evidence given, or that any magistrate or other peace officer shall be murdered or maimed on account of his exertions as such magistrate or peace officer to bring disturbers of the public peace to justice, it shall and may be lawful to and for the grand jury of the county to present, upon the recommendation of the Lord Lieutenant, and without previous application at presentment sessions, such sum or sums of money as they shall think just and reasonable to be paid to the personal representative of such witness, magistrate, or peace officer so murdered, or to such witness, magistrate, or peace officer so maimed, having regard to the rank, degree, situation, and circumstances of such witness, magistrate, or peace officer; such money to be raised off the county at large, or the barony in which such murder or maiming shall respectively have been perpetrated, at the discretion of such grand jury.

XLIII. That it shall be lawful for the grand jury of the said county, at any presenting term, if they shall think fit, to present without any previous application at sessions, any sum of money not exceeding the sum of 20*l*. for each and every person who shall apprehend and prosecute to conviction any person guilty of any murder, and any sum not exceeding 10*l*. for each and every person who shall apprehend and prosecute to conviction any person guilty of any other capital felony, or of any misdemeanour, for which any person on conviction may be liable to be transported; such sum or sums to be raised off such county, or any barony thereof, as such grand jury shall think proper, and to be paid to any prosecutor or prosecutors of such offenders as aforesaid; and such presentment may be made during the time appointed for transacting the criminal business of such county.

XLIV. That upon the removal of any prisoner apprehended according to law in any other part of the United Kingdom, and charged with any offence committed within the said county of Dublin, it shall be lawful for the finance committee of the said county, upon being satisfied that such expenses are reasonable in amount, and fairly chargeable upon the said county of Dublin, to repay out of any funds to their credit, the expenses attending the removal of such prisoner; and the grand jury of the said county shall, at the next presenting term, present the amount so paid to be raised off the county at large; and such presentment shall be made without any previous application to presentment sessions.

XLV. That where, either previous to or after the 1st of January 1845, any child under the age of two years shall have been or shall be left exposed and deserted in any parish in the said county, and an application shall have been made by any two cess-payers, with the approval of two or more Justices at petty sessions assembled, and such application shall likewise have been approved at the presentment sessions for the barony in which such parish shall be situate, it shall be lawful for the grand jury of such county to present, to be levied off such parish or any portion thereof, any sum not exceeding 5*l*. in the year for the maintenance of such child; and such sum so levied shall be paid to the cess-payers making such application, or such other person or persons as the grand jury shall direct, to be by them applied for the purposes aforesaid: Provided always, that if the baronial presentment sessions shall not approve of any such application, or the grand jury of such county shall refuse or neglect to make such presentment, it shall be lawful for any Judge of the Queen's Bench, upon the complaint of such cess-payers, to order such sum as he shall think fit, not exceeding 5*l*., to be raised upon such parish or portion thereof (in the same manner as any money presented by grand juries), for the support of such child, and to be paid in like manner as hereinafter provided for: Provided also, that in no case shall any sum be presented for the support of any such child after it shall have attained the age of twelve years.

XLVI. That all county and other officers and persons mentioned and specified in the Schedule No. 15. to this Act annexed shall, from and after the 1st of January 1845, be paid and remunerated for their respective duties, services, and expenses by annual salaries, payable half-yearly by the finance committee, by equal moieties, and not exceeding the amount mentioned in the said Schedule; and the grand jury at any presenting term shall and may present (without previous application to presentment sessions) for each such officer, to be raised off the county at large, the amount of such annual salary as shall be agreed upon by said grand jury: Provided always, that in case of any negligent or insufficient discharge of duty by any such officer or officers, it shall and may be lawful to and for any grand jury, with the express sanction of the Court, but not otherwise, to present any sum or sums less in the whole than the annual salary by this Act specified to be paid to any such officer or officers, or to withhold and refuse to make any presentment whatever for any such officer or officers: Provided always, that on any vacancy occurring in the said offices, as set forth in Schedule No. 15. of this Act, either by death or otherwise, the person or persons appointed to fill said offices shall be paid according to Schedule (S.) in the Act, 6 & 7 Will. 4. c. 116.

XLVII. That before any clerk of the Crown or clerk of the peace and other officer in the said Schedule set forth shall be entitled to receive such salary as is hereby provided, he shall at each presenting term lay before the grand jury an account, verified on oath, and sworn and read in open court, setting forth the total amount of his fees and other emoluments, and distinguishing the several sums paid and received under each separate head of service, and the rates of fees or remunerations received on each; and it shall not be lawful for any grand jury to present any salary to be paid to any clerk of the peace unless it shall appear to them that he has given security, by recognizance, in the sum of 1,000*l*., for the due and faithful execution of his office of clerk of the peace, and that such recognizance has been duly deposited or recorded.

XLVII. That in case at any time a special commission shall be held within the said county for the trial of offenders, the grand jury, at the presenting term next immediately ensuing, shall and may, without previous application to presentment sessions, make a further presentment for the clerks of the Crown, sheriffs and judges' crier, not exceeding one-fourth of their annual salary, subject nevertheless to the like direction as hereinbefore given to any grand jury in case of neglect or insufficient discharge of duty by any officer.

XLVIII. That the presentments to be made under this Act for the secretaries of the several grand juries shall be in full acquittance of all demands to be made by such secretaries for stationery, which such secretaries shall be bound to furnish to the several grand juries without further charge, not however including the expense of printing herein specially provided for; such stationery however shall not be understood to include any books, notices, or abstracts which may be herein required, or which may be necessary for keeping the several accounts of the county; and it shall be lawful for the grand jury to present such sum or sums as may be necessary for defraying the expense of same.

XLIX. That it shall be lawful for the grand jury of the said county at each presenting term, without previous application to any presentment sessions, and they are hereby required to present all such sum or sums of money as may be necessary to defray the expense of providing and printing all such registry books and lists of registered voters as are or shall be required to be provided and printed by the several Acts now in force for regulating the election of members to serve in Parliament in Ireland, to be paid to the person or persons who shall have contracted for supplying and printing such books or lists, such sums to be raised off the county at large.

L. That it shall be lawful for the grand jury of the said county to present, to be raised off such county at large, the expense of providing and transmitting such copies of the imperial standard weights and measures, and the stamps to be used by the inspectors of weights and measures, as they are respectively directed to provide and transmit under and by virtue of an Act, 5 & 6 Will. 4. c. 63, intituled 'An Act to repeal an Act of the Fourth and Fifth Years of His present Majesty relating to Weights and Measures, and to make other Provisions instead thereof.'

LI. That it shall be lawful for the grand jury of the said county to present, to be levied off such county at large, without previous application at presentment sessions, such sum or sums of money as may be necessary, or shall have been expended under the direction of the Judges of the Court of Queen's Bench, or any grand jury or any finance committee, for or in suing any treasurer, high constable, or collector of any public money, or any of their sureties, executors, or administrators, for any misconduct, breach of duty, or non-payment, or for recovering any public money from any treasurer, high constable, or collector, or their sureties, executors, or administrators, or for suing any contractor under this Act, or under any Act, in force in Ireland at the time of the passing of this Act, his sureties, executors, or administrators, for any breach of contract, or any other necessary costs attending grand jury business: Provided always, that no such presentment shall be made unless there shall have been laid before such grand jury a bill, duly taxed and certified by the proper taxing officer, of the costs incurred for any of the purposes aforesaid, for which such presentment shall be required, nor unless it shall be proved that such costs could not be received from the person sued, or any other person liable to pay the same, and that the proceeding was instituted by the direction of the Judges of the Court of Queen's Bench, or a grand jury at some previous presenting term, or the finance committee.

LII. That whenever the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, by virtue of the powers and authorities given to him by an Act, 7 Geo. 4. c. 62, intituled 'An Act to make Provision for the uniform Valuation of Lands and Tenements in the several Baronies, Parishes, and other Divisions of Counties in Ireland, for the Purpose of the more equally levying of the Rates and Charges upon such Baronies, Parishes, and Divisions respectively,' and any Act amending the same, shall have ordered and directed any sum or sums of money to be advanced out of the produce of the Consolidated Fund of the United Kingdom arising in Ireland, for the defraying of the salary or the travelling or other expenses of any Commissioner of valuation, or for defraying the allowances of any valuers appointed under the provisions of the said recited Acts, or any of them, for purposes appertaining to the valuation of the said county, it shall and may be lawful for the grand jury of the said county, and they are hereby authorized and required, on the production of the certificate of the chief secretary of such Lord Lieutenant, or of the under secretary, of the amount of money advanced and paid as aforesaid, to present, (without previous application to presentment sessions), to be levied off the county, or any barony or baronies therein, the amount of the sum or sums stated in such certificate, in such manner and in such proportions as the said Lord Lieutenant shall direct; and when and so soon as the sum or sums so to be presented as aforesaid shall be raised and received, it shall be paid over by the finance committee in such manner, and to such bank or person, as the said Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury shall direct.

LIII. That it shall be lawful for the grand jury of the said county, application having been previously made at presentment sessions as hereinafter directed, to present such sum or sums of money as may be necessary for lowering any hill, or filling up any hollow, or both, on any public road, and for making the road thereon, with stones and gravel, or for building, rebuilding, repairing, altering, or enlarging any bridge, pipe, arch, or gullet, built of stones or bricks or wood, under or on any such road, or filling or gravelling over any such bridge, arch, pipe, or gullet, or for building or repairing any wall or part of a wall necessary to the support of, or to prevent any steep banks of earth from falling upon, any such road, or for erecting any fence, railing, or wall for the protection of travellers from dangerous precipices or holes on the side of any public road, to be raised either off the county at large, or off the barony or baronies in which the same may be locally situate.

LIV. That where a river or stream or where any road is the boundary between the county of Dublin and any other county, so as that one side of such road shall be in the said county and the other side in another county, it shall not be lawful for the grand jury of either county to present, to be raised on either county, or upon any barony of either county, more than one-half of the sum required for building, rebuilding, repairing, enlarging, or altering any bridge, pipe, arch, or gullet over such stream or river, or for repairing, making, or widening any such road; and no application for payment on account of any such presentment shall be allowed, unless an equal sum shall have been presented to be raised for the said work on the adjoining county, or some barony thereof.

LVI. That it shall be lawful for the grand jury to present any part of any public road to be widened to any breadth not more than fifty feet in the clear, or to narrow such roads as the surveyor may report to be unnecessarily wide, and to present all such sum or sums of money as shall be necessary for widening and fencing the same, or for gravelling, macadamizing, paving, fencing, repairing, or otherwise improving any part of any public road, or for filling up any grips or trenches on the sides of any public road, and making sufficient fences instead thereof, or for filling dykes or holes on the sides of any public road, or turning the backs of ditches to any road, or for making, widening, or deepening drains on the side of any such road, and carrying off the water therefrom, or for making any barony pounds, to be levied off the barony or baronies where the same shall be situate, and, on a requisition signed by any twenty rate-payers in any parish, to present any sum not exceeding 20*l.* for erecting a parish pound within any such parish, and such pound when so made shall be to all intents and purposes a good, sufficient, and lawful pound, and the sum so presented shall be apportioned and levied upon such parish.

LVII. That it shall be lawful for the grand jury of the said county at any presenting term to present any footpath to be made or repaired along the side of any road for which they may have authority to make presentment, and to present such sum or sums of money as may be necessary for making or repairing the same, to be levied off the barony or baronies in which such footpath shall be locally situate.

LVIII. That it shall be lawful for the grand jury of the said county to present any public road within such county, or any part of such public road, or any footpath upon the side of such road, to be gravelled or repaired with broken stone, or the battlements of any bridge upon such road to be kept in sufficient order and repair, by contract, for any space of time not exceeding five years, and also from time to time to present such sum or sums of money as shall be necessary for the execution of any of the above-mentioned works, and the payment of the person or persons with whom such contract for the execution of the same shall have been made, to be levied or raised off any barony or baronies in which such road may be locally situate, and when it passes through more than one barony then proportionally on each barony: Provided always, that in case it shall appear to any district surveyor, at any time during the continuance of any contract for keeping any road in repair, that such road is not in proper repair, he shall require the contractor to put the same in repair; and if such contractor shall neglect to do so within ten days after he shall have been so required, such surveyor shall cause the same to be repaired, and the expense thereof shall be deducted and repaid out of the sum which would be payable to such contractor if the road had been kept in proper repair.

LXIII. That it shall be lawful for the said grand jury at any presenting term to present any new road to be laid out and made of any width not less than sixteen feet nor more than fifty feet in the clear, and to present all such sum and sums of money as shall be necessary for laying out, or for forming, levelling, and draining, or for gravelling, paving, and making the same, and also for making fences thereto, to be levied on the barony in which the same shall be situate, and when it passes through more than one barony then proportionally on each barony: Provided always, that no presentment shall be made for laying out any such new road, unless, together with the application therefor, a map of such intended new road has been lodged with the secretary of the grand jury ten days at least before the day for holding the first presentment sessions previous to each presenting term in such county, and that a notice, setting forth that an application is intended to be made for a presentment to lay out such new road, (distinguishing the several townlands and baronies through which it is intended to be carried, with the number of perches in length through each townland,) has been personally served upon or left at the house of each occupier of the land through which such new road is intended to be made fifteen days at least before the day of holding such sessions, nor unless it shall appear that no part of such new road is to be made through any park inclosed with a wall built of lime and stone or bricks five feet high or more, without the consent of the owner thereof, and that no part thereof is to be made through any house entirely built with lime and stone or bricks, or through any office belonging to any person inhabiting a house so built, without the consent of such person.

LIX. That it shall be lawful for any person or persons to survey and measure any line intended for a new road for which a presentment is to be applied for, and for that purpose to enter in and upon any lands or premises through which such intended line may pass; provided, that such person or persons shall be thereunto authorized by a certificate in writing under the hand of one of the district surveyors, stating that such survey and entry to make the same is proper, and that such certificate shall be allowed by two Justices of the Peace for the said county, such allowance being signified under their hands by indorsement upon such certificate.

LX. That it shall be lawful for any two Justices of the Peace of the said county, upon the application of any of the district surveyors, to forbid any person or persons from riding or driving any kind of beast or carriage on any new road for such space of time as shall to them appear necessary, not exceeding six months after such new road shall have been made; and any person who shall wilfully disobey such order, the same being duly notified by a notice affixed to a board or boards erected upon such road, shall be liable to be fined any sum not exceeding 20*s.* for each offence, to be imposed by any Justice of the Peace of the said county, on his own view, or on the evidence of any one competent witness, and levied off the goods and chattels of such offender by warrant under the hand and seal of such Justice.

LXI. That it shall be lawful for the grand jury of the said county, after application made and approved of at the preceding presentment sessions, to present any old road in the said county which may appear to them to be useless to be stopped up, to every which presentment it shall be lawful for any person to enter a traverse at the then or the next presenting term; and if such traverse shall not be tried within a year after such presentment shall be made, and a verdict had in favour of such traverse, the presentment shall stand good and valid to all intents and purposes.

And after reciting that it is expedient that provision should be made for the more speedy and effectual repair of roads upon which Her Majesty's mails are carried:—

It is Enacted,

LXII. That it shall be lawful for the Commissioners acting under and in execution of an Act, 1 & 2 Will. 4. c. 33, intituled, 'An Act for the Extension and Promotion of public Works in Ireland,' or any other Act for amending the same, upon the application of Her Majesty's Postmaster General for the time being, setting forth and describing the line of any such road, or the portion of any such road, in the said county of Dublin, which may stand in need of repair, by and with the consent of the Lord Lieutenant or other chief governor or governors of Ireland, to cause such road, or such portion thereof as shall be described in such application, and any or every bridge, arch, or pipe, gullet, or wall thereon, to be forthwith put into good and sufficient repair accordingly, under the superintendence of one of the county surveyors; and that upon the application of the said Commissioners, setting forth what sum will be requisite and necessary from time to time for the purposes aforesaid, it shall and may be lawful for the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland to direct, by his warrant, that the sum or sums of money so required by the said Commissioners shall be advanced and paid to the said Commissioners out of the produce of the Consolidated Fund of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, to be applied under the directions of the said Commissioners in manner aforesaid.

LXIII. That in all cases in which, under the powers vested in them by law in that behalf, the Commissioners of Public Works in Ireland shall agree with the grand jury of the county of Dublin to grant one moiety of the expense of any road or other public work, on such grand jury bearing the payment of the other moiety thereof by presentment, it shall and may be lawful to and for the said Commissioners either to execute the said work by persons employed by them, or to permit such grand jury to cause the same to be executed in the manner required by the said recited Act or this Act in other public works of the like nature: Provided always, that it shall not be lawful for such grand jury in any case to make a presentment for payment of such moiety, except after and upon an application for such work duly made to and approved at a presentment sessions in the manner required by the said Act.

LXIV. That whenever the said Commissioners of Public Works in Ireland shall, under the provisions of this Act, or of the said Act, 1 & 2 Will. 4. c. 33, intituled, 'An Act for the Extension and Promotion of public Works in Ireland,' have undertaken the repair and maintenance of any public road, it shall and may be lawful for the said Commissioners at all times thereafter to exercise all and every the same powers and authorities which are herein vested in any surveyor or contractor of the said county roads, or otherwise howsoever, or as the said Commissioners, by the Act, 6 Geo. 4. c. 101, intituled, 'An Act to provide for the repairing, maintaining, and keeping in repair certain Roads and Bridges in Ireland,' are invested with, as far as the said Commissioners may consider the same or any of them necessary for the preservation and good order of such roads, and the removal of all nuisances thereon, as also for the purpose of obtaining materials for such repairs or maintenance which they shall have to undertake.

LXV. That whenever any such road or bridge, or any portion thereof, not being a turnpike road or bridge, shall be so put in good and sufficient repair, under the direction of the said Commissioners, the secretary to the said Commissioners shall deliver or cause to be delivered to the secretary of the grand jury of the said county a certificate of the amount of money which shall have been so expended upon the repair of any such road or bridge, or any portion thereof, and the other expenses aforesaid, together with an account of the items of such expenditure, certified by the said county surveyor or other person employed; and every such certificate and account shall at the next or some succeeding presenting term be laid before the grand jury of any such county, and thereupon the grand jury shall make presentment of the amount of such expenses, as stated in such certificate, to be raised off the barony or baronies in which such road shall be situate; and when and so soon as the sum so to be presented as aforesaid shall be raised and received it shall be paid over by the finance committee to such bank or person as the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, or any three or more of them, shall direct, or to such person or persons and in such manner as may be directed by the Paymaster of Civil Services in Ireland.

LXVI. Provided and enacted, That wherever any bridge which shall be repaired by the said Commissioners as aforesaid shall be situate partly in the said county of Dublin and partly in another the expense of repairing such bridge shall be borne and defrayed equally by such counties, and the certificates and presentments by this Act required shall be framed and made accordingly.

LXVII. That it shall be lawful to and for every Justice of the Peace in and for the said county of Dublin, not being a stipendiary magistrate, to attend, and all such Justices are hereby required to assemble from time to time, and with the cess-payers associated with them as hereinafter appointed to hold a special or presentment sessions for the purposes of this Act, in such place and places, and at such time and times, within such county, as the grand jury shall have appointed pursuant to the provisions hereinafter following; and at every meeting of such presentment sessions, whether for one district or for the county at large, the majority of the Justices then present shall choose one of their number to preside thereat, and that when only two Justices shall be present the senior of them shall preside, and that when only one Justice shall be present such Justice shall preside; and such chairman shall have in addition to his vote a casting voice, in case of an equality of voices.

LXVIII. That it shall be lawful for the grand jury of the said county and they are hereby required, at the Michaelmas term next after the passing of this Act, and at every succeeding presenting term, to appoint by presentment certain districts, consisting of one or more barony or baronies, for holding presentment sessions, and also certain places within the county, videlicet, one in each district, where, and certain times when, presentment sessions shall be successively holden, previous to the then next presenting term, for the purposes of this Act, as hereinafter set forth, and such presentment shall appoint the hours of the day between which such sessions shall be respectively holden, and such presentment shall appoint the last meeting of such sessions to be holden at the County Court House of Kilmaham for the county at large; and it also shall be lawful for the grand jury at every such presenting term to direct by presentment what number of copies of the schedules of applications to be made at each such sessions shall be printed and distributed by the secretary of the grand jury.

And for the purpose of enabling the grand jury to prepare such list of cess-payers as hereinafter mentioned,—

It is Enacted,

LXIX. That every high constable or other collector of money levied by grand jury presentment shall, on the day when the grand jury shall be first impanelled at Michaelmas term next after the passing of this Act, and at each succeeding presenting term, deliver to the secretary of the grand jury a return of the names and places of residence of the one hundred persons being males of full age, if so many there be, and if not, then of the whole number of persons resident or in actual occupation of lands, houses, or tenements in each district in said county, who, not being in holy orders, nor any minister of religion, and not being Justices of the Peace, shall have been charged with and shall have paid for land or houses actually occupied by them the highest sum or sums for grand jury rates or cess for and in respect of any lands or houses in such district under the last previous applotment, and that in such list he shall set forth the sum so paid by each such cess-payer respectively, and shall classify them according to the amount paid by each, and that the secretary shall immediately lay such return before the grand jury.

LXX. That every such grand jury as aforesaid shall fix and determine the number of persons, not being more than twelve nor less than five, proper, with reference to the extent and circumstances of each district, to be associated with the Justices at the presentment sessions to be holden therein for the purposes of this Act, and shall from the return aforesaid make out a list of treble the number so determined upon of persons, with their additions and abode, who, being males of full age, resident on and in actual possession of lands, houses, or tenements within such district respectively, shall, according to the return aforesaid, have paid the highest sum or sums for grand jury rates under the last previous applotment in each such district respectively: Provided always, that at every presenting term after the 1st of January 1845, except the first, the grand jury shall before they shall make out such list strike out of the return aforesaid the names of one-half of the persons whose names appeared on the list made at the then preceding presenting term, selecting in the first instance the names of the cess-payers who were associated and acted with the Justices at the presenting sessions.

LXXI. That the grand jury shall then cause the name of every person in such list for each district to be written upon separate pieces of parchment or card, as nearly as may be of equal size, with his respective additions and abode, which shall be put into a box for that purpose provided by the secretary of the grand jury; and the acting foreman shall in open court draw out one after another such number of the said cards or pieces of parchment as the said grand jury may have fixed and determined to be the proper number of cess-payers to be associated with the said Justice or Justices at each such sessions respectively; and such number of the said cess-payers so first drawn shall be associated with the said Justice or Justices, and shall with such Justices constitute the presentment sessions for such district, and have and exercise, jointly with such Justice or Justices, all power and authority in the business of such sessions.

LXXII. That the secretary of the grand jury shall forthwith signify by letter to each such cess-payer that he has been thus chosen as a member of the presentment sessions for his respective district, and shall notify to him the day on which such sessions are to be held; and every Justice shall, previously to acting at any presentment sessions, whether for any district, or for the county at large, make and subscribe in open court the declaration contained in the Schedule marked No. 1. to this Act annexed; and that every cess-payer associated with such Justice or Justices in manner aforesaid shall, previously to acting at any such sessions, make and subscribe in open court the declaration contained in the Schedule marked No. 2. to this Act annexed, which said declaration any one of such Justices, or the secretary of the grand jury, is hereby authorized and required to administer; and the chairman at each such sessions shall and he is hereby required to make out and deliver to the secretary of the grand jury a list of the names of all Justices and cess-payers who shall have made and subscribed such declarations respectively at the sessions where he had presided; and every such secretary shall from time to time, without unreasonable delay, deliver the said list, and all the declarations so made and subscribed, to the acting clerk of the peace, to be by him preserved among the records of the same county: Provided always, that if none of the cess-payers so chosen shall attend any presentment sessions to be held under this Act it shall be lawful for such Justice or Justices alone to do all matters and things authorized by this Act to be done thereat by the Justices and cess-payers associated in the business thereof.

LXXIII. That the Justices and cess-payers at each district presentment sessions shall select two of the cess-payers for such district to be associated with the Justices of the county as a member of the presentment sessions for the county at large; and the secretary of the grand jury shall make out a list of the persons so chosen at each district sessions, and shall read out the same previous to the appointment of the chairman for the presentment sessions for the county at large; and the persons so chosen shall together with the Justices as aforesaid form the presentment sessions for the county at large.

LXXIV. That all applications for works the expense whereof it may be by such application proposed to levy off the county at large shall be made at the presentment sessions to be holden for the county at large, and all applications for works the expense whereof may be proposed as aforesaid to levy off any barony shall be made at such presentment sessions as shall be holden for such barony: Provided always, that all applications for the works hereinafter mentioned shall be made at the presentment sessions holden for the barony in which the works included in such applications may be locally situate; (that is to say,) all applications for lowering any hill or filling up any hollow, or both, on any public road, and for making the road thereon with stones and gravel, or for building, rebuilding, repairing, altering, or enlarging any bridge, pipe, arch, or gullet built of stones or bricks or wood, under or on any such road, or filling or gravelling over any such bridge, arch, pipe, or gullet, or for building or repairing any wall or part of a wall necessary for the support of or to prevent any steep banks of earth from falling upon any such road, or in erecting any fence, railing, or wall for the protection of travellers from dangerous precipices or holes lying on the side of any public road, or for maintaining any dispensary.

LXXV. That the applications for any new works which it is proposed to charge upon two or more baronies in different presentment sessions districts of the said county, but not upon the county at large, shall and may be made at the presentment sessions holden for the barony off which it is proposed that the larger portion of the expense of such work is to be raised, without making the same at the presentment sessions for each of such baronies.

LXXVI. That every application to be made at presentment sessions shall be lodged with the secretary of the grand jury twenty-one days at least before the day appointed for the holding of the first presentment sessions in such county next before each presenting term; and such secretary shall keep an office open for the purpose of receiving such applications during ten days immediately preceding the last day upon which such applications are required to be lodged with the secretary; and the said applications shall be open to public inspection without fee or reward; and such secretary shall, on the receipt of each application, indorse or cause to be indorsed thereupon the time when the same is lodged, and number and arrange all such applications, as the works therein comprised may be proposed to be defrayed by the county at large or by any barony thereof, and shall make an abstract thereof and an index thereto, referring to the numbers which he shall mark on each application, and cause the same to be printed and distributed, and a copy thereof posted in each district; and such secretary shall produce and deliver all the applications which shall have been lodged with him or delivered at his office as aforesaid at the sessions proper, as hereinbefore provided, for the consideration of the same, together with the abstract thereof and the index thereto.

LXXVII. That the district surveyor shall examine all the applications so lodged with the secretary of the grand jury as aforesaid; and in case no application shall have been made for the necessary surface repairs of any public road or footpath, or for keeping up any public road or footpath during the ensuing year, or the keeping open of any drain adjoining any public road, or any other public work which to the said surveyor shall appear necessary, or likely to become necessary during the ensuing year, it shall be lawful and he is hereby required to make application for the same in the manner hereinafter appointed at the next presentment sessions to be holden for the county at large or barony by which the expense of such work ought to be defrayed; and it shall not be necessary for the said surveyor to lodge any application made by him with the secretary of the grand jury; but such application, being delivered to the chairman at such sessions, shall be dealt with therat in all respects in the same manner as the other applications which shall have been lodged with the secretary of the grand jury.

LXXVIII. That every application to presentment sessions for any presentment other than a public work shall be made by or on behalf of the person or persons requiring such presentment; and every application to any such sessions for any public work shall be made by two persons paying grand jury cess who can read and write, or by the district surveyor; and every application to presentment sessions, whether for a public work or any other purpose whatsoever, shall set out the title to the Act authorizing such presentment, with the year of the king's and queen's reign, chapter and section, as printed by her Majesty's printer, and shall specify the probable expense of the proposed work, and whether the money proposed to be raised thereunder is to be levied off the county at large, or some or what barony or other denomination of land thereof, and shall be made in some one of the Forms contained in the Schedule annexed to this Act, and marked Schedule No. 3., No. 4., No. 5., No. 6., and so forth, when any of such forms shall be found fitting and suitable; and every such application shall be signed by the person or persons by whom the same shall respectively be made, with his or their own proper hands; and it shall not be lawful, save as hereinafter provided, for the secretary of the grand jury to receive any application which shall not have been made in manner and form herein appointed.

LXXIX. That at each presentment sessions to be holden as hereinbefore provided the Justices and cess-payers associated in the business of such sessions shall take into consideration all such applications as may be laid before them in manner aforesaid, and examine into the posting or serving of the notices of all such applications, when a notice shall be necessary, and into the merits of such applications, and the conformity thereof with the provisions of this Act; and the said Justices and cess-payers shall after such examination decide by majority of voices upon every such application, and whether the same ought to be adopted or rejected, and whether wholly or in part, or conditionally in the event of the expense thereof not exceeding a certain specified sum, and what modification thereof, if any, may be proper; and if such Justices and cess-payers shall approve of any proposed work, either wholly or in part, or conditionally, or of any modification thereof, they shall, where necessary, save in the case of applications hereinafter otherwise provided for, direct the surveyor to prepare a proper form of tender for the execution of the same, together with such specifications, maps, plans, sections, or elevations as may be necessary, expressing the nature and extent of such works, and, if the sessions shall so direct, the quantity per perch, and the description of the materials proper to be employed in performing and executing the same, and the term within which such work ought to be completed, and the probable cost of maintaining the same for at least one year, and such other particulars as said Justices and cess-payers shall think fit; and such chairman shall indorse all applications accordingly, which shall be adopted and approved, and sign his name thereto, and deliver all such applications so indorsed to the secretary of the grand jury; and such surveyor shall deliver such form of tender, specifications, maps, plans, sections, or elevations in respect of the work to which each application shall relate, as soon thereafter as the same can be conveniently prepared, to the secretary of the grand jury; and the said Justices and cess-payers shall adjourn such sessions until some day not sooner than twenty-one days after the fiatting day of the then ensuing presenting term.

LXXX. That in case the Justices and cess-payers (at any presenting sessions) shall refuse to approve of any applications made for any public work it shall be lawful for any of the persons who made application at such sessions for such work to present a memorial to the Judges of the Court of Queen's Bench at the presenting term for the county, stating such application, and the disapproval thereof at the presenting sessions, and praying that the Judges may direct the grand jury to make a presentment for such work; and such memorial shall be lodged with the secretary of the grand jury at least six days before the first day of such presenting term, and the person presenting such memorial shall also cause to be inserted in some newspaper published or circulated in the county notice of his intention to apply at the next presenting term for such order, and such notice shall be published at least three times before the first day of such presenting term; and upon proof that such memorial and notices were lodged and published as hereby required it shall be lawful for the Judges of the Court of Queen's Bench, or any of them, to cause a jury to be impanelled to try and inquire whether such work is a proper one to be executed, and, if so, to ascertain and state the expense thereof; and if the jury shall find that such work is a proper work to be executed it shall be lawful for the Judge, if he shall think fit, to direct the grand jury to present that such work shall be done either for the sum stated by the jury to be sufficient for the execution thereof, or such lesser sum as they shall think proper, or to refuse to make such presentment: Provided always, that no such memorial shall be proceeded upon unless the memorialist shall, at the time of lodging such memorial with the secretary, deposit with him the sum of 20*l.* as a security for such cost and expenses as the Judge shall direct to be paid thereout to any person or persons who may appear to oppose such application, or any witness summoned to attend on the hearing of the application.

And in order to lessen the expense of keeping public roads in repair, and to obviate the necessity of making frequent applications to presentment sessions:—

It is Enacted,

LXXXI. That whenever any application shall be made in the manner hereinbefore provided for gravelling or repairing with small stones any public road, or for keeping open the drains on the side of any public road, or for gravelling or repairing any footpath on the sides of any such road, or for repairing the battlements of any bridge upon any such road, the Justices and cess-payers associated in the business of such sessions shall consider whether it may not be proper to contract for keeping such road or footpath in repair; and if they shall be of that opinion, they shall fix and determine the period, being not more than five years, for which it is expedient that a contract should be made for that purpose; and the surveyor shall insert such period in his specification and form of tender for such works.

LXXXII. That in case any person who shall have signed any application in pursuance of this Act shall die, or be prevented by sickness or any unavoidable necessity from appearing at such sessions, it shall be lawful for the Justice or Justices and cess-payers thereat, or for the grand jury, to examine any other person or persons who shall have knowledge of the matter, and to decide upon such application anything herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

LXXXIII. That so soon as may be possible after the presentment sessions shall have been holden at all the places and times appointed therefor in such county the secretary of the grand jury shall prepare and make schedules of the contents of all applications, save and except the applications to be certified as hereinafter provided, approved of wholly or in part, and which may have been delivered to him for such purpose by the chairmen at each sessions, including in one schedule all such applications for works proposed to be charged and raised on the county at large, and in other separate schedules (videlicet, one for each barony,) all such applications for works proposed to be levied upon each barony, arranging all such applications in alphabetical order, and noting on the face of each schedule the particulars of the decision of the presentment sessions on each application; and such secretary shall forthwith cause copies of such schedules to be printed and distributed in such manner as shall have been authorized and directed by grand jury presentment at the presenting term immediately preceding; and the said secretary shall deliver a copy of such schedules to the high sheriff of the county for the time being, and to each surveyor, and shall, on the day when the grand jury shall be next impanelled as hereinafter directed, deliver one copy of the said printed schedules, together with the several printed applications, with any specifications, maps, plans, sections, or elevations of the works to which such application shall relate, which shall have been prepared by the surveyor, annexed thereto, to the foreman of such grand jury, and shall also deliver another copy of the said schedules to the Judges of the Court of Queen's Bench; and the said secretary shall keep another copy of the said schedules in his office, for the inspection of the public, during three complete days at least immediately before the day when such grand jury shall be first impanelled, as hereinafter provided.

LXXXIV. That the grand jury shall, upon being impanelled and sworn as aforesaid, forthwith proceed to transact in open court all such business relating to presentments for raising money, public works, contracts, or the fiscal concerns of the county, as may be appointed for them, and to consider and decide upon all applications which shall be made for presentments, as hereinbefore provided, in the order in which the same shall be entered in the schedules to be prepared as aforesaid, beginning with the applications for works to be defrayed by the county at large, altering, where they may deem it necessary, the amount or time for executing each work, and examining all maps, plans, estimates, and specifications relating to each application; and the said grand jury shall be attended by their secretary and by the district surveyors, and shall hear and receive, and direct to be read aloud in open court, the several reports and certificates of any such surveyor, and shall have power and authority, at their discretion, to receive and obtain all legal and pertinent evidence which shall be tendered to them for or against the making any presentment, or in anywise relating thereto, or concerning any public work, or the execution of the same, if made wholly or in part at the expense of the county or any portion of the county, or any contract of or in respect of any of the matters aforesaid, and shall make presentments for all matters and things hereby directed to be presented for, specifying, in all presentments for county works, the maximum amount which shall be raised for the execution of such work, and whether such amount is to be raised off the county at large, or off any barony or parish or other denomination thereof, as the case may be; and the said grand jury shall sit de die in diem until all the business which may come before them of the nature hereby described be despatched; and if the whole of such business shall be concluded before the day appointed for sitting the presentments, then the said grand jury may adjourn to such day; and every grand juror who shall not attend pursuant to such adjournment may be fined by the Judge for such non-attendance in any sum not exceeding 10*l*. at the discretion of the said Judge.

LXXXV. That it shall not be lawful for any grand jury of the said county, any law, usage, or custom to the contrary notwithstanding, to make a presentment for any public work whatsoever, or for raising any money, for which an application shall not have been made and approved at sessions, either wholly or in part, as hereinbefore provided, save and except such presentments as may be herein specially excepted, and also save and except such presentments as may be necessary for the immediate repairs of sudden breaches or damages in roads, bridges, gulleys, walls, or buildings, which have happened so recently as not to admit of the proper applications having been made in manner before provided; which fact, together with the necessity for the immediate execution of such repairs, shall be proved before the grand jury upon oath; and in such case, although such application as aforesaid shall not have been lodged or approved as aforesaid, such grand jury shall nevertheless have power and authority to present for such repairs any sum of money in such case necessary, and to authorize and empower any of the district surveyors to advertise for contracts for the execution of such work, such contracts to be laid before the next district sessions, or to execute such works, and account for the execution to the finance committee, as to such grand jury shall seem fit; and the finance committee of the county shall, out of any monies to their credit available to the general purposes of the county, advance to such surveyor from time to time the monies, not exceeding the sum presented for such repairs, which may be required therefor; and such monies so advanced shall be replaced by the monies raised and levied under the presentment which the grand jury have been hereinbefore authorized to make for such purpose.

LXXXVI. That the secretary of the grand jury shall, immediately after the sitting day of each presenting term, upon being furnished by each surveyor with the specification or form of tender for the execution of any such work as aforesaid, and the maps, plans, sections, and elevations belonging thereto, notify, by public advertisement or otherwise, in such manner as the grand jury shall have directed, his readiness to receive sealed tenders and proposals for the execution of such work during such period as shall have been appointed by the same authority for the reception of the same, and the time to which such sessions has adjourned for the opening of such tenders and proposals, and that forms thereof may be obtained at his office or elsewhere; and such secretary shall accordingly cause to be printed and prepared a sufficient number of forms of such tenders and proposals, and furnish to any person who shall demand the same a copy thereof, receiving therefor the reasonable cost of preparing the same, not exceeding the sum of 3*d.*, and also take such other means as the grand jury shall direct for placing such forms within reach of persons who may have occasion to use them; and each of such tenders and proposals shall be returned to him sealed or in an envelope, and shall contain a statement of the lowest sum for which the party making such proposal is willing to contract for the performance of the work or works specified and described in such notification, and shall be subscribed with the name, description, and residence of the party so desirous to enter into such contract, and also the names, descriptions, and residences of not less than two sufficient persons willing to be bound jointly and severally with him for the due and faithful performance of the said contract within the time and in the manner thereby prescribed, in a penal sum, double the amount of the said sum mentioned in such tenders and proposals, if the said sum shall not exceed 1000*l.*, but if such shall exceed 1000*l.* then in a penal sum exceeding the sum mentioned in such tenders and proposals by 1000*l.* in addition thereto; and all maps, plans, sections, and specifications relating to any such work prepared by the surveyor shall be open to public inspection in the office of such secretary, without fee or reward.

LXXXVII. That at the meeting of each such adjourned presentment sessions as aforesaid the secretary of the grand jury shall in open court produce, duly numbered and arranged, and with the seals unbroken, all the tenders and proposals which may have been delivered to him, and shall open consecutively all those relating to the same public work; and so soon as the lowest proposal made for the performance of each such work shall be ascertained, the party making such proposal, and his surety, shall be called; and if the said party and his sureties shall appear, and shall satisfy the Justices and cess-payers at such sessions, upon oath or otherwise, of the sufficiency and ability of each and every of them to answer and make good the penalty hereinbefore specified for the nonperformance of such contract, and that such proposal has not been made for any unfair or fraudulent purpose, and shall thereupon enter into security for the due performance of such contract, conditioned in such penalty as aforesaid, in the form set forth for that purpose in the Schedule No. 13., such proposal shall be accepted, and the party making the same shall be declared entitled to execute the work to which such proposal may refer, unless there shall appear some reason for rejecting it; but if the party making such proposal, and his sureties, shall not appear when called, or shall fail to satisfy the Justices and cess-payers at such sessions in any of the particulars aforesaid, or shall decline to enter into such security as aforesaid, or if the presentment sessions shall see cause to reject it, then and in such case the proposal of the party making default as aforesaid shall be deemed null and void to all intents and purposes whatsoever, and the next lowest proposal shall be ascertained and dealt with in the same manner, and so on till the said security shall be entered into and the contract duly completed: Provided always, that if no proposal shall be made in respect of any work within the time limited for receiving such proposals, or if no proposal or tender shall be approved of by the presentment sessions, it shall and may be lawful for the said presentment sessions, if they think proper, to give such work in charge to the district surveyor, with power to expend a sum not exceeding the maximum fixed as aforesaid; and such surveyor shall cause such work to be executed, and shall account for the execution thereof to the finance committee in manner hereinafter directed.

LXXXVIII. That such security so to be entered into by contractors under this Act, and their sureties, shall be a recognizance to Her Majesty, her heirs and successors, and of like force, validity, and effect as other recognizances made to the Queen's Majesty; and at such adjourned presentment sessions any Justices present, or the chairman, are and is hereby authorized to take such recognizance; and the secretary of the grand jury shall prepare the same, and come provided therewith, so as to prevent delay; and the expense of preparing the same, not exceeding 6*d.*, shall be defrayed by the party or parties entering thereto; and such recognizance shall be preserved in custody of such secretary until the condition of such recognizance shall have been fulfilled, and shall then be delivered up to the contractor or contractors therein named, or to any person by him or them duly authorized, to be cancelled.

LXXXIX. That the secretary of the grand jury shall have charge of all such contracts as aforesaid, and shall provide and keep a book in which he shall insert an abstract of all such contracts, setting out the names of the several contractors, and the particulars of each contract; and, in the case of roads for the keeping in repair of which contracts may be or shall have been made, setting out the places whence and to which each road contracted for leads, and at what milestone, mearing, or noted place each road or part of a road under the charge of such contractor commences and ends, or the names of the occupiers of the lands where his contract commences and ends, and the number of perches of road included in each contract, and the rate per perch at which each contract has been entered into, and the whole annual sum which each contractor is to be paid, and the period for which each contract is made; and all contracts so entered in such book shall be numbered, and every such book shall have an alphabetical index referring to the number of each contract.

XC. That it shall be lawful for the grand jury at each presenting term and they are hereby required to appoint a finance committee, consisting of not more than twelve nor fewer than seven persons, residents within the county or city of Dublin, and being occupiers or owners of lands or houses within the county or city of Dublin, and being occupiers or owners of lands or houses within the county of the value of 50*l.* at the least; and such persons shall constitute the finance committee of the county, and shall have full power and authority to do, execute, and perform all such matters and things as the finance committee are by this Act authorised to do; and in default of the grand jury at any presenting term so appointing a finance committee it shall and may be lawful to and for the Judges of the Court of Queen's Bench and they are hereby required to make such appointment.

XCI. That the finance committee of the said county shall hold their first meeting at such time and place as shall be appointed by the grand jury, whereof public notice shall be given in such manner as shall be directed by the said grand jury, and shall meet from time to time, and adjourn from place to place, as they shall think proper, and as occasion shall require:

and at all meetings three members shall constitute a quorum; and one of the members present shall be appointed chairman, and shall be entitled to vote on all questions, and in case of an equal division of votes upon any subject such chairman shall have an additional or casting vote; and the secretary of the grand jury shall attend the meetings of the finance committee, and shall act as their secretary, and make minutes of their proceedings, and render them such assistance from time to time as they may direct.

XCII. That the Justices and associated rate-payers at each adjourned district presentment sessions shall appoint two fit and proper persons to act as road wardens for such district until the next adjourned district presentment sessions, or until others shall be appointed for such district; and it shall be the business and duty of such road wardens, within their respective districts, to examine into and report upon the state of the roads and other county works, whether in progress of repair or otherwise, to the presentment sessions, to the grand jury, and the finance committee, and to abate nuisances, and prosecute persons guilty of any offence against this Act.

XCIII. That immediately before the closing of each adjourned presentment sessions, whether for any district or for the county at large, the secretary of the grand jury shall prepare a list of the sums payable to each contractor, with a statement of the nature of the contracts entered into at such sessions, and setting forth likewise the amount which any district surveyor may be authorized at such sessions to expend upon any road or work, and the chairman shall certify the accuracy of the same by his signature; and such lists so certified shall be laid before the finance committee at their first meeting, and a copy thereof shall be entered on the minutes, together with a copy of all other presentments made by the grand jury, and filed by the Court, under the authority of this or any other Act, and of the names of the persons in whose favour such presentments may have been made; and it shall be lawful for the finance committee from time to time, and as the funds of the county admit, to make orders for the payment of all persons entitled to payment under presentments of the grand jury made by the authority of this or any other Act; and every order shall be signed by the chairman for the time being of the finance committee, and two other members thereof, and countersigned by the secretary of the grand jury, and by him delivered to the person entitled to the same.

XCIV. That any person who may contract for the execution of any work under this Act shall on the completion of such work, or whensoever by the terms of such contract he may be entitled to payment, give notice, in Form Schedule No. 11. or 12., as the case may be, to the district surveyor, and also to one of the road wardens, fifteen days at the least before the day appointed for the next meeting of the finance committee, of his intention to make application for payment, and to require such district surveyor or road warden to examine and report upon the execution of such work or performance of such contract; and such contractor shall also lodge with the secretary of the grand jury, fifteen days at least before the next meeting of the finance committee, a similar notice of his intention to apply for payment; and the secretary of the grand jury shall arrange all such notices, and annex to each the number by which the contract in respect whereof such notice or certificate may be given is distinguished in the book of abstracts which such secretary is hereby directed to keep, and indorse on such notice the date of the lodgment of the same; and such secretary shall lay all such notices before the finance committee, who shall examine into all such applications for payment, and inspect the notices and certificates, and examine the district surveyor or road warden, and all other persons whom they may think it necessary to examine, for the purpose of ascertaining the due execution of the work or matter contracted for, which examination may be upon oath in cases in which the finance committee deem it necessary or advisable; and the chairman of the finance committee is hereby authorized to administer the oath; and the said finance committee, upon being satisfied that the party so applying is justly entitled to payment, may give an order for the payment of the whole or such portion of the sum in consideration whereof the contract may have been made as they shall deem just and right.

XCV. That if at any time the finance committee shall refuse to order payment to the contractor according to the terms of his contract, or to any other person engaged in the execution of any county work under the authority of this Act, and who on the due execution thereof would be entitled to such payment, they shall set forth the grounds of such refusal; and if such contractor or other person shall feel himself aggrieved thereby it shall be lawful for such person to present a memorial to the Judges of the Court of Queen's Bench at the next Easter or Michaelmas term, stating the terms of his contract or the circumstances of his case, and the refusal by such finance committee to order payment, and praying that the Judges may direct the grand jury to cause inquiry to be made into the facts stated in such memorial; and such memorial shall be lodged with the secretary of the grand jury at least one month before the first day of such term; and such secretary shall make known the same to the finance committee; and upon proof that such memorial was so lodged it shall be lawful for the Judges of the Court of Queen's Bench, if they shall see reason so to do, to cause a jury to be impanelled to try and inquire whether or not such sum was rightly due to such contractor according to the terms of his contract; and if the jury shall find in the affirmative it shall be lawful for the Judges of the Court of Queen's Bench to order the payment of such sum, not exceeding the amount of the contract, as to them shall seem just and proper; and it shall be lawful for the finance committee, at their next meeting, and they are hereby required, on a copy of the order for such payment being produced, to sign an order for the amount specified in such presentment: Provided always, that no memorial shall be proceeded upon, unless the memorialists shall, at the time of lodging such memorial with the secretary, deposit with him the sum of 10*l*. as a security for such costs and expenses as the Judges may direct to be paid thereout to any person who may appear to oppose such application or any witness summoned to attend on the hearing of the application.

XCVI. That at least twenty-one days previous to the commencement of the presenting term in each year a special meeting of the finance committee shall be called by the secretary, for the purpose of making up the county accounts for the preceding year; and a separate account shall be kept and made out and balance struck for each barony, and a statement shall be made of the sums not paid on account of presentments, and of the amount not received on account of the assessment upon each barony; and the finance committee shall classify the amounts paid by them during the year, according to the purposes for which the payments were made; and the accounts when made up shall be signed by the chairman of the finance committee, and shall be laid before the grand jury on the first day of the then ensuing presenting term; and such accounts shall recite the authority under which each payment shall have been made, and a copy or abstract thereof shall be printed with the abstract of presentments; and it shall be lawful for the grand jury to present any balance which after examination of the accounts may appear to be due by the county at large or any barony, such balance to be raised off the county at large or such barony respectively: Provided always, that the accounts of the finance committee shall be transmitted by the secretary to the proper office, and shall be examined and audited in the same manner and subject to the same regulations as the accounts of county treasurers, under and by virtue of an Act, 7 Will. 4. & 1 Vict. c. 54, intituled, 'An Act to provide more effectual Means to make Treasurers of Counties and Counties of Cities in Ireland account for public Monies, and to secure the same.'

xcvii. That the clerk of the Crown for the said county of Dublin shall, within fourteen days after the fiating day of each presenting term, deliver to the secretary of the grand jury, without fee or reward, a copy, attested upon oath, and signed by himself, of all presentments which have been made and fiated at such presenting term, and likewise copies of all queries discharged and remaining undischarged, distinguishing the same; and the secretary of the grand jury shall from such copy forthwith make out an estimate of the amount to be raised in each barony or portion of a barony or parish in the county during the ensuing year under the authority of the baronial or local presentments made during such presenting term, and to meet the probable baronial expenditure during the ensuing year, and also of the amount to be raised upon each such barony respectively to defray its proportion of the general county charges under the authority of the presentments upon the county at large made during such term, and to meet the probable expenditure on the county at large during the ensuing year, and shall lay the same before the finance committee at their first meeting; and the finance committee shall consider and revise such estimate, and shall then declare and strike the amount to be levied off each barony and parish or denomination during the ensuing year, as well on account of the baronial charges as upon account of charges upon the county at large.

And after reciting that a valuation of the county of Dublin is now in progress under the provisions of an Act, 6 & 7 Will. 4. intituled, 'An Act to consolidate and amend the several Acts for the uniform Valuation of Lands and Tenements in Ireland;' but it is necessary to make provision for the apportionment of the county charges upon each barony, and of the baronial charges upon each parish in the said county, until the period when such valuation shall be completed;—

xcviii. That for the purpose of enabling the finance committee to make such apportionment the secretary of the grand jury shall obtain from the clerks of the several poor law unions, the whole or any portion of which may be situate within the county of Dublin, a return of the amount of the last valuation made by the guardians of each union respectively of every parish and townland within such union which is situate in the said county of Dublin, which return the clerk of every such union is hereby required to make, and to certify under his hand to be correct; and the amount set forth in such certificate as the value of every parish or townland shall be taken to be the value of such parish or townland for the applotment or apportionment of the county charges under this Act: Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall authorize or empower the finance committee to make or apportion the county charges according to such valuation for any longer period than until the survey and valuation under the said Act, or any Act to amend the same, shall be completed, and a copy thereof inserted in the Dublin Gazette as directed in said Acts; and that from and after the first day of the presenting term next following such publication all county cess charges whatsoever, and all grand jury charges or rates imposed or to be imposed on the said county of Dublin by presentments of the grand jury, or to be raised off such county, or any barony, parish, or townland thereof, and all parish rates imposed or to be imposed, or levied, or to be levied, under the authority of any Act or Acts, shall be assessed and levied off such county, and off every barony, parish, or townland therein, according to the proportions specified in such Act; any law, usage, or custom, or any former assessment or valuation, to the contrary in anywise notwithstanding.

xcix. That the finance committee, having duly ascertained the proportion of the county charges to be raised upon each barony, parish, or denomination according to such valuation, shall issue their warrant, under the hand and seal of the chairman of the committee, and countersigned by the secretary of the grand jury, to the several collectors, for levying and collecting the sums to be raised off each parish, which warrant shall set forth the amount to be raised off such barony, parish, or denomination by virtue of the presentments by the grand jury with any uncollected arrears of the last warrant, and shall remain in force and effect for the term of two years next after the date thereof, notwithstanding the death, resignation, or removal of the person to whom it was addressed; and shall authorize any collector for the time being to execute the same, unless the sums required by such warrant to be levied shall have been received, or unless the grand jury shall have re-presented the same; and the person to whom such warrant is directed shall, within ten days after he has received the same, deliver or send to the churchwardens of each parish or denomination of land contained in such warrant, or in case there be no churchwarden of the same, then to any principal residing inhabitant, a transcript of the said warrant, setting forth the sum he is required to levy upon the said parish or denomination, and to desire that the sum may be applotted thereon; and every person who shall receive such account is hereby required under the penalty of 10*l.*, to be recovered by civil bill by any person who shall sue for the same, to post up within six days after the receipt thereof, on the door of the church or the usual place for posting notices in said parish or denomination, a notice signed by himself, setting forth that the landholders and householders of (here insert the name of parish, &c.) are hereby required to meet at (place of meeting), on the (here insert a day, not less than ten days or more than twenty from the date of such notice), to choose two or more persons to applot the sum of (here insert the sum) required to be levied upon such parish or denomination by the warrant of the finance committee of the county; and at such meeting the landholders and householders then present shall choose two or more persons to be applotters; and the persons so chosen shall, within fourteen days from the time they shall be so chosen, applot the sum so to be levied upon such parish, townland or denomination, fairly and justly according to the relative annual value of the several lands, tenements, and houses therein contained, stating as accurately as they can the name of the occupier of each house or tenement, and shall make oath before any Justice of the Peace for such county that they have made the said applotment justly, according to the best of their skill, without favour, affection, or malice, the jurat of which oath shall be indorsed on the applotment; and such applotters shall deliver such applotment, so verified upon oath, to the person empowered to collect such grand jury cess, under the penalty of forfeiting for every day they shall omit to deliver the same, after the said fourteen days, the sum of 20*s.*, to be recovered by civil bill by any person who shall sue for the same; and the collector, on receiving such full and sufficient applotment, is hereby required and authorized to levy the said money according thereto; and in case no full and sufficient applotment shall be returned within twenty days after the time fixed for the appointment of the applotters, then in such case it shall be lawful for such collector himself to applot the sum required by the warrant to be levied off such parish or denomination on the several lands, premises, and houses therein, according to the best of his judgment: Provided always, that no house shall be included in any such applotment, or shall be liable to county cess, the yearly value of which shall not be at the least 5*l*.

c. That it shall be lawful for the finance committee to pay to any person or persons who may so applot the amount directed to be levied upon any parish or denomination a sum not exceeding 20*s*. for each parish or denomination, on being satisfied that such applotment was duly and accurately made, and also to pay to the clerk of each union such sum, not exceeding 40*s*., as to such finance committee shall seem reasonable, for his trouble in preparing the valuation hereinbefore directed to be given to such finance committee.

ci. That every person duly authorized to levy any grand jury cess off any barony, as soon as he shall have received or shall have made the applotment of such cess, shall forthwith proceed to collect and levy one moiety thereof according to such applotment, and the other moiety thereof after six calendar months from the date of such warrant; and each of such moieties may be levied by distress and sale of any goods and chattels of every person refusing to pay the proportion therein applotted for him or her to pay, which may be found on the premises chargeable, rendering to the owner the overplus, if any, after deducting the expenses of distraining, not exceeding 12*d*. in the pound on the sum for which such distress may have been made; or in case the collector shall not think it expedient to proceed by distress, then and in such case such collector shall leave or cause to be left at the dwelling house or usual place of residence of the party chargeable for or in respect of such premises a notice bearing date the day and year of serving the same, subscribed with the name and abode of such collector, requiring payment of the sum or moiety of the sum applotted within six days from the date of such notice, and expressing that within six days the money demanded may be paid to the collector at his house or office; and if such money be not so paid within such time then it shall be lawful for such collector to prefer a complaint to any Justice of the Peace for the county in which the party may reside, and such Justice shall summon the party so complained against to appear before him and answer the said complaint, and shall, at the time specified in such summons, examine into the matter of such complaint on oath (which oath the Justice is hereby empowered to administer), and shall direct the payment to such collector of such money as he shall find due and payable under such applotment by the party complained against, together with a sum certain as and for such reasonable costs and charges as to such Justice shall seem meet; and in default of the appearance of such party, or upon his or her refusal or neglect forthwith to pay the sum or sums so by such Justice directed to be paid, it shall and may be lawful for such Justice, or for any Justice of the Peace for the county, to issue his warrant authorizing and empowering the said collector to levy the money thereby ordered to be paid by distress and sale of the goods or chattels of the party so complained against which may be found within any part of such county, rendering the overplus, if any, to him or her, the necessary charges and expenses of distraining being thereout first deducted as directed by such Justice; and if sufficient distress cannot be found within the same county, then, on oath thereof made before any Justice of the Peace of any other county in which any of the goods and chattels of such party shall be found (which oath such Justice shall administer, and certify by indorsing in his handwriting his name on the warrant granted to make such distress), the goods or chattels of such party so refusing or neglecting to pay as aforesaid shall be subject and liable to such distress and sale in such other county where the same may be found, and may by virtue of such warrant and certificate be distrained and sold in the same manner as if the same had been found within such first-mentioned county.

cii. That the sum or proportion of grand jury cess to be raised off each barony under the warrant of the finance committee, and duly applotted for any person to pay, shall be a charge upon the lands and premises, houses and tenements, mentioned in such warrant and applotment, and shall be paid and payable by the person or persons occupying the premises respectively at the time such cess is levied thereout, although such person or persons did not occupy the same at the time such cess was imposed, and, when the sum payable by any person or persons does not exceed 50*l*., may be sued for by civil bill, in the name of the collector, before the chairman of the sessions of the county of Dublin, or assistant barrister having jurisdiction to hear and determine causes by civil bill in the county, place, or district in which the person liable to pay the same resides.

ciii. That every person duly authorized to collect and levy the grand jury cess aforesaid shall on or before the first day of each month, or so often as he shall have received 100*l*., pay into the Bank of Ireland, to the credit of the finance committee, the sums he may have received up to such period, and shall furnish to the secretary of the grand jury an account of the sums so received, setting forth particularly any sums received on account of arrears of cess, and shall, at all times when required so to do, exhibit to the finance committee any books, applotments, accounts, or vouchers which they may require; and any collector receiving any sums of money, under colour of his warrant, otherwise than according to the applotment, or neglecting or refusing to furnish to the finance committee such information, accounts, and vouchers as they may at any time require, or not using due diligence in the collection of the county rate, may be suspended or dismissed from his office by such finance committee; and immediately upon his suspension or dismissal he shall deliver up to the secretary of the grand jury his warrant, applotment, and all other papers, accounts, or documents of or belonging to his office as collector; and if any such person shall refuse or neglect to deliver up such warrant, applotment, papers, accounts, and documents, when required to deliver them by an order of the finance committee, it shall be lawful for the finance committee to direct the secretary of the grand jury to summon such person before any Justice of the Peace for the said county, who may commit such person to the county gaol, there to be detained till such documents be delivered up: Provided always, that no collector shall be dismissed as aforesaid without a special summons of the said finance committee by the secretary of the grand jury, and that at such special meeting not less than five members do constitute a quorum.

civ. That it shall be lawful for the finance committee to add to the amount of the warrant issued by them in respect of each barony the amount of the collector's fees upon the sums to be collected for such barony, and the same shall be collected and paid into bank by each collector, together with the sums presented by the grand jury; and when one moiety of the sum make or sign more than one order for the expenditure of any sum as aforesaid for the reparation of the like sudden damage between the termination of one presenting term and the commencement of another.

cx. That if any person shall, at any time after the 1st of January 1845, by himself, his friends or agents, directly or indirectly give or promise to give any money, or any security for money, or other consideration, to any person or persons, in order to procure the appointment to the office of clerk of the peace, secretary of the grand jury, surveyor, or any other office or employment in this Act mentioned, or in order to procure the resignation of any person or persons holding such office, or in order to influence the votes of the persons who may have the appointment to such office, he shall be incapable of holding any such office or employment, and shall forfeit for every such offence a sum of 100*l.* to any person who will sue for the same; and such sum may be recovered by civil bill before the chairman of Kilmainham, or by action in any of the superior courts; and every person appointed to any such offices at any time after the 1st of January 1845 shall, at the presenting term next after his appointment, subscribe in open court before the foreman of the grand jury, and deliver to him, a declaration in the Form in Schedule No. 16. to this Act annexed, and the same shall be preserved by the clerk of the crown among the records of the county; and no presentment shall be made for any salary to any such officer until he shall have so subscribed and delivered such declaration.

cxl. That nothing in this Act contained shall be construed to limit or affect the powers, duties, or authorities of grand juries to make any presentments which they are authorized or required to make under and by virtue of an Act, 7 Geo. 4. c. 74, intituled 'An Act for consolidating the Laws relating to Prisons in Ireland:' Provided always, that it shall not be lawful for any grand jury to make any presentment under the provisions of the said recited Act for any salary or compensation to any keeper, turnkey, or matron of any gaol, penitentiary, bridewell, or house of correction, or for building, rebuilding, altering, enlarging, or repairing any gaol, bridewell, house of correction, or other prison, (except in the case of repairs made under the provisions of the said recited Act, in consequence of any fire or other sudden accident which may happen to any such gaol, bridewell, house of correction, or other prison,) unless application for such presentment shall have been made and approved at presentment sessions in the manner hereinbefore directed and provided: Provided also, that all contracts which any grand jury is authorized to make or enter into under the provisions of the said recited Act shall be made by sealed tenders and proposals to be delivered, opened, and dealt with, and security to be taken, in like manner as hereinbefore provided with respect to other contracts for public works, anything in the said recited Act to the contrary notwithstanding: Provided also, that no such contract shall be entered into, nor any presentment made thereupon, save upon and after an application made and approved at presentment sessions, as hereinbefore directed.

cxli. That it shall be lawful for any grand jury at any presenting term to re-present any such sums of money as now are or at any time hereafter shall be unpaid or in arrear out of any denomination or barony to be raised and levied on such denominations or barony upon which the same was originally required by the warrant of the finance committee to be levied, and to present all such sums of money which have hitherto been or which shall at any time hereafter remain unpaid on account of the absconding or insolvency of any collector or other person empowered to receive or collect public money who is or shall be insolvent, without prejudice to the liability of such collector or of his sureties, to be raised and levied either upon the county or upon the barony in which the same was before levied, as they shall think fit, which sums shall be levied in the same manner, and subject to the same rules, regulations, provisions, and powers, as any money to be levied by virtue of this Act is to be subject; and in case any money so in arrear or so detained by any collector or other person empowered to collect or receive public money shall be thereafter recovered, it shall be paid to the credit of the finance committee; and such money so paid, and any balance, arrears of or surplus on the salary of any county officer, and all other such like surplus and balances of money raised by authority of this Act, or which may any how arise to the credit of the finance committee, shall be applicable to defray the expenses of any public work, or any county charge whatsoever which the grand jury are authorized to present under the provisions of this Act, and shall be presented by the grand jury for such of the said purposes as to them shall seem expedient: Provided always, that such sum shall be applied to the credit of the barony off which it was originally levied: Provided also, that before it shall be lawful for any grand jury to re-present any sum of money as unpaid or in arrear out of any barony or denomination it shall be made to appear by affidavit of the collector to such grand jury that such sum is actually in arrear and unpaid by such barony or denomination respectively, and that it could not have been levied from the persons or out of the lands or houses charged with or liable to pay the same.

And after reciting, that in the county of Dublin an accumulation of insolvent arrears of grand jury cess has taken place, by reason of the grand jury thereof in certain cases not having possessed any power by law to re-present for such arrears, and in consequence thereof the county at large, and several of the baronies therein, have become largely indebted to the public, and it is expedient that the grand jury should become empowered to discharge such debts respectively by instalments:—

cxlii. That within one calendar month after the 1st of January 1845 the treasurer of the county shall transmit to the chief or under secretary for Ireland a detailed account of the debt which shall be then due by the said county at large, together with the causes of such debts respectively having accrued, and shall certify the same to be true and correct in every particular; and the Lord Lieutenant in council shall thereupon cause an inquiry and examination to be made into the items and facts stated in such account, and shall transmit to the grand jury, through the chief or under secretary for Ireland, his or their warrant, which shall state the amount of the debt (if any) which upon inquiry shall appear to be due by such county at large, or barony, and the number of instalments by which the same shall be paid; and it shall be lawful for such grand jury, and they are hereby required, at the presenting term at or next after which they shall have received such warrant as aforesaid, to present, without previous application at presentment session, for the first of such instalments respectively, and so from time to time shall continue to present, according to the exigency of the said warrant, until the whole of such debt (stated therein) shall have been liquidated and paid off; and such presentment shall be levied and accounted for in like manner as any other presentment under this Act.

cxiv. That it shall be lawful for the secretary of the said county for the time being to effect a policy or policies of insurance against fire on any public building or other public property which he shall be directed by the grand jury to insure, and for such sum as he shall be so directed; and such policy shall vest in the secretary for the time being, and the sum thereby secured shall be payable to him as part of the public fund of such county, and shall be lodged by him to the credit of the finance committee, and shall be applied to public purposes, from time to time, as the grand jury shall direct, by any presentment, sanctioned and approved of by the Judges of the Court of Queen's Bench, at the presenting term at which such presentment may be made; and the grand jury shall have the power, without any previous application at the sessions, and are hereby required to present, to be levied off the county at large, the premium and other charges payable on such policy, and for continuing the same; and the finance committee shall from time to time pay such premium.

And after reciting, that for the purpose of diminishing the expense to which many counties in Ireland are at present subjected in keeping in repair short lines of roads which from time to time have been made by such counties as improvements upon old lines of turnpike roads, it is expedient that the trustees and directors of turnpike roads and the grand juries of counties in Ireland should in certain cases and by mutual agreement have a power of exchanging such roads or portion of roads:—

It is Enacted,

cxv. That from and after the 1st of January 1845 it shall be lawful for the trustees and directors of any line of turnpike road, or any five or more of them, in any case wherein they may deem it expedient, to adopt as part of such line of turnpike road the whole or any part of any road made and hitherto kept in repair by county presentment, first having the consent in writing of the grand jury of the county through which such road may pass at any presenting term, signifying that it will be for the advantage of the public that such road or portion of road shall become a part of such line of turnpike road, in place of the old turnpike road or portion of old turnpike road, as an improvement upon which such new line of road may have been made by such county as aforesaid; and from and after the last day of the presenting term or assizes in which such consent shall have been signed such road or portion of road so theretofore made and repaired by presentment shall to all intents and purposes be deemed to form and shall form a part of such turnpike road; and the trustees and directors of such line of turnpike road shall have the same powers with respect to such road or portion of road so adopted by them as they had by law over the portion of old turnpike road so given up by them to the grand jury aforesaid: Provided always, that notice of such exchange of road, signed by the trustees and directors of the turnpike road on the one part, and the foreman of such grand jury on the other part, shall be published in the Dublin Gazette, and one or more of the Dublin newspapers, as soon as may be after the signing of such exchange as aforesaid.

cxvi. That it shall not be lawful for the trustees of any turnpike road, or the collectors of any turnpike toll gate, to enforce payment of any toll for any horse or other animal passing through the said gate, unless the same shall have travelled more than one hundred yards on the said road on the same day.

And after reciting that part of the road from the city of Dublin to Kingstown and Bray, commencing at the bridge usually called Macartney's Bridge, in the city of Dublin, and ending at the cross of the Black Rock, was situate within the city of Dublin, and was repaired by presentment of the grand jury of the said city, until the passing of an Act, 5 & 6 Vict., c. 96, intitled, 'An Act to alter the Number and define the Boundaries of the several Baronies of the County of Dublin,' whereby the district through which the said road passed was made and constituted a separate barony in the county of Dublin, by the name of the barony of Dublin: And that from the great traffic on the said road it requires frequent and expensive repairs, the cost of which, the barony of Dublin being of small extent and value, would prove burdensome upon the inhabitants thereof: And that a great portion of the said road is bounded on one side by the barony of Rathdown, and it is just and reasonable that the inhabitants of the city of Dublin and the inhabitants of the barony of Rathdown, as well as those of the barony of Dublin, should contribute towards the repairs of the said road:—

It is Enacted,

cxvii. That it shall and may be lawful to and for the grand jury of the city of Dublin at any Easter term, conjointly with the grand jury of the county of Dublin, to enter into a contract with the Board of Public Works in Ireland, or any other parties, for the maintenance and repair of the said road for any period not exceeding five years, and for such term annually as shall be agreed upon between the said grand juries and the said Board of Works or parties aforesaid; and that the amount of such contract shall be divided annually into three parts; and the grand jury of the said city of Dublin is hereby required to present at each Easter term the one-third of such amount to be raised annually during the continuance of such contract upon the city of Dublin, and the grand jury of the said county is hereby required to present at each presenting term for the county one-third of such amount to be raised upon the barony of Rathdown, and the remaining third upon the barony of Dublin, anything herein or in any other Act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

And if it should happen that at any Easter term the two grand juries should not agree as to the estimate or contract laid before them at such Easter term, or that they should omit or neglect to present as aforesaid:—

It is further Enacted, cxviii. That it shall and may be lawful for the Lord Lieutenant in council, upon a requisition signed by the foreman on behalf of either grand juries, to make such order to the Commissioners of Public Works for the repair of all that portion of said road hereinbefore recited, and which shall be deemed necessary to be repaired by said Lord Lieutenant in council; and that the grand jury of the county of Dublin, together with the grand jury of the city, are hereby required to present at each Easter term any sum or sums so expended by said Commissioners of Public Works, according to the proportions hereinbefore directed.

cxix. That during the continuance of the said contract or contracts as aforesaid a statement and account of the actual condition of the said road, and of the expenditure of all monies received by parties so contracting, shall be laid by the Commissioners of Public Works, (or by some person acting on their behalf, and authorized by them,) or by such other parties contracting as aforesaid, before the united grand juries of the county of Dublin and county of the city of Dublin, upon some day to be by them appointed in each Easter term for that purpose; and said Commissioners of Public Works, or some person acting on their behalf, or other parties so contracting, shall attend before the said grand juries at each Easter term, and give whatever information they or either of them (the said grand jury) may deem necessary relative to such statement and account.

CXX. That in all cases where by this or any Act or Acts now in force in Ireland repayment is to be made by grand jury presentment of any money advanced out of the Consolidated Fund or from any other public fund the same shall from and after the passing of this Act be paid and payable unto such bank or person, and in such manner, as the Lord High Treasurer, or the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, or any three of them, shall from time to time think fit to direct and appoint.

CXXI. That in case the grand jury at any presenting term shall neglect or refuse duly to present any money which, under the provisions of this Act, or of any Act now in force in Ireland, or of any Act passed or to be passed in this present session of Parliament, such grand jury may be required to present at such presenting term upon the certificate of the chief or under secretary of the said Lord Lieutenant or other Chief Governor or Governors of Ireland, or otherwise, for the purpose of reimbursing or replacing any monies issued out of the Consolidated Fund of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, the Court shall have power to make an order directing the sum or sums which ought to have been so presented to be raised and levied as if the same had been so presented; and such order shall have the force and effect of a presentment, and the treasurer of the county or finance committee shall insert the sum mentioned in such order in the warrant, and the same shall be apportioned, raised, and levied, and applied in like manner to all intents and purposes as if the same had been duly presented by such grand jury.

CXXII. That from and after the commencement of this Act, in all cases of maliciously or wantonly setting fire to, burning, or destroying any house, outhouse, or other building, or any haggard, corn, hay, straw, or turf, or of maliciously setting fire to, burning, or sinking any boat or barge laden or unladen, or of maliciously killing, maiming, houghing, or injuring any horse, mule, ass, or swine, or any horned cattle or sheep, or of maliciously damaging, injuring or destroying any bank, gate, lock, weir, sluice, bridge, dam, or other work belonging to any person, public canal or navigation, any person or persons injured by any such offence, and intending to apply for compensation, for any loss or damage sustained thereby, shall serve notice in writing of such injury and of such his or their intention upon the high constable of the barony, and the churchwardens of the parish, and at the nearest police station, or if there be no churchwarden or high constable, then upon two of the principal inhabitants of the parish wherein such offence shall have been committed, within six days at least after the commission of the same; and shall lodge with the high constable or secretary of the grand jury, in like manner and time as applications for presentments for public works are hereinbefore directed to be lodged, an application setting forth the loss or damage occasioned by such offence, and stating the time and place when and where such injury was done, the particular property consumed, injured, or destroyed, and the amount of damage thereby sustained, and by what number of persons, and whom, by name and description, such injury was done, if such offender or offenders shall be known, and if not, stating such particulars respecting such offender and offenders as may be known; and like notices shall be posted of such application as hereinbefore prescribed in cases of other applications to presentment sessions; and such application shall be scheduled by the secretary of the grand jury, and by him dealt with in all respects as other applications under this Act; and the presentment sessions shall examine into the serving and posting the notices of such application, and into the merits of the same, and the chairman shall indorse their opinion thereupon, and such secretary shall deliver such application so indorsed to the grand jury at the next presenting term; and the said grand jury shall examine into the matter of such application, upon the oath of the party injured, or such other evidence as can be produced touching the said offence; and the said grand jury shall, on the consideration of the said matter, either disallow such application altogether, or present such sum or sums of money as the person or persons so injured ought to receive for such injury or damage, to be levied off the county at large, or such barony, parish, district, townland, or sub-denomination thereof as the grand jury shall direct.

CXXIII. That every application under this Act for compensation for loss or damage occasioned by any malicious injury as aforesaid shall be made at the presentment sessions which shall be holden next before the presenting term after the commission of such offence for the barony where the same shall have been committed, unless any such malicious injury shall have been done after the day appointed for holding the first presentment sessions before the next presenting term, or so near the day of holding the same that such application for compensation cannot be duly lodged as hereinbefore directed; in either of which cases the person or persons so injured shall make such application at the presentment sessions which shall be holden for the barony where such offence shall have been committed before the presenting term which shall take place next after that following the commission of such offence, and the notices of such applications shall be posted accordingly; and it shall not be lawful for any grand jury to make any presentment for compensation for malicious injury under the provisions of this Act, except at the presenting term next ensuing to the presentment sessions where application shall have been made therefor.

CXXIV. Provided and enacted, That every person or persons who shall under the provisions of this Act apply for compensation for any loss or damage occasioned by malicious injury as aforesaid shall, within three days after the commission of the said injury, unless prevented by illness or other sufficient cause, give in his, her, or their examination, or that examination upon oath shall be given by his, her, or their servant or servants who had the care of his, her, or their property so injured, before some Justice of the Peace of the county, thereby specifying whether he, she, or they do know the person or persons who committed the said injury, or any of them; and in such case such examiner or examiners shall be bound by recognizance to prosecute such offender or offenders by indictment or otherwise, according to the laws of this kingdom.

CXXV. That all such applications whatsoever for compensation for loss or damage sustained by malicious injury shall be laid by the acting clerk of the crown before the Judges of the Court of Queen's Bench on the first day of the next presenting term; and in case any person paying grand jury cess for the said county or any barony chargeable with the sum presented by the grand jury, upon any such application, shall be desirous of opposing any such presentment, or in case any person whose application for compensation shall have been disallowed by the grand jury shall wish to have his or their application re-considered, such cess-payer or person or persons applying for compensation shall be heard; and in either of such cases the Judges, if they shall so think fit, shall direct a jury to be forthwith impanelled to try the matter of such presentment or application respectively at Nisi Prius, and according as the issue shall be found for or against such cess-payer the Judges shall discharge, alter, or fiat such presentment; and in case of application disallowed, if the issue shall be found for the person or persons applying for compensation, the Judges of the said court shall direct the grand jury for the time being to make presentment thereupon accordingly, otherwise such application shall be discharged; and all verdicts of juries impanelled as aforesaid to try any such issues shall be final and conclusive to all persons whatsoever; and it shall be lawful for the said Judges to award by rule for that purpose costs to the parties for whom the issue shall be found against the other party or parties respectively in any sum not exceeding 10*l.* sterling; and the said Judges are hereby empowered to direct and issue forthwith an order or orders in the nature of an execution against such last-mentioned party or parties respectively, which said order or orders the sheriff of such county is hereby required to execute in the same manner as in cases of execution against the chattels and effects of defendants.

CCXXVI. That no presentment for compensation for loss or damage as aforesaid shall at any time be removed by certiorari, nor shall any such presentment be at any time quashed for any informality, imperfection, or defect in form whatsoever; and no traverse, save as hereinbefore directed, shall be allowed or received to any presentment, nor shall any action or suit for the recovery of any satisfaction or damages sustained by reason of any injury for which the person or persons injured thereby may be entitled to apply for compensation under the provisions of this Act, be brought or prosecuted against any chief or other magistrate, or any inhabitant or inhabitants of any parish, or other person or persons whatsoever, any Act or Acts now or heretofore in force in Ireland to the contrary notwithstanding.

CCXXVII. Provided and enacted, That in case such burning or other malicious injury as aforesaid shall be committed on the verge or within the distance of one mile of the boundary between the said county of Dublin and any one or more counties, the person or persons who shall sustain such injury may apply for compensation in the manner hereinbefore directed in either or any one of such counties; and such application, if made in the county of Dublin, shall be made in the manner hereinbefore directed, but if in any other county in the manner authorized and directed by any Act or Acts in reference to such county; and all proceedings shall be taken thereupon as hereinbefore provided with respect to other applications for damages for malicious injury; and in case any sum or sums of money shall be presented by the grand jury of the county where such application shall be made, or shall be finally awarded by the verdict of any jury as and for compensation to the person or persons applying as aforesaid, the Judge at the Assizes of such county, or at the presenting term for the county of Dublin, shall have power and authority to apportion the amount of such compensation amongst such counties or any baronies thereof, and shall direct the proportion of the same which shall be paid by them respectively, and shall certify the same accordingly; and such presentment shall thereupon be diminished, or presentment made according to the proportions which the said Judge shall direct to be paid by such county; and the grand jury or grand juries of the said other county or counties respectively shall and they are hereby required, on the production of the certificate of such Judge declaring the proportion to be paid by such county or counties, to present such proportion, when the same shall exceed 100*l.*, to be raised off the county at large, and if such proportion shall be under 100*l.*, to be raised off the barony or baronies in or near to which such injury shall be alleged to be committed, and paid to the person or persons so applying, as the case may require.

CCXXVIII. That no fee shall be demanded from or paid by any such cess-payer or person applying to the clerk of the crown, judges' crier, or jury, for any matter or thing relating to any such application, presentment, or trial.

CCXXIX. That it shall be lawful to and for the Justices of the Peace for the said county of Dublin, at the Quarter Sessions next after the 1st of January, 1845, and they are hereby required, to divide the said county into two coroners' districts, appropriating a certain number of the baronies to the one district and the remainder to the other, and to allocate one of these districts to each of the coroners of the said county; and that hereafter whenever any death attended with suspicious circumstances shall occur, or any dead body be found in any district, it shall be the duty of the sub-inspector of the constabulary, or superintendent of metropolitan police, acting for the district in which such death may take place, or in his absence for the head constable or other constable having charge of such district, to give immediate notice thereof to the coroner of the district in which such death may have taken place, or said dead body have been found, and if his attendance cannot be obtained, then to the coroner of the other district, in order that an inquest may be held: Provided always, that no inquest shall be held by any coroner in any district other than his own, except during the absence or illness of the coroner of such other district, or during the vacancy of such officer.

CCXXX. That the head constable of each district shall henceforth be ex officio an inspector of weights and measures within such district, and shall possess and exercise all the powers, authorities, and provisions which any inspector of weights and measures may possess under and by virtue of an Act 5 & 6 Will. 4. c. 63, and shall perform such duties, under the direction of the Magistrates at petty sessions, without fee or reward, and notwithstanding any manorial jurisdiction or claim of jurisdiction within such district.

CCXXXI. That it shall be lawful for the grand jury of the county at each presenting term to appoint a committee to superintend and have charge of each court house belonging to the county, or rented for the use thereof, and to authorize such committee to expend a sum not exceeding 40*l.* in petty incidental repairs which may become necessary in such court house; and the finance committee, upon being satisfied as to its just application, shall pay the same.

CCXXXII. That from and after the 1st of March 1845 the office of treasurer of the county of Dublin, and also the office of inspector of accounts and grand jury presentments in the said county of Dublin, shall cease and be abolished.

And after reciting that the said office of treasurer was created and has existed since the passing of an Act, 26 Geo. 3, for the regulation of presentments in the county of Dublin; and that it is just and reasonable that the present officer, who has filled the said office for a period exceeding twenty years, should have compensation granted to him:—

It is Enacted,

CXXXIII. That it shall and may be lawful for the said officer to apply by memorial to the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury for compensation for the loss of his office, which memorial shall contain a statement of the number of years during which he shall have acted as such treasurer, and of the yearly sum or salary received by him for the last ten years respectively; and the said Lords Commissioners shall thereupon make such order as to them shall seem just; and such order signed by three or more of such Lords Commissioners shall be binding on all parties; and the said Lords Commissioners shall and may in such order direct that the said compensation shall be paid to such officer, in such yearly sum for and during the term of his natural life, or in one gross sum in lieu of all demands upon the county, as to them shall seem just and reasonable, and that it shall and may be lawful for the grand jury of the said county, and they are hereby required, at each presenting term, without previous application at presentment sessions, to present such sum to the said treasurer to be raised off the county at large: Provided always, that such yearly payment may be at any time commuted for a principal sum, payable immediately or by instalments, at such rates as may be agreed upon between the said officer and the grand jury of said county at any presenting term, and such grand jury may present such sum accordingly.

CXXXIV. That it shall be lawful for any person paying grand jury cess for the county to traverse any presentment made under this Act by the grand jury of such county, and also to object to the application of any contractor under this Act for payment, on the ground of such contractor not having complied with the terms of his agreement, or with the provisions of this Act; and the Court at each presenting term is hereby authorized and required to try the truth of the fact by a jury, in the same manner as any traverse within the jurisdiction ought to be tried; and it shall not be lawful for the clerk of the crown or clerk of the peace to take any fee in respect of such traverse, and costs shall be paid by the party against whom such traverse shall be found: Provided always, that although there shall be verdict against such traverse, yet if the Court shall be of opinion that there was reasonable and probable grounds for traversing such presentments, or the application of such contractor, the costs shall be paid by the finance committee from and out of the county monies to their credit; and the grand jury shall present the same without previous application to presentment sessions: Provided also, that every person intending to traverse any presentment or payment for which it is by this Act required that application shall be made at the presentment sessions, shall give notice in writing of such intention to the secretary of the grand jury, within two days after the first day of such sessions, and the same or any other presentment shall be traversed only at the presenting term at which the presentment shall be made.

CXXXV. That it shall be lawful for any occupier or owner of the ground through which any new road is to be made, or into which any old road is to be widened, to traverse the presentment for the same for damages at such presenting term aforesaid, having given like notice to the chairman of the presenting sessions, and to the secretary of the grand jury, previous to the commencement of such presenting term, of the amount of damage intended to be claimed, which traverse or traverses shall be tried then or at the ensuing presenting term, upon the entry in the crown book of the presentment and traverse, without making up any record; and the jury which shall try such traverse shall be sworn true verdict to give, whether any and what damages will occur thereby to the traverser, taking into consideration any collateral advantages which may result or accrue to such traverser by reason thereof, and making abatement accordingly; and it shall be lawful for the grand jury to present, without previous application at presentment sessions, such sum or sums of money so found for damages to be raised off the county or off the barony respectively in which the traverser shall have made it appear that he or she sustained the damages, and to such latter presentment no traverse shall be allowed or received; and upon the damages so found being presented for the use of such traverser, or deposited for his or their use with the secretary of the county, it shall be lawful for the contractor to proceed in the execution of the presentment without the interruption of any person.

CXXXVI. That every district surveyor, and every contractor for any work to be executed by grand jury presentment, shall have power and authority to dig for, raise, and carry away in or out of any lands, not being a deer park, bleach green, orchard, walled garden, haggard, or yard, or planted walk, lawn, or avenue to a mansion house, any gravel, stones, sand, or other materials, whether the same be found in the same or any adjoining county, which may be wanted for the building, rebuilding, enlarging, or repairing any bridge, arch, gullet, pipe, or wall, or for the making, repairing, or preserving any road or footpath; and such surveyor or contractor is hereby further empowered to make drains, in order to carry off water which might injure any bridge, gullet, arch, pipe, wall, or road, in or through any lands not being a deer park, bleach green, orchard, walled garden, haggard, or yard, or planted walk, lawn, or avenue to a mansion house, and shall make such satisfaction for the damage done thereby, or by taking any such materials as aforesaid, as shall be agreed upon between the parties, or assessed by three appraisers, which appraisers shall view the ground immediately previous and immediately after such damages shall be committed, one of such appraisers to be named by the owner or occupier of the land, and another by the surveyor or contractor, and the third by any neighbouring Justice of the Peace; and in case any surveyor or contractor shall refuse, or after four days notice in writing from such landholder, neglect to name an appraiser on his part, then one shall be named for him by such Justice; and such three appraisers shall be sworn by such Justice of the Peace (previous to the damage being committed) to be appraisers of such damages as may occur, and to make a true estimate thereof, in which estimate the value of any stones, gravel, or other materials shall not be included, but only the waste committed by breaking the surface, and making a passage through the land, unless where such stones, gravel, or materials shall be taken from any quarries or gravel pits bona fide demised, with liberty to work the same; and the amount of the damage to be awarded shall be paid to the owner or occupier of the ground as awarded, and la. each to the appraisers, within one week after the award, and in default of payment may be recovered in summons before any Justices at petty sessions: Provided always, that it shall not be lawful for any such contractor or surveyor to enter any lands for any such purpose against the will of the occupiers thereof without the previous order of two Justices of the Peace at petty sessions, which order such Justices are hereby authorized and required to grant, on its being proved to their satisfaction that the gravel, stones, or other materials sought cannot be conveniently procured elsewhere, nor such drain otherwise sufficiently made or cleansed.

CXXXVII. That it shall not be lawful for any such surveyor or contractor to dig, raise, and carry away any gravel, stones, sand, or other materials from the side of any public road, or from any beach or sea shore, whereby a public road or bulwark or defence to any building or any land adjoining any road, may be injured, and that any person who shall be convicted thereof on the oath of one or more credible witnesses before any Justice of the Peace shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding 5s. for every cart-load of such gravel, stones, sand, or other materials so dug, raised, or carried away, to be levied, by warrant of distress under the hand and seal of such Justice, off the goods and chattels of such offender.

CXXXVIII. That the drivers of every kind and species of vehicle, and all persons riding or driving any animal or animals, laden or unladen, on any road or in any street in the said county, shall keep their left-hand side of the road or street in going or coming thereon, leaving the other side free to all other passengers, and when they may have occasion to pass any other persons going in the same direction with themselves shall, in all cases where it is practicable, take and go on the right hand side of such persons; and on every cart, car, or other carriage without springs on any road upon which Her Majesty's mails are conveyed in coaches, or any other road being a county road, the name and surname and residence of the owner of such vehicle shall be painted in white Roman letters one inch long at the least; and every car or cart drawn by one horse, mule, or ass shall have a double rein extending back to such car or cart; and if any person shall wilfully refuse or neglect to drive or pass in manner aforesaid, or if any person shall drive any vehicle on any such road, whereon the name of the owner is not painted, or without a double rein as aforesaid, it shall and may be lawful for any magistrate, constable, or turnpike keeper to stop and detain such offender, and the vehicle and animal or animals on which or with which such offender shall be, and forthwith to carry or convey such offender before any Justice of the Peace for the county where such offence shall be committed, or for any person whatsoever to lodge information against such offender before any such Justice; and upon being convicted thereof upon the oath of one credible witness every such person so offending shall forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding 5s., to be levied by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of such offender, or by distress and sale of the carriage and horse or horses or other beasts, and the goods therein or thereon, wherewith such offender shall have been travelling at the time of such offence, such distress to be made under the hand and seal of such Justice, rendering the overplus (if any), after deducting the said fine and expenses of such distress and sale, to the owner or owners, on demand, one half of the amount of the penalties so levied to be paid to the informer, and the remaining half to the dispensary of the district, or such other charitable purpose as the Justices shall direct; and if distress sufficient for such penalty or penalties shall not have been seized or found it shall and may be lawful for such Justice and he is hereby empowered and required to commit such offender so convicted to the common gaol for any time not exceeding one calendar month, unless such offender shall sooner pay and satisfy the damages which shall happen in consequence of any such neglect or default as aforesaid.

CXXXIX. That no house or part of a house shall be built within twenty feet of the centre of any road, or within ten feet of the side thereof (except in the streets of corporation or market towns, or except where a house now stands), and that if any person shall offend herein every such person shall, upon conviction before any Justice of the Peace, forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding 10l., and a further sum not exceeding 10s. for every week after such conviction, until the same shall be pulled down or removed; and no windmill shall be built within two hundred feet, and no limekiln within one hundred feet, of the centre of any public road; and it shall be lawful for any Justices, at a general sessions of the peace, to direct any house, limekiln, or windmill built or building contrary to this Act to be pulled down, and to issue their orders to any constable or constables for that purpose, which order every sub-inspector or head or other constable shall aid and assist in executing; and the centre of the road, for the purposes of this Act, shall be deemed to be the centre of the part thereof made with gravel or small stones.

CXL. That if any person shall scour, deepen, widen, or fill up any ditch or drain on the side of any road, without the consent or direction of the district surveyor or a road warden, or if any owner or occupier shall omit to scour any ditch or drain leading from any public road, so as to give full liberty to the water to pass away, within ten days after notice shall be given to him or her so to do by such surveyor or a road warden or any Justice of the Peace, or shall permit or suffer the free passage of the water to be obstructed by making or having any way or passage from any road into the lands adjoining, or to his or her house, without a sufficient pipe, sewer, or gullet, underneath; or shall ride or drive any horse, beast, or other cattle, or any cart or carriage, willingly or unnecessarily, on or against any footpath; or shall wilfully cross, so as to prevent any other person passing him, or shall drive furiously, so as to endanger passengers on any public road; or shall steep or dry any flax, or burn any bricks or lime, or any weeds or vegetables for ashes, or permit the same so to be steeped, dried, or burned, on his or her land, within one hundred feet of the centre of any public road; or shall light any fire, or shall cut any turf, or make any turf stacks on any public road, or within forty feet of the centre of the same; or shall build any wall, or make any ditch, or dig any pit or hollow, on any public road, within thirty feet of the centre thereof, or within fifteen feet of the side thereof, unless by authority of any presentment; or shall lay or cause to be laid any dirt, dung, turf, straw, rubbish, or scouring of any ditches or drains, or any stones, bricks, timber, sand, clay, or lime, on any public road, or within thirty feet from the centre of such road, or shall suffer same to be laid in any county road opposite to his land; or shall leave on any public road, or permit to be left on the same, opposite to or near his or her house or offices, any plough or harrow, or any cart or car, dry or other carriage, without the horse or horses or other beast or beasts being harnessed thereto, unless such carriage shall have been accidentally broken down there; or shall spread any linen, blanket, or cloth for winnowing corn within one hundred feet of the centre of any public road; or shall spread any clothes for drying on the side of any road; or shall slaughter any beast, or leave any dead beast, on any road; or skin or permit to be skinned the carcase of any beast on any public road, or within one hundred feet of the centre thereof, unless in a house or yard inclosed with walls; or shall hoop, cleanse, fire, or scald any cask, or bind any cart or car wheels, or shall beat any flax, or winnow any corn, or erect any may-pole, maybush, or sign-post, on any road; or shall make or assist in making any fire or fires commonly called bonfires, or shall wantonly set off and throw any squib, rocket, or other firework, within eighty feet of the centre of any road; or shall bait any bull, or play at foot-ball, hurling, or any other game or games, upon any road or the sides thereof, or fly any paper kite to the annoyance of passengers; or shall keep any cur, mongrel, mastiff, or bull-dog, or other dangerous dog, without having such dog muzzled, or a block of wood, of sufficient weight to prevent such dog being dangerous, fastened to the neck of every such dog, at any house within

CLX. That all dirt, dung, turf, straw, rubbish, and all clay, stones, bricks, sand, or lime, which shall be laid on any public road, or within thirty feet of the centre thereof, without such consent or direction as aforesaid, shall be and is hereby declared to be forfeited; and it shall be lawful for any person whatsoever, having obtained permission from the surveyor or a road warden, or one Justice of the Peace for the county, to take, carry away, and convert the same to his or her own use, as also all corn which shall be laid on any public road for the purpose of being winnowed, or shall be winnowing thereon, or remain there after having been winnowed thereon, together with the sacks or winnowing cloths whereon the same may happen to be, and all flax which shall be beating on any public road, or to be laid there for the purpose of being beaten, and any may-bush or may-pole which shall be erected on any public road, without the let, suit, trouble, or hindrance of any person whatsoever.

CLXII. That for every cart-load of dung, rubbish, or scouring which shall have been laid on any public road, or within thirty feet of the centre thereof, contrary to the provisions of this Act, and which shall be drawn away by the directions of any magistrate, district surveyor, or road warden after having remained there for twenty-four hours, the person by whom or by whose order the same was laid there, or who shall be liable to penalty for the same being laid there, upon conviction before any Justice of the Peace within his jurisdiction, by the oath of one credible witness, shall forfeit not exceeding 2s. 6d. for every day the same shall have remained there; and it shall be lawful for any Justice of the Peace within his jurisdiction to issue his warrant to order any dangerous dog which shall be kept near any public road contrary to the provisions of this Act to be killed, and the district surveyor or road wardens and constables within their respective jurisdictions may seize or kill any such dog.

CLXIII. That it shall be lawful for any constable or other person to seize and impound, or cause to be seized and impounded, any horse, mule, ass, bull, cow, sheep, goat, swine, or beast which shall be found wandering or feeding upon any public road, the owner whereof is unknown, except in such parts of any road as lead or pass through or over any commons or waste or uninclosed ground, or about the streets or passages of any town, and to make complaint to any Justice of the Peace; and in case the owner thereof shall not be discovered within seven days it shall be lawful for such Justices to cause such swine or beast to be sold, and out of the money arising from the sale thereof to pay a penalty not exceeding 2s., and expenses of impounding, keeping, and selling the same, rendering the overplus, if any, to the owner, notice of such sale, in which shall be inserted the name of the parish and townland where such swine or beast was seized, being first posted up in some conspicuous place in the parish where seized, and at the place where impounded, three days at the least before the time of sale; and that it shall be lawful for any Justice, peace-officer, constable, surveyor, or road warden within their respective jurisdictions to cause notice in writing to be served upon or left at the dwelling-house or usual place of abode of any person, or upon the occupier of any house or land, in any of the streets or passages of any city, town corporate, or market town, who shall lay in any such street or passage any dirt, dung, turf, rubbish, stones, bricks, timber, sand, clay, lime, or other nuisance, or shall leave any dead beast or skin, or permit to be left or skinned the carcase of any beast, or shall erect or suffer to be erected any may-pole, may-bush, or sign-post, or shall dig or leave open any pit or hole, or suffer any such to be dug or left open, or shall keep any dog without being muzzled, or having a block of wood of sufficient weight fastened to the neck of such dog, to remove or abate such nuisance; and if such person shall neglect to remove or abate any such nuisance for forty-eight hours after such notice shall have been served or left as aforesaid it shall be lawful for such Justice, officer, constable, or surveyor or road warden as aforesaid to remove such nuisance, and apply the same to his own use, and to fill up such pit or hole; and every person who shall be convicted of such neglect, on the oath of one credible witness, before any Justice of the Peace of the county at petty sessions, or chief Magistrate of the town where the offence shall be committed, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding 10s., to be applied in aid of the dispensary of the district, or such other charitable purpose as the Justice shall direct.

CXLIV. Provided and enacted, That nothing hereinbefore contained shall render any district surveyor, or any contractor for any public work under this Act, liable to any penalty for any act done or performed by the said surveyor, or in the discharge of the duties of his office, or by any such contractor in the due and necessary execution or performance of his contract; but if any such surveyor or contractor shall lay or cause to be laid any heap of stones, gravel, rubbish, or other matter whatever upon any public road, and allow the same to remain there at night, to the danger or personal damage of any person passing thereon, all due and reasonable precaution not having been taken by the said surveyor or contractor to prevent any such danger or damage, such surveyor or contractor shall forfeit for every such offence any sum not exceeding 40s.

CXLV. That if any district surveyor or contractor for the repairing of any public road in the said county shall think that any obstruction is caused in any public road by any trees, so as to occasion danger to the public, it shall be lawful for such surveyor or contractor, and they are hereby, each or either of them, authorized, to require the owner of the land on which such trees are growing to cause such trees to be pruned or lopped, so as that such road may not be prejudiced or obstructed by the same; and if such owner shall not comply with such request within ten days it shall and may be lawful for such surveyor or contractor, and they are hereby respectively authorized and required, to summon such owner before the Justices assembled at any petty sessions for such county, to shew cause why he has not complied with such request; and if such Justices shall order and direct that such trees shall be pruned or lopped, and if the said owner shall not obey such order within ten days after the making of the same, it shall and may be lawful for such surveyor or contractor to prune or lop such trees, and to remove such obstruction as aforesaid, to the best of their skill and judgment; and the said surveyor or contractor shall be reimbursed by the said owner what charges and expenses he shall be at in pruning or lopping such trees; and it shall be lawful for such Justices at petty sessions as aforesaid to direct such charges and expenses to be levied by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of such owner, in such manner as other distresses and sales for forfeitures are authorized and directed to be levied by virtue of this Act: Provided always, that no person shall be compelled, nor any such surveyor or contractor permitted, to cut or prune any hedge at any other time than between the last day of September and the last day of March.

CXLVI. That if any person shall wilfully prevent, assault, or threaten to assault any surveyor, contractor, collector, or other county officer in the execution of his duty, or any person or persons employed by proper authority in surveying or measuring or laying out any line intended for a new road, or if any person shall wilfully destroy, pull up, deface, or injure any surveyor's instruments or implements used in public works, or any milestone, mile post, or direction post, or any bridge, battlement, wall, railing, mound, or fence erected or repaired by presentment, or shall wilfully break, deface, pull down, or take away stones out of any such battlement, wall, mound, or fence, or out of any court house, gaol, house of correction, pier, or other building, or out of any bridge, pipe, arch, or gullet, built or repaired by presentment, every person so offending shall forfeit and pay for every such offence, upon conviction, by the oath of one credible witness, before any two Justices of the Peace at petty sessions, such sum not exceeding 10*l.* as the said Justices shall think fit; and in case the same shall not be paid such Justices are hereby empowered and required to commit such offender to any gaol, bridewell, or house of correction for any time not exceeding three months, or until the said forfeiture shall be paid; and it shall be lawful for the secretary of the county, if directed by the grand jury so to do, to commence and prosecute an action on the case against any person or persons by whom such injury may have been committed, and for recovering of damages to the amount thereof from such person or persons for the use of the county, and when the damages sought to be recovered do not exceed 30*l.* to sue for the same by civil bill before the chairman of Kilmainham; and in every such proceeding the property so injured or destroyed shall for the purpose of such proceeding be deemed to be the property of such secretary.

CXLVII. That every sub-inspector, head constable, and other constable shall and he is hereby required to report all such nuisances as shall occur within his district to the Magistrate or Magistrates at petty session next to be holden in and for the said district, who shall hear and decide, and punish by fine or otherwise as hereinbefore directed.

CXLVIII. That no contract for any public work under the provisions of this Act, or any recognizance to be entered into for the execution of the same by virtue of this Act, or any receipt given by any collector under this Act, shall be liable or subject to any stamp duty imposed by any Act or Acts passed or to be passed, unless specially mentioned therein; and whenever the amount of any such contract, or the sum for which any such recognizance shall be conditioned, or the sum sought to be recovered by virtue of such recognizance or contract, shall not exceed the sum of 100*l.* it shall be lawful to proceed against any such contractor or his securities for such sum, or for damages for the breach of any such contract, by civil bill before the chairman of Kilmainham; and the said chairman shall have full power to hold plea thereof, and the same shall and may be proceeded on in like manner in all respects, and the like decree of judgment and execution shall and may be had thereon, and also the like benefit of appeal, and of proceedings, judgment, and execution thereon, as in case of any other sum or demand which may now by law be had or used before such chairman.

CXLIX. That all fines and forfeitures inflicted by virtue of this Act, if not immediately paid, shall be levied by distress and sale of the offender's goods, by warrant under the hand and seal of a Justice of the Peace, together with all expenses attending the levying the same; and all such fines, unless otherwise specially directed by this Act, shall, when levied and paid, be given one half to the informer, when the Justice convicting shall so direct, and the other half, or the whole if not awarded to the informer, to such dispensary, hospital, or infirmary as the Justice shall direct; and in case any fine be not immediately paid upon conviction, or within such time as the Justice shall appoint, it shall be lawful for the Justice of the Peace before whom such conviction shall have been made to commit the offender to gaol for any time not exceeding two months, or until the fine be paid.

CL. That when any distress shall be made for any sum or sums of money to be levied by virtue of this Act, the distress itself shall not be deemed unlawful, nor the party or parties making the same be deemed a trespasser or trespassers, on account of any default or want of form in any proceedings relating thereto, nor shall the party or parties distraining be deemed a trespasser or trespassers ab initio on account of any subsequent irregularity on the part of the party or parties distraining, but the person or persons aggrieved by such irregularity may recover full satisfaction for the special damages in any action on the case.

CLL. That if any person shall be sued, molested, or troubled for putting into execution any of the powers contained in this Act, or for doing any act, matter, or thing pursuant thereto, such person shall and may plead the general issue, and give the special matter in evidence, and may avow the taking of any distress on the acting finance committee and Justices warrant merely, without going into other title or authority; and if the plaintiff or plaintiffs shall be nonsuited, and judgment given against him, her, or them, upon demurrer or otherwise, or a verdict pass for the defendant or defendants, or a dismissal upon a civil bill, such defendant or defendants shall have his, her, or their treble costs, to be recovered by such method and manner whereby law costs are given to defendants; and no inhabitant, magistrate, or cess-payer of the county shall be deemed to be an incompetent witness in any court of law or equity by reason of his being liable to be rated or being rated or assessed towards the payment of any money presented or to be presented by a grand jury.

CLIII. That it shall not be lawful for any Justice of the Peace or any other person to demand or take any sum of money or any reward for swearing any affidavit to be made by virtue of this Act; and if any person shall wilfully swear or affirm or declare falsely in any oath or affirmation or declaration made or taken by authority or under any of the provisions of this Act, every such person, being thereof convicted, shall be adjudged guilty of wilful and corrupt perjury, and incur the pains and penalties in such case by law provided; and it shall and may be lawful for any grand jury, without any previous application to presentment sessions, to make such presentments for defraying the prosecution of such delinquent as to them may seem fitting and expedient.

CLIII. That the several sums of money in this Act mentioned shall be deemed to be the present lawful money of Great Britain and Ireland; and the Schedules annexed to this Act shall be deemed and taken to be part thereof, and the forms therein contained shall be made use of in all cases to which such forms shall be applicable: Provided always, that it shall and may be lawful to erase or alter any words in such forms, so as to make them applicable to any particular case, without materially altering the substance, but no further; and that no notice, recognizance, warrant, traverse, presentment, or other proceeding or matter whatsoever, served, made, taken, or had under this Act, shall be impeached on any technical or formal grounds, or for informality, provided it shall be in substance conformable to the provisions of this Act.

And for the more easy and speedy conviction of offenders against this Act,—

It is Enacted,

CLIV. That any Justice or Justices of the Peace before whom any person or persons shall be convicted of any offence against this Act shall and may cause the conviction to be drawn up in the following form of words, or in any form of words to the same effect, as the case shall happen:—

'As it remembered, That on the 'convicted by and before 'made in the 'Act]; and I the said Justice [or we the said Justices] do hereby adjudge and determine that the said 'for his said Offence forfeit and pay the Sum of 'be forthwith paid by him [here direct the Payment according to the Act]. By this Act,

After reciting that by 1 & 2 Geo. 4. c. 53, and 5 Geo. 4. c. 4, establishments of officers, assistants, and clerks were formed for the offices of the said several courts, [mentioned in the titles of the Acts] and for the taxation of bills of costs in common law business, and regulations were made for providing the necessary number of fitting and competent persons to do the business of writing, copying, and engrossing in every such office respectively, the salaries and expenses of which establishments and business were by the said Acts charged upon the Consolidated Fund: And that by an Act, 1 & 2 Geo. 4. c. 112, intituled 'An Act to grant for the Term of Five Years additional Stamp Duties on certain Proceedings in the Courts of Law, and to repeal certain other Stamp Duties, in Ireland,' which term has been since extended from time to time by subsequent Acts, certain stamp duties therein specified, to be denoted "Law Fund," were granted to meet the charge upon the Consolidated Fund, created by the salaries and expenses so made payable thereout by the said hereinbefore recited Acts, for and in respect of the offices of the said courts of law, and also to meet certain other charges for salaries, allowances, and compensations to the Judges and officers of the said courts in lieu of certain fees which were then abolished: And that the income produced by the said law fund stamp duties has never been sufficient to meet the said charges for which it was intended to form a provision, and by making a new arrangement as to the business to be transacted in the said offices a very considerable saving in the expenses, chargeable in respect thereof upon the Consolidated Fund, may be effected:—

It is Enacted,

I. That from and after the 11th of October 1844 the several offices created by the said first recited Act, 1 & 2 Geo. 4. c. 53, and all appointments made under or by virtue of the said Act, or by virtue of the said recited Act, 5 Geo. 4. c. 4, shall be and the same are hereby abolished, save and except the offices of taxing officers and their clerk, and of crier, tipstaff, and serjeant-at-arms in the several courts, which shall remain as heretofore.

II. Provided and enacted, That each and every officer (not included in the new establishments hereinafter mentioned) whose office is hereby abolished, and who has a freehold interest therein, shall be entitled to receive as compensation for and during his life the full amount of the salary and emoluments at present enjoyed by him in respect of said office, such compensation to be charged and chargeable and paid and payable, out of the Consolidated Fund of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, in the same manner as the salaries and compensations are herein directed to be paid; and that all other persons whose offices or employments are hereby abolished, and who shall not be included or employed in the new establishments to be formed, or whose salary or emoluments under such new establishments shall fall short in amount of the value of the salary or emoluments received by them in or under the establishments so abolished, shall be entitled to receive such compensation in respect thereof as the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland shall ascertain and determine to be just and proper, regard being had to length of service, not exceeding in the whole in any case the salary, emoluments, or official income enjoyed or received by any such person or persons on an average of the three years next preceding the day appointed for the commencement of this Act, and not being less in any case than three-fourths of the income so ascertained, or of the proportion thereof by which the salary, emoluments, or official income of such person or persons shall fall short as aforesaid, the amount of such compensation to be ascertained in such manner and by such means as the said Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury shall think proper to direct; and that when such compensation shall have been so ascertained and determined the amount thereof shall be charged and chargeable and paid and payable to the several persons entitled thereto, out of the Consolidated Fund of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, in the same manner as the salaries hereinafter provided are appointed to be paid: Provided also, that until the amount of such compensation shall have been so ascertained all such persons shall be entitled respectively to receive a sum equal to the full amount of the salary, emoluments, or official income enjoyed by him or them respectively on the average hereinbefore directed, such sum or sums to be charged and chargeable and paid and payable in the same manner as the salaries and compensation herein directed: Provided also, that an account of all compensations granted under the provisions of this Act shall, within fourteen days after the same shall have been granted as aforesaid, be laid before the Commons House of Parliament, if Parliament shall be then assembled, or otherwise within fourteen days after the meeting of Parliament then next following.

vii. That from and after the said 11th of October 1844 there shall be in each of the said superior courts of common law in Ireland to conduct the civil business thereof one principal officer, to be called the Master of such court, and the following other officers (that is to say); one clerk of the rules and one clerk of the writs, appearances, and seal; the said principal and other officers to discharge the several duties prescribed for them respectively in this Act, and in the schedules severally marked (A.), (B.), and (C.) to this Act annexed; and the said officers to have to aid them in the discharge of the said duties the several assistants and clerks in the said schedules respectively set forth, and that the said principal and other officers, and the said assistants and clerks, shall hold their offices or employments during good behaviour, and shall be responsible for the due and efficient performance of the duties prescribed for them by this Act and the schedules hereto annexed, and that the said principal and other officers, and assistants and clerks, shall be entitled to receive the several and respective salaries in that behalf set forth in the said schedules to this Act annexed.

And after reciting, that it is expedient that the new establishment of officers, assistants, and clerks hereby created shall, in the first instance, consist of persons employed in the establishments hereby abolished;—

It is Enacted,

iv. That the persons named in the Schedules (A.), (B.), and (C.) to this Act annexed as officers, assistants, and clerks shall be and the same are hereby appointed and declared to be such officers, assistants, and clerks as therein set forth respectively.

v. Provided and enacted, That Arthur Bushe, Esq., the Prothonotary of the said Court of Queen's Bench, and the Hon. David Plunket, the Prothonotary of the said Court of Common Pleas, in Ireland, who are in and by this Act and the schedules hereto appointed Masters of the said Courts respectively, shall be entitled to receive yearly and every year during their respectively continuing in office as such Master the respective sums of 384*l.* 12*s.* 8*d.* each, over and above and in addition to the salaries provided for such Masters in the said several schedules, to make up the full amount of salary received by them as Prothonotaries respectively, the said sums to be paid and payable respectively in the same manner, and out of the same fund, and at the same time and times, as the salaries and compensations herein directed: Provided also, that if either of them the said Arthur Bushe or David Plunket shall, at any time after the passing of this Act, resign his office, with the sanction and under the authority of the Lord Chief Justice of the court to which he shall belong, in consequence of being unable to discharge the duties thereof from infirmity of mind or body, which resignation shall also be approved by the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, he shall be entitled to receive yearly during his life, by way of superannuation allowance, the full amount of the salary now enjoyed by him in respect of his said office of Prothonotary, the same to be paid and payable in the same manner, and out of the same fund, and at the same time and times, as the salaries and compensations herein directed.

vi. That it shall not be lawful for any person appointed by this Act, or who at any time after the passing of this Act shall be appointed to any office in any of the several said courts, or as clerk or assistant to any of said officers, to hold or exercise the duties of any other office or place whatsoever, or to derive any emolument or profit, for or in respect of or in connexion with the business of the said offices, either by fee or gratuity, or by the sale of stamps or parchments or paper, or otherwise howsoever, other than the salaries or allowances provided by this Act for such officer, assistant, or clerk respectively, or authorized in and by an Act, 9 Geo. 4. c. 35, intituled, 'An Act to protect Purchasers for valuable Consideration in Ireland against Judgments not revived or re-docketed within a limited Time,' or in and by an Act, 3 & 4 Vict. c. 105, intituled, 'An Act for abolishing Arrest on Mesne Process in Civil Actions in certain Cases; for extending the Remedy of Creditors against Debtors; and for the further Amendment of the Law, and the better Advancement of Justice, in Ireland.'

vii. That when and so often as any vacancy shall occur in any of the offices of Master or other officers in either of the said superior courts of common law, by death, resignation, or otherwise, it shall and may be lawful for the Lord Lieutenant or other chief governor or governors of Ireland, for the time being, to nominate and appoint some fit and proper person to fill such vacant office; provided that no person shall be eligible to be appointed to fill such vacant office unless he shall be a barrister in actual practice of not less than five years standing at the bar, or an attorney of all or any of the said courts in actual practice of not less than five years standing on the roll, or unless he shall have served as officer, assistant, or clerk in any of the said offices for not less than five years in the whole; and that when and so often as any vacancy shall occur, by death, resignation, or otherwise, of any of the assistants or clerks hereby created, such vacancy shall be filled by the assistant or clerk next in seniority in the department, to whom no sufficient objection, to the satisfaction of the Lord Chief Justice or Lord Chief Baron, shall be made; and that on all future vacancies in the office of junior clerk in each department the Master of the court in which such vacancy shall occur shall appoint some proper person to be such junior clerk: Provided always, that all appointments of officers, assistants, or clerks to be made by virtue of this Act shall be so made without any pecuniary or other consideration directly or indirectly to be paid or received for the same.

viii. That if at any time after the commencement of this Act it shall be found that the establishments hereby authorized to be appointed for the several courts are, in point of number of assistants or clerks, either excessive or insufficient, or that it is expedient either to increase or diminish the salaries of the Masters, officers, assistants, or clerks, the Judges of the court in which such case may occur shall notify the same to the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury by certificate under the hands of any two or more of them, stating the circumstances which may have caused any such changes to be necessary; and thereupon it shall and may be lawful to and for the said Commissioners, and they are hereby authorized, by their warrant, to increase or reduce such establishment or salaries, as the case may require, provided that no salary hereby appointed to be paid shall be so diminished unless when the office or employment for which it is payable shall be vacant; and if excess or deficiency shall have arisen from the fluctuation of business from one court to another, it shall be lawful for the said Commissioners of the Treasury to remove the requisite number of persons from the offices in which the business shall have decreased to those in which it shall have increased; and every such arrangement or removal or appointment, increase or reduction, to be made by the said Commissioners shall be as good and valid as if the same had been made by, under, or by virtue of this Act, anything herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

IX. That from and after the commencement of this Act the officers, assistants, and clerks appointed or to be appointed hereunder shall not in any case be required to receive payment in money for law fund duties, but that it shall be lawful for such officer, assistant, or clerk, and he is hereby required, in every case in which such duty has been heretofore payable by entry, to ask, demand, and receive from the party requiring such proceeding to be taken a docket or requisition, specifying the nature of such proceeding, duly stamped, marked, or impressed, according to law, with the stamp or mark provided or to be provided by the Commissioners of Stamps for expressing or denoting the duty payable in respect of such proceeding; and also that it shall and may be lawful to and for each and every officer, assistant, and clerk in any of the offices of any of the several courts aforesaid to demand and receive of and from any person who shall apply to such officer, assistant, or clerk to obtain any copy whatsoever, which according to law ought to be on a stamp or stamps, the paper requisite for the same, duly impressed with the stamp duty payable thereon; and no such officer, assistant, or clerk shall be bound to commence such business, or to take any step towards the execution thereof, until such stamped paper shall have been deposited with him.

And after reciting that it is just and expedient that, except as hereinafter mentioned, all such writs and other writings as have been hitherto prepared, engrossed, and written in the offices of the general clerks and other assistants to the principal officer in each court at the charge of the Consolidated Fund shall in future be prepared, engrossed, or written by the attorneys requiring them, at the charge of the party or parties for whose benefit, advantage, or purpose they are so required:—

It is Enacted,

X. That from and after the commencement of this Act no writs or other writings shall be prepared, engrossed, or written in any of the offices of the said courts at the charge of the Consolidated Fund, save and except the making up, entry, and enrolment of judgments, and such office copies or extracts as may be required of any pleadings, affidavits, writs, or other documents, matters or things, which, having been previously filed, deposited, inrolled, or recorded in the office, shall be in the custody of the officer of the court; but that when any such writs and other writings shall be brought to the office properly prepared the proper officer shall and he is hereby required, without unnecessary delay, to examine, enter, sign, seal, attest, or record the same, as the case may require.

XI. That for the purpose of preparing inrolments of judgments, and such office copies or extracts as may be required of such pleadings, affidavits, writs, records, or documents, matters or things, as shall be in the custody of the officer, it shall and may be lawful for the Master of each court and he is hereby required to employ writing clerks, who shall be paid, according to the quantity of their writing, at the rate of 1½d. per office sheet of seventy-two words, such payment to be charged in the incidental expenses of the court in the manner hereinafter provided.

XII. That for the purpose of making searches for judgments, or fines or recoveries, it shall and may be lawful for the Master of each court and he is hereby required to employ competent clerks, to be removable at his pleasure, who shall be paid in respect to each distinct search, according to the quantity of their work, at the rate of 1s. for every period of twenty years, or fractional portion thereof, over which each search made by them respectively shall extend: Provided always, that not more than two clerks shall be so paid in respect of each negative search, and not more than one in respect of each common search, such payment to be charged in the incidental expenses in manner hereinafter provided.

And in order to secure the services of competent persons to perform the said business of searching,—

It is Enacted,

XIII. That each of three persons to be employed therein by the Master of each court as aforesaid shall be entitled to receive, for and during the time he shall be so employed, a salary at the rate of 100*l.* per annum over and above the said allowance of 1s. per search, the said salary to be charged in the incidental expenses in the manner hereinafter provided with respect to other salaries: Provided always, that the persons so to be appointed as such searching clerks (unless employed in such business previously to and at the time of the passing of this Act) shall not be entitled to any compensation for the loss of such appointment in the event of any alteration being made, by the authority of Parliament or otherwise, whereby such business of searching shall be transferred from the offices of the said courts to any other office or offices: Provided also, that when any such alteration shall take place the power and authority hereby given to the Masters to retain and employ such searching clerks shall cease, and that then and in such case the Master of each court shall and he is hereby authorized to appoint one clerk for general purposes, in addition to the establishment provided in and by the schedules hereto annexed, each of such clerks to receive a salary of 100*l.* yearly, to be payable in the same manner as the other salaries hereby directed.

XIV. That the Prothonotary of the Court of Queen's Bench, the Prothonotary of the Court of Common Pleas, and the Clerk of the Pleas of the Court of Exchequer, whose offices are abolished by this Act, shall and they are hereby required, on or before the 11th of October 1844, to render to their respective courts an account in writing of all and every sum and sums of money which shall at any time theretofore have been paid into the said respective courts by or on behalf of suitors to abide the event of any suit, or for any purpose whatsoever, and which shall then remain unclaimed and undisposed of in the hands and possession of the said Prothonotaries and Clerk of the Pleas respectively, shewing the precise amount paid into court in each action, the names of the plaintiff and defendant, and of their attorneys, and the time when, and by whom, and the purpose, so far as the same can be ascertained, for which the said amount was so paid in, which account the said officers shall cause to be entered in books to be kept in their offices respectively for that purpose; and the said officers respectively shall and they are hereby required, immediately upon rendering such accounts, to pay into the Bank of Ireland to an account to be opened by the Master of each of the said courts respectively in the books of the Governor and Company of that Bank, to the credit of the proper cause or matter, all and every such sum and sums of money so appearing to be in their custody as aforesaid, which accounts respectively the Governor and Company of the Bank of Ireland are hereby authorized and required to open in their books accordingly.

xv. That after the said 11th of October 1844 the Master of each of the said courts respectively shall cause all and every sum or sums of money paid into the said courts by or on behalf of the suitors in either of those courts to abide the event of the suit, or for any other purpose whatsoever, and all payments thereout, to be entered in proper books to be kept for that purpose, and shall, as soon as conveniently may be, pay all and every such sum or sums of money into the Bank of Ireland to the credit of the proper cause or matter; and when and so often as it shall and may be necessary to pay out or disburse any of the monies so lodged in Bank, the Court shall by its order direct such payment or disbursement, and the Master of each of the said courts respectively shall and he is hereby authorized and required to draw on the said Governor and Company of the Bank of Ireland for any sum or sums of money so ordered to be paid out or disbursed; and the said Governor and Company of the Bank of Ireland are hereby authorized and required to pay all such sums of money as may so be drawn for, in pursuance of such order, by the Masters of the said courts respectively.

And after reciting that the receipt of fees in the seal office (at the law side) of the Court of Exchequer would interfere with the arrangements hereby made for the regulation of the business in the offices at that side of the said court, and it is expedient that such fees should be abolished;—

It is Enacted,

xvi. That from and after the commencement of this Act the said fees shall be and the same are hereby abolished, and that no fees whatsoever shall be paid or payable for or in respect of the sealing of any writs, records, or other documents issuing out of the law side of the said court, and that the same shall be sealed by the person whose duty it shall be under this Act without any charge whatsoever to the suitor.

xvii. That it shall be lawful for the Chief Baron and other Barons of the said Court of Exchequer, and they are hereby required, at any time before the commencement of this Act, to provide separate seals for the law and equity sides of the said court, and that the custody and affixing thereof shall be committed to the secondary of the equity side, so far as regards the equity side of the said court, who shall receive to his own use the fees now payable in respect thereof, and, as regards the law side thereof, to the clerk of the writs, appearances, and seal on the law side of the said court, the expense of providing such seals to be charged amongst the incidental expenses hereinafter provided for.

xviii. That the several schedules to this Act annexed, and all directions, matters, and things in the said schedules respectively contained, shall be deemed and taken to be part of this Act.

xix. That the said several salaries in the said schedules respectively set forth as aforesaid shall be payable from time to time out of the Consolidated Fund of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and that the said salaries respectively shall be payable quarterly on the 5th of January, 5th of April, 5th of July, and 10th of October in every year; and that for provision for the necessary incidental expenses in each court the said Commissioners of the Treasury shall pay or cause to be paid, at such time or times and in such manner as they shall think proper, to the Master of each court, such sum as shall in each and every quarter be certified in writing under the hands of one or more of the Judges of the Court respectively to which such Master shall belong to have been necessarily incurred as and for the costs of the clerks employed in writing and searching in the offices of the said courts respectively as aforesaid, and as and for the expenses of coals, candles, and all other expenses of the said several offices in the said courts, and in the several chambers of the said courts respectively, including therein the remuneration of the courtkeeper, housekeeper, and office messenger as heretofore; and every such certificate shall be given on an examination on oath of the principal officer of each department in or for which any such payment shall be required, and of such other person or persons, if any, as such Judge or Judges respectively shall think proper, or as shall be produced before them for that purpose.

xx. That whenever any officer, deputy, assistant, or clerk in any of the said several courts, except the Master in each such court respectively, shall apply for payment of the salary due to him, or any part thereof, he shall produce a certificate from the Master of the court for the time being, stating that he is the person then holding such office or employment respectively, and that he is entitled to receive the salary annexed by law thereto, and then due to him as such officer, deputy, assistant, or clerk.

xxi. That the Master in each of the said several courts shall at all times respectively superintend the conduct and proceedings of the several other officers, assistants, and clerks of his respective court, and shall inspect their respective offices, and all records, books, papers, and documents therein respectively, and shall make such orders for the regulation of the said offices, and the performance of the business thereof, and the hours of attendance of the officers, assistants, and clerks, as they shall think proper, so as to insure uniformity and equality of business in each of the departments of the said three Masters.

xxii. That it shall and may be lawful to and for the said Courts of Queen's Bench, Common Pleas, and Exchequer respectively, on complaint duly made, or on any offence or misconduct of which they may otherwise acquire judicial knowledge, and after full inquiry into the alleged grounds thereof, by affidavit or otherwise, as they shall think fit, respectively to remove any officer, assistant, or clerk of the said courts respectively, as well the Master as others, from his office, for any offence or misconduct in such office which such Court shall deem deserving of such punishment, and thereupon such officer, assistant, or clerk shall cease to hold or be entitled to such office; and it shall be lawful for the said Courts, on complaint and inquiry as aforesaid, to inflict upon any officer, assistant, or clerk for any minor offence such punishment by way of fine as to such Court shall seem expedient.

XXIII. Provided and enacted, That nothing in this Act contained shall extend or be construed to extend to limit, abridge, bar, prejudice, or defeat any action or indictment, or any remedy or proceeding whatsoever, which at any time heretofore may or might have been brought, found, had, or taken against any officer, deputy, or clerk in or under any of the said courts hereinbefore mentioned for or in respect of any misconduct in office which may have occurred or taken place, or which may take place at any time before the commencement of this Act, but that all such actions, indictments, remedies, and proceedings for any such misconduct may be brought, found, had, or taken as if this Act had never been made.

XXIV. That from and after the commencement of this Act every officer or assistant of any of the said several courts whose duty it is to sign or attest any writ, pleading, or document shall respectively execute the duty of his office in person, except only in case of sickness or occasional absence, or under the sanction hereinafter provided; (that is to say,) that it shall and may be lawful for the Chief Justice or Chief Baron of the court to which such officer or assistant shall belong or in his absence the next senior Judge or Baron of the said court then in Dublin, on the application of the Master, to grant to any such officer or assistant leave of absence for any period which the said Judge or Baron shall consider reasonable; and that in any such case it shall and may be lawful to and for such officer or assistant, by deputation in writing under his hand and seal, by and with the consent in writing of the Chief Justice or Chief Baron of the court to which such officer or assistant shall belong, or in the absence of such Chief Justice or Chief Baron then of the next senior Judge of the said court then in Dublin, to appoint a deputy to execute the duties of such officer or assistant during such period as shall be specified in such deputation; and the name of such deputy, and the approbation of such Chief Justice, Chief Baron, or Judge, and the time for which such appointment is to continue, shall be specified and set forth in such deputation, and such deputation shall be signed or indorsed by such Chief Justice, Chief Baron, or Judge; and the period mentioned in such deputation may, on the application of the Master, be afterwards prolonged, if necessary, by such officer or assistant, with the approbation of such Chief Justice, Chief Baron, or Judge, by indorsement of the said officer or assistant, and of the said Chief Justice, Chief Baron, or Judge, upon such deputation: Provided always, that such deputation shall not be liable to or chargeable with any stamp duty whatsoever.

And after reciting that inconvenience may arise from the temporary absence of any of the officers or assistants whose duty it is, under the direction in the schedule to this Act annexed, to sign any writ, pleading, or instrument, unless provision be made for such contingency:—

It is Enacted,

XXV. That at all times the signature of the Master shall be good and valid in lieu of the signature of any of the officers or assistants, and that in the temporary absence of the Master the acts and signature of his principal assistant shall be good and valid to any pleading, proceeding, or instrument requiring the signature or superintendence of said Master.

And after reciting that it may so happen that occasionally or at certain periods of the year the assistants or clerks in some of the said offices may not have sufficient occupation in the business strictly belonging to their offices respectively, whilst at the same time there may be an undue or unusual pressure of business upon the assistants and clerks in some other of the said offices, or some business of an occasional nature which the Master may be required or find necessary to have performed in the discharge of his duty as principal officer, and it is expedient to provide against the necessity of employing extra or additional clerks in such cases:—

It is Enacted,

XXVI. That it shall and may be lawful for the Master of each court respectively and he is hereby required, in the exercise of his superintendence in every such case as is hereby contemplated, to order, direct, and cause any of the said assistants and clerks attached to the court of which he is Master, who may not have sufficient occupation at any time or times as hereinbefore mentioned in the business of their own offices, to perform such portions as he may think proper of the business of any other of the said offices of the said court in which there may be such pressure as aforesaid, or of any occasional or extra business which he the said Master may be required or find necessary to have performed in the discharge of his duty as Master; and it is hereby declared to be the intent and meaning hereof that the said Masters respectively shall in every such case have full discretionary power as to the distribution of the business to be performed in the said offices, notwithstanding the specific division of duties for general purposes set forth in the schedules to this Act annexed.

XXVII. That in case it shall happen that any officer or assistant having power under this Act to appoint a deputy of the said several courts, by reason of accident or infirmity, shall be unable to appoint a deputy, or whenever any office in any of the said courts shall become vacant, then and in every such case it shall and may be lawful to and for the Chief Justice or Chief Baron of the said courts respectively, or in his absence the next senior Judge of the said court, if applied to for that purpose, to appoint a fit and proper person to perform the duty of such officer or assistant until there shall be an officer or assistant capable of discharging his own duty; and that every such person so appointed shall be to all intents and purposes a complete officer or assistant, according to the terms of such appointment, save that such person so appointed as aforesaid shall not be entitled to any greater proportion of the salary of such office than shall be specified in such order.

XXVIII. That it shall and may be lawful to and for the officers and assistants hereinafter named of and in the several courts aforesaid, and the said officers and assistants are hereby fully authorized, empowered, and directed, whenever they shall be thereunto required, (except on Sundays, Good Friday, and Christmas day,) to take affidavits or affirmations in all matters relating to the business of the said courts respectively, and to administer the necessary oaths or affirmations for that purpose: (that is to say,) the Master, the principal assistant, the clerk of the rules, his assistant, the clerk of writs, appearances, and seal, the pleadings assistant and the record assistant, and also in and for each of the said courts the Marshal of the Marshals of the Four Courts at Dublin as to persons in his custody; and all such oaths, affidavits, and affirmations shall be of the same force, validity, and effect, and shall and may be filed and used and acted upon respectively, as fully and effectually to all intents and purposes whatsoever, as if the same had been sworn or affirmed before the said courts, or all or any of the Judges thereof respectively; and any person who shall wilfully or corruptly swear or affirm anything false in any such affidavit or affirms shall be subject to all pains, penalties, punishments, and disabilities for wilful and corrupt perjury in like manner in all respects as if such affidavits had been made in any of the said several courts, or before all or any of the Judges thereof respectively.

XXIX. That to provide for cases in which it may be necessary to administer affidavits or affirmations to persons confined by illness, or detained in prison in the City of Dublin, or within ten miles thereof, it shall be the duty of the officers and assistants hereby authorized to take affidavits or affirmations, under such regulations as to rotation as the Master of their court shall make, to proceed, when required, within reasonable hours on business days, to the place in which the person to be sworn or affirmed shall be so confined, and there to administer such affidavit or affirmation: Provided always, that no officer or assistant shall be required to administer any affidavit or affirmation at any other place or time than at his office, and during office hours, except in the cases of illness or custody hereby contemplated, and then only upon the production of a proper certificate of such custody, or in the case of illness the certificate of a duly qualified medical man, stating the inability of the person requiring to be sworn or affirmed to attend at the office without danger to the life or health of such person, and that the illness of such person is not of an infectious or contagious nature: Provided also, that any expense of carriage hire to be incurred by such officer or assistant in attending as aforesaid shall be previously defrayed by the persons requiring such attendance.

XXX. That in each and every of the said several courts, on the first day of each and every term, the Judge who shall open the court on that day shall immediately after the opening the same satisfy himself, so far as he can by personal inspection, that the records of each and every of the said courts respectively are duly and regularly kept and preserved, so as to be safe, dry, sound, and legible, and in such order and arrangement, and with such means of reference to the same, that all persons having occasion to inspect the same respectively shall and may have easy access thereto, and the said Judge shall report to the other Judges of the Court the result of such examination; and if there shall be any default or error therein, the same shall be (as soon as may be) examined into by the Court, and shall be rectified as soon as possible.

XXXI. That every person hereby appointed, or who shall at any time after the passing of this Act be appointed, to be an officer, assistant, or clerk of or in any of the offices in the said several courts in this Act, and the Schedules thereto annexed, mentioned and specified, shall be and is hereby declared to be incapable of practising as a barrister, or as an attorney or solicitor, or as agent or clerk of any attorney or solicitor, in any court of law or equity in Ireland, either separately or in partnership with any other, or in the name of any other person or persons, during such time as such person shall hold the situation, office, or employment of an officer, assistant, or clerk in any of the said offices; and if any officer, assistant, or clerk shall so practise as such barrister, attorney, solicitor, agent, or clerk, while he shall hold the situation, office, or employment to which he shall have been appointed, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this Act, the Chief Justice or Chief Baron of the Court in which such person shall be employed shall, on sufficient proof of the same, dismiss the person so offending from his office or employment; and the person so dismissed shall be rendered incapable of ever after holding any office or employment in any of the said courts.

And after reciting that for the convenience of suitors and their attorneys an officer in each of the said courts has been hitherto privileged and permitted to act as retailer of stamps and law forms, and to vend the same in his office: And that by this Act all officers, assistants, and clerks in the said offices are prohibited from so acting as retailer of stamps and law forms, but it is nevertheless expedient that the convenience attending such practice should still be afforded to the public;—

It is Enacted,

XXXII. That the Master of each court shall be and he is hereby authorized to nominate and appoint such person as he shall think fit to act as such retailer of stamps and forms in and for his respective offices, from whom the suitors and their attorneys shall have the option of procuring such stamps and forms as they may require for their convenience, and the expeditious despatch of their business; and the Commissioners of Stamps shall and may grant to the person so nominated a licence to retail stamps upon obtaining the sureties required by them in such cases, and with the privileges, and subject to the conditions and regulations, now or hereafter to be made applicable to retailers of stamps in general.

XXXIII. Provided and enacted, That no Master, officer, assistant, or clerk in any of the said courts shall in any way directly or indirectly receive or participate in the profits or emoluments arising from the said business of retailer of stamps and forms, and that any violation of the spirit and meaning of this proviso shall be deemed and taken to be misconduct within the meaning of the section of this Act which authorizes the Courts respectively to fine or remove any officer, assistant, or clerk for misconduct.

And after reciting that by an Act, 4 & 5 Will. 4. c. 24, intituled, 'An Act to alter, amend, and consolidate the Laws for regulating the Pensions, Compensations, and Allowances to be made to Persons in respect to their having held Civil Offices in His Majesty's Service,' provision is made to secure superannuation allowances to the offices and departments set forth in the Schedules to said Act annexed, and power is given to the Commissioners of the Treasury to add to the list of offices and departments enumerated in the said Schedule any other office or department which then existed or might be created or be established, and to place the same, and the officers and persons to be employed, under the provisions of the said Act, but such addition not to extend to officers in any of His Majesty's courts at Westminster or Dublin: And that by an Act, 7 Will. 4. & 1 Vict. c. 30, intituled, 'An Act to abolish certain Offices in the Superior Courts of Common Law, and to make Provision for a more effective and uniform Establishment of Officers in these Courts,' the provisions of the said recited Act, 4 & 5 Will. 4. c. 24, so far as a right to superannuation allowance is involved, are in the manner therein mentioned extended to all officers, clerks, and messengers of the superior courts at Westminster: And that it is expedient that the benefits of the said Act should in like manner be extended to all officers, assistants, and clerks of the superior courts of common law at Dublin to be appointed by or under this Act:—

It is Enacted,

XXXIV. That from and after the passing of this Act every officer, assistant, or clerk appointed, retained, or employed by or under the authority and provisions of the same, or who shall be hereafter so appointed, retained, or employed, and who shall resign his office or situation therein, with the sanction and under the authority of the Lord Chief Justice or Lord Chief Baron of the court to which he shall belong, in consequence of his being incapable from infirmity of mind or body to discharge the duties thereof, shall be entitled to receive such superannuation allowance as the said Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury shall think proper to direct; and in ascertaining and awarding the amount of such superannuation allowance the said Commissioners shall take into consideration the whole period during which any such person shall have been permanently employed in any office or situation in either of the said courts, or any other public office or situation, prior to the passing of this Act, and shall proceed according to the principles laid down by the said recited Act, 4 & 5 Will. 4. c. 24, and that all such sums and allowances which shall be so awarded and granted under the authority aforesaid shall be paid and payable and be charged and chargeable in the same way as is hereinbefore provided in respect of the salaries of the Masters, assistants, and clerks of the said courts respectively.

And after reciting that the Commissioners of the Treasury did, by a minute dated the 4th of August 1829, record their intention to adopt certain regulations with a view to reduce prospectively the charge incurred in providing for superannuation allowances, of which notice was given in the several public departments then enjoying the benefit of superannuation allowance: And that it is expedient that, in pursuance of said minute, an annual abatement should be made from the salaries of the several offices or employments created by or under the authority of this Act, but inasmuch as the said notice cannot be deemed applicable to the courts of common law at Dublin such abatement should not affect persons who have held office or employment therein previously to the passing of this Act:—

It is Enacted,

XXXV. That from and after the commencement of this Act there shall be an annual abatement made, in quarterly proportions, by the Paymaster of the Civil Services in Ireland, from the salaries of the several officers, assistants, and clerks to be hereafter appointed under the authority of this Act, at any time after the commencement thereof, to any of the offices or employments set forth in the Schedules hereunto annexed, in such manner and under such directions as shall from time to time be given in this respect by the Commissioners of the Treasury, the amount of which abatement shall be according to the respective rates, following; (that is to say),

From salaries not exceeding the annual sum of 100*l.*, an abatement at the rate of 2*l.* 10*s.* per centum;
And from salaries exceeding 100*l.*, 5*l.* per centum.

XXXVI. That whenever it shall happen that the two persons now holding the office of taxing officer to the said law courts shall vacate the same, by death, resignation, or removal, there shall thenceforth be for the said three courts but one taxing officer, who shall be and be called taxing officer in common law business, who shall hold his office during good behaviour, and shall have the same power and authority, and be subject to the same regulations, as are given and contained with reference to taxing officers in and by the said hereinbefore recited Act, 1 & 2 Geo. 4. c. 53; and that all and every the provisions contained in the said Act with reference to the taxing officers created thereby, so far as the same shall be consistent with the alterations hereby effected, shall be and be deemed applicable to the taxing officer to be appointed under this Act, and to the taxation of costs by him, and all matters and proceedings belonging to or connected with the business thereof; and that such taxing officer shall have the assistance in his said business of one examiner and one clerk, to be appointed by him during his pleasure; the said taxing officer, examiner, and clerk to receive respectively (out of the same fund and at the same periods as the other salaries hereby directed to be paid) the salaries set forth in the Schedule (D.) to this Act annexed; and that whenever it shall happen that a vacancy shall occur in the said office of taxing officer by the death, resignation, or removal of one only of the two persons now holding such office, the person to be appointed taxing officer in his stead, under the provisions of the said hereinbefore recited Act, shall, notwithstanding anything in said Act contained, be entitled to receive only the salary specified for the taxing officer in the said Schedule marked (D.) to this Act annexed; and whenever the other of the two persons now holding the office of taxing officer shall die, resign, or be removed, the person who shall have been so appointed as joint taxing officer in the room of the person so first dying, resigning, or being removed shall be the sole taxing officer as hereinbefore directed, with the assistance of an examiner and clerk, as specified in the said Schedule marked (D.) to this Act annexed.

XXXVII. That whenever a vacancy shall occur as aforesaid and from time to time hereafter in the office of taxing officer, it shall and may be lawful for the Lord Lieutenant or other Chief Governor or Governors of Ireland to appoint a proper person to be such taxing officer, who shall be a barrister in actual practice of not less than five years standing at the bar, or an attorney of any of the said courts of not less than five years standing on the rolls, or who shall have served as officer or assistant in any one or more of the offices of the said courts for not less than five years in the whole.

XXXVIII. That it shall and may be lawful for the said Judges of the said superior courts of common law, or any three of them, and they are hereby required, at any time within the term next following the commencement of this Act, to appoint a convenient and suitable place within the public buildings called the Four Courts at Dublin, or within the buildings or offices contiguous thereto, and attached to or connected therewith, wherein the said taxing officers or officer shall have their or his office; and that the said taxing officers or officer shall discharge the duties of their or his office in the place so to be appointed, and in no other place; and any expense attendant on such arrangement shall be charged amongst the incidental expenses hereinbefore provided for.

XXXIX. That it shall and may be lawful for the said Judges of the said superior courts of common law, or any three of them, and they are hereby required, within the term next following the commencement of this Act, to cause to be prepared a table or tables setting forth what fees and allowances and charges it may in future be reasonable and proper for the taxing officers or officer to allow in their or his taxation of costs in common law business, and also from time to time to vary such table or tables, and to make such rules as may appear to them proper to regulate the principles upon which such taxation shall in future be conducted, and that all such fees, allowances, and charges shall be payable in British currency.

And after reciting that the office of pursuivant of the said Court of Exchequer has been held by Boyle Keller Esquire under letters patent, for upwards of twenty-one years past, and the amount of fees and emoluments, as well as the business of the said office, have of late years been greatly diminished, and it is expedient to abolish the said office:—

It is Enacted,

XL. That from and after the day appointed for the commencement of this Act the said office of pursuivant of the said Court of Exchequer shall be and the same is hereby abolished: and the said Boyle Keller shall be entitled to receive yearly during his life the sum of 106*l*., being the amount of salary and compensation now enjoyed by him as such pursuivant; and the said sum to be paid and payable in the same manner, and at the same time and times, and out of the same fund, as the salaries and compensations authorized by this Act are directed to be paid: Provided always, that all such writs of attachment and other process which have heretofore been usually issued and directed to the said pursuivant shall and may be issued and directed to the serjeant-at-arms of the said Court of Exchequer.

XLII. That this Act and every clause and matter therein shall commence and have effect from and after the 11th of October in this present year 1844, save and except in cases where any clause, matter, or thing is expressly directed to take effect from the passing of this Act, or from any time particularly specified therein.

XLII. That this Act may be amended or repealed by any Act to be passed during the present session of Parliament.

CAP. CVIII.—IRELAND.

AN ACT to amend an Act of the Sixth Year of Her present Majesty, intituled, An Act to regulate the Irish Fisheries; and to empower the Constabulary Force to enforce certain Provisions respecting the Irish Fisheries.

(5th September 1844.)

ABSTRACT OF THE ENACTMENTS.

1. Constabulary force empowered to carry into effect certain regulations of the Fishery Act and of this Act.
2. Regulations for the observance of the annual and weekly close seasons.—Regulations against fishing with lights, &c. at night.
3. Inspector of fisheries empowered to receive evidence to enable Commissioners to alter the close seasons in any river or district.
4. Commissioners empowered to alter close season on shorter notice than by last-recited Act directed.
5. Power to Commissioners to suspend, for a fixed period, the oyster fishery in any particular locality.
6. Such decision to be published.
7. Use of seine net lawful for herrings.
8. When the Commissioners have defined the mouth of any river, a copy of such definition to be deposited with the clerk of the peace;—and a certified copy thereof to be evidence.
9. Act may be amended this session.

By this Act,

After reciting that, by 6 & 7 Will. 4. c. 13. s. 15. it was, among other things, provided, that no chief or other constable or sub-constable appointed under that Act should be employed to enforce any Acts relating to the laws for the preservation of fish, except only in cases when forcible resistance shall have been actually made, and proved by information taken on oath: And that, by an Act, 5 & 6 Vict. c. 106, among other things, certain regulations for the general preservation of the Irish Fisheries during certain periods of the year, and the protection of the public interests therein, were made; and it is expedient that the constabulary force shall be empowered to enforce such regulations:—

It is Enacted,

1. That the officers and men of the constabulary force in Ireland shall, anything in the said first recited Act to the contrary notwithstanding, have, for the purpose only of enforcing the regulations of the said recited Act, 5 & 6 Vict. c. 106. hereinafter set forth, and of this Act, all such powers, privileges, and authorities as are by such Act conferred upon water bailiffs duly appointed thereunder, but subject nevertheless to such orders and restrictions, in respect of their being employed to enforce such regulations, as shall from time to time be made by the Inspector General of the said constabulary force, with the approbation of the Lord Lieutenant or other Chief Governor or Governors of Ireland.

11. That the regulations in enforcing which it shall be lawful to employ the officers and men of the said constabulary force shall be the regulations hereinafter mentioned; (that is to say,) all and singular the regulations made by the said-recited Act

5 & 6 Vict. c. 106, and by this Act, or under any authority derived therefrom, for the observance and enforcement of the several periods fixed by or under authority of such Acts as the annual close seasons for the salmon fishery, the trout fishery, the eels fishery, and oyster fishery respectively, and for the free passage of fish during such several annual close seasons, and requiring for that purpose the making and maintaining of openings, and the removal of obstructions, and directing certain acts, matters, and things to be done, and prohibiting other acts, matters, and things to be done, during and in relation to such annual close seasons respectively; and also all and singular the regulations made by the said recited Act, or any authority derived therefrom, for the observance and enforcement of the several weekly close seasons fixed by such Act, in reference to inland lakes and rivers, and in reference to the sea or any estuary or tideway respectively, and for the free passage of fish during such weekly close seasons, and requiring for that purpose the making and maintaining of openings, and the removal of obstructions, and directing certain acts, matters, and things to be done, and prohibiting other acts, matters, and things to be done, during and in relation to such weekly close seasons respectively; and also all and singular the regulations of the said last-recited Act, prohibiting any person wilfully taking, selling, purchasing, or having in his possession the spawn, smelts, or fry of salmon, or of trout, or of eels, or in any way or by any device wilfully obstructing the passage of the said smelts or fry, or injuring or disturbing any such spawn or fry, or any spawning bed, bank, or shallow where the same may be; and also all and singular the regulations of the said Act prohibiting any person wilfully taking, killing, destroying, exposing to sale, or having in his possession, any red, black, foul, unclean, or unseasonable salmon or trout; and also all and singular the regulations of the said Act prohibiting any person, in any season of the year, in any mill pool or mill dam, or in any works appurtenant to any mill or factory, or in any of the watercourses leading the water to or from such mill or factory, placing, laying, setting, or drawing any net, grate, creel, or other engine, or using any means or device whatsoever (save and except rod and line used subject to the provisions of the said Act), for the purpose of taking, destroying, or obstructing any salmon or other fish, or the fry thereof; and also all and singular the regulations of the said Act prohibiting the proprietor or tenant of any eel weir taking or suffering to be taken therein any salmon or trout, or salmon or trout fry, or spent salmon; and also all and singular the regulations of the said last-recited Act prohibiting, between sun-set and sun-rise, the having or using any light or fire, spear, gaff, strokeall, or other such instrument, with intent to take salmon or other fish in or on the banks of any lake or river, or chasing, injuring, or disturbing spawning fish or fish on spawning beds, or attempting to catch fish in such places (except with rod and flies only within the lawful period), or damming or teeming or emptying any river or mill-race for the purpose of taking or destroying any salmon or trout, or the fry thereof.

And after reciting that by the said last-recited Act it is provided, that the Commissioners for the execution of the said Act may, if they shall so think fit, decide that the period by the said Act appointed for the close time for the fisheries in particular localities shall cease, and that such other period as shall be fixed upon by the said Commissioners as the close time for any of such fisheries respectively shall be kept and observed in lieu thereof, or to alter the period within which it shall not be lawful to hang any coghill or other nets in the gaps, eyes, or sluices of eel or other weirs, or make use of fixed engines for taking eels: And that it is expedient for such purpose to extend to the inspectors of fisheries appointed by the said Commissioners the power to hear and receive evidence, and to examine and inquire into the subject of such fisheries:—

It is Enacted,

III. That it shall and may be lawful for any inspector of fisheries by the said Commissioners duly appointed, at the direction and by the order of the said Commissioners, to attend at any meeting by the said Commissioners convened respecting the fisheries in any particular locality; and that the said inspector of fisheries shall hear and receive all such pertinent evidence as shall be offered to him upon the subject of the said fisheries, and shall examine and inquire into the same upon oath (which oath the said inspector is hereby authorized and empowered to administer), or otherwise, and by all such means as may be deemed expedient by him, or as shall be by the said Commissioners in that behalf directed; and that the said inspector shall, within one month after the said meeting shall have taken place, faithfully report to the said Commissioners all the evidence he shall have so received, and the result of such examination and inquiry; and that it shall and may be lawful for the said Commissioners to act upon such evidence, examination, and inquiry, as if the same had been heard, taken, received, and made by the said Commissioners themselves.

And after reciting that it is expedient that the said Commissioners should be authorized to alter close seasons on shorter notice than in and by the said Act directed:—

It is Enacted,

IV. That it shall and may be lawful for the said Commissioners to alter the close time for the fishery in any particular locality, and that such other period as shall be fixed upon by the said Commissioners as the close time for any fishery in any locality shall be kept and observed in such locality in lieu thereof, and to alter the period within which it shall not be lawful to hang any coghill or other nets in the gaps, eyes, or sluices of eel or other weirs, or make use of fixed engines for taking eels, upon calling a meeting of the persons possessed of or interested in any such fishery, giving notice of the day and place appointed for such meeting, not less than fourteen days from the date of such notice, by printed handbills and advertisement twice at least in some newspaper published and circulating in the county or several counties within which or on the coast whereof such fishery is in whole or in part situated, anything in the said Act, 5 & 6 Vict. c. 106, requiring a longer or other notice to the contrary notwithstanding.

And after reciting that it is by the said last-recited Act further enacted, that it shall not be lawful for any person between the 1st of May and the 1st of September in any year to dredge for, take, catch, or destroy any oyster or oyster brood, save and except when the season for taking the same shall be changed by the said Commissioners, according to the provisions of the said last-recited thereafter mentioned Act; and it is expedient, for the preservation, protection, and improvement of the oyster fisheries of Ireland, that in certain localities the power to dredge, fish for, or take oysters should be suspended and prohibited for certain periods:—

It is Enacted,

v. That it shall and may be lawful for the said Commissioners, if they shall so think fit, upon the application of any person interested in any oyster fishery in any particular locality, to call a meeting of the persons possessed of or interested in such oyster fishery, after giving notice of such meeting in the manner by the said last-recited Act directed with respect to changing the periods within which it shall not be lawful to fish in fisheries in particular localities, and issuing such summonses as is by the said last-recited Act in that behalf directed, and by themselves or their inspector hearing and receiving all such pertinent evidence as shall be offered to them or him on the subject of the said fishery, and examining and inquiring into the same upon oath, or otherwise to decide upon, fix, and appoint a period, not exceeding the term of three years, within which it shall not be lawful to dredge for, take, catch, or destroy any oyster or oyster brood in such locality.

vi. That such decision shall take effect and shall be published at the time and in the manner by the said Act directed as to the decision of the said Commissioners respecting the close time of any district, lake, or river.

And after reciting that it is enacted by the said Act, 5 & 6 Vict. c. 106, that no person shall, at any time between sunrise and sunset, set, either in the sea or within the tideway in any estuary, any sea net for the catching of herrings, or any trammel net, or leave any drag or other net in the water, between sunrise and sunset, except stake or fixed nets for the catching of salmon as hereinafter provided, and save also seines or drift nets for pilchards or fish other than herrings: And that it has been found expedient to permit, under certain restrictions, the use of seine nets for the taking of herrings:—

It is Enacted,

vii. That notwithstanding anything in the said recited Act to the contrary, it shall and may be lawful to and for all persons to use seine nets for the catching of herrings, save and except in such places and at such times as shall or may hereafter be forbidden by any bye law, rule, or regulation to be hereafter made by the said Commissioners.

And after reciting that by the said Act, 5 & 6 Viet. c. 106, the Commissioners for the execution thereof are authorized and empowered to define the mouths of rivers under the circumstances and for the purposes therein mentioned; and it is expedient to provide for the due publication of all definitions to be so made by the said Commissioners, and proof thereof in all courts of law or justice:—

It is Enacted,

viii. That when and so soon as the said Commissioners shall and may from time to time define the mouth or entrance of any river, under the provisions of the said Act, a copy of the definition to be so made shall be so deposited with the clerk or clerks of the peace for the county or counties in which the mouth or entrance of such river as so defined shall be situated; and in all cases when it shall hereafter become necessary to prove such definition in any court of law or justice or elsewhere, a copy, obtained from the office of any clerk of the peace with whom the same may be lodged, and certified by him to be a true copy thereof, shall be received and taken as full and sufficient evidence of the existence of such definition.

ix. That this Act may be amended or repealed by any Act to be passed in this present session of Parliament.

CAP. CIX.

AN ACT to indemnify Persons connected with Art Unions, and others, against certain Penalties.

(5th September 1844.)

ABSTRACT OF THE ENACTMENTS.

1. Art unions, and the members thereof, and other persons, discharged from all suits, &c. to which they might be liable touching the purchase or distribution of works of art by chance previous to the periods herein mentioned.
2. Act may be amended this session.

By this Act,

After seeing that certain voluntary associations have been formed in various parts of the United Kingdom, under the name of Art Unions, for the purchase of pictures and other works of art, to be afterwards allotted and distributed, by chance, lot, or otherwise, among the several members, subscribers, or contributors constituting or forming part of such associations, or for raising sums of money by subscription, to be distributed by lot as prizes amongst the members, subscribers, or contributors forming part of such associations, on the condition, nevertheless, that such prizes be expended solely and entirely in the purchase of pictures or other works of art: And that other persons, either conjointly or separately, have also obtained funds from subscribers, on condition of such persons distributing by lot or otherwise certain pictures, engravings, or other works of art among the subscribers last aforesaid: And that such distributions of works of art, and the proceedings taken to carry the same into effect, may be deemed and taken to come within the provisions of the several Acts of Parliament passed for the prevention of lotteries, littlegoes, and unlawful games, whereby the members of such art unions as aforesaid, or other persons acting as distributors of works of art as aforesaid, may be liable or subjected to certain pains and penalties imposed by law on persons concerned in lotteries, littlegoes, and unlawful games: And that it is expedient that all members, subscribers, contributors, distributors, and other persons belonging to such voluntary associations or art unions as aforesaid, or acting under their authority or direction, or on their behalf, and all other persons acting as distributors of works of art as aforesaid, or persons acting under their authority or on their behalf, shall be discharged and protected from any pains and penalties to which they may have rendered themselves liable, or to which they may become liable, by reason of any such their proceedings as aforesaid:—

It is Enacted,

I. That all such art unions, and all members, contributors, subscribers, distributors, or officers thereof, and persons acting for them or on their behalf, and all other persons acting as distributors of works of art as aforesaid, or persons acting under their authority or on their behalf, shall, so far as relates to persons other than members of the said art unions, or persons acting on their behalf, be discharged and freed from all suits, prosecutions, liabilities, pains, and penalties to which by law they may be liable as being concerned in lotteries, littlegoes, or unlawful games, for anything done or which may be done by them or any of them herebefore or before the 1st of October next ensuing the passing of this Act; and as to all other persons, being members of the said art unions as aforesaid, they shall be discharged and freed from all suits and prosecutions, liabilities, pains, and penalties to which by law they might be liable as being concerned in lotteries, littlegoes, or unlawful games, for anything done or which may be done by them or any of them herebefore or before the 31st of July next, touching the purchase of any such pictures or other works of art, or the sale or distribution thereof by chance or lot.

II. That this Act may be amended or repealed by any Act passed in the present session of Parliament.

65. Act may be amended this session.

By this Act,

After reciting that the prosperity, strength, and safety of this United Kingdom and Her Majesty's dominions do greatly depend on a large, constant, and ready supply of seamen; and it is therefore expedient to promote the increase of the number of seamen, and to afford them all due encouragement and protection, and for this purpose to amend and consolidate the laws relating to them; and it is also expedient to keep a register of seamen:—

It is Enacted,

I. That from and after the 1st of January 1845, from which day this Act shall commence and take effect, an Act, 5 & 6 Will. 4. c. 19, intituled, 'An Act to amend and consolidate the Laws relating to the Merchant Seamen of the United Kingdom, and for forming and maintaining a Register of all the Men engaged in that Service,' shall be and the same is hereby repealed, except so far as such Act repeals the Acts thereby repealed, and except so far as relates to the establishment, maintenance, and regulations of the office called "The General Register Office of Merchant Seamen:" Provided always, that all offences which shall have been committed and all penalties and forfeitures which shall have been incurred previously to the commencement of this Act shall and may be punishable and recoverable respectively under the above-mentioned Act as if the same had not been repealed; provided also, that all acts and things made, done, or executed under or by virtue of and in accordance with the provisions of the said Act, 5 & 6 Will. 4. c. 19, prior to the commencement of this Act, shall be good, valid, and effectual to all intents and purposes.

II. That it shall not be lawful for any master of any ship, of whatever tonnage or description, belonging to any subject of Her Majesty, proceeding to parts beyond the seas, or of any British registered ship of the burden of eighty tons or upwards employed in any of the fisheries of the United Kingdom, or in proceeding coastwise, or otherwise, from one part of the United Kingdom to another, to carry to sea any seaman as one of his crew or complement (apprentices excepted), unless the master of such ship shall have first made and entered into an agreement in writing with such seaman, specifying what wages such seaman is to be paid, the quantity of provisions he is to receive, the capacity in which he is to act or serve, and the nature of the voyage in which the ship is to be employed, so that such seaman may have some means of judging of the period for which he is likely to be engaged; and that such agreement shall be properly dated, and shall be signed by such master in the first instance, and by the seamen respectively at the port or place where they shall be shipped; and that the signature of each of the parties thereto shall be duly attested by one witness at the least, and that the master shall cause the agreement to be read over and explained to every such seaman in the presence of such witness, before such seamen shall execute the same; and it shall not be lawful for the master of any ship to carry to sea any seaman, being a subject of Her Majesty, until he shall also have first obtained from every such seaman or other person his register ticket (to be procured as hereinafter mentioned), which ticket the said master is hereby required to retain (except in the cases hereinafter provided) until the service of such seaman shall have terminated, and at the termination of such service the said master shall return the register ticket to him.

III. That in the case of any ships, of whatever tonnage or description, belonging to any subject or subjects of Her Majesty, and proceeding to parts beyond the seas, (except as hereinafter provided,) the agreement shall be in the form set forth in Schedule (A.) to this Act annexed, and shall contain the several particulars therein mentioned or required; and the master shall, within twenty-four hours after the ship's arrival at her final port of destination in this United Kingdom, deliver or cause to be delivered to the collector or comptroller of the Customs at and for such port every agreement so made as aforesaid, or a true copy thereof, and of every indorsement thereon, the agreement, or copy thereof, in either case, to be certified as such by such master or owner, and also by the mate or next officer (if any) of such ship or vessel, each of whom is hereby required to sign such certificate in the presence of one attesting witness at the least; and if the original agreement be delivered to such collector or comptroller he shall retain the same until all the wages to which the agreement relates shall be paid or satisfied, and then he shall transmit such original agreement to the registrar of seamen; and no such ship shall be cleared inwards by the tide surveyor or other officer until the master shall produce and shew a certificate from such collector or comptroller (which he is hereby required to give) to the effect that he has delivered his agreement, or an attested copy thereof, as aforesaid; and the tide waiters left on board shall be maintained at the expense of the master or owner until such certificate shall be produced and shewn, or until it shall be proved to the satisfaction of the tide surveyor or other officer that such agreement or agreements or such copy thereof, has or have been so delivered as aforesaid; and in the case of any ship employed in fishing on the coasts of the United Kingdom, or proceeding from one part of the United Kingdom to another, or proceeding to any of the islands of Jersey, Guernsey, Alderney, Sark, and Man, or to any place on the Continent of Europe between the River Elbe inclusive and Brest, the agreement shall be in the form set forth in Schedule (B.) to this Act annexed, and shall contain the several particulars therein mentioned or required; and every such agreement shall not extend beyond the 30th of June and the 31st of December in each year, or on arrival in any port of the United Kingdom after the same respective dates: and the owner or master of every such ship as last aforesaid shall, within twenty-one days next after the 30th of June and the 31st of December in each year, transmit or deliver, or cause to be transmitted or delivered, to the collector or comptroller of the Customs of any port of the United Kingdom, every agreement made within the six months next preceding such 30th of June and 31st of December respectively, or a true copy thereof, and of every indorsement thereon, certified as aforesaid; and such collectors and comptrollers respectively shall and are hereby required to give a receipt (specifying the nature of the document) for every agreement or other document, or such copy thereof, to the master, owner, or person so delivering the same; and no master or owner, after the expiration of the said twenty-one days, shall be entitled to or receive a transire, or any other Customs document necessary for the conduct of the business of the ship, until he shall produce and shew such receipt, or shall prove to the satisfaction of the officer that every such agreement, or such copy thereof as aforesaid, has been duly delivered as aforesaid; and the owner or master of every ship under the burden of eighty tons, employed as last aforesaid, who is not required by this Act to enter into any written agreement with his crew, shall, before employing any seaman or other person in the service of his ship, receive from every such seaman or other person his register ticket, and shall retain the same until the service of such seaman or other person shall have expired, and at the expiration of such service the master shall return the register ticket to the person entitled thereto.

iv. That if any master or owner shall carry out to sea any seaman (apprentices excepted) without having first entered into the required agreement with such seaman, or if any master shall not obtain from any seaman or other person being a subject of Her Majesty, his register ticket, according to the provisions of this Act, he shall in either and every of such cases forfeit and pay the sum of 10*l*. for and in respect of every such seaman; and if any master or owner shall neglect to cause such agreement to be read over and explained to such seaman before the signing or execution thereof by such seaman, the said master or owner shall for each neglect forfeit and pay the sum of 5*l*. for every such seaman; and if any master or owner shall neglect or omit to deliver or cause to be delivered to such collector or comptroller any such agreement, or such copy thereof as aforesaid, or shall not deliver up any register ticket to the person entitled to it at the expiration of his service, or otherwise, as required by this Act, he shall for every such neglect, omission, or offence forfeit and pay the sum of 10*l*. or if any master or owner shall deliver or cause to be delivered a false copy of the agreement he shall for every such offence forfeit and pay the sum of 20*l*.

v. That no seaman, by reason of any agreement, shall forfeit his lien upon the ship, nor be deprived of any remedy for the recovery of his wages to which he would otherwise be entitled against any person or persons whatever; and no agreement contrary to or inconsistent with this Act, nor any clause, contract, or engagement whereby any seaman shall consent or promise to forego or give up any right or claim to wages in the case of freight earned by a ship subsequently lost, or any right or claim to salvage or reward for salvage services, or such proportion of salvage or reward for salvage services as shall or may be due to him by decree or award, or otherwise, shall be valid or binding on such seaman; and every copy of an agreement so certified and delivered as aforesaid shall in all cases be received and taken as evidence of the contents of the agreement for and on behalf of the seaman; and no seaman shall in any case be required to produce such agreement, or such copy as aforesaid, or to give notice for the production thereof; but in case the agreement shall not be produced and proved he shall be at liberty to prove the contents or purport thereof, or to establish his claim by other evidence, according to the nature of the case.

vi. That in case a seaman whether before the commencement or during the progress of any voyage, shall at any time neglect or refuse to join the ship on board of which he shall have engaged to serve, or shall refuse to proceed to sea in such ship, or shall absent himself therefrom without leave, or shall desert, it shall be lawful for any Justice of the Peace in and for any of Her Majesty's dominions, or the territories under the government of the East India Company, where or near to the place where such ship shall happen to be, or where such seaman shall be found, and such Justice is hereby required, upon complaint made upon oath by the master, mate, or owner, or his agent, to issue his warrant, and cause such seamen to be apprehended, and brought before him; and in case such seaman shall not give a reason to the satisfaction of such Justice for his neglect, refusal, or absence, as the case may be, or in case of desertion, it shall be lawful for any such Justice, upon due proof of such neglect, refusal, absence, or desertion, to commit such seaman to prison or to the house of correction, there to be imprisoned, with or without hard labour, at the discretion of such Justice, for a period not exceeding thirty days; or it shall be lawful for the said Justice if he shall so think fit, at the request of the master, mate, or owner, or his agent, instead of committing such seaman, to cause him to be conveyed on board the said ship, or to be delivered to the master, mate, or owner, or his agent, for the purpose of being so conveyed and proceeding on the voyage, and also to award to the master or owner such costs incurred in the apprehension of the seaman as to such Justice shall seem reasonable, not exceeding in any case the sum of 40*s*., which shall be chargeable against and may be deducted from the wages of such seaman; and whenever any seaman shall be committed to prison or to any house of correction, the Justice shall cause his register ticket to be delivered to the governor or keeper of such prison or house of correction, who shall retain the same during the period of the seaman's imprisonment, and at the expiration of such period shall return the register ticket to the seaman; and whenever a seaman shall be sentenced to death or transportation the officer having the custody of such seaman shall transmit his register ticket to the registrar of seamen.

vii. That if any seaman during the time or period specified for his service shall wilfully and without leave absent himself from the ship, or otherwise from his duty, he shall (in all cases not of desertion, or not treated as such by the master,) forfeit out of his wages the amount of two days' pay, and for every twenty-four hours of such absence the amount of six days' pay, or, at the option of the master, the amount of such expenses as shall have been necessarily incurred in hiring a substitute; and in case any seaman while he shall belong to the ship shall without sufficient cause neglect or refuse to perform such his duty as shall be reasonably required of him by the master or other person in command of the ship, he shall be subject to a like forfeiture in respect of every such offence, and of every twenty-four hours' continuance thereof; and in case any such seaman, after the ship's arrival at her port of delivery, and before her cargo shall be discharged, shall quit the ship, without a previous discharge or leave from the master, he shall forfeit one month's pay out of his wages: Provided always, that no such forfeiture shall be incurred unless the fact of the seaman's absence, neglect or refusal shall be duly entered in the ship's log book, the truth of which entry it shall be incumbent on the owner or master, in all cases of dispute, to substantiate by the evidence of the mate or some other credible witness.

viii. That in all cases where the seaman shall have contracted for wages by the voyage or by the run or by the share, and not by the month or other stated period of time, the amount of forfeitures to be incurred by seamen under this Act shall be ascertained in manner following; (that is to say,) if the whole time spent in the voyage agreed upon shall exceed one calendar month the forfeiture of one month's pay expressed in this Act shall be accounted and taken to be a forfeiture of a sum of money bearing the same proportion to the whole wages or share as a calendar month shall bear to the whole time spent in the voyage; and in like manner a forfeiture of six days' pay, or less, shall be accounted and taken to be a forfeiture of a sum bearing the same proportion to the whole wages or share as the six days or other period shall bear to the whole time spent in the voyage; and if the whole time spent in the voyage shall not exceed the period for which the pay is to be forfeited the forfeiture shall be accounted and taken to be a forfeiture of the whole wages or share; and the master or owner is hereby authorized to deduct the amount of all forfeitures out of the wages or share of any seaman incurring the same.

ix. That any seaman or other person who shall desert the ship to which he shall belong shall forfeit to the owner thereof all his clothes and effects which he may leave on board, and he shall also forfeit all wages and emoluments to which he might otherwise be entitled; and in case of any seaman deserting abroad, he shall likewise forfeit all wages and emoluments whatever which shall be or become due or be agreed to be paid to him from or by the owner or master of any other ship in the service whereof such seaman may have engaged for the voyage back to the United Kingdom; and that all wages and portions of wages and emoluments which shall in any case whatever become forfeited for desertion shall be applied, in the first instance, in or towards the reimbursement of the expenses occasioned by such desertion to the owner or master of the ship from which the seaman shall have deserted, and the remainder shall be paid to the Seamen's Hospital Society; and the master shall, in case of desertion in the United Kingdom, deliver up the register ticket of such seaman or other person to the collector or comptroller of the Customs at the port: Provided always, that every desertion be entered in the log book at the time, and certified by the signatures of the master and the mate, or the master and one other credible witness; and that the absence of a seaman from his ship for any time within twenty-four hours immediately preceding the sailing of the ship from any port, whether before the commencement or during the progress of any voyage, wilfully and knowingly, without permission, or the wilful absence of a seaman from his ship at or for any time without permission, and under circumstances shewing an intention to abandon the same, and not return thereto, shall be deemed a desertion of and from the same ship; and in case any seaman shall desert in parts beyond the seas, and the master of the ship shall engage a substitute at a higher rate of wages than that stipulated in the agreement to be paid to the seaman so deserting, the owner or master of the ship shall be entitled to recover from the deserter, by summary proceeding, in the same manner as penalties are by this Act made recoverable (so far as the same can be applied), any excess of wages or portion thereof which such owner or master shall pay to such substitute beyond the amount which would have been payable to the deserter in case he had duly performed his service pursuant to his agreement: Provided always, that no seaman shall be imprisoned longer than three calendar months for non-payment of any such excess of wages.

X. That if any person shall wilfully harbour or secrete any seaman or apprentice who shall have deserted from his ship, knowing or having reason to believe such seaman or apprentice to be a deserter, every person so offending shall for every such seaman or apprentice so harboured or secreted forfeit and pay the sum of 10*l.*; and no debt exceeding in amount 5*s.*, incurred by any seaman after he shall have engaged to serve, shall be recoverable until the service agreed for shall have been concluded; nor shall it be lawful for any keeper of a public house, or of a lodging house for seamen, to detain any chest, tools, or other property of any seaman for any debt alleged to have been contracted by him; and in case of such detention of the chest, tools, or other property of a seaman, it shall be lawful for any Justice of the Peace at or near the place, upon complaint upon oath to be made by such seaman or on his behalf, to inquire into the matter upon oath in a summary way; and if it shall appear to such Justice that the alleged claim is fraudulent, or that the debt was not fairly incurred to the full amount of the claim, by warrant under his hand and seal to cause such effects to be seized and delivered over to such seaman; and the person so detaining the same shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding 10*l.*, at the discretion of such Justice.

XI. That the master or owner of every ship shall and is hereby required to pay to every seaman his wages within the respective periods following; (that is to say,) if the ship shall be employed in coasting, the wages shall be paid within two days after the termination of the agreement, or at the time when any such seaman shall be discharged, whichever shall first happen; and if the ship shall be employed otherwise than coasting, then the wages shall be paid at the latest within three days after the cargo shall have been delivered, or within seven days after the seaman's discharge, whichever shall first happen; and in all cases the seaman shall, at the time of his discharge, be entitled to be paid, on account, a sum equal to one-fourth part of the balance due to him; and in case the master or owner shall neglect or refuse to make payment in manner aforesaid, he shall for every such neglect or refusal forfeit and pay to the seaman the amount of two days' pay (to be recovered as wages) for each day, not exceeding ten days, during which payment shall, without sufficient cause, be delayed beyond the respective periods aforesaid: Provided always, that nothing in this clause contained shall extend to the cases of ships employed in the Southern Whale Fishery, or on voyages for which seamen, by the terms of their agreement, are wholly compensated by shares in the profits of the adventure.

XII. Enacted and declared, That every such payment of wages to a seaman shall be valid and effectual in law, notwithstanding any bill of sale or assignment which may have been made of such wages, or of any attachment or incumbrance thereon, and that no assignment or sale of wages or salvage made prior to the accruing thereof, nor any power of attorney expressed to be irrevocable for the receipt of any such wages or salvage, shall be valid or binding upon the party making the same, and any attachment to be issued from any court whatever shall not prevent the payment of wages to any seaman; and if during the voyage the allowance of provisions which a seaman agreed to receive shall be reduced one third of the quantity or less he shall receive 4*d.* per day, and if the reduction be more than one-third he shall receive 8*d.* per day, during the period such respective deductions may be made, and such pecuniary allowance shall be paid to him in addition to and be recoverable as wages.

XIII. That upon the discharge of a seaman from any ship, or upon payment of the wages to him, he shall receive from the master, and the master is hereby required to give to him, not only his register ticket, but also a certificate of such seaman's service and discharge, in the form set forth in Schedule (E.) to this Act annexed, specifying the period of his service, and the time and place of his discharge, which certificate shall be signed by the master, and if the master shall not give such certificate to such seaman he shall forfeit and pay to him the sum of 5*l.*

XIV. That if three days after the termination of the stipulated service, or if three days after a seaman shall have been discharged, he shall be desirous of proceeding on another voyage, and in order thereto, or for any other sufficient reason, shall require immediate payment of any amount of wages, not exceeding 20*l.*, due to him, it shall be lawful for any Justice of the Peace, in and for any part of Her Majesty's dominions or the territories under the government of the East India Company, where or near to the port or place where such service shall have terminated, or such seaman shall have been discharged, or the party or parties liable shall be or reside, on application from such seaman, and on satisfactory proof that he would be prevented from employment or incur serious loss or inconvenience by delay, to summon such party or parties before him, and if it shall appear to the satisfaction of such Justice that there is no reasonable cause for delay, to order payment to be made forthwith, and in default of immediate compliance with such order such party or parties shall forfeit and pay to such seaman, in addition to his wages, the sum of 5*l*.

xv. That in all cases of wages, not exceeding 20*l*., which shall be due and payable to any seaman, it shall be lawful for any Justice of the Peace in and for any part of Her Majesty's dominions or the territories under the government of the East India Company, where or near to the place where the ship shall have ended her voyage, cleared at the custom-house, or discharged her cargo, or where or near to the place where the party or either of the parties upon whom the claim is made shall be or reside, upon complaint on oath made to such Justice by such seaman, or on his behalf, to summon such party or parties to appear before him to answer such complaint; and upon the appearance of such party or parties, or, in default thereof, on due proof of him or them having been so summoned, such Justice is hereby empowered to examine the parties and their respective witnesses (if there be any) upon oath, touching the complaint, and the amount of wages due, and to inspect any agreement or copy thereof, if produced, and make such order for payment of the said wages, not exceeding 20*l*., with the costs incurred by the seaman in prosecuting such claim, as shall to such Justice appear reasonable and just; and in case such order shall not be obeyed within two days next after the making thereof it shall be lawful for such Justice to issue his warrant to levy the amount of the wages awarded to be due, by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of the party on whom such order for payment shall be made, rendering to such party the overplus (if any shall remain of the produce of the sale,) after deducting thereout all the costs, charges, and expenses incurred by the seaman in the making and prosecuting of the complaint, as well as the costs and charges of the distress and levy; or to cause the amount of the said wages, costs, charges, and expenses to be levied on the ship in respect of the service on board which the wages are claimed, or on the tackle and apparel thereof; and if such ship shall not be within the jurisdiction of such Justice, or such levy cannot be made, or shall prove insufficient, then he is hereby empowered to cause the party upon whom the order shall be made to be apprehended, and committed to the common gaol of the district or county, there to remain without bail until payment shall be made of the amount of the wages so awarded, and of all costs and expenses attending the recovery thereof; and the award and decision of such Justice as aforesaid shall be final and conclusive.

xvi. That all the rights, liens, privileges, and remedies (save such remedies as are against a master himself) which by this Act, or by any law, statute, custom, or usage, belong to any seaman or mariner, not being a master mariner, in respect to the recovery of his wages, shall, in the case of the bankruptcy or insolvency of the owner of the ship, also belong and be extended to masters of ships or master mariners, in respect to the recovery of wages due to them from the owner of any ship belonging to any of Her Majesty's subjects; and that no suit or proceeding for the recovery of wages shall, unless they exceed 20*l*., be instituted against the ship, or the master or owner thereof, either in any Court of Admiralty or Vice Admiralty Court, or any court of record in Her Majesty's dominions, or the territories under the government of the East India Company, unless the owner of the ship shall be bankrupt or insolvent, or the ship shall be under arrest or sold by the authority of any Admiralty or Vice Admiralty Court, or unless any magistrate acting under the authority of this Act shall refer the case to be adjudged by any such Court or Courts, or unless neither the owner nor master shall be or reside at or near the port or place where the service shall have terminated, or where any seaman shall have been discharged or put on shore.

xvii. That whenever any ship whatever, belonging to any subject of Her Majesty, shall be sold, transferred, or disposed of at any port out of Her Majesty's dominions, in all such cases (unless the crew in the presence of the British consul or vice consul, or in case of there not being any such consul or vice consul, then in the presence of one or more British resident merchants, not interested in the said ship, shall signify their consent in writing to complete the voyage if continued), or whenever the service of any seaman shall terminate at any place out of Her Majesty's dominions, the master shall and he is hereby required to give to each of the crew and to each of the seamen whose service shall terminate as last aforesaid, a certificate of discharge in the said form set forth in Schedule (E), and also his register ticket, and, besides paying the wages to which they shall respectively be entitled, either to provide them with adequate employment on board some other British vessel homeward bound, or to furnish the means of sending them back to the port in Her Majesty's dominions at which they were originally shipped, or to such other port in the United Kingdom as shall be agreed upon between him and them respectively, or to provide them with a passage home, or to deposit with the consul or vice consul, merchant or merchants as aforesaid, such a sum of money as shall be by them deemed sufficient to defray the expenses of the subsistence and passage of such seamen; and if the master shall refuse or neglect so to do, such expenses, when defrayed by such consul or vice consul, or any other person on behalf of the seaman, shall be a charge upon the owner of such ship, except in cases of barratry, and may be recovered against such owner as so much money paid to his use, together with full costs, at the suit of the consul or other person defraying such expenses, or as a debt due to Her Majesty, in case the same shall have been allowed to the consul out of the public monies, and if defrayed by the seaman shall be recoverable as wages due to him; and in all cases of wreck or loss of the ship every surviving seaman shall be entitled to his wages up to the period of the wreck or loss of the ship, whether such ship shall or shall not have previously earned freight; provided the seaman shall produce a certificate from the master or chief surviving officer of the ship, to the effect that he had exerted himself to the utmost to save the ship, cargo, and stores.

xviii. That every ship navigating between the United Kingdom and any place out of the same shall have and keep constantly on board a sufficient supply of medicines and medicaments suitable to accidents and diseases arising on sea voyages, in accordance with the scale which shall from time to time or at any time be issued by the Lord High Admiral, or by the Commissioners for executing the office of Lord High Admiral, and published in the London Gazette; and every ship (except those bound to European ports or to ports in the Mediterranean sea) shall also have on board a sufficient quantity of lime or lemon juice, sugar, and vinegar, the lime or lemon juice, sugar, and vinegar to be served out to the crew whenever they shall have been consuming salt provisions for ten days; the lime or lemon juice and sugar daily, after the rate of half an ounce each per day, and the vinegar weekly, at the rate of half a pint per week to each person, so long as the consumption of salt provisions be continued; and in case any default shall be made in providing and keeping such medicines, medicaments, and lime or lemon juice, sugar, and vinegar, the owner of the ship shall incur a penalty of 20*l*. for each and every default; and in case of default of serving out such lime or lemon juice, sugar, or vinegar as aforesaid, the master shall incur a penalty of 5*l.* for each and every default; and in case the master or any seaman shall receive any hurt or injury in the service of the ship, the expense of providing the necessary surgical and medical advice, with attendance and medicines, and for his subsistence until he shall have been cured, or shall have been brought back to some port of the United Kingdom, shall, together with the costs of his conveyance to the United Kingdom, be defrayed by the said owner of the ship without any deduction whatever on that account from the wages of such master or seaman; and, if paid by any officer or other person on behalf of Her Majesty, the amount, with full costs of suit, shall be recovered as a debt due to Her Majesty; and every ship having one hundred persons or upwards on board, and every ship the voyage of which shall be deemed under the provisions of the Act, 6 Vict., intituled, 'An Act for regulating the Carriage of Passengers in Merchant Vessels,' to exceed twelve weeks, having fifty persons or upwards on board, shall have on board, as one of her complement, some person duly authorized by law to practise in this kingdom as a physician, surgeon, or apothecary; and in case of every default the owner shall incur a penalty not exceeding 100*l.*

And after reciting, that in and by the said Act, 5 & 6 Will. 4. c. 19, it was provided, that as soon as conveniently might be after the passing of that Act there should be established in the port of London an office to be called "The General Register Office of Merchant Seamen," which should consist of a registrar and such assistants and clerks, with such salaries and allowances as should be fixed and regulated from time to time by the Lord High Admiral or the Commissioners for executing the office of Lord High Admiral of the United Kingdom for the time being; and that such office should be kept at the Custom House of the said port, and daily attendance be given thereat during the usual hours of business there; and that the said registrar, his assistants and clerks, should be under the controul and directions of the said Lord High Admiral or the Commissioners for executing the office aforesaid for the time being: And that such office was established under and in pursuance of the said Act, and it is expedient to maintain and continue the same under the title of "The General Register and Record Office of Seamen,"—

It is Enacted,

XX. That such office, salaries, and allowances, with every thing appertaining to the said office, shall be maintained and continued in manner and form, and subject to such regulations, directions, and controul, as the said Lord High Admiral or the Commissioners for executing the office of Lord High Admiral for the time being have directed or shall direct; and the said Lord High Admiral or the Commissioners for executing the office of Lord High Admiral for the time being shall have power to fix and regulate such fees as he or they may deem proper to be paid by the applicants for the inspection and copies of documents in the said office.

XX. That every person, being a subject of Her Majesty, intending to serve on board any ship subject to the provisions of this Act (except as master or physician, surgeon or apothecary), shall and he is hereby required to provide himself with a register ticket, and for that purpose to apply personally at the General Register and Record Office of Seamen in London, or at the custom houses of the several outports of the United Kingdom; and every applicant is hereby required to answer truly, to the best of his ability, all the questions set forth in Schedule (F.) to this Act annexed, before he shall be entitled to receive his register ticket; and no person shall serve in any capacity on board any ship subject to any of the provisions of this Act (except the master, physician, surgeon, or apothecary) who is not possessed of such register ticket; and the masters of all apprentices who shall be bound after the commencement of this Act, or whose apprenticeship shall be in force when this Act takes effect, shall, before commencing a voyage, bring all indentures and assignments of apprenticeships, together with the apprentices themselves, to the registrar of seamen in London, or to the custom house of the nearest port, in order that each of such apprentices may be furnished with a register ticket, which ticket shall be annexed and be kept annexed to the original indenture retained by the master, and shall be delivered up to the apprentice by the master at the expiration of the apprenticeship; and the registrar of seamen and the collectors and comptrollers of Customs respectively are hereby required to grant such tickets to all seamen and other persons requiring the same, and duly complying with the provisions aforesaid.

XXI. That if any person shall alter or destroy a register ticket, or counterfeit, transfer, or traffic in, for gain or otherwise, or attempt to counterfeit, transfer, or traffic in, for gain or otherwise, any register ticket issued or purporting to be issued pursuant to the provisions of this Act, he shall for every such offence be guilty of a misdemeanour; and any person becoming possessed of a register ticket, other than that legally issued to him, shall forthwith transmit the same to the registrar of seamen, and in case of default he shall for every such offence forfeit and pay a sum of 20*l.*

XXII. That if any seaman shall lose his register ticket he shall forthwith appear in person, and represent his case to the registrar of seamen in London, or to the collector or comptroller of Customs at any of the outports; and he shall truly answer all reasonable questions put to him by the said registrar or officer of Customs; and if it appear that no fraud has been committed, and the loss was unavoidable, he shall be furnished with another register ticket; but if it appear that the seaman did not take due and reasonable care of his former ticket, or if he shall not give a satisfactory account of the same, he shall be liable to a penalty of not exceeding 10*s.* and not less than 2*s.*, and shall not be entitled to any other ticket until such penalty shall be paid; and every person who shall apply for any ticket, and shall give a false answer to any reasonable question which may be put to him by the registrar of seamen, or his assistant, or by the collector or comptroller of Customs, with reference to the granting such ticket, shall be guilty of a misdemeanour.

XXIII. That all district registers of births, deaths, and marriages shall and they are hereby required to demand from the person registering the death of any seaman the register ticket of such seaman, and, if delivered to any such registrar, he shall forthwith forward the same to the registrar of seamen; and no person, other than the said registrar of seamen, shall retain the ticket of a deceased seaman; and if any person shall retain any such ticket for more than twenty days after the death of any such seaman, or ten days after the arrival of the ship in the United Kingdom should the seaman die abroad, he shall be liable to a penalty of not exceeding 5*l.* in respect of every such register ticket so detained.

XXIV. That a list shall be prepared from time to time by the registrar of seamen, setting forth the numbers of all the register tickets that have been cancelled by reason of the death of seamen or otherwise within the preceding six calendar months; and such lists shall be published half-yearly in the London Gazette, and shall also be transmitted by the said registrar from time to time to the collectors and comptrollers of Customs, to be by them conspicuously exhibited in the custom houses and other stations of their respective ports, and copies of such lists shall be delivered to any master or owner on application; and every master or owner entering into an agreement with any seaman producing such cancelled ticket shall be liable to and incur a penalty of not exceeding 5*l.*; and every seaman tendering or delivering to a master a cancelled ticket, or any other ticket not legally issued to him, or falsely representing himself to be a foreigner, shall forfeit to the owner all wages which shall become due to him during the service, for which he shall agree or shall have agreed.

XXV. That duplicates of all register tickets, and all papers and documents delivered or transmitted to and retained by the said registrar, shall be by him recorded, preserved and kept; and every copy of such duplicate tickets, papers, and documents, or any of them, certified by the said registrar or his assistant to be a true copy, shall be admitted in evidence as fully as the original thereof; and every copy of a document and indorsement thereon, which may be delivered by any owner or master under the provisions of this Act, shall and may be admitted in evidence against such owner and master, and each of them, as fully as the original of such document and indorsement.

XXVI. That the master of every ship belonging to any subject of Her Majesty, and bound to parts beyond the seas, except in the cases hereinafter mentioned, shall, before he leaves his first port of departure from the United Kingdom, transmit or deliver, or cause to be transmitted or delivered, to the collector and comptroller of Customs at such port, a list, signed by himself, of the names of his crew (including apprentices), with the numbers of their register tickets, and the capacity in which they are serving on board, in the form set forth in Schedule (G.) to this Act annexed; and if any subsequent change in his crew take place before finally leaving the United Kingdom the owner or master shall, upon such change taking place, apprise the collector and comptroller of the Customs at the port where it occurs, by transmitting an amended list in the same form; and the master or owner of every such ship shall, within forty-eight hours after the arrival of such ship at her final port of destination in the United Kingdom, transmit or deliver, or cause to be transmitted or delivered, to the collector or comptroller of the Customs at such port, an account or list, signed by himself, of all the seamen and others (including apprentices) who shall have belonged to the ship at any time during her absence from the United Kingdom; which account or list shall contain a full, true, and correct return under their respective heads of the several particulars expressed in the form set forth in the Schedule annexed to this Act, and marked (C.), with christian names and surnames of the master and all the crew at full length, and with the dates of the registry of the indentures of the apprentices, and the assignments respectively, and the port at which and the time when they were respectively registered, and also the numbers of the register tickets of every apprentice and seaman; and no vessel shall be cleared inwards by the tide surveyor or other officer until the master or owner shall produce a certificate from the collector or comptroller (which he is hereby required to give) to the effect that he has rendered such accounts or lists as aforesaid; and the tide waiters or other officers left on board shall be maintained at the expense of the master or owner until such accounts or lists shall be duly delivered as aforesaid.

XXVII. That within twenty-one days after the 30th of June and the 31st of December in each year the master or owner of every ship belonging to a subject of Her Majesty, of whatever tonnage, employed in fishing on the coasts of the United Kingdom or elsewhere, other than in the South Sea, Greenland, and Newfoundland fisheries, or in proceeding from one part of the United Kingdom to another, and every ship proceeding or making voyages to any of the islands of Jersey, Guernsey, Alderney, Sark, and Man, or to any port on the continent of Europe, between the river Elbe inclusive and Brest, shall deliver or transmit, or cause to be delivered or transmitted, to the collector or comptroller of the Customs of any port of the United Kingdom, an account, signed by such master or owner, of any voyage or voyages in which such ship shall have been engaged during the preceding half-year ending on the respective days above mentioned, and setting forth legibly and at full length the christian and surnames of the several persons (including the master and apprentices) who shall have belonged to the ship at any time during such periods respectively; which account shall be in the form and shall contain a true and correct return under their respective heads of the several particulars expressed in the Schedule marked (D.) to this Act annexed, with the dates of the registry of the indentures of apprenticeship and assignments respectively, and the ports at which and the time when they were respectively registered, and the numbers of the register tickets of every seaman and apprentice; and no master or owner shall be entitled to or receive a transire or other Customs document necessary to enable him to conduct the business of his ship, after the expiration of the said twenty-one days, until he shall produce and shew a certificate from such collector or comptroller (which he is hereby required to give), to the effect that he has delivered such an account; and in the case of ships of all descriptions which may be unemployed for six months, or which may be employed and not require a transire or other Customs document, the master or owner shall notify the same to such collector or comptroller within such twenty-one days, and in case of every default the master or owner shall be liable to a penalty of 10*l.*; and all collectors and comptrollers of Customs of the ports to which the vessels belong shall transmit a list of all such ships, and of all ships of every description registered or licensed, or whose registers or licences have been transferred or cancelled in their respective ports within each half-year ending as aforesaid, to the said registrar at the said office, on or before the 1st of February and the 1st of August in each year respectively.

XXVIII. That in case any ship belonging to any subject of Her Majesty shall be lost, sold, or transferred, an account, containing a similar return as required in the several and respective cases before mentioned, made out up to the period of such loss, sale, or transfer, shall, if practicable, be delivered or transmitted by the master or owner at the time of the loss, sale, or transfer, to the collector or comptroller of the port to which the ship belongs, with all convenient speed, and in case such loss, sale, or transfer shall take place out of the United Kingdom, within twelve calendar months at farthest after the loss, sale, or transfer of the ship.

XXIX. That all indentures, counterparts, assignments, lists, accounts, returns, papers, register tickets, and documents by this Act required to be delivered to the collectors or comptrollers as aforesaid shall be by them transmitted to the said registrar for the purposes of this Act at the end of every week, unless otherwise specified in this Act; and every owner or master who shall refuse or neglect to transmit, deliver or cause to be delivered, any list, account, register ticket, or other document, as required by this Act, shall for every such refusal or neglect forfeit and pay the sum of 10*l.*

xxx. That all agreements, or copies thereof, lists, returns, register tickets, and other documents, which under the provisions of this Act are required to be transmitted or delivered to the collectors or comptrollers of Customs of the several ports in the United Kingdom, shall, in the case of pleasure yachts, be transmitted or delivered by the masters or owners of such yachts direct to the registrar of seamen, and the owners or masters thereof shall be liable to the same penalties for default as herein provided in the cases of the masters or owners of other ships failing to transmit or deliver such documents to such collectors and comptrollers.

xxxi. That whenever any seaman, being abroad, shall die elsewhere than on board a ship belonging to any subject of Her Majesty, leaving any money or effects not on board his ship, it shall be lawful for Her Majesty's Consul or Vice Consul at or nearest to the place, and he is hereby required, to claim and take charge of all such money and effects, and to dispose of the said effects, if he shall so think fit, and after deducting all necessary and proper charges and expenses incurred in the collecting thereof, or by or on account of such seaman, to remit the balance, with a full account of such money or effects, to the president and governors of the corporation "For the Relief and Support of sick, maimed, and disabled Seamen, and of the Widows and Children of such as shall be killed, slain, or drowned in the Merchant Service," to be by such president and governors paid over and disposed of, in the same manner and under the same regulations as are provided by an Act, 4 & 5 Will. 4. c. 52, intituled, 'An Act to amend an Act of the Twentieth Year of His Majesty King George the Second, for the Relief and Support of sick, maimed, and disabled Seamen, and the Widows and Children of such as shall be killed, slain, or drowned in the Merchant Service; and for other Purposes,' with respect to the wages of seamen dying on board merchant ships; and in case any seaman dying abroad shall leave on board his ship any money, clothes, or other effects, or be entitled to any wages, the master of the said ship shall and he is hereby required to deposit the same, or the proceeds arising therefrom, with, and to pay such wages to, the president and governors aforesaid, to be by them disposed of in the same manner as is provided by the said Act with respect to the wages of seamen dying on board ship, and to transmit to the said president and governors at the same time a full account of such effects and wages; and on failure the master shall forfeit a sum not exceeding 50*l.*, in addition to being accountable for such money, clothes, effects, and wages; and in all cases of a seaman dying abroad the master shall, on his ship's return to the United Kingdom, deliver up to the said president and governors the register ticket of such deceased seaman, and the said president and governors, on the receipt thereof, shall transmit the same to the registrar of seamen.

xxxii. That it shall be lawful for the overseers of the poor, or other persons, having the authority of overseers of the poor, in and for any district, union, parish, township, or place in the United Kingdom, and they are hereby empowered, to bind by indenture, according to the form set forth in Schedule (H.) to this Act annexed, and put out as an apprentice in the sea service to any of Her Majesty's subjects, being the owner of any ship registered or licensed in any port of the United Kingdom, any boy having attained the age of twelve years, and of sufficient health and strength, who or whose parent or parents is or are chargeable to or maintained by any such district, union, parish, township, or place, or who shall beg for alms therein, with his consent, but not otherwise; and until such boy shall attain the age of twenty-one years, or shall have served as apprentice seven years, or whichever shall first happen, such binding shall be effectual to all intents and purposes: Provided always, that where any such parish, township, or place separately maintaining its own poor shall be included in any union, or shall be under the management of a board of guardians, no such binding shall be valid unless the guardians of such union, parish, or other place respectively shall previously have given their consent thereto, by causing their official seal to be affixed to the indenture, and the same to be signed by the presiding chairman of the board at any meeting, and the clerk or person acting as such at such meeting; and provided also, that every such binding shall be made in the presence of any such boy, and of two Justices of the Peace, who shall execute the indenture in testimony of their being satisfied that such boy hath consented so to be bound, and attained the age, and is of sufficient health and strength as required by this Act; and the age of every such boy shall be truly inserted in his indenture, and the age of every such boy so inserted therein shall (in relation to the continuance of his service) be taken to be his true age, without any further proof thereof; and any certificate of baptism of such boy which may be required shall be given and attested by the officiating minister without fee or reward: Provided always, that no apprenticeship to the sea service, whether parish or otherwise, shall be binding after the apprentice shall have attained the age of twenty-one years; and that every indenture, together with his register ticket annexed thereto, shall be given up to such apprentice on his attaining such age, or at the expiration of his apprenticeship, whichever shall first happen, by the person to whom he shall be bound at the time, under a penalty of 20*l.*, to be paid by such person on default; but should any apprenticeship, parish, or otherwise, expire during a voyage, and before the ship's arrival at her final port of destination in the United Kingdom, such apprenticeship shall, notwithstanding, continue until the return of the ship to her final port of destination in the United Kingdom; but after one calendar month from the expiration of such apprenticeship the apprentice shall be paid the same wages as an able-bodied seaman or ordinary seaman of the said ship, according to his qualification.

xxxiii. That it shall be lawful for any master or person to whom any parish apprentice shall have been or shall be hereafter bound to a service on shore, according to the statutes for the time being relating to such apprentices, or for the executors or administrators, or, there being none such, for the widow of any deceased master, with the concurrence of two or more Justices of the Peace in and for the county, district, or place where such boy shall have been bound apprentice, to assign such boy, with his consent, to be given in the presence of such Justices, but not otherwise, as apprentice to any such owner as aforesaid, to be employed in the sea service during the period then remaining unexpired of his apprenticeship; and every such assignment shall be attested as next hereinafter mentioned.

xxxiv. That in the event of the bankruptcy, insolvency, or death of the master of any such parish apprentice to the sea service, it shall be lawful for such master, or the executors or administrators of such master, or, there being none such, for the widow of such deceased master, to assign the indenture of any such apprentice for the residue of the term then unexpired therein to any other owner of any such ship: Provided always, that such assignment, if executed within the limits of the port of London, shall be attested by the said registrar, his assistant, or one of his clerks, and if executed at any other port, by the collector or comptroller of the Customs of such port.

xxxv. That such overseers, guardians, or other persons as aforesaid shall cause the indenture of apprenticeship to be prepared and transmitted in triplicate; (that is to say,) two counterparts, besides the indenture, to the said registrar, if the owner of the ship to whom such apprentice is to be bound shall be or reside within the limits of the port of London, and if at any other port, to the collector or comptroller of the Customs at such port; and shall cause each such poor boy to be conducted and conveyed to such port or place by a constable or other trustworthy person, at the expense of the district, union, parish, township, or place; and when any such boy shall be so bound he shall be provided by the guardians of the said union or parish as aforesaid, or, in case the said parish or place shall not be included in any union or governed by a board of guardians, by the overseers, with a sufficient outfit of sea clothing, bedding, and similar necessities, to the value of 5*l.*, which said amount, together with the expenses to be incurred in the binding and conveyance of the said boy, shall be charged by such guardians or overseers respectively to the account of the parish or other place by whose overseers the said boy shall be bound, and be allowed to them in their account; and the said indentures so entered into by the overseers of any parish or other place as aforesaid may be sued upon in the name of the overseers of the poor of the said parish or other place for the time being, by their name of office; and no action commenced for the breach of any covenant therein contained, with the consent of the vestry of such parish or place, shall abate by reason of death or any change of overseers of such parish or place pending the same, but shall be proceeded in by the overseers for the time being, who shall be entitled to charge the whole amount of the costs incurred in such action, and not recovered from the defendant therein, upon the poor rates collected by them, though part of such costs shall have been incurred by their predecessors.

xxxvi. That such indentures shall be executed in the presence of and attested by the constable or other person who shall conduct or convey such apprentice; and such indentures shall bear date respectively on the days on which they are executed; and such constable or other person shall transmit one of the said counterparts, duly executed, to the overseers, guardians, or other persons aforesaid, one to the master, and another to the said registrar.

xxxvii. That the master or owner of every ship belonging to any subject of Her Majesty, and of the burden of eighty tons and upwards (except pleasure yachts), shall have on board at the time of her proceeding from any port of the United Kingdom, and at all times when absent from the United Kingdom, or navigating the seas, one apprentice, or more, in the following proportion to the number of tons of his ship's admeasurement, according to the certificate of registry; (that is to say,) for every ship of eighty tons and under two hundred tons, one apprentice at the least; for every ship of two hundred tons and under four hundred tons, two apprentices at the least; for every ship of four hundred tons and under five hundred tons, three apprentices at the least; for every ship of five hundred tons and under seven hundred tons, four apprentices at the least; and every ship of seven hundred tons and upwards, five apprentices at the least; all of whom, at the period of their being bound respectively, shall be subjects of Her Majesty, and above twelve and under seventeen years of age, and be duly bound for the term of four years at the least; and if any such master or owner shall neglect to have on board his ship the number of apprentices as hereby required, together with their respective registered indentures, assignments, and register tickets, he shall for every such offence forfeit and pay the sum of 10*l.* in respect of each apprentice, indenture, assignment, or register ticket so wanting or deficient.

xxxviii. That in case any indentures of apprenticeship of any description shall be cancelled, or any apprentice, parish or otherwise, shall die on shore or desert, or by reason of the vessel of the master not having made a voyage for six months shall not be reported in either of the said lists, such cancellation, death, desertion, or non-employment shall forthwith be notified in writing by the master of the apprentice to the said registrar, if the ship on board which the apprentice was bound to serve shall belong to the port of London, or otherwise to the collector or comptroller of the port to which the said ship shall belong; and for every default the said master shall be liable to a penalty of 10*l.*; and the collector or comptroller, if the notification be made to him, shall transmit the same to the said registrar within one week from the receipt thereof; and no cancelling of any indenture of apprenticeship of any description shall be valid or effectual without the mutual consent of the parties, or without the consent or in the absence of the registrar of seamen in London, or of the collector or comptroller of Customs of the port in which such cancellation shall take place, or, in case of bindings by the overseers, without the additional consent of the guardians of the union or parish whose consent was given to the said binding, to be testified by a copy of a minute of the board forwarded by the clerk to the said guardians.

xxxix. That the said registrar in London, and the collector and comptroller of the Customs at each other port, shall, in a book to be kept for that purpose, cause to be entered from time to time all such indentures and assignments of parish apprentices as aforesaid, specifying therein the dates thereof, the names and ages of the apprentices, the parishes or places from whence they are sent, the names and residences of their masters to whom they are bound or assigned, and the names, ports, and burden of the respective ships to which such masters belong, and shall make and subscribe on each indenture and assignment an indorsement, purporting that the same had been duly registered pursuant to this Act; and such registrar, collectors, and comptrollers respectively shall require the personal attendance of every such apprentice at the time of registering his indenture or assignment thereof; and every such collector and comptroller shall also, at the end of each week, transmit a list of the indentures and assignments and cancellations so registered by him within the week, containing all the particulars aforesaid, to the said registrar.

xl. That in every case of a person (other than such parish apprentice as aforesaid) binding himself apprentice to the sea service the indentures to be executed on such occasion shall be in duplicate, in the form set forth in Schedule (I.) to this Act annexed, and a counterpart shall be delivered to the said registrar, if the master shall be or reside within the port of London, or if at any other port, to the collector or comptroller of such port; and the indentures shall be registered in a book to be kept for that purpose by the said registrar, collectors, and comptrollers respectively, in which book shall be expressed the dates of the several indentures, the names and ages of the apprentices, the names and residence of their masters, and (if known) the names, port, and burden of the several ships on board which they are respectively to serve; and such registrar, collectors, and comptrollers respectively shall require the personal appearance of every such apprentice at the time of registering his indenture or the assignment thereof, and shall indorse and subscribe upon each indenture a certificate purporting that the same hath been duly registered pursuant to this Act; and the said collectors and comptrollers shall also at the end of each week transmit a list of the indentures and assignments registered by them within the week, containing all the particulars aforesaid, together with the said counterparts, to the said registrar, for the purposes of this Act; and that it shall be lawful for the master of such apprentice, or in case of his death his executor or administrator, with the consent of the apprentice if of the age of seventeen years or upwards, and if under that age with the consent of his parent or guardian, to assign or transfer the indenture of any such apprentice to any other master or owner of any registered ship; and all such apprentices may during the term for which they shall be bound be employed in any ship of which the master for the time being of any such apprentice may be the master or owner: Provided always, that every such assignment shall be registered and indorsed by the said registrar, or by the collector or comptroller of the Customs at the port where the master shall be, or to which his ship shall belong; and the said collector or comptroller shall notify the same to the said registrar, and transmit an exact copy of the said indorsement to the said registrar.

XL. That no apprentice bound or assigned pursuant to this Act, nor any master or owner in respect of such apprentice, shall be liable to any payment or contribution to or towards any hospital or institution; and that all agreements, attested copies, indentures, assignments, counterparts, and tickets, made, signed, or executed in compliance with or under the provisions of this Act, shall be wholly exempt from stamp duty.

XLII. That if any master or owner to whom any apprentice to the sea service shall be bound or assigned shall neglect to deliver a counterpart, and cause the indenture or the assignment (as the case may be) to be registered as required by this Act, so far as depends on such master or owner, within ten days after the binding or assignment, every such master or owner shall for every such neglect forfeit and pay the sum of 10*l*.; and if any such master or the master of any ship shall, after the ship shall have proceeded on the voyage upon which such ship may be bound, permit any apprentice to quit his service or the service of the ship, except for the purpose of entering into Her Majesty's naval service, every such master shall for every such offence forfeit and pay the sum of 20*l*.

XLIII. That any Justice of the Peace residing at or near to any port to which any ship as aforesaid, having on board thereof any apprentice, shall at any time arrive, shall have full power and authority to inquire into and examine, hear and determine, all claims of apprentices upon their masters under their indentures, and all complaints of hard or ill usage exercised by their respective masters towards any such apprentices, or of misbehaviour on the part of any such apprentices, and to proceed thereupon as one or more Justice or Justices of the Peace is or are empowered by law to do in other cases between masters and apprentices; and if the master of any ship shall not send on shore, in the charge of the mate or other trustworthy person, any apprentice desirous of complaining to a Justice of the Peace, so soon as the service of the ship shall permit, he shall for every such default forfeit and pay the sum of 10*l*.

And after reciting that by an Act, 9 Geo. 4, for consolidating and amending the statutes in England relative to offences against the person, a summary jurisdiction is provided for the punishment of persons guilty of common assaults and batteries: And that it is expedient that the provisions of the last-mentioned Act should extend to similar offences committed on board ships belonging to subjects of Her Majesty:—

It is Enacted,

XLIV. That in the case of any assault or battery committed on board any ship belonging to any subject of Her Majesty, in any part of the world, it shall be lawful for any two Justices of the Peace in any part of Her Majesty's dominions, or the territories under the government of the East India Company, residing at or near any port or place at which the said ship may arrive or touch, upon complaint of the party aggrieved, to hear and determine any such complaint, and to proceed and make such adjudication thereon as by the said Act any two Justices are empowered to do in the cases of assaults and batteries in England; and the fine or forfeiture to be imposed in any such case shall be payable to the Seaman's Hospital Society: Provided always, that such complaint shall be made and prosecuted within three months after such alleged assault or battery, or within three months after the arrival of the ship at her final port of destination in the United Kingdom, or within three months after the respective parties shall be within the jurisdiction of such Justices as aforesaid.

XLV. That no apprentice to the sea service shall be at liberty to enter into the naval service of Her Majesty during the period of his apprenticeship without the consent of his master; but if, nevertheless, he shall voluntarily enter into such naval service of Her Majesty, and shall be allowed by his master to continue therein, such master, in case he shall give notice to the Secretary of the Admiralty of his consent to his apprentice remaining in Her Majesty's said service during the residue of the term of his apprenticeship, shall, upon the production of the indenture and assignment (if any), if duly registered, and having the register ticket attached, be entitled to receive to his own use any balance of wages and prize money that may become due and payable to any such apprentice until the expiration of his apprenticeship.

And after reciting that great mischiefs have arisen from masters of merchant ships leaving seamen in foreign parts, who have been thus reduced to distress, and thereby tempted to become pirates or otherwise misconduct themselves, and it is expedient to amend and enlarge the law in this behalf:—

It is Enacted,

XLVI. That if any master of a ship belonging to any subject of Her Majesty shall discharge any person belonging to his ship or crew at any of Her Majesty's colonies or plantations, without the previous sanction in writing (to be indorsed on the agreement) of the governor or other officer holding the chief authority there, or of the secretary or other officer duly appointed by the Government therein in that behalf, or in the absence of such functionaries then of the chief officer of Customs resident at or near such port or place, or shall discharge any such person at any other place abroad without the like previous sanction, or be so indorsed on the agreement by Her Majesty's minister, consul, or vice consul there, or in the absence of any such functionary then of two respectable merchants resident there, such master shall be guilty of a misdemeanour; or if any master of any such ship shall abandon or leave behind at any such colony or plantation any person belonging to his ship or crew, on the plea or pretence of unfitness or inability to proceed upon the voyage; or of desertion or disappearance from the ship, without a previous certificate in writing (to be indorsed on the agreement) of the governor, secretary, or other officer as aforesaid, or in the absence of such functionary then of the chief officer of Customs resident at or near such port or place, certifying such unfitness, inability, desertion, or disappearance, or shall abandon or leave behind any person belonging to his ship or crew at any other place abroad, on shore or at sea, upon such plea or pretence, without the like previous certificate of Her Majesty's minister, consul or vice consul there, or in the absence of any such functionary then of two respectable merchants, if there be any such at or within a reasonable distance from the place where the ship shall then be, such master shall be guilty of a misdemeanour; or if any master of any such ship, in case any person belonging to his ship or crew shall desert from the said ship at any place abroad, shall neglect to notify the same in writing to one of such functionaries as aforesaid, if there be any such resident at or near the place, and in their absence, if it be out of Her Majesty's dominions, then to two respectable merchants, if there be such at or near the place, within twenty-four hours of such desertion, such master shall be guilty of a misdemeanour; and the said functionaries are hereby authorized and required, and the said merchants are authorized, to examine into the grounds of such proposed discharge, or into the plea or pretence of such unfitness, inability, desertion, or disappearance as aforesaid, in a summary way, upon oath (which oath they are hereby respectively authorized to administer), and to grant or refuse such sanction or certificate according to the circumstances, and as it shall appear to them to be just.

XLVII. That if the master of any ship belonging to any of Her Majesty's subjects, or the mate or other officer of such ship shall wrongfully force on shore and leave behind, or shall otherwise wilfully and wrongfully leave behind on shore or at sea, in or out of Her Majesty's dominions, any person belonging to his ship or crew, before the completion of the voyage for which such person was engaged, or the return of the ship to the United Kingdom, such master, mate, or other officer shall be guilty of a misdemeanour; and every misdemeanour mentioned or created by this Act shall and may be prosecuted by information at the suit of Her Majesty's Attorney General, or by indictment or other legal proceeding in any court having criminal jurisdiction in Her Majesty's dominions at home or abroad; and the offence may be laid and charged in the indictment, information, or other legal proceeding to have been committed in the county or place where the offender shall happen to be, who, being convicted thereof, shall be liable to fine or imprisonment, or both, as to the Court before whom he is tried shall seem meet; and every Court is hereby authorized to issue a commission or commissions for the examination of any witness or witnesses who may be absent or out of the jurisdiction of the Court; and at the trial the depositions taken under such commission or commissions, if such witness or witnesses shall be then absent, shall be received in evidence.

XLVIII. That if any master shall, contrary to the provisions of this Act, discharge, abandon, or leave behind any seaman or other person belonging to the ship or crew, with or without his consent, it shall be incumbent on such master, in any information, indictment, or other proceeding against him, to produce or prove such sanction or respective certificate as aforesaid, or prove the impracticability of obtaining such certificate.

XLIX. That every such master who shall leave any seaman or other person as aforesaid on shore at any such colony or plantation or place abroad, under a certificate of his not being in a condition to proceed on the voyage, shall deliver to one of the said functionaries, or if there be none such to any two respectable merchants there, or if there be but one then to such one merchant, a just and true account of the wages due to such person, and pay the same either in money or by a bill drawn upon the owner; and if by bill, then such functionaries or merchants are respectively authorized and required, by indorsement on such bill, to certify that the same is drawn for money due on account of seamen's wages, or to that effect; and any master who shall refuse or neglect to deliver a just and true account of such wages, or to pay the amount thereof in money or by bill as aforesaid, shall for every such offence or default forfeit and pay the sum of 10*l*., and every master who shall deliver a false account of such wages shall for every such offence forfeit and pay the sum of 20*l*.

L. Provided and enacted, That nothing in this Act or in any agreement contained shall prevent any seaman or person belonging to any ship or vessel whatever from entering or being received into the naval service of Her Majesty, nor shall any such entry be deemed a desertion from the ship or vessel, nor shall such seaman or other person thereby incur any penalty or forfeiture whatever, either of wages, clothes, or effects, or other matter or thing; and no master or owner shall insert or introduce, or permit to be inserted or introduced, into any articles or agreement, any clause, engagement, or stipulation whereby any seaman or other person shall or may incur any forfeiture or be exposed to loss in case he shall enter into Her Majesty's naval service; and if inserted, the clause, engagement, or stipulation shall be void, and the offender shall thereby incur a penalty of 20*l*.

LI. That when any seaman shall quit any such ship or vessel as aforesaid, in order to enter into Her Majesty's naval service, and shall thereupon be actually received into such service, not having previously committed any act amounting to and treated by the master as desertion, he shall be entitled immediately upon such entry to have his register ticket and all his clothes and effects on board such ship or vessel delivered to him, and to receive from the master the proportionate amount of his wages up to the period of such entry, to be paid either in money or by a bill on the owner; all which register ticket, clothes, effects, money, or bill such master is hereby required to deliver and pay to him accordingly, under a penalty of 20*l*. for any refusal or neglect, to be recovered with full costs of suit by such seaman; but in case the master shall have no means of ascertaining the balance, he shall make out and deliver to such seaman a certificate of the period of his service, and the rate of wages he is entitled to, producing at the same time to the commanding or other officer of Her Majesty's vessel the agreement with the seaman; and every such master, upon the delivery of such register ticket, clothes, and effects, and the settlement of such wages in manner herein mentioned, shall receive from the officer in command of the vessel into which the seaman shall have entered a certificate of such entry, indorsed on the agreement, and signed by the said officer, which such officer is hereby required to give.

LII. That if any person shall be discharged, or wilfully and wrongfully left behind or abandoned, at any place beyond seas, in or out of Her Majesty's dominions, by any master, mate, or other officer, contrary to the provisions of this Act, and shall become distressed, and be relieved under the provisions of an Act, 11 Geo. 4, for amending and consolidating the laws relating to the pay of the royal navy, or any Act hereafter to be passed for that purpose, or if any person shall, as principal or agent, engage any subject of Her Majesty to serve in any vessel belonging to any foreign power, or to the subject of any foreign state, and such last-mentioned person shall become distressed and be relieved as aforesaid, then, in addition to the wages due from such master or owner or person making such engagement, and the penalties to which such master may be liable, Her Majesty shall be entitled to sue such master or the owner of the ship, or any person who shall have made such engagement as aforesaid, at the discretion of the Commissioners for executing the office of Lord High Admiral of the United Kingdom, for all the charges and expenses which shall have been incurred in or for the subsistence, necessary clothing, and conveyance home or burial (should he die abroad or before reaching home) of any such seaman or person relieved as aforesaid, as money paid to the use of such master or owner or other person, who shall have made such engagement as aforesaid, and recover the same, together with full costs of the suit, in the same manner as other debts due to Her Majesty are recoverable; and in any proceeding for that purpose proof of the account furnished to the said Commissioners by any such functionaries, or by such two merchants, or one merchant, according to the case, as provided by the said Act, 11 Geo. 4, shall, together with the proof of payment by the said Commissioners, or by the paymaster general, of the charges incurred on account of any such person, be sufficient evidence that such person was relieved and conveyed home or buried at Her Majesty's expense; and the court in which any proceeding for the recovery of the said money shall be instituted is hereby authorized to issue a commission or commissions for the examination of witnesses, and the depositions taken under such commission or commissions shall be used as evidence.

LIII. That if any ship belonging to a subject of Her Majesty (except packets for passengers in the course of their voyage) shall arrive at any foreign port where there shall be a British consul or vice consul, or at any port in a British colony, and remain thereat for forty-eight hours, the master shall, within forty-eight hours of the ship's arrival, deliver or cause to be delivered to such consul or vice consul at such foreign port, or to the collector or comptroller of the Customs at such port of a British colony, the agreement or agreements before mentioned, together with an account at the foot of such agreement of all apprentices on board, setting forth their christian and surnames at full length, the dates of the registry of their indentures and assignments respectively, and the ports at which and the time when they were registered, and also all indentures and assignments of apprenticeships, and the register tickets of all the crew who shall be subjects of Her Majesty, the whole to be kept by such consul or vice consul, collector or comptroller, as the case may be, during the ship's stay in such port, and (excepting the register tickets of deserters, which are to be transmitted by such functionaries to the registrar of seamen,) to be returned to the master a reasonable time before his departure, with a certificate indorsed on such agreements respectively, stating when the same were respectively delivered and returned, without any fee or charge being made for the same; and in case it shall appear that the required number of apprentices are not on board, or that the required forms or existing laws have been in any respect neglected or transgressed, such consul or vice consul, collector or comptroller, shall make an indorsement to that effect on such agreement, and forthwith transmit a copy of such indorsement, with the fullest information he can collect regarding such neglect or transgression, to the said registrar; and if any master shall neglect to deliver any agreement, indenture, assignment, or register ticket, or such account as aforesaid, he shall for every such neglect or default forfeit and pay the sum of 20*l.*; or if any master shall deliver any false or incorrect account, he shall for every such offence forfeit and pay the sum of 30*l.*

LIV. That no seaman shall be shipped at any such foreign port by any such master, except with the sanction of such consul or vice consul, to be indorsed or certified on the agreement, under a penalty of 20*l.*, to be forfeited by the master for every seaman so shipped.

LV. That the master of every ship belonging to any subject of Her Majesty shall and he is hereby required to produce and shew the log book, muster roll of the ship, and the agreement or agreements with his crew, their register tickets, and the indentures of his apprentices, and the assignments thereof, and a list of all the passengers and persons on board, to the captain, commander, or other commissioned officer of any of Her Majesty's ships or vessels requiring the production and sight thereof; and that it shall be lawful for any such officer in Her Majesty's naval service to muster the crew (including apprentices) of any ship belonging to any such subject, in order to be satisfied that the provisions of this Act, and every other Act by which the crews of such ships as aforesaid are regulated, and the laws relating to navigation, have been duly kept and complied with; and if any master shall, upon being required so to do by any such officer, neglect or refuse to produce such log book, muster roll, or agreement, register tickets, indentures, and assignments, and lists of passengers and persons, or any of them, or shall obstruct any officer in the execution of his duty in mustering the said crew, or shall produce any false log book, muster roll, or list, he shall for every such offence forfeit and pay the sum of 20*l.*

LVI. That for the better carrying into effect the purposes of this Act it shall be lawful for Her Majesty's consuls and vice consuls in foreign ports, and for the said registrar and his assistant, and also for the respective chief officers of the Customs at the several ports of the United Kingdom and of the British possessions abroad, to demand from the master of every ship belonging to a subject of Her Majesty the production of the log book, muster roll of the ship, and such agreements, register tickets, indentures, and assignments as aforesaid, and a list of passengers and persons on board, and to muster the crew (including apprentices) of such ship, and to summon the master to appear before them, and give any explanation they may respectively require regarding the said crew, ship, or documents, for the purpose of ascertaining whether the provisions of this Act, and every other Act by which the crews of such ships as aforesaid are regulated, and the laws relating to navigation, have been kept and complied with, and to take copies of all or any of such documents; and if any such master, on such demand being made, shall refuse to produce such log book, muster roll, agreements, register tickets, indentures, and assignments, and list of passengers and persons, or refuse to allow copies to be taken, or shall refuse to permit his crew to be so mustered, or shall refuse to appear and give such explanation as aforesaid, or shall wilfully deceive or mislead the person before whom he shall so appear, he shall for every such neglect, refusal, or offence forfeit and pay the sum of 20*l.*

LVII. That it shall and may be lawful for any consul or vice-consul of Her Majesty, and for any collector or comptroller of the Customs, upon complaint made by any three or more of the crew, to survey and examine, or cause to be surveyed and examined, the provisions, water, and medicines put or supplied on board any ship for the use and consumption of the crew; and if on such survey and examination it shall be found that such provisions, water, or medicines are of a bad quality, or unfit for use, or not appropriate, or there shall not appear to be a sufficient quantity thereof, the surveying officer shall signify the same in writing to the master of the ship; and if such master shall not thereupon provide other fit and proper provisions, water, or medicines in lieu of any which may be signified by the said surveying officer to be of a bad quality, or unfit for use, or not appropriate, or if any such master shall not thereupon procure the requisite quantity of provisions, water, and medicines, or shall use any provisions, water, or medicines which shall have been signified by the surveying officer to be of a bad quality, or unfit for use, or not appropriate, he shall in each and every of such cases be guilty of a misdemeanour.

LVIII. That all offences against the property or person of any subject of Her Majesty, or of any foreigner, which shall be committed in or at any port or place, either ashore or afloat, out of the dominions of Her Majesty, by the master and crew (including apprentices), or any or either of them, belonging to any ship subject to any of the provisions of this Act, or who within three months before the committal of the offence shall have been the master thereof, or shall have formed part of any such crew, shall be and they are hereby declared to be offences of the same nature respectively, and to be liable to the same punishments respectively, as if they had been committed on the high seas and other places within the jurisdiction of the Admiralty of England, and shall be inquired of, heard, tried, and determined and adjudged in the same manner as if such offences had been committed within such jurisdiction; and when any trial for such offences or for any misdemeanour against the provisions of this Act, shall take place before any Justices or Judges of oyer and terminer and gaol delivery, it shall be lawful for the Court to order and direct the payment of the costs and expenses of the prosecution, as in the case of costs and expenses of prosecutions for offences committed within the jurisdiction of the Admiralty of England.

LIX. That whenever any complaint shall be made to any of Her Majesty's consuls or vice consuls of any such offence or of any offence having been committed at sea by the master and crew (including apprentices), or any or either of them, belonging to any ship subject to any of the provisions of this Act, it shall be lawful for any such consul or vice consul to inquire into the case upon oath, and at his discretion to cause any offender to be placed under all necessary restraint, so far as it may be in his power, so that he may be sent and conveyed in safe custody to England as soon as practicable, in any vessel of Her Majesty, or of any of her subjects, to be there proceeded against according to law; and the costs and charges of imprisoning any such offender, and of conveying him and the witnesses to England, if not conveyed in the ship to which they respectively belong, shall be considered and deemed as part of the costs of the prosecution, or be paid as costs incurred on account of seafaring subjects of the United Kingdom left in distress in foreign parts; and all depositions taken before any consul or vice consul abroad, and certified under his official seal to be the depositions, and that they were taken in the presence of the party accused, shall be admitted in evidence in all courts having criminal jurisdiction, and otherwise, in like manner as depositions taken before any Justice of the Peace in England now are or may be; and the register ticket of every offender shall be delivered up to Her Majesty's consul or vice consul, as the case may be, and be transmitted by him to the registrar of seamen.

LX. That it shall be lawful for any consul or vice consul to order a passage to England for any such offender or offenders under necessary restraint, and also for the witnesses; and the master or other person having the charge of any ship or vessel belonging to any subject of Her Majesty bound for England shall and he is hereby required to receive and afford a passage and subsistence during the voyage to any such offender or offenders and witnesses, not exceeding the rate of one offender or two witnesses for every one hundred tons of his ship's burden; and on his ship's arrival in England the master of any vessel belonging to a subject of Her Majesty shall take or cause to be taken the offender or offenders before a Justice of the Peace, who shall deal with the matter as in cases of offences committed upon the high seas; and in case the master or other person having the charge of any ship or vessel belonging to any subject of Her Majesty, when required by the consul or vice consul to receive and afford a passage to any offender or witness, shall not receive and afford such passage, or shall not take or cause to be taken the offender or offenders before a Justice of the Peace as aforesaid, every such master shall be liable to a penalty of 50*l.*; and the seaman, if acquitted, shall receive his register ticket again upon due application to the registrar of seamen.

LXI. That this Act shall not extend or apply to any ship registered in or belonging to any British colony having a legislative assembly, or to the crew of any such ship, while such ship shall be within the precincts of such colony; but every ship belonging to any colony or possession of Her Majesty, when proceeding from one part of the United Kingdom to another, or from the United Kingdom to the islands of Jersey, Guernsey, Alderney, Sark, or Man, or from any port in the United Kingdom to any port or possession of any foreign power or country, or to any colony to which the ship shall not belong, shall be held to come within the provisions of this Act; and this Act is hereby extended to the same; and the owner, master, and crew, including apprentices, of such ship so trading as aforesaid, shall be and are hereby declared liable to the provisions of this Act as fully as the owner, master, and crew of any British registered ship; and this Act and the provisions thereof (except so far as the same relate to agreements, register tickets, and having apprentices,) shall also extend and apply to ships belonging to all Her Majesty's colonies and possessions abroad, wherever otherwise proceeding or trading, and to the owners, masters, and crews of such ships, when any such ship shall be beyond the precincts of the colony or possession to which she shall belong; and all certificates and sanctions required by this Act to be indorsed on agreements shall, in the case of ships last referred to, be otherwise given in writing where no written agreement exists.

LXII. That all penalties and forfeitures imposed by this Act, and for the recovery whereof no specific mode is hereinbefore provided, shall and may be recovered, with costs, either in any of Her Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, Edinburgh, or Dublin, or in the colonies or territories under the government of the East India Company, at the suit of Her Majesty's law officers respectively, or at the suit of any person, by information and summary proceeding before any Justice or Justices of the Peace in and for any part of Her Majesty's dominions, or the territories under the government of the East India Company, where or near to the place where the offence shall be committed or the offender shall be; and if proceedings for the recovery of any forfeiture or penalty imposed by this Act, or for the recovery of any debt due to Her Majesty, be commenced in any of Her Majesty's courts, the court in which such proceedings shall be instituted is hereby authorized to issue a commission or commissions in or out of Her Majesty's dominions for the examination of witnesses, and the depositions taken thereunder shall be used and admitted in evidence; and in case of a summary conviction under this Act, and the sum imposed as a penalty by the Justice or Justices shall not be paid, either immediately after the conviction or within such period as the Justice or Justices shall at the time of the conviction appoint, it shall be lawful for the convicting Justice or Justices to commit the offender to the common gaol or house of correction, there to be imprisoned only, or to be imprisoned and kept to hard labour, according to the discretion of the Justice or Justices for any term not exceeding six calendar months, the commitment to be determinable upon payment of the amount and costs; and all penalties and forfeitures mentioned in this Act, for which no specific application is hereinbefore provided, shall, when recovered, be paid and applied in manner following; (that is to say,) so much thereof as the Court or the convicting Justice or Justices shall determine, but not exceeding one moiety, shall be paid to the informer or person upon whose discovery or information the same shall be recovered, and the residue shall be paid to the Seamen's Hospital Society: Provided always, that it shall be lawful for the Court before which, or the Justice or Justices before whom, any proceedings shall be instituted for the recovery of any pecuniary penalty imposed by this Act, to mitigate or reduce such penalty as to such Court or Justices respectively shall appear just and reasonable; but no such penalty shall be reduced to less than one-third of its original amount; and it shall be lawful, in the discretion of the said Court, or of the said Justice or Justices hearing the complaint, to order such costs against the informing or complaining party failing to prove the charge as the said Court or Justice or Justices may deem fit, and such costs shall be recoverable in the same manner as penalties under this Act, and be paid as such Court or Justice or Justices shall direct: Provided also, that all proceedings so to be instituted shall be commenced within two years next after the commission of the offence, if the same shall have been committed at or beyond the Cape of Good Hope or Cape Horn, or within one year if committed elsewhere, or within two calendar months after the return of the offender and the complaining party to the United Kingdom.

And to avoid doubts in the construction of this Act,—

It is Enacted,

LXIII. That every person having the charge or command of any ship belonging to any subject of Her Majesty shall, within the meaning and for the purposes of this Act, be deemed and taken to be the master of such ship; and that every person (apprentices excepted) who shall be employed or engaged to serve in any capacity on board the same shall be deemed and taken to be a seaman within the meaning and for the purposes of this Act; and that the term "Ship" shall be taken and understood to comprehend every description of vessel navigating on any sea or channel, or waters outside the mouths of rivers, and also every vessel passing beyond the precincts of a port; and that the term "Owner" shall be taken and understood to comprehend all the several persons, if more than one, to whom the ship shall belong.

LXIV. That if any person, being a Malay, Lascar, or native of the territories under the government of the East India Company, or if any Asiatic or African seaman, having been brought to the United Kingdom on board any ship, shall be found or be in the United Kingdom in distress for want of food, clothing, or other necessities, it shall and may be lawful for the Commissioners for executing the office of Lord High Admiral of the United Kingdom, at their discretion, to supply necessary and reasonable relief to every such person and seaman, and to maintain him until he shall be sent on board some ship for the purpose of being conveyed to or near to the port from which he was shipped, and also to pay, defray, and advance the money necessary to procure every such person and seaman a proper and sufficient passage to such port; and all such sum or sums of money as shall be paid and advanced by or by order of the said Commissioners for or on account of such relief, maintenance, and passage shall be and become a debt due to Her Majesty, and be recoverable as such, with full costs of suit, in the courts of law either in Her Majesty's dominions or in the territories under the government of the East India Company, from the owner and master, or either of them, of the ship on board whereof such person or seaman shall have been brought from Asia or Africa; but nothing herein contained shall repeal or annul any other Act or Acts now in force for the relief and conveyance home of any Asiatic or African person or seaman.

LXV. That this Act may be amended or repealed by any Act to be passed during the present session of Parliament.

By this ACT,

After reciting that the laws in force for the regulation of copartnerships of bankers in England need to be amended;—

It is Enacted,

1. That it shall not be lawful for any company of more than six persons to carry on the trade or business of bankers in England, after the passing of this Act, under any agreement or covenant of copartnership made or entered into on or after the 6th of May last past, unless by virtue of letters patent to be granted by Her Majesty according to the provisions of this Act; but nothing herein contained shall be construed to restrain any such company established before the said 6th of May, for the purpose of carrying on the said trade or business of bankers in England, from continuing to carry on the same trade and business as legally as they might have done before the passing of this Act, until letters patent shall have been granted to them severally on their application, as hereinafter provided, to be made subject to the provisions of this Act.

II. That before beginning to exercise the said trade or business every such company shall present a petition to Her Majesty in Council, praying that Her Majesty will be graciously pleased to grant to them letters patent under this Act; and every such petition shall be signed by seven at least of the said company, and shall set forth the following particulars; (that is to say,)

First, The names and additions of all the partners of the company, and the name of the street, square, or other place where each of the said partners reside:

Second, The proposed name of the bank:

Third, The name of the street, square, or other local description of the place or places where the business of the bank is to be carried on:

Fourth, The proposed amount of the capital stock, not being in any case less than 100,000*l.*, and the means by which it is to be raised:

Fifth, The amount of capital stock then paid up, and where and how invested:

Sixth, The proposed number of shares in the business:

Seventh, The amount of each share, not being less than 100*l.* each.

III. That every such petition shall be referred by Her Majesty to the Committee of Privy Council for Trade and Plantations, and so soon as the Lords of the said Committee shall have reported to Her Majesty that the provisions of this Act have been complied with on the part of the said company, it shall thereupon be lawful for Her Majesty, if Her Majesty shall so think fit, with the advice of her Privy Council, to grant the said letters patent.

IV. That the deed of partnership of every such banking company shall be prepared according to a form to be approved by the Lords of the said Committee, and shall, in addition to any other provisions which may be contained therein, contain specific provisions for the following purposes; (that is to say,)

First, For holding ordinary general meetings of the company once at least in every year, at an appointed time and place:

Second, For holding extraordinary general meetings of the company, upon the requisition of nine shareholders or more, having in the whole at least twenty-one shares in the partnership business:

Third, For the management of the affairs of the company, and the election and qualification of the directors:

Fourth, For the retirement of at least one fourth of the directors yearly, and for preventing the re-election of the retiring directors for at least twelve calendar months:

Fifth, For preventing the company from purchasing any shares or making advances of money, or securities for money, to any person on the security of a share or shares in the partnership business:

Sixth, For the publication of the assets and liabilities of the company once at least in every calendar month:

Seventh, For the yearly audit of the accounts of the company by two or more auditors chosen at a general meeting of the shareholders, and not being directors at the time:

Eighth, For the yearly communication of the auditors' report, and of a balance sheet, and profit and loss account, to every shareholder:

Ninth, For the appointment of a manager or other officer to perform the duties of manager:

And such deed, executed by the holders of at least one half of the shares in the said business, on which not less than 10*l.* on each such share of 100*l.*, and in proportion for every share of larger amount, shall have been then paid up, shall be annexed to the petition; and the provisions of such deed, with such others as to Her Majesty shall seem fit, shall be set forth in the letters patent.

V. Provided and enacted, That it shall not be lawful for any such company to commence business until all the shares shall have been subscribed for, and until the deed of partnership shall have been executed, personally or by some person duly authorized by warrant of attorney to execute the same on behalf of such holder or holders, by the holders of all the shares in the said business, and until a sum of not less than one half of the amount of each share shall have been paid up in respect of each such share; and it shall not be lawful for the company to repay any part of the sum so paid up without leave of the Lords of the said Committee.

VI. That it shall be lawful for Her Majesty in and by such letters patent to grant that the persons by whom the said deed of partnership shall have been executed, and all other persons who shall thereafter become shareholders in the said banking business, their executors, administrators, successors, and assigns respectively, shall be one body politic and corporate, by such name as shall be given to them in and by the said letters patent, for the purpose of carrying on the said banking business, and by that name shall have perpetual succession and a common seal, and shall have power to purchase and hold lands of such annual value as shall be expressed in such letters patent; and such letters patent shall be granted for a term of years, not exceeding twenty years, and may be made subject to such other provisions and stipulations as to Her Majesty may seem fit.

VII. Provided and enacted, That notwithstanding such incorporation the several shareholders for the time being in the said banking business, and those who shall have been shareholders therein, and their several executors, administrators, successors, and assigns, shall be and continue liable for all the dealings, covenants, and undertakings of the said company, subject to the provisions hereinafter contained, as fully as if the said company were not incorporated.

VIII. That no action or suit by or against the company shall be in anywise affected by reason of the plaintiff or defendant therein being a shareholder or former shareholder of the company; but any such shareholder, either alone or jointly with another person as against the company, or the company as against any such shareholder, either alone or jointly with any other person, shall have the same action and remedy in respect of any cause of action or suit whatever which such shareholder or company might have had if such cause of action or suit had arisen with a stranger.

ix. That every judgment, decree, or order of any court of justice in any proceeding against the company may be lawfully executed against, and shall have the like effect on, the property and effects of the company, and also, subject to the provisions hereinafter contained, upon the person, property, and effects of every shareholder and former shareholder thereof, as if every individual shareholder and former shareholder had been by name a party to such proceeding.

x. That it shall be lawful for the plaintiff to cause execution upon any judgment, decree, or order obtained by him in any such action or suit against the company to be issued against the property and effects of the company; and if such execution shall be ineffectual to obtain satisfaction of the sums sought to be recovered thereby, then it shall be lawful for him to have execution in satisfaction of such judgment, decree, or order against the person, property, and effects of any shareholder, or, in default of obtaining satisfaction of such judgment, decree, or order from any shareholder, against the person, property, and effects of any person who was a shareholder of the company at the time when the cause of action against the company arose: Provided always, that no person having ceased to be a shareholder of the company shall be liable for the payment of any debt for which any such judgment, decree, or order shall have been so obtained, for which he would not have been liable as a partner in case a suit had been originally brought against him for the same, or for which judgment shall have been obtained, after the expiration of three years from the time when he shall have ceased to be a shareholder of such company; nor shall this Act be deemed to enable any party to a suit to recover from any individual shareholder of the company, or any other person whomsoever, any other or greater sum than might have been recovered if this Act had not been passed.

xi. That every person against whom or against whose property or effects any such execution shall have issued shall be reimbursed out of the property and effects of the company for all monies paid, and for all damages, costs, and expenses incurred by him by reason of such execution, or of the action or suit in which the same shall have issued, or in default of such reimbursement, by contribution from the other shareholders of the company.

xii. That if any such execution be issued against any present or former shareholder of the company, and if, within fourteen days next after the levying of such execution, he be not reimbursed on demand, out of the property and effects of the company, all such monies, damages, costs, and expenses as he shall have paid or incurred in consequence of such execution, it shall be lawful for such shareholder, or his executors or administrators, to have execution against the property and effects of the company in satisfaction of such monies, damages, costs, and expenses; and the amount of such monies, damages, costs, and expenses shall be ascertained and certified by one of the Masters or other officer of the Court out of which such execution shall issue.

xiii. That in the cases provided by this Act for execution on any judgment, decree, or order in any action or suit against the company, to be issued against the person or against the property and effects of any shareholder or former shareholder of such company, or against the property and effects of the company at the suit of any shareholder or former shareholder, in satisfaction of any monies, damages, costs, and expenses paid or incurred by him as aforesaid in any action or suit against the company, such execution may be issued by leave of the Court, or of a Judge of the Court in which such judgment, decree, or order shall have been obtained, upon motion or summons for a rule to shew cause, or other motion or summons consistent with the practice of the Court, without any suggestion or scire facias in that behalf, and that it shall be lawful for such Court or Judge to make absolute or discharge such rule, or allow or dismiss such motion, (as the case may be,) and to direct the costs of the application to be paid by either party, or to make such order therein as to such Court or Judge shall seem fit; and in such cases such form of writs of execution shall be sued out of the courts of law and equity respectively, for giving effect to the provision in that behalf aforesaid, as the Judges of such courts respectively shall from time to time think fit to order, and the execution of such writs shall be enforced in like manner as writs of execution are now enforced; provided that any order made by a Judge as aforesaid may be discharged or varied by the Court, on application made thereto by either party dissatisfied with such order; provided also, that no such motion shall be made nor summons granted for the purpose of charging any shareholder or former shareholder until ten days notice thereof shall have been given to the person sought to be charged thereby.

xiv. That if such shareholder be not by the means aforesaid fully paid all such monies, with interest, damages, costs, and expenses, as he shall have paid or incurred by reason of any such execution, it shall be lawful for him, his executors or administrators, to divide the amount thereof, or so much thereof as he shall not have been reimbursed, into as many equal parts as there shall then be shares in the capital stock of the company (not including shares then under forfeiture); and every shareholder for the time being of the company, and the executors or administrators of every deceased shareholder, shall, in proportion to the number of shares which they may hold in the company, pay one or more of such parts, upon demand, to the shareholder against whom such execution shall have been issued, or to his executors or administrators; and upon neglect or refusal so to pay, it shall be lawful for such shareholder, his executors or administrators, to sue for and recover the same against the shareholder, or the executors or administrators of any shareholder, who shall so neglect or refuse as aforesaid, in any of Her Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in any other court having jurisdiction in respect of such demand.

xv. That if the shareholder or former shareholder against whom any such execution shall have issued, his executors or administrators, shall by reason of the bankruptcy or insolvency of any shareholder, or from any other cause, but without any neglect or wilful default on his own part, be prevented from recovering any proportion of the monies, costs, or expenses which he shall have so paid, it shall be lawful for him, his executors or administrators, again to divide the amount of all such monies, costs, and expenses as shall not have been recovered by him or them into as many equal parts as there shall then be shares in the capital stock of the company (not including the shares then under forfeiture), except the shares in respect of which such default shall have happened; and every shareholder for the time being of the company, and the executors or administrators of every deceased shareholder, except as aforesaid, shall rateably, according to the number of shares which they shall hold in the company, upon demand, pay one or more such last-mentioned parts to the shareholder against whom such execution shall have issued, his executors or administrators; and in default of payment he or they shall have the same remedies in all respects for the recovery thereof as under the provisions hereinbefore mentioned are given in respect of the original proportions of such monies, damages, costs, and expenses; and if any proportion of the said monies, damages, costs, and expenses shall remain unpaid by reason of any such bankruptcy, insolvency, or other cause as aforesaid, such shareholder, his executors or administrators, shall have in like manner, from time to time, and by way of accumulative remedy, the same powers, according to the circumstances of the case, of again dividing and enforcing payment of the amount of such proportion, until he or they shall, in the end, if a former shareholder, be fully reimbursed the whole of the said monies, costs, and expenses, and if then a shareholder, the whole, excepting the portions belonging to the shares held by him.

xvi. That within three months after the grant of the said letters patent, and before the company shall begin to carry on their business as bankers, an account or memorial shall be made out, according to the form contained in the Schedule marked (A.) to this Act annexed, wherein shall be set forth the true title or firm of the company, and also the names and places of abode of all the members of such company as the same respectively shall appear on the books of such company, and also the name and place of abode of every director and manager or other like officer of the company, and the name or firm of every bank or banks established or to be established by such company, and also the name of every town or place where the business of the said company shall be carried on; and a new account or memorial of the same particulars shall be made by the said company in every year, between the 28th of February and 25th of March, while they shall continue to carry on their business as bankers; and every such memorial shall be delivered to the Commissioners of Stamps and Taxes at the Stamp Office in London, who shall cause the same to be filed and kept in the said Stamp Office, and an entry or registry thereof to be made in a book or books to be there kept for that purpose by some person or persons to be appointed by the said Commissioners in that behalf, which book or books any person or persons shall from time to time have liberty to search and inspect on payment of the sum of 1s. for every search; and the company shall from time to time cause to be printed and kept, in a conspicuous place accessible to the public in their office or principal place of business, a list of the registered names and places of abode of all the members of such company for the time being.

xvii. Provided and enacted, That the manager or one of the directors of every such company shall, from time to time as occasion shall require, make out in manner hereinbefore directed, and cause to be delivered to the Commissioners of Stamps and Taxes as aforesaid, a further account or memorial, according to the form contained in the Schedule marked (B.) to this Act annexed, of the name and place of abode of every new director, manager, or other like officer of such company, and also of the name or names of any person or persons who shall have ceased to be members of such company, and also of the name or names of any person or persons who shall have become a member or members of such company, either in addition to or instead of any former member or members thereof, and of the name or names of any new or additional town or towns, place or places, where the business of the said company is carried on; and such further account or memorial shall from time to time be filed, and kept and entered and registered at the Stamp Office in London, in like manner as is hereinbefore required with respect to the original or annual account or memorial hereinbefore directed to be made.

xviii. That the several memorials aforesaid shall be signed by the manager or one of the directors of the company, and shall be verified by a declaration of such manager or director before a Justice of the Peace, or a Master or Master Extraordinary of the High Court of Chancery, made pursuant to the provisions of an Act, 5 & 6 Will. 4. c. 62, intituled, 'An Act to repeal an Act of the present Session of Parliament, intituled, "An Act for the more effectual Abolition of Oaths and Affirmations taken and made in various Departments of the State, and to substitute Declarations in lieu thereof, and for the more entire Suppression of voluntary and extra-judicial Oaths and Affidavits," and to make other Provisions for the Abolition of unnecessary Oaths; and if any declaration so made shall be false in any material particular the person wilfully making such false declaration shall be guilty of a misdemeanour.

xix. That a true copy of any such memorial, certified under the hand of one of the Commissioners of Stamps and Taxes for the time being, upon proof made that such certificate has been signed with the handwriting of the person certifying the same, whom it shall not be necessary to prove to be a Commissioner of Stamps and Taxes, shall be received in evidence as proof of the contents of such memorial, and proof shall not be required that the person by whom the memorial shall purport to be verified was, at the time of such verification, the manager or one of the directors of the company.

xx. That the said Commissioners of Stamps and Taxes for the time being shall, upon application made to them by any person or persons requiring a copy, certified according to this Act, of any such account or memorial as aforesaid, in order that the same may be produced in evidence, or for any other purpose, deliver to the person or persons so applying for the same such certified copy, he, she, or they paying for the same the sum of 10s. and no more.

xxi. That the persons whose names shall appear from time to time in the then last delivered memorial, and their legal representatives, shall be liable to all legal proceedings under this Act, as existing shareholders of the company, and shall be entitled to be reimbursed, as such existing shareholders only, out of the funds or property of the company, for all losses sustained in consequence thereof.

xxii. That all bills of exchange or promissory notes made, accepted, or indorsed on behalf of the said company may be made, accepted, or indorsed (as the case may be) in any manner provided by the deed of partnership, so that they be signed by one of the managers or directors of the company, and be by him expressed to be so made, accepted, or indorsed by him on behalf of such company: Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall be deemed to make any such manager or director liable upon any such bill of exchange or promissory note to any greater extent or in a different manner than upon any other contract signed by him on behalf of any such company; and that every such company, on whose behalf any bill of exchange or promissory note shall be made, accepted, or indorsed in manner and form as aforesaid, may sue and be sued thereon as fully as in the case of any contract made and entered into under their common seal.

xxiii. That, subject to the regulations herein contained, and to the provisions of the deed of settlement, every shareholder may sell and transfer his shares in the said company by deed duly stamped, in which the considerations shall be truly stated:

and such deed may be according to the form in the Schedule marked (C.) annexed to this Act, or to the like effect; and the same (when duly executed) shall be delivered to the secretary, and be kept by him; and the secretary shall enter a memorial thereof in a book, to be called the "Register of Transfers," and shall indorse such entry on the deed of transfer, and for every such entry and indorsement the company may demand any sum not exceeding 2s. 6d.; and until such transfer have been so delivered to the secretary as aforesaid the purchaser of the share shall not be entitled to receive any share of the profits of the said business, or to vote in respect of such share.

XXIV. That no shareholder shall be entitled to transfer any share until he shall have paid all calls for the time being due on every share held by him.

XXV. That the directors may close the register of transfers for a period not exceeding fourteen days previous to each ordinary meeting, and may fix a day for the closing of the same, of which seven days notice shall be given by advertisement in some newspaper as after mentioned; and any transfer made during the time when the transfer books are so closed shall, as between the company and the party claiming under the same, but not otherwise, be considered as made subsequently to such ordinary meeting.

And with respect to the registration of shares the interest in which may have become transmitted in consequence of the death or bankruptcy or insolvency of any shareholder, or in consequence of the marriage of a female shareholder, or by any other legal means than by a transfer according to the provisions of this Act;—

It is Enacted,

XXVI. That no person claiming by virtue of any such transmission shall be entitled to receive any share of the profits of the said business, or to vote in respect of any such share as the holder thereof, until such transmission have been authenticated by a declaration in writing as hereinafter mentioned, or in such other manner as the directors shall require; and every such declaration shall state the manner in which and the party to whom such share shall have been so transmitted, and shall be made and signed by some credible person before a Justice of the Peace, or before a Master or Master Extraordinary in the High Court of Chancery; and such declaration shall be left with the secretary, and thereupon he shall enter the name of the person entitled under such transmission in the register book of shareholders of the company; and for every such entry the company may demand any sum not exceeding 2s. 6d.

XXVII. That if such transmission be by virtue of the marriage of a female shareholder, the said declaration shall contain a copy of the register of such marriage, or other particulars of the celebration thereof, and shall declare the identity of the wife with the holder of such share; and if such transmission have taken place by virtue of any testamentary instrument, or by intestacy, the probate of the will or letters of administration, or an official extract therefrom, shall, together with such declaration, be produced to the secretary; and upon such production, in either of the cases aforesaid, the secretary shall make an entry of the declaration in the said register of transfers.

XXVIII. That with respect to any share to which several persons may be jointly entitled, all notices directed to be given to the shareholders shall be given to such of the said persons whose name shall stand first in the register of shareholders; and notice so given shall be sufficient notice to all the proprietors of such share.

XXIX. That if any money be payable to any shareholder, being a minor, idiot, or lunatic, the receipt of the guardian of such minor, or the receipt of the committee of such idiot or lunatic, shall be a sufficient discharge to the company for the same.

XXX. That the company shall not be bound to see to the execution of any trust, whether express, implied, or constructive, to which any of the said shares may be subject; and the receipt of the party in whose name any such share shall stand in the books of the company shall from time to time be a sufficient discharge to the company for any dividend or other sum of money payable in respect of such share, notwithstanding any trusts to which such share may then be subject, and whether or not the company have had notice of such trusts; and the company shall not be bound to see to the application of the money paid upon such receipt.

XXXI. That from time to time the directors may make such calls of money upon the respective shareholders, in respect of the amount of capital stock respectively subscribed by them, as they shall think fit; and whenever execution upon any judgment against the company shall have been taken out against any shareholder, the directors, within twenty-one days next after notice shall have been served upon the company of the payment of any money by such shareholder, his executors or administrators, in or toward satisfaction of such judgment, shall make such calls upon all the shareholders as will be sufficient to reimburse to such shareholder, his executors or administrators, the money so paid by him or them, and all his or their damages, costs, and expenses by reason of such execution, and shall apply the proceeds of such calls accordingly; and every shareholder shall be liable to pay the amount of every call, in respect of the shares held by him, to the persons, and at the times and places, from time to time appointed by the directors.

XXXII. That if, before or on the day appointed for payment, any shareholder do not pay the amount of any call to which he may be liable, then such shareholder shall be liable to pay interest for the same at the yearly rate of 5l. in the hundred from the day appointed for the payment thereof to the time of the actual payment.

XXXIII. That if at the time appointed by the directors for the payment of any call the holder of any share fail to pay the amount of such call, the company may sue such shareholder for the amount thereof in any court of law or equity having competent jurisdiction, and may recover the same, with interest at the yearly rate of 5l. in the hundred from the day on which such call may have been payable.

XXXIV. That in any action to be brought by the company against any shareholder to recover any money due for any call it shall not be necessary to set forth the special matter, but it shall be sufficient for the company to declare that the defendant is a holder of one share or more in the company (stating the number of shares), and is indebted to the company in the sum of money to which the calls in arrear shall amount, in respect of one call or more upon one share or more (stating the number and amount of each of such calls) whereby an action hath accrued to the company by virtue of this Act.

XXXV. That on the trial of such action it shall not be necessary to prove the appointment of the directors who made such call, or any other matter, except that the defendant at the time of making such call was a holder of one share or more in the company, and that such call was in fact made, and such notice thereof given, as is directed by this Act; and thereupon the company shall be entitled to recover what shall be due upon such call, with interest thereon.

XXXVI. That the production of the register book of shareholders of the company shall be evidence of such defendant being a shareholder, and of the number and amount of his shares.

XXXVII. That if the holder of any share fail to pay a call payable by him in respect thereof, with the interest, if any, that shall have accrued thereon, the directors, at any time after the expiration of six calendar months from the day appointed for payment of such call, may declare such share forfeited, and that whether the company have sued for the amount of such call or not; but the forfeiture of any such share shall not relieve any shareholder, his executors or administrators, from his and their liability to pay the calls made before such forfeiture.

XXXVIII. That before declaring any share forfeited the directors shall cause notice of such intention to be left at the usual or last place of abode of the person appearing by the register book of shareholders to be the proprietor of such share; and if the holder of any such share be not within the United Kingdom, or if the interest in any such share shall be known by the directors to have become transmitted otherwise than by transfer, as hereinbefore mentioned, but a declaration of such transmission shall not have been registered as aforesaid, and so the address of the parties to whom the same may have been transmitted shall not be known to the directors, the directors shall give public notice of such intention in the London Gazette; and the several notices aforesaid shall be given twenty-one days at least before the directors shall make such declaration of forfeiture.

XXXIX. That such declaration of forfeiture shall not take effect, so as to authorize the sale or other disposition of any share, until such declaration have been confirmed at some general meeting of the company, to be held after the expiration of two calendar months at the least from the day on which such notice of intention to make such declaration of forfeiture shall have been given; and it shall be lawful for the company to confirm such forfeiture at any such meeting, and by an order at such meeting, or at any subsequent general meeting, to direct the share so forfeited to be sold or otherwise disposed of; and after such confirmation the directors shall sell the forfeited share, either by public auction or private contract, within six calendar months next after the confirmation of the forfeiture, and if there be more than one such forfeited share, then either separately or together, as to them shall seem fit; and any shareholder may purchase any forfeited share so sold.

XL. That a declaration in writing by some credible person not interested in the matter, made before any Justice of the Peace or before any Master or Master Extraordinary in the High Court of Chancery, that the call in respect of a share was made, and notice thereof given, and that default in payment of the call was made, and that the forfeiture of the share was declared and confirmed in manner hereinbefore required, shall be sufficient evidence of the facts therein stated; and such declaration, and the receipt of a director or manager of the company for the price of such share, shall constitute a good title to such share, and thereupon such purchaser shall be deemed the holder of such share discharged from all calls made prior to such purchase; and a certificate of proprietorship shall be delivered to such purchaser, and he shall not be bound to see to the application of the purchase money, nor shall his title to such share be affected by any irregularity in the proceedings in reference to any such sale.

XLI. That the company shall not sell or transfer more of the shares of any such defaulter than will be sufficient, as nearly as can be ascertained at the time of such sale, to pay the arrears then due from such defaulter on account of any calls, together with interest, and the expenses attending such sale and declaration of forfeiture; and if the money produced by the sale of any such forfeited share be more than sufficient to pay all arrears of calls, and interest thereon, due at the time of such sale, and the expenses attending the declaration of forfeiture and sale thereof, the surplus shall, on demand, be paid to the defaulter.

XLII. That if payment of such arrears of calls, and interest and expenses, be made before any share so forfeited and vested in the company shall have been sold, such share shall revert to the party to whom the same belonged before such forfeiture, in such manner as if such calls had been duly paid.

XLIII. That in all cases wherein it may be necessary for any person to serve any notice, writ, or other proceeding at law or in equity, or otherwise, upon the company, service thereof respectively, on the manager or any director for the time being of the company, by leaving the same at the principal office of the company, or, if the company have suspended or discontinued business, by serving the same personally on such manager or director, or by leaving the same with some inmate at the usual or last abode of such manager or director, shall be deemed good service of the same on the company.

XLIV. Provided and enacted, That every company of more than six persons, for the formation or establishment of which proceedings had been begun or taken before the 6th of May last, and which before the 4th of July then next following was registered at the stamp office, and on the 4th of July actually carried on the said trade or business of bankers in England, although under a covenant or agreement of copartnership made or entered into on or after the 6th of May last, may continue to carry on the said trade or business under any such agreement or covenant of copartnership for any time not exceeding twelve calendar months next after the passing of this Act, in the same manner in all respects as they legally might have done before the passing of this Act, and after the expiration of the said twelve calendar months, in case the company shall not be incorporated under this Act, shall have, for the purpose of closing their trade or business, but for no other purpose, the same powers and privileges which they would have had if this Act had not been passed.

XLV. That it shall be lawful for any company of more than six persons carrying on the trade or business of bankers in England before the said 6th of May, or any company which by the provision hereinbefore in that behalf contained is enabled to carry on the said trade or business of bankers in England for a time not exceeding twelve calendar months next after the passing of this Act, to present a petition to Her Majesty, praying that Her Majesty will be pleased to grant to them letters patent under this Act; and if, upon their compliance with the provisions hereinbefore contained with respect to companies formed after the said 6th of May, Her Majesty shall be pleased to grant to them letters patent under this Act as aforesaid, it shall be lawful for them thereafter to carry on their trade and business of bankers as aforesaid according to this Act, and not otherwise: Provided always, that a majority of the directors of any such company for the time being, with the consent of three-fourths in number and value of the shareholders present at a general meeting of the company, to be specially called for the purpose, may resolve to make any alterations in the constitution of such company, or otherwise, which may be deemed necessary or expedient for enabling such company to come within the provisions of this Act; and the majority of the directors of such company may, in pursuance of the resolution of such meeting as aforesaid, execute a new deed of partnership on behalf of such company, and it shall not be necessary for such deed to be executed by any other shareholder of such company; and it shall thereupon be lawful for such company to present such petition as aforesaid, and a copy of such resolution and of such new deed of partnership so executed by a majority of the directors of the company as aforesaid shall be annexed to such petition; and if Her Majesty shall thereupon grant letters patent to such company under this Act, all the shareholders of such company at the time of the grant of such letters patent shall be deemed to be incorporated under such letters patent, and to be the first shareholders in such incorporated company; and the said new deed of partnership so executed by a majority of the directors as aforesaid shall have such and the same effect, to all intents and purposes, as if it had been executed by all the shareholders.

XLVI. That notwithstanding the incorporation of any company under this Act all contracts and agreements entered into by and with such company shall continue in force as between such incorporated company and the parties with which the company entered into such contracts and agreements before the incorporation thereof, and may be enforced in like manner as if the company had been incorporated before the making of any such contract or agreement, and that no suit at law or in equity by or against such company shall be abated by reason of such incorporation; but on application of either of the parties to such suit to the court in which suit is pending, at any time before execution on any judgment in such suit shall have issued, it shall be lawful for the Court to order that the corporate name of such company be entered on the record, instead of the name of the plaintiff or defendant representing such company before the incorporation thereof, and thereupon such suit may be prosecuted and defended in the same manner as if the same had been originally instituted by or against the said incorporated company; and where execution on any judgment in such suit shall have issued before such application, execution of such judgment may be had as if such company were not incorporated as if this Act had not been passed.

XLVII. That after the passing of this Act every company of more than six persons established on the said 6th of May for the purpose of carrying on the said trade or business of bankers within the distance of sixty-five miles from London, and not within the provisions of this Act, shall have the same powers and privileges of suing and being sued in the name of any one of the public officers of such copartnership as the nominal plaintiff, petitioner, or defendant on behalf of such copartnership; and that all judgments, decrees, and orders made and obtained in any such suit may be enforced in like manner as is provided with respect to such companies carrying on the said trade or business at any place in England exceeding the distance of sixty-five miles from London under the provisions of an Act, 7 Geo. 4. c. 46, intituled, 'An Act for the better regulating Copartnerships of certain Bankers in England; and for amending so much of an Act of the Thirty-ninth and Fortieth Years of the Reign of his late Majesty King George the Third, intituled, "An Act for establishing an Agreement with the Governor and Company of the Bank of England, for advancing the Sum of Three Millions towards the Supply for the Service of the Year One thousand eight hundred," as relates to the same;' provided that such first-mentioned company shall make out and deliver from time to time to the Commissioners of Stamps and Taxes the several accounts or returns required by the last-mentioned Act; and all the provisions of the last-recited Act as to such accounts or returns shall be taken to apply to the accounts or returns so made out and delivered by such first-mentioned companies, as if they had been originally included in the provisions of the last-recited Act.

XLVIII. Declared and enacted, That every company of more than six persons carrying on the trade or business of bankers in England shall be deemed a trading company within the provisions of an Act, 7 & 8 Vict. c. 111, intituled, 'An Act for facilitating the winding up the Affairs of Joint Stock Companies unable to meet their pecuniary Engagements.'

XLIX. That in this Act the following words and expressions shall have the several meanings hereby assigned to them, unless there be something in the subject or context repugnant to such construction; (that is to say.)

Words importing the singular number shall include the plural number, and words importing the plural number shall include the singular number:

Words importing the masculine gender shall include females:

The word "plaintiff" shall include pursuer and petitioner:

The word "defendant" shall include defender and respondent:

The word "execution" shall include diligence or other proceeding proper for giving effect to any judgment, decree, or order of a Court of Justice.

1. That this Act may be amended or repealed by any Act to be passed in this session of Parliament.

CAP. LXXXVI.

AN ACT for the Relief of Clerks to Attornies and Solicitors who have omitted to enrol their Contracts; and for amending the Law relating to the Enrolment of such Contracts, and to the Disabilities of such Clerks, in certain Cases.

(9th August 1844.)

ABSTRACT OF THE ENACTMENTS.

1. Indemnity to clerks who have neglected to enrol their contracts.
2. Where persons neglect to enrol their contracts within the time allowed, the Court may order the service to commence from the execution.
3. Provisions of 34 Geo. 3. c. 14. as to the enrolment of contracts repealed.
4. Neglect of attornies, &c., in taking out their annual certificates not to disqualify their clerks.
5. Act may be altered this session.

By this Act,

After reciting that by 34 Geo. 3. c. 14. it is enacted, that no person who by any contract in writing made after the days in the said Act respectively mentioned shall become bound to serve as a clerk in order to his admission as a solicitor or an attorney in any of the courts therein mentioned shall be admitted to be a solicitor or attorney in any of the said courts, unless the indenture or other writing containing such contract, duly stamped, shall be enrolled or registered with the proper officer to be appointed for that purpose in the court wherein such person shall propose to be afterwards admitted a solicitor or attorney by virtue of his service under such contract, together with an affidavit of the time of the execution of such contract by such clerk; and in case such indenture or other writing shall not be enrolled or registered in such court within six months next after the execution thereof, together with such affidavit, that then and in such case the service of such clerk under such indenture or writing shall be deemed to commence from the time of such enrolment or registry, and not from the execution of such indenture or writing: And that by 6 & 7 Vict. c. 78. it is enacted, that whenever any person shall after the passing of the said last-mentioned Act be bound by contract in writing to serve as a clerk to any attorney or solicitor, as therein mentioned, such attorney or solicitor shall within six months after the date of every such contract make and swear, or cause to be made and sworn, an affidavit of such attorney or solicitor having been duly admitted, and also of the actual execution of every such contract, and containing such particulars as are therein mentioned; and that every such affidavit shall be filed within six months next after the execution of the said contract with the officer therein mentioned, who shall thereupon enrol and register the said contract, and shall make and sign a memorandum of the day of filing such affidavit, upon such affidavit, and also upon such contract; and it is thereby provided, that in case such last-mentioned affidavit be not filed within such six months, the same may be filed after the expiration thereof, but that the service of such clerk shall be reckoned to commence and be computed from the day of filing such affidavit, unless one of the courts of law or equity shall otherwise order: And that many persons who may have paid the proper stamp duties either before or within six months after the execution of the contracts in writing entered into by them for the purposes aforesaid have omitted to cause affidavits to be made, and afterwards to be filed in the proper office, of the execution of such contracts, as required by the said first-mentioned Act, and have also omitted to cause such contracts, and the indentures thereof, or the assignment of any such indentures, to be enrolled within the time in which the same ought to have been done, whereby they have incurred certain disabilities; for preventing whereof, and relieving such persons:—

It is Enacted,

1. That every person who shall, either before or within six months after the execution of such contract or indenture, have paid the proper stamp duty in that behalf, and who at the time of the passing of this Act shall have neglected or omitted, or who may, within six months after the execution of any such contract or indenture executed before the passing of this Act, neglect or omit to cause any such affidavit or affidavits, as required by the said first-mentioned Act as aforesaid, to be made and filed, or such contract or indenture or assignment to be enrolled, and who on or before the first day of Hilary term next shall cause such contract or indenture or assignment to be enrolled with the proper officer in that behalf, and one or more affidavit or affidavits, as required by the said first-mentioned Act, to be made, and afterwards to be filed, in such manner as he same ought to have been made and filed in due time, shall be and is hereby indemnified, freed, and discharged from and against all incapacities and disabilities in or by any Act or Acts mentioned by reason of such neglect or omission; and every such affidavit and affidavits so to be made, and which shall be duly filed on or before the said first day of Hilary term next, shall be as effectual to all intents and purposes as if the same had been made and filed within the respective times the same ought by the laws now in being for that purpose to have been made and filed.

And after reciting that certain persons who have become bound by contracts as aforesaid, executed before the passing of this Act, may have enrolled the same after the expiration of six months from the date thereof, or may omit to enrol the same within the time hereby provided :—

It is Enacted,

11. That it shall be lawful for any of Her Majesty's superior courts of law or equity at Westminster, in any case where any such contract executed before the passing of this Act shall not have been enrolled within six months from the date thereof, or shall not be enrolled within the time by this Act allowed, to order and direct, either before or after the contract shall in any such case have been enrolled, with the proper affidavit by law required, that the service under such contract shall be reckoned to commence and be computed from the execution of such contract, or from any subsequent period prior to such enrolment, as such Court may think fit; and the same shall be deemed to have so commenced accordingly, whether such person shall at any time afterwards apply to be admitted in the same or any other court, anything in the said first-mentioned Act, or any other Act to the contrary notwithstanding.

And after reciting that since the passing of the said Act, 6 & 7 Vict. c. 73, the aforesaid provisions of the said Act 24 Geo. 1. c. 14. have become unnecessary, and it is expedient that the same should be repealed :—

It is Enacted,

111. That so much of the said last-mentioned Act as relates to the enrolment and registering of indentures and other writings containing any contract whereby any person shall become bound to serve as a clerk in order to his admission as a solicitor or attorney in any of the courts in the said Act mentioned, together with such affidavit as aforesaid, shall, in respect of all such indentures or writings made or executed after the passing of this Act, be and the same is hereby repealed: Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall be deemed or construed to repeal or alter any of the provisions of the said Act, 6 & 7 Vict. c. 73.

And after reciting that many attornies, solicitors, notaries public, and others, may have omitted or may hereafter omit to take out annual certificates, or to enter or register the same in the proper office, and persons who may have served as clerks to such attornies, solicitors, notaries public, and others, may by reason of such omission have incurred or may hereafter incur certain disabilities; for preventing whereof,—

It is Enacted,

iv. That no person who now has or hereafter shall have regularly served any attorney or attornies, notary public or notaries public, for the term of years required by law, shall be prevented or disqualified from being admitted an attorney, solicitor, or notary public, by reason of any omission of the person or persons whom he served for the same term or any part thereof having neglected or omitted to take out his annual certificate, or to enter or register the same; provided such person so having served is otherwise entitled to be so admitted as aforesaid by the laws for the time being in force relating thereto.

v. That this Act may be amended or repealed by any Act to be passed in the present session of Parliament.

CAP. XCVI.

By this Act,

After reciting that it is expedient to amend an Act 5 & 6 Vict. c. 116, intituled 'An Act for the Relief of Insolvent Debtors':—

It is Enacted,

I. That a petition for protection from process under the said Act may be presented to any Court or District Court of Bankruptcy within the district of which the petitioner shall have resided twelve calendar months, without any notice whatever being given to any creditor, or in the London Gazette, or any newspaper.

II. That every petition for protection from process presented after the commencement of this Act to the Court of Bankruptcy, or to any District Court of Bankruptcy, shall be in the form specified in the Schedule hereunto annexed (A. No. 1.); and such petition, and the schedule required by the said recited Act to be annexed thereto, shall be verified by an affidavit of the petitioner in the form specified in the Schedule hereunto annexed (A. No. 2.); and such affidavit shall be sworn in like manner as affidavits in matters of Bankruptcy may be sworn by any law now in force relating to bankrupts, and shall be annexed to such petition at the time of filing the same; and if such petition and affidavit shall not be in the form herein prescribed such petition shall be dismissed.

III. That the Commissioner authorized to act in the matter of such petition shall forthwith, after such petition shall have been filed, cause notice of the filing of such petition to be given, in such manner as the Commissioner shall direct, to the creditors named in the schedule of the petitioner, and resident within the United Kingdom, and whose debts respectively shall amount to the sum of 5*l.* and to be inserted in the London Gazette and in some newspaper or newspapers circulating within the county wherein the petitioner shall reside, and shall thereby appoint a public sitting of the Court whenever the Commissioner shall think fit for the first examination of the petitioner; and the Commissioner may adjourn such sitting from time to time, and allow the petitioner to amend his schedule and correct any mis-statement therein, at the discretion of the Commissioner, and the choice of the creditors' assignee shall take place at such sitting, or any adjournment thereof, and shall be made by the majority in number and value of the creditors who may attend, by themselves or their attorneys duly authorized by letters of attorney in that behalf, before the Commissioner on such day; provided that the Commissioner shall have power to reject any person so chosen who shall appear to him unfit to be such assignee as aforesaid, or to remove any assignee; and upon such rejection or removal a new choice of another assignee shall be made in like manner.

IV. That the property of the petitioner shall, for the purposes of the said recited Act and of this Act, vest in the assignee or assignees for the time being, by virtue of the appointment of such assignee or assignees; and every such assignee shall be deemed to be an officer of the Court in which the petition shall be filed, and shall be liable as such to the controul thereof: Provided always, that the property of the petitioner shall in every case be possessed and received by the official assignee alone, save where it shall be otherwise directed by the Commissioner: Provided also, that it shall be lawful for the Lord Chancellor, or the Judges and Commissioners of the Court of Bankruptcy in London, or the majority of them, if authorized so to do by the Lord Chancellor, from time to time to make such orders, rules, and regulations for the security of the property of the petitioner as he or they may judge reasonable and proper.

V. That upon such petition being filed the Commissioner shall possess the like power and authority touching the seizure of the property of such petitioner (except as herein otherwise directed), and also to compel the attendance of and to examine such petitioner and his wife, and every person known or suspected to have any of the property of such petitioner in his possession, or who is supposed to be indebted to such petitioner, and every person whom the Commissioner believes capable of giving any information concerning the person, trade, business, or calling, dealings, or property of such petitioner, or any information material to the full disclosure of the dealings of such petitioner, and to enforce both obedience to such examination, and the production of books, deeds, papers, writings, and other documents, as by any law now in force relating to bankrupts are possessed by the several Courts authorized to act in the prosecution of fiats in bankruptcy touching the seizure of property and the examination of any bankrupt or other person under a fiat in bankruptcy.

VI. That any prisoner in execution upon any judgment obtained in any action for the recovery of any debt, either not being a trader within the meaning of the statutes relating to bankrupts, or being a trader within the meaning of the said statutes owing debts amounting on the whole to less than 300*l.*, may be a petitioner for protection from process; and every such petitioner to whom an interim order for protection shall have been given shall not only be protected from process, as provided by the said recited Act, but also from being detained in prison in execution upon any judgment obtained in any action for the recovery of any debt mentioned in his schedule; and if any such petitioner, being a prisoner in execution, shall be detained in prison in execution upon any such judgment, it shall be lawful for the Commissioner to order any officer who shall have such petitioner in custody by virtue of such execution to discharge such petitioner out of custody as to such execution, without exacting any fee, and such officer shall hereby be indemnified for so doing; and no sheriff, gaoler, or other person whatsoever shall be liable to any action as for the escape of any such prisoner by reason of such his discharge; and such petitioner so discharged shall be protected by his interim order from all process for such time as the Commissioner shall by such interim order or any renewal thereof think fit to appoint, until the making of the final order for protection, in the same manner as if such petitioner had not been a prisoner in execution: Provided always, that after the time allowed by any such interim order or any renewal thereof (as the case may be) shall have elapsed such petitioner shall not by such discharge be protected from being again taken in execution upon such judgment, but such judgment shall remain in full force and effect notwithstanding such discharge.

VII. That whenever any such petitioner is a prisoner under any process, attachment, execution, commitment, or sentence, and is not entitled to his discharge in manner aforesaid, the Commissioner may, by warrant under his hand directed to the person in whose custody such petitioner is confined, cause such petitioner to be brought before him for examination at any sitting of the Court, either public or private, and the expense of bringing such petitioner shall be paid out of his estate, and such person shall be indemnified by the warrant of the Commissioner for bringing up such petitioner.

VIII. That if any petitioner for protection from process shall die after the filing of his petition, the Commissioner may proceed in the matter of such petition, for the discovery and distribution of his property, as he might have done if the petitioner were living.

IX. That the wearing apparel, bedding, and other necessities of the petitioner and his family, and the working tools and implements of the petitioner, not exceeding in the whole the value of 20*l.*, may be excepted by the petitioner in his petition from the operation of the said recited Act and of this Act, and in such case shall be altogether excluded from the operation of the said Acts: Provided always, that such excepted articles, with the values thereof respectively, to be ascertained and appraised, if the Commissioner shall think fit, in such manner as he shall direct, be fully and truly described by the petitioner in his schedule, but otherwise the exception thereof shall be of no force as to any part of the same.

X. That until an assignee shall be chosen by the creditors of any petitioner for protection from process the official assignee nominated by the Commissioner upon the filing of the petition of such petitioner shall be enabled to act, and shall be deemed to be, to all intents and purposes, a sole assignee of the property of such petitioner, and, if the Commissioner shall so order, may sell or otherwise dispose of such property, or any part thereof, and make such allowance out of the property of such petitioner for the support of himself and his family as the Commissioner shall direct; and the property vested in any official assignee alone, or jointly with any assignee chosen by creditors under the said recited Act, this Act, or either of them, shall not remain in such official assignee alone, or jointly with such assignee chosen by creditors, if such official assignee shall resign or be removed from his office, nor in the heirs, executors, or administrators of such official assignee, nor in the surviving assignee alone, in case of the death of such official assignee, but all such property shall in every such case go to and be vested in the successor in office of such official assignee alone, or jointly with the assignee chosen by the creditors (if any), as the case may be; and whenever any such petition shall have been or shall be dismissed all sales and dispositions of property, and payments duly made, and all other acts theretofore done by any assignee, or any person or persons acting under his authority, or by any messenger or other person under the authority of the Commissioner, according to the provisions of the said recited Act and of this Act or either of them, shall be good and valid, but the property of the petitioner shall otherwise in such case revert in such petitioner; provided, however, that no action or suit shall be prosecuted or commenced against such assignee, messenger, or other person or persons acting as aforesaid, except to recover any property of such petitioner detained after an order made by the Commissioner for the delivery thereof, and demand made thereupon.

XI. That all powers vested in any petitioner for protection from process, whose estate shall, under the provisions of the said recited Act, of this Act, or of either of them, have been vested in an assignee or assignees, which such petitioner might legally execute for his own benefit (except the right of nomination to any vacant ecclesiastical benefice), shall be hereby vested in such assignee or assignees, to be by such assignee or assignees executed for the benefit of the creditors of such petitioner under this Act, in such manner as such petitioner might have executed the same.

XII. That in all cases in which any such petitioner shall be entitled to any lease or agreement for a lease, and his assignee or assignees shall accept the same, and the benefit thereof, as part of such petitioner's property, the said petitioner shall not be liable to pay any rent accruing after the filing of his petition, nor be in any manner sued after such acceptance, in respect of any subsequent nonobservance or nonperformance of the conditions, covenants, or agreements therein contained: provided that in all such cases as aforesaid it shall be lawful for the lessor or person agreeing to make such lease, his heirs, executors, administrators, or assigns, if the said assignee or assignees shall decline, upon his or their being required so to do, to determine whether he or they will or will not accept such lease or agreement for a lease, to apply to the Commissioner, praying that he or they may either so accept the same, or deliver up such lease or agreement for a lease, and the possession of the premises demised or intended to be demised; and the Commissioner shall thereupon make such order as in all the circumstances of the case shall seem meet and just, and such order shall be binding on all parties.

XIII. That it shall be lawful for the assignee or assignees of any such petitioner, and such assignee or assignees shall be hereby empowered, to sue, from time to time as there may be occasion, in his or their own name or names, for the recovery, obtaining, and enforcing of any property or rights of such petitioner, but in trust for the benefit of the creditors of such petitioner, according to the provisions of the said recited Act and this Act, and to give such discharge and discharges to any person or persons who shall be respectively indebted to such petitioner as may be requisite; and to make compositions with any debtors or accountants to such petitioner, where the same shall appear necessary, and to take such reasonable part of any such debts as can upon such composition be gotten in full discharge of such debts and accounts; and to submit to arbitration any difference or dispute between such assignee or assignees and any person or persons for or on account or by reason of any matter, cause, or thing relating to the property of such petitioner: Provided nevertheless, that no such composition, or submission to arbitration, shall be made, nor any suit in equity be commenced, by any such assignee or assignees, without the consent in writing of the major part in value of the creditors of such petitioner, who shall meet together pursuant to a notice of such meeting, to be published at least fourteen days before such meeting in the London Gazette, and also in some newspaper usually circulated in the neighbourhood of the place where such petitioner had his last usual residence before the filing of his petition, nor without the approbation of the Commissioner.

xiv. That in all matters wherein creditors shall vote, or wherein the assent or dissent of creditors shall be exercised in pursuance of or in carrying into effect the said recited Act or this Act, every creditor shall be accounted such in respect of such amount only as upon an account fairly stated between the parties, after allowing the value of mortgaged property, and other such available securities and liens, shall appear to be the balance due; and that all disputes arising in such matters concerning any such amount shall, upon application duly made in that behalf, be examined into by the Commissioner, who shall have power to determine the same, and, if it seem fit, to refer the examination thereof to an officer of the said court: Provided always, that the amount in respect of which any such creditor shall vote in any such matter shall not be conclusive of the amount of his or her debt for any ulterior purposes, in pursuance of the provisions of this Act.

xv. That if any such petitioner shall at the time of filing his petition, or at any time before such petitioner shall become entitled to his final order according to this Act, have any government stocks, funds, or annuities, or any of the stock or shares of or in any public company, either in England, Scotland, or Ireland, standing in his own name in his own right, it shall be lawful for the Commissioner, whenever he shall deem fit so to do, to order all persons whose act or consent is thereto necessary to transfer the same into the name of such assignee or assignees as aforesaid; and all such persons whose act or consent is so necessary as aforesaid shall be hereby indemnified for all things done or permitted pursuant to such order.

xvi. That whenever any assignee shall die, resign, or be removed, or a new assignee shall be duly appointed, no action at law or suit in equity shall be thereby abated, but the court in which any action or suit is depending may, upon the suggestion of such death, resignation, or removal, and new appointment (if any), allow the name or names of the surviving or new assignee to be substituted in the place of the former, and such action or suit shall be prosecuted in the name or names of the said surviving or new assignee, in the same manner as if he had originally commenced the same.

xvii. That if any petitioner for protection from process shall, at the time of filing his petition, by the consent and permission of the true owner thereof, have in his possession, order, or disposition any goods or chattels whereof such petitioner was reputed owner, or whereof he had taken upon him the sale, alteration, or disposition as owner, the same shall be deemed to be the property of such petitioner, so as to become vested in the assignee or assignees for the time being of the estate and effects of such petitioner; provided that no transfer or assignment of any ship or vessel, or any share thereof, made as a security for any debt or debts, either by way of mortgage or assignment, duly registered according to the provisions of an Act 3 & 4 Will. 4. c. 56, intitled, 'An Act for the registering of British Vessels,' shall be invalidated or affected by reason of such possession, order, or disposition of the same as aforesaid.

xviii. That no distress for rent made and levied, after the filing of any petition for protection from process, upon the goods or effects of the petitioner, shall be available for more than one year's rent accrued prior to the filing of such petition, but that the landlord or party to whom the rent shall be due shall and may be a creditor for the overplus of the rent due, and for which the distress shall not be available, and entitled to all the provisions made for creditors by the said recited Act or by this Act.

xix. That if the petitioner shall, before or after the filing of his petition, in contemplation of his becoming insolvent, or being in insolvent circumstances, voluntarily convey, assign, transfer, charge, deliver, or make over any estate, real or personal, security for money, bond, bill, note, money, goods, or effects whatsoever, to any creditor or creditors, or to any person or persons in trust for, or to or for the use, benefit, or advantage of any creditor or creditors, or to any person who is or may be liable as surety for such petitioner, every such conveyance, assignment, transfer, charge, delivery, and making over shall be deemed fraudulent and void as against any assignee or assignees of the estate and effects of such petitioner appointed under the provisions of the said recited Act and of this Act, or of either of them: Provided always, that no such conveyance, assignment, transfer, charge, delivery, or making over shall be so deemed fraudulent and void if made at any time prior to three months before the filing of the petition, and not with the view or intention, by the party so conveying, assigning, transferring, charging, delivering, or making over, of petitioning the Court for protection from process.

xx. That the provisions of an Act, 3 Geo. 4. c. 39, intitled, 'An Act for preventing Frauds upon Creditors by secret Warrants of Attorney to confess Judgment,' shall extend to the assignee or assignees of every petitioner for protection from process whose estate shall, after the expiration of twenty-one days next after his execution of such warrant of attorney, or giving of such cognovit actionem as therein mentioned, be vested in an assignee or assignees under the provisions of the said recited Act and of this Act or of either of them, as if the said Act so intitled as aforesaid had been expressly herein enacted: and every such warrant of attorney, and judgment and execution thereon, and every such cognovit actionem, and judgment entered up thereon, and execution taken out on such judgment, as are declared by the said last-mentioned Act to be fraudulent and void against the assignees mentioned therein, shall be deemed equally fraudulent and void against the assignee or assignees of the estate of such petitioner, and such assignee or assignees shall be entitled to recover back and receive, for the use of the creditors of such petitioner, all the monies levied and effects seized under or by virtue of any such judgment or execution.

xxi. That in all cases where any petitioner for protection from process, whose estate shall have been vested in an assignee or assignees under the provisions of the said recited Act and of this Act or of either of them, shall have executed any warrant of attorney to confess judgment, or shall have given any cognovit actionem or bill of sale, whether for a valuable consideration or otherwise, no person shall, after the filing of the petition of such petitioner, avail himself of any execution issued or to be issued upon any judgment obtained or to be obtained upon such warrant of attorney or cognovit actionem, either by seizure and sale of the property of such petitioner or any part thereof, or by sale of such property theretofore seized, or any part thereof, or avail himself of such bill of sale, but that any person or persons to whom any sum or sums of money shall be due in respect of any such warrant of attorney or cognovit actionem, or of such bill of sale, shall and may be a creditor or creditors for the same under the said recited Act and this Act.

xxii. That the final order to be made under the provisions of the said Act as amended by this Act shall protect the person of the petitioner from being taken or detained under any process whatever in the cases hereinafter mentioned; (that is to say,) from all process in respect of the several debts and sums of money due or claimed to be due at the time of filing the petition from such petitioner to the several persons named in his schedule as creditors, or as claiming to be creditors for the same respectively, or for which such persons shall have given credit to such petitioner before the time of filing such petition, and which were not then payable, or in respect of the claims of any other persons not known to such petitioner at the time of making the final order, who may be indorsees or holders of any negotiable securities set forth in such schedule: Provided always, that every such final order may be made without specifying therein any such debt or debts, or sum or sums of money, or claims as aforesaid, or naming therein any such creditor or creditors as aforesaid; and such final order shall be in the form specified in Schedule (A. No. 3.)

XXIII. That if any such petitioner, being a prisoner in execution at the time of filing his petition, shall be detained in prison for any debt or claim in respect of which he is protected from process by his final order, it shall be lawful for the Commissioner to order any officer who shall have such petitioner in custody by virtue of such execution to discharge such petitioner without exacting any fee; and such officer shall be hereby indemnified for so doing.

XXIV. Provided and enacted, That if on the day for the first examination of the petitioner, or at any adjournment thereof, it shall appear to the Commissioner that the debts of the petitioner, or any of them, were contracted by any manner of fraud or breach of trust, or by any prosecution whereby he had been convicted of any offence, or without having at the time a reasonable or probable expectation of being able to pay such debt or debts, or that such debts, or any of them, were contracted by reason of any judgment in any proceeding for breach of the revenue laws, or in any action for breach of promise of marriage, seduction, criminal conversation, libel, slander, assault, battery, malicious arrest, malicious suing out a fiat of bankruptcy, or malicious trespass, or that the petitioner has parted with any of his property since the presenting of his petition, the Commissioner shall not be authorized in any such case to name any day for making such final order, or to renew such interim order; and in every such case wherein any such petitioner shall have been a prisoner in execution, and discharged out of custody by order of the Commissioner under the provision herein in that behalf contained, such petitioner shall be remanded by an order of the Commissioner to his former custody; but if none of the matters aforesaid shall so appear, and the Commissioner shall be satisfied that the petitioner has made a full discovery of his estate, effects, debts, and credits, it shall then be lawful for the Commissioner to cause notice to be given that on a certain day, to be named therein, he will proceed to make such final order, unless cause be shewn to the contrary.

XXV. That every sum of money which shall be payable, by way of annuity or otherwise, at any future time or times, by virtue of any bond, covenant, or other securities of any nature whatsoever, shall be deemed and taken to be debts within the meaning of the said recited Act and of this Act: Provided always, that every person who would be a creditor of any petitioner for protection from process for such sum or sums of money, if the same were presently due, shall be admissible as a creditor of such petitioner for the value, and no more, of such sum or sums of money so payable as aforesaid, which value the Commissioner authorized to act in the matter of the petition shall, upon application at any time made in that behalf, ascertain, regard being had to the original price given for such sum or sums of money, deducting therefrom such diminution in the value thereof as shall have been caused by the lapse of time since the grant thereof to the time of filing such petition; and such creditor shall be entitled in respect of such value to the benefit of all the provisions made for creditors by the said recited Act or by this Act, without prejudice nevertheless to the respective securities of such creditor, excepting as respects the effect of the final order which shall be obtained by such petitioner under the provisions of the said recited Act and of this Act.

XXVI. Provided and enacted, That the final order for protection from process shall and may extend to all process issuing from any Court for any contempt of court, ecclesiastical or civil, for nonpayment of money or of costs or expenses in any such court; and that in such case such final order shall be deemed to extend also to all costs which the petitioner would be liable to pay in consequence or by reason of such contempt, or on purging the same; and that every final order as to any debt or damages of any creditor of the petitioner shall be deemed to extend also to all costs incurred by such creditor before the filing of the petitioner's schedule in any action or suit brought by such creditor against the petitioner for the recovery of the same; and that all persons as to whose demands for any such costs, money, or expenses as aforesaid the final order obtained by the petitioner shall be adjudged to extend shall be deemed and taken to be creditors of such petitioner in respect thereof, and entitled to the benefit of all the provisions made for creditors by the said recited Act or by this Act; subject nevertheless to such ascertaining of the amount of the said demands as may be had by taxation or otherwise, and to such examination thereof as is herein provided in respect of all claims to a dividend of such petitioner's estate and effects.

XXVII. That it shall be lawful for the Commissioner, at the time appointed for making the final order for protection from process, or at any adjournment thereof, to adjourn the consideration of such final order sine die.

XXVIII. That if for any of the causes in that behalf aforesaid no day be named for making the final order, or if the consideration of such final order be adjourned sine die, or such final order be refused, the Commissioner shall have the power, after the expiration of such time subsequent to the filing of the petition as, having regard to all the circumstances of the insolvency, and the conduct of the petitioner as an insolvent debtor before and after his insolvency, the Commissioner shall think just, and after hearing the petitioner or any of his creditors, or his or their counsel or attorneys, to make an order to protect the petitioner from being taken or detained under any process whatever for or in respect of the several debts and sums of money due or claimed to be due at the time of filing his petition, from the said petitioner, to the several persons named in his schedule as creditors or as claiming to be creditors for the same respectively, or for which such persons should have given credit to the said petitioner before the time of filing his petition, and which were not then payable, and as to the claims of all other persons not known to the said petitioner at the time of making such order, who may be indorsers or holders of any negotiable security set forth in his said schedule: Provided always, that no debtor shall be imprisoned on any process for more than twelve calendar months for any debt contracted before filing his petition, in case the final order shall be refused or shall not be made, or in case the protecting order shall not be renewed.

XXIX. That if such petitioner shall be taken or detained under any process whatever for any debt or claim in respect of which he is protected from process by such order as last aforesaid it shall be lawful for the Commissioner to order any officer who shall have such petitioner so in custody to discharge such petitioner therefrom, without exacting any fee; and such officer shall be hereby indemnified for so doing.

And after reciting that it may sometimes happen that a debt of, or claim upon, or balance due from a petitioner for protection from process may be specified in his schedule so sworn to as aforesaid at an amount which is not exactly the actual amount thereof, without any culpable negligence or fraud or evil intention on the part of such petitioner;—

It is Enacted,

xxx. That in such case the Commissioners shall allow the schedule to be amended in that behalf; and in every case in which an amendment of the schedule shall be allowed the said petitioner shall be entitled to every benefit and protection of the said recited Act and of this Act; and the creditor in that behalf shall be entitled to the benefit of all the provisions made for creditors by the said recited Act and by this Act in respect of the actual amount of such debt, claim, or balance, and neither more nor less than the same, to all intents and purposes, such error in the said schedule notwithstanding.

xxxI. That whenever after an audit there shall appear to the Commissioners to be in the hands of the official assignee any balance wherewith a dividend may be made, proceedings shall be had forthwith, under the direction of the Commissioners, for making such dividend, and also, when it shall appear necessary, for correcting and ascertaining the list of creditors entitled to receive the same; and notice of any sitting of the Court ordered to be held for such ascertaining of debts, or for an audit, or for declaring a dividend thereupon, or for all such purposes, shall be given for such time and in such manner as the Commissioner shall from time to time direct; and such dividend shall be made amongst the creditors of the petitioner whose debts shall be admitted in his schedule sworn to by the petitioner, and amongst such other creditors (if any) who shall prove their debts in pursuance of any order of the Commissioner to be made in that behalf in proportion to the amount of the debts so admitted, or so admitted and proved, as the case may be: Provided always, that if the petitioner, or any creditor or assignee, shall object in whole or in part to any debt tendered to be so proved as aforesaid, or to any debt mentioned in the schedule of the petitioner, or if any person whose demand is stated in such schedule, but is not admitted therein to the extent of such demand, shall claim to be admitted as a creditor for the whole of such demand, or for more thereof than is so admitted, the said objections and claims shall, upon application duly made, be examined into by the Commissioner, and the decision of the Commissioner thereupon shall be conclusive with respect to the title of such creditor or creditors to his or their share of such dividend; Provided always, that if in any case it shall appear expedient it shall be lawful at any time for the Commissioner, by notice as may be directed in that behalf, to cause all or any of the creditors to prove their debts, in such manner as the Commissioner shall require, and to decide upon such debts, and the right to receive dividends thereupon; and to do all things requisite thereto, as aforesaid.

xxxII. That if at the expiration of twelve calendar months from the filing of any petition for protection from process there shall remain any outstanding debts or other property due or belonging to the estate of the petitioner, which cannot, in the opinion of the Commissioner, be collected and received, without unreasonable or inconvenient delay, it shall be lawful for the assignees, under the direction of the Commissioner, to sell and assign such debts and other property in such manner as shall be ordered by the Commissioner.

xxxIII. That no letter of attorney, affidavit, certificate, or other proceeding, instrument, or writing whatsoever be the matter of any petition for protection from process, nor any copy thereof, nor any advertisement inserted in any newspaper by the direction of any Commissioner of the Court of Bankruptcy relating to any such matter, shall be liable to or charged with the payment of any stamp or other duty whatsoever; and that no sale of any real or personal estate of any such petitioner as aforesaid, for the benefit of his creditors, under the said recited Act or this Act, shall be liable to any auction duty: Provided always, that no such exemption from auction duty shall be allowed unless such sale shall be conducted by a licensed auctioneer, and such auctioneer shall at the time of passing his account thereof produce to the officer of Excise a catalogue signed and certified by the assignees by whose order such sale shall have been made, in manner and form required by the laws of Excise.

xxxIV. That under every petition for protection from process after the passing of this Act in the Court of Bankruptcy in London, or in any district Court of Bankruptcy in the country, there shall be paid by the official assignee of the estate and effects of the petitioner, into the Bank of England, to the credit of the Accountant in Bankruptcy, to the account intitled, "The Secretary of Bankrupts Account," a sum not less than one-eighth of a pound per centum, and not exceeding 51 per centum on the gross produce from time to time of the petitioner's estate, such sum, within the limit aforesaid, and the time or times for payment thereof, to be fixed by the Lord Chancellor by any general order for those purposes, and to be applicable to all the purposes of the said account, and to be subject to the like orders as other monies directed to be paid in to the said account; and that it shall be lawful for the Lord Chancellor from time to time to lessen or increase such sum, within the limit aforesaid, as to the Lord Chancellor may seem just and reasonable; upon consideration of the amount from time to time standing to the said account, and of the claims from time to time chargeable thereupon.

xxxV. That from and after the passing of this Act it shall be lawful for the Commissioner authorized to act in the matter of any petition for protection from process to direct remuneration to the official assignee for his services in the matter of such petition, in like manner as in bankruptcy, but nevertheless so as such remuneration shall in no case exceed the rate of 10 per centum on the sum received as produce of the property of the petitioner.

xxxVI. That no fee or gratuity shall be received or taken by the Court of Bankruptcy, or any district Court of Bankruptcy, or any solicitor, auctioneer, broker, appraiser, accountant, messenger, or other officer of any such court, for anything done or to be done in the matter of any such petition, or from any person whomsoever, except as hereinbefore authorized, and except such fees as shall at any time be specified in a list thereof to be signed by the Commissioners of the Court of Bankruptcy, authorized to act in the prosecution of fiats in bankruptcy in London, or the major part of them, and such of the Commissioners of the said Court authorized to act in the prosecution of fiats in bankruptcy in the country as shall be appointed by the Lord Chancellor for that purpose, and to be approved of by the Lord Chancellor, a copy of which list shall be exposed to view in every such court.

XXXVII. That any petition for protection from process, and any proceeding in the matter of such petition purporting to be signed by a Commissioner of the Court of Bankruptcy, or a copy of such petition or other proceeding purporting to be so signed, shall in all cases be receivable in evidence of such proceedings having respectively taken place.

XXXVIII. That the rules and orders made by the Judges and Commissioners of the Court of Bankruptcy under the said recited Act shall extend and be applicable to this Act, except as otherwise provided by this Act: Provided always, that it shall be lawful for the Commissioners of the Court of Bankruptcy acting in London, or the major part of them, and such of the Commissioners of the said Court acting in the country as shall be nominated by the Lord Chancellor for that purpose, from time to time to alter or vary such rules and orders, or to make other rules and orders, to be approved of by the Lord Chancellor, for the better carrying into execution the said recited Act as amended by this Act: Provided also, that any such rules and orders may be rescinded or varied as the Lord Chancellor shall direct.

XXXIX. That in case any petitioner for protection from process shall, with intention to defraud the creditors of such petitioner, wilfully and fraudulently omit in his schedule so sworn to as aforesaid any property whatsoever, or retain or except out of such schedule as wearing apparel, bedding, or other necessities, or working tools or implements, property of greater value than 20*l.*, every such person so offending, and any person aiding and assisting him to do the same, shall, upon being thereof convicted by due course of law, be adjudged guilty of a misdemeanor, and thereupon it shall be lawful for the Court before whom such offender shall have been so tried and convicted to sentence such offender to be imprisoned and kept to hard labour for any period not exceeding three years; and that in every indictment or information against any person for any offence under this Act it shall be sufficient to set forth the substance of the offence charged on the person offending, without setting forth the petition, or any proceeding whatever in the matter of such petition, except so much of the schedule of such petitioner as may be necessary for the purpose.

XL. That if any person who shall make or take any oath or affirmation under or in pursuance of the said recited Act or of this Act shall therein be guilty of wilful falsehood, every such person, being duly convicted thereof, shall be subject to the same pains, penalties, and forfeitures to which persons convicted of wilful and corrupt perjury are or shall be subject.

XLI. That the Lord Chancellor shall have power, upon petition made to him in writing by any trader who shall have filed a declaration of insolvency in manner and form prescribed by the statute in that case made and provided relating to bankrupts, and upon payment of the like sum as is payable upon the granting a fiat upon the petition of a creditor, to be carried to and applicable to the purposes of the account in the Bank of England, intituled "The Secretary of Bankrupts Account," to issue a fiat in bankruptcy against such trader, and to authorize the prosecution thereof in the Court of Bankruptcy in London or in any district Court of Bankruptcy; and that it shall and may be lawful for such Court so authorized as aforesaid, upon the application of such trader, and upon proof of the trading and of the filing of such declaration, or upon the application of any creditor or creditors of such trader to such amount as by the said statute required for a petitioning creditor's debt, and upon proof of the matters requisite to support a fiat issued upon the petition of a creditor, to make the adjudication of bankruptcy under such fiat, and all further proceedings under such fiat shall be thenceforth prosecuted and carried on in like manner as if such fiat had been issued and adjudicated upon on the petition of a creditor of the bankrupt.

XLII. That it shall be lawful for the Lord Chancellor from time to time to attach the several Commissioners of the Court of Bankruptcy appointed to act in the country to such districts described by Her Majesty, with the advice of her Privy Council, as he shall think fit.

XLIII. That a minute of every petition filed by any trader under the provisions of the said recited Act as amended by this Act shall be transmitted to the Lord Chancellor's Secretary of Bankrupts at such time and in such manner and form as the Lord Chancellor shall direct.

And after reciting that it may be expedient that the Courts of Bankruptcy should hold sittings in some matters of bankruptcy, or petitions for protection from process, at some place or places at which such Courts have not hitherto been used to sit:—

It is Enacted,

XLIV. That it shall be lawful for the Lord Chancellor, at any time or times whenever it shall appear to him under the circumstances of the case to be expedient, by any order or orders, to give the necessary directions in that behalf; and every commissioner and deputy registrar acting under any such order shall have paid to him his travelling and other expenses, in the same manner and out of the same fund as travelling and other expenses are directed to be paid by the Act, 5 & 6 Vict. c. 122, intituled, 'An Act for the Amendment of the Law of Bankruptcy,' to any Commissioner or deputy registrar acting for or in aid of any Commissioner or deputy registrar in cases provided for by such Act.

XLV. That from and after the passing of this Act it shall be lawful for the Lord Chancellor to appoint some fit and proper person, such person being a barrister of not less than five years standing at the bar, or who shall have practised as a pleader for not less than five years, or who shall have held the office of registrar or deputy registrar of the Court of Bankruptcy for not less than five years, or an admitted attorney of one of Her Majesty's superior Courts at Westminster, or of Her Majesty's Court of Bankruptcy, in actual practice, of not less than five years standing on the roll of such court or courts, to be the taxing officer of the Court of Bankruptcy, and to be called the Master of the said court, at such salary, not exceeding 1,200*l.* per annum, as the Lord Chancellor shall think fit, and to be entitled to an annuity not exceeding two-thirds of such salary, if and when such officer shall be affected with some permanent infirmity disabling him from the due execution of his office, such salary or annuity, as the case may be, to be charged upon and paid (without any deduction except the tax on income) out of the same fund and at the same times and in like manner as the salaries or annuities, as the case may be, of the registrars and deputy registrars of the said Court; and as and when any vacancy shall occur in such office the same shall be supplied by the Lord Chancellor, by the appointment of some other fit and proper person of like qualifications as aforesaid; and every such taxing officer shall hold his office during his good behaviour, and shall discharge his duties in person, except where otherwise provided by this Act, or by any regulation to be made under this Act, and may be removed from his office by the Lord Chancellor for misconduct; and the business to be transacted by such taxing officer, from and after the passing of this Act, shall be the swearing of such affidavits as may be sworn before any Commissioner, registrar, or deputy registrar of the Court of Bankruptcy, and the taxing of such costs taxable by any Court of Bankruptcy by virtue of any statute now or hereafter to be in force as the Lord Chancellor shall from time to time by any general or other order direct, subject to review of the Court authorized to tax the same; and the place, time, and manner in which the same shall be conducted shall be such as the Lord Chancellor shall by any such order direct.

XLVI. That upon the taxation by virtue of this Act of any bills of fees, charges, or disbursements there shall be paid to the Master such sum as the said Master shall decide, not less than 1s. nor more than the sum of 10s., and also 4d. a folio, over and above the said sum of 10s. for every folio exceeding twenty folios of such bill.

XLVII. That the sums so directed to be paid to and received by the Master, and also all fees received by him for swearing affidavits, shall be paid by him, at such times as the Lord Chancellor shall by any order direct, into the Bank of England, to the credit of the accountant in bankruptcy, to the account intituled "The Secretary of Bankrupts Account," after deducting thereout such sum as the Lord Chancellor shall think fit for the expenses of the said office; and all monies to be so paid in to the said account shall be applicable to all the purposes of the said account, and be subject to the like orders as other monies directed to be paid in to the said account.

XLVIII. Provided and enacted, That if the said Master shall from sickness or other unavoidable cause have occasion to be absent from the business of his office for a longer period than two months at any one time, then and in every such case it shall be lawful for the Lord Chancellor to give leave of absence, by his order in writing, to such Master, and, if necessary, to appoint a deputy in his place during such time as shall be expressed in such order; and the name of such deputy, and the cause and time of such absence, shall be stated in such order; and such deputy may, if occasion require it, be changed by the Lord Chancellor; and every deputy so appointed shall be paid out of the said fund as the salary of the said Master is chargeable upon such remuneration for his services as the Lord Chancellor shall direct in such order, not being in any case less than one third of the amount of the salary of such Master.

And after reciting that the registrars and deputy registrars of the Court of Bankruptcy, in addition to their respective salaries, are entitled to and now receive the surplus of certain fees authorized to be taken, and the payment or partial payment of such officers by fees has been found to be objectionable:—

It is Enacted,

XLIX. That instead of the salaries and surplus fees heretofore received by such registrars and deputy registrars there shall from and after the 11th of October next, be paid to them by the Governor and Company of the Bank of England, out of the fund placed to the credit of the accountant in bankruptcy, intituled, "The Secretary of Bankrupts Account," by virtue of any order or orders of the Lord Chancellor to be from time to time made for that purpose, and without any draft from the accountant in bankruptcy, the several salaries, hereinafter mentioned; that is to say, the net yearly sum of 1,200*l.* to each of the registrars of the said court appointed under an Act, 1 & 2 Will. 4. c. 56, intituled, 'An Act to establish a Court in Bankruptcy,' and his successors in such office; the net yearly sum of 1,000*l.* to each deputy registrar of the said Court, acting as such in the city of London, and his successors in such office; and the net yearly sum of 800*l.* to each deputy registrar of the said court, acting as such in the country, and his successors in such office; which salaries shall be free from all taxes, deductions, and abatements whatsoever out of the same or any part thereof (except the tax on income), and shall be paid quarterly, on the 11th of January, the 11th of April, the 11th of July, and the 11th of October in every year, by equal portions; and that if any person for the time being holding any of the said offices shall die, resign, or be removed from the same, the executor or administrator of the person so dying, or the person so resigning or being removed, shall be entitled to receive such proportionable part of his salary as shall have accrued during the time that such person shall have executed his office since the last payment; and that the successor of any such person so dying, resigning, or being removed as aforesaid shall be entitled to receive such portion of his salary as shall be accruing or shall accrue from the day of such death, resignation, or removal.

L. That from and after the 11th of October next all fees received and taken by or accounted for and paid over to the chief registrar of the Court of Bankruptcy shall be paid by him, at such times as the Lord Chancellor shall by any order direct, into the Bank of England, to the credit of the accountant in bankruptcy, to the account intituled "Interest arising from the Bankruptcy Fund Account," after deducting thereout such sum as the Lord Chancellor shall think fit for stationery and other incidental expenses of the offices of the chief registrar and the Court of Review; and that the salaries and sums of money to clerks, ushers, and other under officers of the Court of Bankruptcy heretofore paid by the chief registrar out of such fees shall thenceforth be paid by the Governor and Company of the Bank of England out of the fund standing to such account, under such order or orders as may from time to time be made by the Lord Chancellor, but subject and without prejudice to the payment of all salaries and sums of money by any Act or Acts now in force directed or authorized to be paid thereout; and that on or before the 1st of March 1845, if Parliament be then sitting or, if not, within fourteen days from the commencement of the then next session of Parliament, there shall be laid before Parliament by the said chief registrar a return, made up to the 31st of December then last, of the total amount of all fees received by or accounted for and paid over to him, and of the payment over to the Bank of England (such payment over to the Bank of England to be certified by the accountant in bankruptcy), and that a like return shall be afterwards made by him annually at the same period for the year ending the 31st of December then last.

LI. That it shall be lawful for the Lord Chancellor, by any order or orders to be by him from time to time made on a petition to be presented to him for that purpose, to order (if he shall think fit) an annuity or clear yearly sum of money to be paid to any person executing the office of chief registrar, registrar, or deputy registrar of the Court of Bankruptcy, and acting in London or in the country, not exceeding two-thirds of the yearly salary which such person shall under this Act be entitled to at the time of presenting such petition, to be paid out of the interest and dividends that have arisen or may arise from the securities now or hereafter to be placed in the Bank of England to the account intituled "The Bankruptcy Fund Account," (but subject and without prejudice as aforesaid,) if and when such person shall be afflicted with some permanent infirmity disabling him from the due execution of his office, and shall be desirous of resigning the same; and the annuity or yearly sum mentioned in such order or orders shall be paid by the Governor and Company of the Bank of England out of the interest and dividends of the said securities (but subject and without prejudice as aforesaid) by equal quarterly payments, on the 5th of January, the 5th of April, the 5th of July, and the 10th of October in every year, to such person, from the period when he shall resign his said office, for the term of his life, free from taxes, except the tax on income.

And after reciting that one of the deputy registrars of the Court of Bankruptcy has since the 21st of November 1842 performed the duties of taxing officer; and during that period the duties of deputy registrar were discharged by Thomas Acton Warburton Esquire, Barrister at Law,—

It is Enacted,

LII. That out of the fund placed to the credit of the accountant in bankruptcy, intituled "The Secretary of Bankrupts Account," there shall be paid to the said Thomas Acton Warburton, by the Governor and the Company of the Bank of England, by virtue of an order in writing of the Lord Chancellor, such sum of money, not exceeding 800*l.*, as the Lord Chancellor shall think reasonable.

LIII. That the Court authorized to act in the prosecution of any fiat in bankruptcy or any petition for protection from process shall have power, whenever it shall seem expedient to such Court, to direct a deputy registrar of such court to act in the prosecution of such fiat or petition for proof of debts and the examination of parties or witnesses on oath, or for either of such purposes, subject to such rules and regulations as the Lord Chancellor shall from time to time think fit to make in that behalf; the travelling expenses of such officer to be settled by such Court, and paid out of the estate of the bankrupt or petitioner, as the case may be; and such officer so acting shall have and exercise the power vested in such Court for proof of debts and examination of parties or witnesses, except the power of commitment: Provided always, that all such examinations of parties or witnesses shall be taken down in writing, and shall be annexed to and form part of the proceedings under such fiat or petition, as the case may be.

LIV. That from and after the passing of this Act the deputy registrars of the Court of Bankruptcy and their successors, whether acting in London or in the country, shall be called the registrars of the said Court.

And after reciting that by an Act, 5 & 6 Will. 4. c. 29, intituled "An Act for investing in Government Securities a Portion of the Cash lying unemployed in the Bank of England belonging to Bankrupts Estates, and applying the Interest thereon in Discharge of the Expenses of the Court of Bankruptcy; and for the Relief of the Suitors in the said Court; and for removing doubts as to the extent of the powers of the Court of Review and of the Subdivision Courts," it is enacted, that the salaries hereinbefore provided shall be in lieu of all fees and emoluments whatsoever, and that all such fees and emoluments, whether for commission, brokerage, or otherwise, as are now receivable by the said accountant general of the Court of Chancery in matters of bankruptcy, shall, from and after the appointment of the said accountant in bankruptcy, be received by him and paid into the Bank in the name of the said last-mentioned accountant, and be carried to the credit of the said account to be intituled "Interest arising from the Bankruptcy Fund Account," and be applicable to all the purposes of the said account: and that the said enactment requires alteration;—

It is Enacted,

LV. That the said enactment shall be repealed.

LVI. That the salary allowed to the accountant shall be in lieu of all fees and emoluments whatsoever, and that the accountant shall not, directly or indirectly, receive any sum either for commission, brokerage, or otherwise, but only the sum expressly allowed to him as his salary; that from henceforth the broker shall transact the brokerage business of the accountant's office upon such terms as the accountant and any two of the Commissioners of the Court of Bankruptcy to be appointed by the Lord Chancellor shall, with the approbation of the Lord Chancellor, determine; and that the sum paid to the broker shall be charged by the accountant to the estate for which the investment or sale shall be made; and that when such sum to be paid to the broker shall be determined it shall be lawful for the Lord Chancellor to direct the payment or any part of it to be made from such time retrospectively and prospectively as to him may seem just.

And after reciting that it is expedient to limit the present power of arrest upon final process;—

It is Enacted,

LVII. That from and after the passing of this Act no person shall be taken or charged in execution upon any judgment obtained in any of Her Majesty's superior courts, or in any county court, court of requests, or other inferior court, in any action for the recovery of any debt wherein the sum recovered shall not exceed the sum of 20*l.*, exclusive of the costs recovered by such judgment.

LVIII. That all persons in execution at the time of passing this Act, upon any judgment obtained in any of the courts aforesaid in any action for the recovery of any debt wherein the sum recovered shall not exceed the sum of 20*l.*, exclusive of the costs recovered by such judgment, shall and may, upon the application of every such person or persons for that purpose, made at any time after the passing of this Act, to a Judge of one of Her Majesty's superior courts of law at Westminster, or to the Court in which such judgment shall have been obtained, to the satisfaction of such Judge or Court, be forthwith discharged out of custody as to such execution by an order of such Judge or Court: Provided always, that if it shall happen that any such discharge shall have been unduly or fraudulently obtained upon any false allegation of circumstances, which, if true, might have entitled the prisoner to be discharged by virtue of this Act, such prisoner shall, upon the same being made to appear to the satisfaction of the Judge or Court by whose order such prisoner shall have been so discharged, be liable to be again taken in execution, and remanded to his former custody by an order of such Judge or Court: Provided also, that no sheriff, gaoler, or other person whatsoever shall be liable as for the escape of any such prisoner in respect of his enlargement during such time as he shall have been at large by means of such his undue discharge as aforesaid: Provided also, that, for and notwithstanding the discharge of any debtor or debtors by an order of any such Judge or Court in manner aforesaid, the judgment whereupon any such debtor or debtors was or were taken or charged in execution shall nevertheless remain and continue in full force to the intent and purpose that the judgment creditor or creditors may have and take remedy and execution upon every such judgment against the property and effects of any such debtor or debtors, in such manner and form as such creditor or creditors otherwise could or might have done in case such debtor or debtors had never been taken or charged in execution upon such judgment, and it shall be lawful for such creditor or creditors to have and take such remedy and execution.

LIX. Provided and enacted, That if at any time it shall appear to the Judge who shall try such cause, being either a Judge of one of the superior courts, or a barrister or attorney at law, that the defendant, in incurring the debt or liability which may be the subject of demand, has obtained credit from the plaintiff under false pretences, or with a fraudulent intent, or has wilfully contracted such debt or liability without having at the same time a reasonable assurance of being able to pay or discharge the same, or shall have made or caused to be made any gift, delivery, or transfer of any personal property, or shall have removed or concealed the same with an intent to defraud his creditors or any of them, it shall be lawful for such Judge, if he shall think fit, to order that such defendant may be taken and detained in execution upon such judgment in like manner and for such time as he might have been if this Act had not been passed, or for any time not exceeding six calendar months in any case in which the time for which a person taken in execution under process issuing out of any such court could lawfully be detained in custody, according to the constitution of the said Court, before the passing of this Act, is less than six calendar months, whether or not execution against the goods and chattels of such defendant shall have issued as hereinafter provided.

LX. That whenever the Judge of any such Court shall have made an order for the payment of money the amount shall be recoverable, in case of default or failure of payment thereof forthwith, or at the time or times and in the manner thereby directed, by execution against the goods and chattels of the party against whom such order shall be made; and the clerk of the said court, at the request of the party prosecuting such order, shall issue, under the seal of the court, a writ of heri facias, as a warrant of execution to one of the bailiffs of the court, who by such warrant shall be empowered to levy, by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of such party within the jurisdiction of the said Court, such sum of money as shall be so ordered, and also the costs of the execution; and all constables and other peace officers within their several jurisdictions shall aid in the execution of every such warrant.

LXI. That if the Judge of any such court shall have made any order for payment of any sum of money by instalments, execution upon such order shall not issue against the party until after default in payment of some instalment according to such order, and execution or successive executions may then issue for the whole of the said sum of money and costs then remaining unpaid, or for each successive instalment and costs remaining from time to time unpaid, as the Judge shall order, either at the time of making the original order, or at any subsequent time, under the seal of the court.

LXII. That if it shall at any time appear to the satisfaction of the Judge of any such court, by the oath or affirmation of any person, or otherwise, that any defendant is unable, from sickness or unavoidable accident, to pay and discharge the debt or damages recovered against him, or any instalment thereof ordered to be paid as aforesaid, it shall be lawful for the Judge, in his discretion, to suspend or stay any judgment, order, or execution given, made, or issued in such action for such time as the Judge shall think fit, and so from time to time until it shall appear, by the like proof as aforesaid, that such temporary cause of disability has ceased.

LXIII. That in or upon every such warrant of execution issued against the goods and chattels of any person whomsoever the clerk of the court shall cause to be inserted or indorsed the sum of money and costs adjudged, with the increased costs allowed for such execution; and if the party against whom such execution shall be issued shall, before an actual sale of the goods and chattels, pay or cause to be paid or tendered unto the clerk of the said court, or to the bailiff holding the warrant of execution, such sum of money and costs as aforesaid, or such part thereof as the person entitled thereto shall agree to accept in full of his debt or damages and costs, together with such fees as shall have been lawfully incurred by him in the suit on which such execution issued, the execution shall be superseded.

LXIV. That in case any bailiff of any such court who shall be employed to levy any execution against goods and chattels shall, by wilful or notorious neglect or connivance or omission, lose the opportunity of levying any such execution, then, upon complaint of the party aggrieved by reason of such neglect, connivance, or omission, (and the fact alleged being proved to the satisfaction of the Court out of which execution issued, on the oath of any credible witness,) the Judge shall order such bailiff to pay such damages as it shall appear that the plaintiff has sustained thereby, not exceeding in any case the sum of money for which the said execution issued, and the bailiff shall be liable thereto; and upon demand made thereof, and on his refusal so to pay and satisfy the same, it may be recovered against him by such ways and means as are provided for the recovery of debts adjudged in the said court.

LXV. That if any bailiff or officer of any such court, acting under colour or pretence of the process of the said court, shall be charged with extortion or misconduct, or with not duly paying or accounting for any money levied by him under the authority of the Court, it shall be lawful for the Judge to inquire into such matter in a summary way, and for that purpose to summon and enforce the attendance of all necessary parties in like manner as the attendance of witnesses in any suit before him may be enforced, and to make such order thereupon for the repayment of any money extorted, or for the due payment of any money so levied as aforesaid, and for the payment of such damages and costs, as he shall think just; and in default of payment of any money so ordered to be paid the same may be recovered by such ways and means as are provided for the recovery of debts adjudged in the said court.

LXVI. That every sale of goods which shall be taken in execution under process issuing from any such Court for the recovery of small debts shall be taken to be within all the provisions of an Act, 7 & 8 Geo. 4. c. 17, intituled, 'An Act to extend the Provisions of an Act made in the Fifty-seventh Year of King George the Third, for regulating the Costs of certain Distresses.'

LXVII. That no landlord of any tenement let at a weekly rent shall have any claim or lien upon any goods taken in execution under the process of any court of law for more than four weeks arrears of rent; and if such tenement shall be let for any other term less than a year the landlord shall not have any claim or lien on such goods for more than the arrears of rent accruing during four such terms or times of payment.

LXVIII. That if any claim shall be made to or in respect of any goods or chattels taken in execution under the process of any court for the recovery of small debts, or in respect of the proceeds or value thereof, by any landlord for rent, or by any person not being the party against whom such process has issued, it shall be lawful for the clerk of the court out of which such execution issued, upon application of the officer charged with the execution of such process, either before or after any action brought against such officer, to issue a summons calling before the Court out of which such execution issued both the party issuing such process and the party making such claim, and thereupon any action which shall have been brought in any of Her Majesty's superior courts at Westminster, or in the Court of Common Pleas at Lancaster, or in any local or inferior court, in respect of such claim, shall be stayed; and the Court in which such action shall have been brought, or any Judge thereof, on proof of the issue of such summons, and that the goods and chattels were so taken in execution, may order the party bringing such action to pay the costs of all proceedings had upon such action after the issue of such summons; and the Judge of the court for the recovery of small debts out of which such execution issued shall adjudicate upon such claim, and make such order between the parties in respect thereof, and of the costs of the proceedings, as to him shall seem fit; and such order shall be enforced in like manner as any order made in any suit brought in such court.

LXIX. That where any distress shall be made for any sum of money to be levied by virtue of this Act the distress itself shall not be deemed unlawful, nor the party making the same be deemed a trespasser, on account of any defect or want of form in the information, summons, conviction, warrant of distress, or other proceeding relating thereto, nor shall the party distraining be deemed a trespasser from the beginning on account of any irregularity which shall afterwards be committed by the party so distraining, but the person aggrieved by such irregularity may recover full satisfaction for the special damage in an action upon the case.

LXX. That every person entitled to any fees or salary for his services as a Judge or other officer of any court, and every keeper or other officer of any debtors prison, whose emoluments shall be diminished under the operation of this Act, so far as the same relates to or restrains imprisonment for debt, shall be entitled to make a claim for compensation to the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury within twelve calendar months after the passing of this Act; and it shall be lawful for the said Commissioners, in such manner as they shall think proper, to inquire what were the lawful fees and emoluments of the claimant or claimants before the passing of this Act in respect of which such compensation should be allowed, and how the same have been affected under this Act, by reason of the decrease of the number of causes or otherwise; and the Commissioners in each case shall take into account the manner of appointment of every such Judge, officer, and person, and his term or interest in his office or employment, and all other circumstances of the case, and shall award such gross or yearly sum, and for such time, as they shall think just to be awarded, upon consideration of the special circumstances of each case, and shall order and direct such compensation to be paid out of the Consolidated Fund of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

LXXI. That the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury shall have power from time to time to appoint such and so many persons to be Commissioners for enabling them to ascertain the amount of compensation to be awarded under this Act as to them shall appear fit and necessary; and every such Commissioner shall ascertain the gross and net annual value, according to a fair average of seven years before the passing of this Act, or, if the Court shall not have been established with its present jurisdiction for seven years, then for the period during which the Court shall have been established with its present jurisdiction, of any fees and emoluments the consideration of which shall be referred to him by the said Commissioners of the Treasury, and shall be empowered to inquire into and ascertain as well the legality as the amount of such fees and emoluments, and the manner of appointment of the person entitled thereto, and his term or interest in his office or employment, and such other circumstances of the case as shall be necessary for ascertaining the amount of such compensation.

And after reciting that there are divers courts of requests and other inferior courts for the recovery of small debts not provided over by a barrister or an attorney at law as Judge or assessor;—

It is Enacted,

LXXII. That it shall be lawful for the Commissioners of any such court, if they shall think fit, with the approval of one of Her Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, to appoint any person, being a barrister, who shall have practised as a barrister for at least seven years then last past, or an attorney at law of one of the superior courts of common law at Westminster, or of the Court of Common Pleas at Lancaster, who shall have practised as an attorney for at least ten years, to be the assessor of such court, and to direct what fees shall be paid to such assessor by the suitors of such court, not exceeding the fees in the Schedule marked (B.) hereunto annexed; and it shall be lawful for the said Secretary of State to remove any such assessor for incompetence or misbehaviour: Provided always, that no assessor so to be appointed shall be deemed to be entitled to any compensation for the loss of his office, or for any diminution in the value thereof, by reason of the passing of any general Act for the recovery of small debts.

LXXIII. That in construing this Act the word "Property" shall mean and include all the real and personal estate and effects of the petitioner within this realm and abroad, (except the wearing apparel, and such other articles of the value in that behalf aforesaid as may by this Act be excepted from the operation of the said recited Act and this Act,) and all the future estate, right, title, interest, and trust of such petitioner in or to any real or personal estate and effects within this realm or abroad which such petitioner may purchase, or which may revert, descend, be devised or bequeathed, or come to him before he shall have obtained the final order, and all debts due or to be due to such petitioner before he shall have obtained such final order; and the words "Oath" and "Affidavit" shall mean and include affirmation, where by law such affirmation shall be required or may be taken in place of an oath; and all powers given to or duties directed to be performed by the Lord Chancellor may be performed by the Lord Keeper or Lords Commissioners of the Great Seal; and the word "Judge," as applied to any court for the recovery of small debts, shall mean and include the county clerk, judge, steward, and assessor, or the person holding or presiding in such court; and every word importing the singular number only shall extend and be applied to several persons or things as well as one person or thing, and bodies corporate as well as individuals; and every word importing the plural number shall extend and be applied to one person or thing as well as several persons or things; and every word importing the masculine gender only shall extend and be applied to a female as well as a male; (unless, in the cases above specified a different construction shall be provided, or the construction be repugnant to the subject matter or context;) and the provisions of the said recited Act and of this Act shall be construed by analogy to the law of bankruptcy, except where otherwise therein respectively expressed, and in the most beneficial manner for promoting the ends intended by the said recited Act and by this Act.

LXXIV. That nothing herein contained shall be construed to repeal, affect, or in any manner alter the provisions of the said recited Act, except so far as herein above expressly provided, or except so far as the provisions of the said recited Act may be inconsistent with or at variance with the provisions of this Act.

LXXV. That this Act may be altered, amended, or repealed by any Act to be passed in the present session of Parliament.

76. When Act to operate.
77. Act may be amended this session.

By this Act,

After reciting, that it is expedient to amend an Act, 4 & 5 Will. 4. c. 76, intituled 'An Act for the Amendment and better Administration of the Laws relating to the Poor in England and Wales,' and certain other Acts relating to the relief of the poor in England:—

It is Enacted,

I. That from and after the passing of this Act all powers for obtaining or making an order upon any putative father for the maintenance of a bastard child shall cease and determine, except as hereinafter provided.

II. That any single woman who may be with child, or who may be delivered of a bastard child, after the passing of this Act, or who has been delivered of a bastard child within the period of six calendar months before the passing of this Act, may either before the birth, or at any time within twelve months from the birth of such child, or at any time thereafter, upon proof that the man alleged to be the father of such child has within the twelve months next after the birth of such child paid money for its maintenance, make application to any one Justice of the Peace acting for the petty sessional division of the county, or for the city, borough, or place in which she may reside, for a summons to be served on the man alleged by her to be the father of such child; and if such application be made before the birth of the child the woman shall make a deposition upon oath stating who is the father of such child, and such Justice of the Peace shall thereupon issue his summons to the person alleged to be father of such child to appear at a petty session to be holden after the expiration of six days at least for the petty sessional division, city, borough, or other place in which such Justice usually acts.

III. That after the birth of such bastard child, on the appearance of the person so summoned, or on proof that the summons was duly served on such person, or left at his last place of abode six days at least before the petty session, the Justices in such petty session shall hear the evidence of such woman, and such other evidence as she may produce, and shall also hear any evidence tendered by or on behalf of the person alleged to be the father; and if the evidence of the mother be corroborated in some material particular by other testimony, to the satisfaction of the said Justices, they may adjudge the man to be the putative father of such bastard child; and they may also, if they see fit, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, proceed to make an order on the putative father for the payment to the mother of the bastard child, or to any person who may be appointed to have the custody of such child under the provisions of this Act, of a sum of money weekly, and of such costs as may have been incurred in the obtaining of such order, including, if they think proper, 10s. for the midwife, and 10s. towards the funeral expenses of the child, provided it have died before the making of such order; and if the application be made before the birth of the child, or within two calendar months after the birth of the child, such weekly sum may, if the said Justices think fit, be calculated from the birth of the child, at a rate not exceeding 5s. per week for the first six weeks after the birth of such child; and in other cases such sum shall not exceed 2s. 6d. per week from the time of the making of the application; and if at any time after the expiration of one calendar month from the making of such order as aforesaid it be made to appear to any one Justice, upon oath or affirmation, that any sum to be paid in pursuance of such order has not been paid, such Justice may, by warrant under his hand and seal, cause such putative father to be brought before any two Justices; and in case such putative father neglect or refuse to make payment of the sums due from him under such order, or since any commitment for disobedience to such order as hereinafter provided, together with the costs attending such warrant, apprehension, and bringing up of such putative father, such two Justices may, by warrant under their hands and seals, direct the sum so appearing to be due, together with such costs, to be recovered by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of such putative father, and may order such putative father to be detained and kept in safe custody until return can be conveniently made to such warrant of distress, unless he give sufficient security, by way of recognizance or otherwise, to the satisfaction of such Justices, for his appearance before two Justices on the day which may be appointed for the return of such warrant of distress, such day not being more than seven days from the time of taking any such security; but if upon the return of such warrant, or if by the admission of such putative father, it appear that no sufficient distress can be had, then any such two Justices may, if they see fit, by warrant under their hands and seals, cause such putative father to be committed to the common gaol or house of correction of the county, city, borough, or place where they have jurisdiction, there to remain without bail or mainprize for any term not exceeding three calendar months, unless such sum and costs, and all reasonable charges attending the said distress, together with the costs and charges attending the commitment and conveying to gaol or to the house of correction, and of the persons employed to convey him thither, be sooner paid and satisfied: Provided always, that if the woman have allowed the weekly payment to be in arrear for more than thirteen successive weeks, without application to a Justice, the man shall not be called upon to pay more than the amount due for thirteen weeks in discharge of the whole debt, and no warrant of distress shall be issued for more than the amount of arrears for thirteen weeks payment in discharge of the whole arrears or debt.

iv. That the Justices in petty session as aforesaid may adjourn the hearing of the case as often as to them may seem fit; but no such order shall be made unless applied for at such petty sessions within the space of forty days from the service of the summons after the birth of the bastard child on the person alleged to be the father of such bastard child; and if within twenty-four hours after the adjudication and making of any order on the putative father as aforesaid such putative father give notice of appeal to the mother of the bastard child, and also within seven days give sufficient security, by recognizance or otherwise, for the payment of costs, to the satisfaction of some one Justice of the Peace, it shall be lawful for such putative father to appeal to the General Quarter Sessions of the Peace to be holden after the period of fourteen days next after the making of the said order for the county, city, borough, or place for which such petty session may have been held; and the Justices in such Quarter Sessions assembled, or the recorder, as the case may be, shall thereupon hear and determine such appeal, and shall order such costs to be paid by either party as to them or him may seem fit.

v. That all money payable under any order as aforesaid shall be due and payable to the mother of the bastard child in respect of such time and so long as she lives and is of sound mind, and is not in any gaol or prison, or under sentence of transportation; and after the death of the mother of such bastard child, or whilst such mother is of unsound mind, or confined in any gaol or prison, or under sentence of transportation, any two Justices may, if they see fit, by order under their hands and seals from time to time appoint some person who, with his own consent, shall have the custody of such bastard child, so long as such bastard child is not chargeable to any parish or union, and any two such Justices may revoke the appointment of such person, and may appoint another person in his stead; and every person so appointed to have the custody of a bastard child shall, so long as such child is not chargeable to any parish or union, be empowered to make application for the recovering of all payments becoming due under the order of the court of petty session as aforesaid, in the same manner as the mother of such bastard child might have done; and the clerk to the Justices making any order on the putative father of a bastard child, or appointing any person to have the custody of such child, as hereinbefore provided, shall as soon as may be send by post or otherwise a duplicate of such order or appointment, signed by such clerk, to the clerk to the guardians of the union or parish in which the mother of such bastard child resided at the time of making such order or appointment: Provided always, that no order for the maintenance or support of any such bastard child made in pursuance of this Act shall, except for the purpose of recovering money previously due under such order, be of any force or validity after the child in respect of whom it was made has attained the age of thirteen years, or after the marriage of the mother of such child, or after the death of such child.

vi. And it is declared and enacted, That every woman neglecting to maintain her bastard child, being able wholly or in part so to do, whereby such child becomes chargeable to any parish or union, shall be punishable as an idle and disorderly person, under the provisions of an Act, 5 Geo. 4. c. 83, intituled 'An Act for the Punishment of idle and disorderly Persons, and Rogues and Vagabonds, in that Part of the United Kingdom called England;' and every woman so neglecting to maintain her bastard child, after having been once before convicted of such offence, and every woman deserting her bastard child, whereby such bastard child becomes chargeable to any parish or union, shall be punishable as a rogue and vagabond, under the provisions of the said last-recited Act.

vii. That it shall not be lawful for any Justice of the Peace to appoint any officer of any parish or union to have the custody of any bastard child as hereinbefore provided, or for any officer of any parish or union, clerk of Justices, or constable, to receive any money in respect of any bastard child under an order of petty session as aforesaid, or as such officer to conduct any application to make or enforce such order, or in any way to interfere as such officer in causing such application to be made, or in procuring evidence in support of such application, under a penalty of 40s., to be levied on conviction before any two Justices as penalties and forfeitures under the said first-recited Act: Provided always, that after the death of such mother, or if such mother be incapacitated as aforesaid, so often as any bastard child for whose maintenance such order of petty sessions has been made, becomes chargeable to any parish or union by the neglect of the putative father to make the payments due under the orders of Justices, then and in such case it shall be lawful for any board of guardians of an union or parish, or if there be no such board of guardians for the overseers of any parish or place, to make such application for the enforcement of the order as might have been made by the mother of such bastard child if alive; but all payments for the maintenance of such child made in pursuance of such application shall be made to some person to be from time to time appointed by the Justices as hereinbefore provided, and on condition that such bastard child shall cease to be chargeable to such parish or union.

viii. That if any officer of a union, parish, or place endeavour to induce any person to contract a marriage by threat or promise respecting any application to be made or any order to be enforced with respect to the maintenance of any bastard child, such officer shall be guilty of a misdemeanour; and every person having the custody of any bastard child under any order of Justices, as hereinbefore provided, who may misapply monies paid by the putative father for the support of such child, or may withhold proper nourishment from such child, or otherwise abuse and maltreat such child, shall, on conviction before any two Justices, forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding 10l.

ix. That nothing in this Act contained shall affect the validity of any orders for the maintenance of a bastard child made by Justices in quarter or petty sessions before the passing of this Act; but no such order made before the 14th of August 1834 shall be in force after the 1st of January 1849, and that all proceedings actually pending before Justices in quarter sessions or petty sessions at the time of the passing of this Act may be continued, and orders made therein in the same manner as if this Act had not been passed.

And after reciting that various unions established under the authority of the said recited Act are situate partly in one county, riding, or division, and partly in an adjoining county, riding, or division: and that doubts have been entertained whether any Justice of the Peace acting under two commissions for different counties, ridings, or divisions can legally make orders in bastardy when acting in petty sessions within the limits of one of such commissions, for such parts of such unions as are situate within the limits of the other of such commissions: and that it is expedient to remove all such doubts with regard to orders which have before the passing of this Act been made under such circumstances:—

It is Enacted,

x. That all orders in bastardy which have been made by any Justices of the Peace acting as such under two commissions for any two adjoining counties, ridings, or divisions, shall, although not made within the county, riding, or division in which the parish interested in the order, or any part thereof, is situate, be as valid, good, and effectual in the law, to all intents and purposes, as if they had been made within such county, riding, or division.

xi. That every clerk to the Justices shall once in each year, (that is to say,) as soon as may be after the 1st of January, make up, in the form in the Schedule (A.) annexed to this Act, and forward to the clerk of the peace, a complete list of summons issued, applications heard, and orders made as aforesaid since the 1st of January of the year preceding, by the Justices to whom he acts as clerk; and every clerk of the peace shall receive such lists, and shall, on demand of the clerk to the Justices, acknowledge under his hand the receipt of any such list, and shall preserve the said lists, and shall, as soon as may be after the receipt of such lists, transmit copies thereof, duly certified, to Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Home Department, and shall also transmit a list of all the cases in which appeals have been made to the Court of Quarter Sessions during the same period, with the result of every such appeal; and it shall be lawful for the Justices of the Peace, at their respective General Quarter Sessions of the Peace, to make and settle a fee or fees to be paid to every such clerk to the Justices for every such list; and on production by any such clerk to the Justices of the acknowledgment by the clerk of the peace of the receipt of such list the treasurer of the county shall pay the fee so made and settled, and due in respect of any such list, out of the county stock in the hands of such treasurer.

xii. That the Poor Law Commissioners may, by order under their hands and seal, prescribe the duties of the masters to whom poor children may be apprenticed, and the terms and conditions to be inserted in the indentures by which such children may be so bound as apprentices; and every master of such apprentice who wilfully refuses or neglects to perform any of such terms or conditions so inserted in any such indenture shall be liable, upon conviction thereof before any two Justices, to forfeit any sum not exceeding 20*l.*; and that after the 1st of October next no poor child shall be bound apprentice by the overseers of any parish included in any such union or subject to a board of guardians under the provisions of the first-recited Act, but it shall be lawful for the guardians of such union or parish respectively to bind any such poor child to be an apprentice, and in such case the indentures of apprenticeship shall be executed by the said guardians, and shall not need to be allowed, assented to, or executed by any Justice or Justices of the Peace, and the guardians shall have all the powers for binding or assigning any such apprentice which are now possessed by overseers, and shall cause all apprentices so bound or assigned by them to be registered by their clerk according to the form prescribed by 42 Geo. 3. relating to the registration of parish apprentices, so far as the same may be applicable to such binding or assignment: Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall directly or indirectly interfere with the provisions of any Act of Parliament relating to apprentices to be bound to the sea service.

xiii. That after the passing of this Act so much of 43 Eliz. c. 2 intituled, 'An Act for the Relief of the Poor,' and so much of 8 & 9 Will. 3. c. 3, intituled 'An Act for supplying some Defects in the Laws for the Relief of the Poor of this Kingdom,' or of any other Act of Parliament, whether general or local, as compels any person to receive any poor child as an apprentice, shall be and is hereby repealed.

And after reciting that by the said first-recited Act it is provided, that in every case of an election of guardians under the said Act, or whenever the consent of owners of property or rate-payers in any parish or union may be required for any of the purposes of the said Act, the owner, as well as the rate-payer, in respect of any property in such parish or union, shall be entitled to vote, and the owner shall have the same number and proportion of votes respectively as is provided for inhabitants and other persons in and by 58 Geo. 3. c. 69, intituled 'An Act for the Regulation of Parish Vestries,' and in and by an Act to amend the same, 59 Geo. 3; and the rate-payers under 200*l.* shall each have a single vote; and the rate-payers rated at 200*l.* or more, but under 400*l.*, shall each have two votes; and the rate-payers rated at 400*l.* or more shall each have three votes: and that it is expedient that the number and proportion of votes of owners of property and of rate-payers respectively should be assimilated:—

It is Enacted,

xiv. That so much of the said Act as is above recited relating to the number and proportion of votes of owners of property and of rate-payers respectively shall be and the same is hereby repealed; and that in all cases in which by the said Act, or by any Act amending or extending the same, owners of property and rate-payers are entitled to vote, every owner of property and rate-payer shall have respectively the same number and proportion of votes, according to the scale following: (that is to say,) if the property in respect of which he is entitled to vote be rated upon a rateable value of less than 50*l.* he shall have one vote; if such rateable value amount to 50*l.* and be less than 100*l.*, he shall have two votes; if it amount to 100*l.* and be less than 150*l.*, he shall have three votes; if it amount to 150*l.* and be less than 200*l.*, he shall have four votes; if it amount to 200*l.* and be less than 250*l.*, he shall have five votes; and if it amount to or exceed 250*l.*, he shall have six votes.

xv. That no owner of property shall be entitled to vote as such, under the provisions of the said recited Act, either in person or proxy, during the year following the 25th of March in any year, unless before the 1st of February next preceding such 25th of March he had given to the overseers the statement required by the said Act, signed by him, nor unless such statement contain a description of the nature of the interest or estate he may have in such property, and a statement of the amount of all rent service (if any) which he may receive or pay in respect thereof, and of the persons from whom he may receive or to whom he may pay such rent service; and no person shall be entitled to vote as proxy until fourteen days after he have made his claim so to vote in the manner required by the said Act; and no person shall be entitled to vote as proxy for more than four owners of property in any one parish (except he be a steward, bailiff, or land agent, or collector of rents for the owners of property for whom he may be appointed to vote); and no appointment of proxy shall remain in force for a longer period than two years from the making thereof, excepting only in the case in which an owner appoints his tenant, bailiff, steward, land agent, or collector of rents to be his proxy, in which case such appointment shall remain in force so long as the proxy may continue to be such tenant, bailiff, steward, land agent, or collector, and while such appointment remains unrevoked; and the overseers of every parish containing a population exceeding 2000 persons, according to the last enumeration of the population published by the authority of Parliament, shall, on or before the 5th of the month of February in every year, enter in the book to be from time to time provided for the purpose the names and addresses of all persons who before the 1st of the said month of February have given such statement or made such claims as owners or proxies as aforesaid; and such overseers shall allow any person to peruse such book without payment of any fee, at all reasonable hours between the said 5th and the 10th of February; and any person who has given such statement or made such claim, or any rate-payer of such parish, may, on or before the 15th of the said month of February, object to any other person as not being entitled to vote as such owner, by delivering to the clerk of the board of guardians of the said parish, or of the union in which it may be comprised, and at the address of the person objected to, notice in writing of the grounds of such objection; and on or before the 20th of such month of February such clerk shall send to the overseers of such parish notice of some day, between the 24th of the said month and the 1st of March then next, on which he or some person duly appointed for the purpose will hear evidence in relation to such objections, and of the place within the parish or union at which he or such other person will attend to hear such evidence; and such overseers shall forthwith cause a copy of such notice to be fixed on or near the doors of all churches or chapels within such parish, and at all the usual places of affixing notices of parochial business; and such clerk shall attend on the day and at the place so appointed, and shall, in the presence of all persons who may think fit to be present, hear any matter adduced in support of such grounds of objection, or in opposition thereto, but none other; and the overseers of the said parish shall then and there attend, and produce to such clerk the rate books of the parish for the whole year preceding, and shall answer all such questions as such clerk may put to them or any of them touching the matter of any such objection; and such clerk shall retain in the said book the name of all persons to whom no objection has been duly made, and of all persons objected to, unless the party objecting have appeared in support of his objection, and established such objection, and when the name of any person has been duly objected to, such clerk shall require proof of the right of such person to vote as owner; and in case any matter be adduced in support of the objection, and the right of the person objected to be not proved to the satisfaction of such clerk, he shall expunge the name of such person from such book; and such clerk shall have power to adjourn from time to time, and administer an oath to the overseers of any parish, and to all persons attending before him claiming a right to vote as owners or objecting to such right, and to all witnesses who may be tendered or examined on either side; and such clerk shall write his initials against every name struck out, and sign his name to every page of the said book; and the persons whose names as owners are retained by such clerk in such book shall be the only persons entitled to vote in such parish as owners of property for the year following the 25th of March next ensuing: Provided always, that the said Commissioners may, if they see fit, by order under their hands and seal, direct the guardians of such parish or union to appoint some person, other than the clerk to such guardians, as a paid officer, to hear and decide the matter of such objections as aforesaid, who shall have all such powers as are hereinbefore given to the clerk, and perform all such duties as are hereinbefore imposed on the clerk in that behalf: Provided also, that nothing herein contained shall affect any election in which proceedings have been commenced before the passing of this Act.

And after reciting that by the said first-recited Act it is provided that no person shall be deemed a rate-payer, or be entitled to vote, or do any other act, matter, or thing as such, under the provisions of that Act, unless he shall have been rated to the relief of the poor for the whole year immediately preceding his so voting or otherwise acting as such rate-payer, and shall have paid the parochial rates and assessments made and assessed upon him for the period of one whole year, as well as those due from him at the time of so voting or acting, except such as shall have been made or become due within six months immediately preceding such voting or acting:—

It is Enacted,

xvi. That such parochial rates and assessments shall be deemed to extend only to rates made for the relief of the poor.

And after reciting that in the said first-recited Act it is provided, that guardians of the poor elected under the provisions of that Act shall go out of office, and guardians for the ensuing year shall be chosen within fourteen days next after the 25th of March in every year: And that such period hath been found to be too short, and it is expedient to extend the same:—

It is Enacted,

xvii. That the period within which the annual election of guardians shall take place shall be extended to the period of forty days next after the said 25th of March, and that the guardians of the preceding year shall continue in office for the said period of forty days, or until the election of guardians for the succeeding year have taken place.

xviii. That it shall be lawful for the said Commissioners, having due regard to the relative population or circumstances of any parish included in a union, to alter the number of guardians to be elected for such parish, without such consent as is required by the said first-recited Act.

xix. That in every case in which a parish in which guardians are to be elected under the provisions of the said first-recited Act contains more than twenty thousand persons, according to the enumeration of the population then last published by authority of Parliament, it shall be lawful for the said Commissioners, by order under their hands and seal, for the purpose of conducting the election of guardians, to divide such parish into such and so many wards as they may deem expedient, so that no such ward shall contain a number of rated houses less than four hundred, and to determine the number of guardians to be elected for every such ward, having due regard to the value of the rateable property therein; and each such ward shall, for the purpose of every election of guardians, so far as the said Commissioners may direct, be considered as a separate parish.

XX. That in every case in which a parish is divided into wards for the purpose of electing guardians every person qualified to be elected as a guardian in the parish shall be qualified to be elected in any ward within the same parish; but no person shall at any election of guardians be elected for more than one ward within the same parish; and if at any such election a person be nominated in two or more wards, the returning officer at such election shall, if such person reside within the parish, give such person notice thereof in writing, to be left at his place of residence on the day following the last day fixed for the nomination of candidates, and such person, whether he reside in the parish or not, may at any time, until two days preceding the issuing of the voting papers, elect by notice in writing delivered to the returning officer any one ward for which he will stand an election; and if he do not so elect some one ward the returning officer shall place his name on the list of candidates for that ward only for which he was first duly nominated.

XXI. That no person entitled to vote shall give in the whole of the wards into which a parish may be divided a greater number of votes than he would be entitled to have given if the parish had not been divided into wards, nor in any one ward a greater number of votes than he is entitled to in respect of property in that ward; but, subject to the foregoing limitations, any ratepayer, owner of property, or proxy entitled to vote may, by notice in writing delivered to the overseers of the parish before the day appointed for the annual nomination of candidates, elect in what ward or wards he will vote for the ensuing year, and determine the proportion of votes which he will give in any one or more of such wards; and if he do not give such notice he shall not be entitled to vote for any ward in which he does not reside.

XXII. That after the passing of this Act it shall not be lawful to appoint separate overseers for any township or village or other place for which before the passing of this Act separate overseers had not been lawfully appointed.

XXIII. Declared and enacted, That in all cases in which overseers have for the first time been separately appointed for any township or village since the 14th of August 1834 all orders of the Poor Law Commissioners, determining the number of guardians, or ascertaining the averages of any such township or village, or of any portion of the parish from which such township or village had been separated, shall be and be deemed to be good and valid in law, notwithstanding such separate appointment of overseers.

XXIV. That when any union has been formed under the provisions of the said first-recited Act, or where the said Commissioners have under the provisions of the said Act directed that the laws for the relief of the poor of any single parish shall be administered by a board of guardians, every Justice of the Peace acting for the county, riding, or division in which such union or parish, or any part thereof, is situated, and residing in any extra-parochial place the boundary line of which, or the greater part of the boundary line of which, is included within or coincident with the boundary line of such union or parish, shall be ex officio a guardian of such union or parish; and every Justice of the Peace residing in any parish within such a union, and acting for any county, riding, or division in which any part of such union is situated shall be ex officio a guardian of such union.

XXV. That so long as it may appear that the husband of any woman is beyond the seas, or in custody of the law, or in confinement in a licensed house or asylum as a lunatic or idiot, all relief given to such woman, or to her child or children, shall, notwithstanding her coverture, be given to such woman in the same manner and subject to the same conditions as if she was a widow; but nothing herein contained shall diminish or affect the obligations or liabilities of such husband in respect of such relief.

XXVI. That in the case of any person being a widow having a legitimate child dependent on her for support, and no illegitimate child born after the commencement of her widowhood, and who at the time of her husband's death was resident with him in some place other than the parish of her legal settlement, and not situated in any union in which such parish is comprised, it shall be lawful for the guardians of such parish or union, if they see fit, to grant relief to such widow, although not residing in such parish or union: Provided always, that, notwithstanding anything herein contained, the guardians of any union or parish, and the overseers of any parish, in which such widow may be resident or may require relief, shall be and remain liable to relieve such widow in the same manner as any other person requiring relief in such union or parish.

XXVII. That if it be made to appear to any two Justices that any insane person, lunatic, or idiot chargeable to any parish hath an estate more than sufficient to maintain his family, they shall by order under their hands and seals direct the overseers of the parish to which such person is chargeable to seize so much of any money, to seize and sell so much of any goods and chattels, or to receive so much of the rent of the lands or tenements of such person who is proved to such Justices to be necessary to pay any charges incurred in providing for the removal, maintenance, clothing, medicine, and care of such person; and if any trustee or other person having the possession, custody, or charge of any property of an insane person, lunatic, or idiot, or if the Governor and Company of the Bank of England, or any other person or persons, having in his or their hands any stock, interest, dividend, or annuity due to any such insane person, lunatic, or idiot, pay any money to any overseer or to any guardians of the poor to defray the charges incurred by any parish in the removal, maintenance, clothing, medicine, or care of such insane person, lunatic, or idiot, the receipt of such overseer or of the clerk of such guardians shall be a good discharge to such trustee or other person aforesaid.

XXVIII. That the guardians of every parish or union appointed under any local Act, and their officers appointed to act in the relief of the poor, and their clerks, shall, from and after the passing of this Act, have the like powers and shall be liable to perform the same duties with respect to insane persons as are provided in the case of guardians appointed under the provisions of the said first-recited Act, their relieving officers and their clerks respectively.

XXIX. That the guardians of any parish or union constituted by the said Commissioners shall apply all money raised or borrowed for the purpose of defraying the expenses of emigration in such parish or in any parish within such union, subject to the conditions and restrictions imposed by the said first-recited Act.

XXX. That in addition to the principal sum or sums of money which guardians are empowered by the said first-recited Act to raise or borrow for the purpose of purchasing, hiring, building, enlarging, or altering workhouses, or buildings to be converted into workhouses, the guardians of any parish or union any part of which is situated within the metropolitan police district, or the city of London, or the select vestry of the parish of Liverpool, may, with the consent of the Poor Law Commissioners, also raise or borrow and charge the future poor rates of such parish or union with such further or other sum or sums of money as may be or may have been necessary for the purchase of any land, or interest in land, required as the site of such workhouse, or of any additions to any such workhouse.

XXXI. And it is declared and enacted, That it shall be lawful for guardians, or where there are no guardians for the overseers, to bury the body of any poor person which may be within their parish or union respectively, and to charge the expense thereof to any parish under their controul to which such person may have been chargeable, or in which he may have died, or otherwise in which such body may be; and unless the guardians, in compliance with the desire expressed by such person in his lifetime, or by any of his relations, or for any other cause, direct the body of such poor person to be buried in the churchyard or burial ground of the parish to which such person has been chargeable (which they are hereby authorized to do), every dead body which the guardians or any of their officers duly authorized shall direct to be buried at the expense of the poor rates shall (unless the deceased person, or the husband or wife or next of kin of such deceased person, have otherwise desired,) be buried in the churchyard or other consecrated burial ground in or belonging to the parish, division of parish, chapelry, or place in which the death may have occurred; and in all cases of burial under the direction of the guardians or overseers as aforesaid the fee or fees payable by the custom of the place in which the burial may take place, or under the provisions of any Act of Parliament, shall be paid out of the poor rates, for the burial of each such body, to the person or persons who by such custom or under such Act may be entitled to receive any fee: Provided always, that it shall not be lawful for any officer connected with the relief of the poor to receive any money for the burial of the body of any poor person which may be within the parish, division of parish, chapelry, or place in which the death may have occurred, or to act as undertaker for personal gain or reward in the burial of any such body, or to receive any money from any dissecting school or school of anatomy, or hospital, or from any person or persons to whom any such body may be delivered, or to derive any personal emolument whatever for or in respect of the burial or disposal of any such body; and any such officer offending as aforesaid shall, on conviction thereof before any two Justices, forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding 5*l*.

XXXII. That it shall be lawful for the said Commissioners from time to time, by order under their hands and seal, to combine the parishes and unions in England and Wales into districts for the audit of accounts, and from time to time to add any parish or union to any such district, or separate any parish or union therefrom; and the chairman and vice chairman of each board of guardians constituted under the said first-recited Act or any other Act, or if there be no chairman or vice chairman of any guardians constituted under any other Act, then some two of their number to be selected by such last-mentioned guardians, or if there be no such body then some two of the overseers to be selected by the overseers respectively acting within the district, shall elect, at the time and in the manner to be prescribed by the said Commissioners, a person to be the auditor of the district; but in any case in which there are two vice chairmen appointed in any board of guardians such board of guardians shall select one of the vice chairmen, who shall vote in the election of such auditor; and the said Commissioners shall have all the powers with regard to the salaries of the said auditors to be charged on the poor rates, and to all other matters relating to auditors for such districts, as they have under the said first recited Act with regard to paid officers; and every auditor appointed for such a district shall have full powers to examine, audit, allow, or disallow of accounts, and of items therein, relating to monies assessed for and applicable to the relief of the poor of all parishes and unions within his district, and to all other money applicable to such relief; and such auditor shall charge in every account audited by him the amount of any deficiency or loss incurred by the negligence or misconduct of any person accounting, or of any sum for which any such person is accountable, but not brought by him into account against such person, and shall certify on the face of every account audited by him any money, books, deeds, papers, goods or chattels, found by him to be due from any person; and when any such auditor has so certified any money, books, deeds, papers, goods or chattels, to be due from any person, he shall forthwith report the same to the said Commissioners; and the person from whom any money is so certified to be due shall within seven days pay or cause to be paid such money to the treasurer of the guardians of the union or parish, if there be any such treasurer; and in the case of a union such money shall be applied by the guardians to the use of all or any of the parishes included in such union, according as all or any of such parishes may be interested in the sum so paid; and all books, deeds, papers, goods and chattels, and in the case where there is no treasurer as aforesaid all monies so certified to be due, shall be delivered over or paid, within seven days of the same being certified, to the person or persons authorized to receive the same; and if any such money, books, deeds, papers, goods or chattels, be not duly paid or delivered over as hereinbefore directed, the said auditor, or any auditor subsequently appointed, shall proceed, as soon as may be, to enforce the payment or delivering over of the same; and all monies so certified to be due by such auditor shall be recoverable as so certified from all or any of the persons making or authorizing the illegal payment, or otherwise answerable for such monies, and shall be recovered on the application of such auditor, or of any such auditor subsequently appointed, or by any person for the time being entitled or authorized to receive the same, in the same manner as penalties and forfeitures may be recovered under the provisions of the said first-recited Act; and the expenses attending such proceeding or recovery shall (except so far as the same may be paid by the person against whom the proceedings have been taken) be repaid to such auditor by the guardians of the parish or union, or by the district board of the district to which the proceedings may respectively relate, and shall be charged in their accounts in such manner and in such proportions as the said Commissioners may direct; and if any person from whom any such books, deeds, papers, goods or chattels, may be due, neglect or refuse to deliver over the same to the person for the time being entitled or authorized to receive the same, the person so neglecting or refusing shall be liable, on the complaint of any such auditor for the time being, or of the person entitled or authorized to receive the same, to the penalties and proceedings provided in the case of overseers refusing or neglecting to pay and deliver over to their successors any sum or sums of money, goods, chattels, and other things, in their hands; and any churchwarden, surveyor of the highways, overseer or other officer of a parish or union, who shall wilfully authorize or make an illegal or fraudulent payment from the church rate, highway rate, or other public fund of a parish or union, or shall unlawfully make any entry in his accounts for the purpose of defraying or making up to himself or any other person the whole or any part of any sum of money unlawfully expended from the poor rate, or disallowed or surcharged in the accounts of any parish or union by such auditor, shall, upon conviction thereof before any two Justices, forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding 20*l.*, and also treble the amount of such payment or of the sum so entered in his accounts.

XXXIII. That seven clear days at least before the day fixed for the audit of accounts the overseers or other officers employed in any parish in carrying the laws for the relief of the poor into execution, and every collector or assistant overseer acting for such parish, shall cause their rate books and other accounts to be made up and balanced; and the books so made up shall forthwith be deposited at the house within the parish of some one of such overseers or other officers, or of such collector or assistant overseer, or at some other house within the parish; and notice shall forthwith be affixed at the usual place or places of giving parish notices, stating the time and place of audit, as notified by the auditor, and the place where the books are deposited; and such books shall on each of such days be open between the hours of eleven and three, for the inspection of every person liable to be rated to the relief of the poor; and such auditor shall give or send by post or otherwise to the said overseers or other officers fourteen days notice of the said audit; but it shall not be necessary for the auditor to give or send separate notices to each of such overseers or other officers, and it shall be sufficient if it be proved that any one of them had notice; and if any such overseer or other officer, collector, or assistant overseer neglect to make up such account, or alter such account, or allow it to be altered when so made up, or refuse to allow such inspection thereof, he shall be liable on conviction thereof, to forfeit 40*s.*; and if any such overseer or other officer, collector or assistant overseer, refuse or wilfully neglect to affix such notice of audit, and of the time and place for the inspection of such accounts, as above provided, he shall be liable, on conviction thereof, to forfeit 40*s.*; and it shall be lawful for every rate-payer in any parish or union to be present at the audit of the accounts relating to such parish or union, and to make any objection to any such accounts before such auditor; and it shall be lawful for any such auditor to require any person holding or accountable for any money, books, deeds, papers, goods or chattels, relating to the poor's rate or the relief of the poor, to produce to such auditor his accounts and vouchers, and to make or sign a declaration with respect to such accounts; and so often as such person neglects or refuses to attend, either at the audit or any adjournment thereof, when so required by such auditor, or to produce to him such accounts or vouchers, or any of them, or to make or sign a declaration with respect to his accounts, if thereunto required by such auditor, he shall be liable for every such refusal or neglect to forfeit 40*s.*, to be recovered as penalties and forfeitures under the said first-recited Act, or if he wilfully make or sign a false declaration in respect of such accounts he shall be liable to the penalties of perjury.

XXXIV. That in every case in which before the passing of this Act any balance has been struck by any auditor in the account of any officer of any parish or union, and such balance has not been paid nor any proceedings commenced before the passing of this Act for the recovery thereof, it shall be lawful, on the application of the officers of any parish or of any board of guardians of any union, and in all other cases of disputed accounts relating to the expenditure and management of the fund for the relief of the poor previous to the passing of this Act upon the application of the board of guardians to the said Commissioners, and with the consent of the said Commissioners, for the auditor to discharge the officers for the time being from the payment of such balance; and all balances struck against any person, and not so discharged, shall be recoverable, after the passing of this Act, as if the same had been struck and the amount thereof certified by an auditor appointed in pursuance of the provisions of this Act.

XXXV. That if any person aggrieved by any allowance, disallowance, or surcharge by any such auditor require such auditor to state the reasons for the said allowance, disallowance, or surcharge, the auditor shall state such reasons in writing in the book of account in which the allowance, disallowance, or surcharge may be made; and it shall be lawful for every person aggrieved by such allowance, and for every person aggrieved by such disallowance or surcharge, if such last-mentioned person have first paid or delivered over to any person authorized to receive the same all such money, goods, and chattels as are admitted by his account to be due from him or remaining in his hands, to apply to the Court of Queen's Bench for a writ of certiorari to remove into the said court the said allowance, disallowance, or surcharge, in the like manner and subject to the like conditions as are provided in respect of persons suing forth writs of certiorari for the removal of orders of Justices of the Peace, except that the condition of such recognizance shall be, to prosecute such certiorari, at the costs and charges of such person, without any wilful or affected delay, and if such allowance, disallowance, or surcharge be confirmed, to pay to such auditor or his successor, within one month after the same may be confirmed, his full costs and charges, to be taxed according to the course of the said court, and except that the notice of the intended application, which shall contain a statement of the matter complained of, shall be given to such auditor or his successor, who shall in return to such writ return a copy under his hand of the entry or entries in such book of account to which such notice shall refer, and shall appear before the said court, and defend the allowance, disallowance, or surcharge so impeached in the said court, and shall be reimbursed all such costs and charges as he may incur in such defence out of the poor rates of the union or parish respectively interested in the decision of the question, unless the said Court make any order to the contrary; and that on the removal of such allowance, disallowance, or surcharge the said Court shall decide the particular matter of complaint set forth in such statement, and no other; and if it appear to such Court that the decision of the said auditor was erroneous, they shall, by rule of the court, order such sum of money as may have been improperly allowed, disallowed, or surcharged to be paid to the party entitled thereto by the party who ought to repay or discharge the same; and they may also, if they see fit, by rule of the court, order the costs of the person prosecuting such certiorari to be paid by the parish or union to which such accounts relate, as to such Court may seem fit; which rules of court respectively shall be enforced in like manner as other rules of the said court are enforceable.

XXXVI. Provided and enacted, That it shall be lawful for any person aggrieved as aforesaid by any allowance, disallowance, or surcharge, in lieu of making application to the Court of Queen's Bench for a writ of certiorari, to apply to the said Commissioners to inquire into and to decide upon the lawfulness of the reasons stated by the auditor for such allowance, disallowance, or surcharge, and it shall thereupon be lawful for the said Commissioners to issue such order therein, under their hands and seal, as they may deem requisite for determining the question.

XXXVII. That in every district for which an auditor may be appointed under the provisions of this Act the powers of Justices of the Peace and of all other persons to examine, audit, allow, or disallow accounts shall, so far as relates to any accounts which such auditor is authorized to examine and audit, cease, and the same are hereby repealed: Provided always, that where any union or unions and parishes have been already combined by the said Commissioners under the provisions of the said first-recited Act for the appointment of an auditor, and such an auditor has been appointed, or where any person has been appointed auditor for more than one union, it shall be lawful for the said Commissioners to continue such auditor in office, and such district shall be deemed to have been formed, and such unions to have been formed into a district, and such auditor to have been appointed respectively under this Act: Provided also, that if the said Commissioners subsequently add any parish or union to any district now formed or to be formed after the passing of this Act, or which is to be deemed to be formed under this Act, or separate any parish or union therefrom, such addition or separation shall not vacate the appointment of any auditor appointed previously to such addition or separation, but it shall be lawful for the Commissioners to continue such auditor in office for such increased or diminished district without any re-election of such auditor.

XXXVIII. That so much of the said first-recited Act as provides that accounts shall be made and rendered not less frequently than once in every quarter shall be and is hereby repealed; and such accounts shall be made and rendered at such times and as often as the said Commissioners may direct, but not less often than once in every half year.

XXXIX. That on application of any overseer, or of any board of guardians, or of any attorney at law, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the peace of the county or place, or his deputy, if thereunto required, to tax any bill due to any solicitor or attorney in respect of business performed on behalf of any parish or union situate wholly or in part within such county or place; and the allowance of any sum on such taxation shall be prima facie evidence of the reasonableness of the amount, but not of the legality of the charge; and the clerk of the peace shall be allowed for such taxation after the rate to be fixed from time to time by the Master of the Crown Office, and declared by an order of the said Commissioners; and if any such bill be not taxed before it is presented to the auditor, the auditor's decision on the reasonableness as well as the legality of the charges shall be final.

XL. That it shall be lawful for the said Commissioners, as and when they may see fit, by order under their hands and seal to combine unions, or parishes not in union, or such parishes and unions, into school districts, for the management of any class or classes of infant poor not above the age of sixteen years, being chargeable to any such parish or union, who are orphans, or are deserted by their parents, or whose parents or surviving parent or guardians are consenting to the placing of such children in the school of such district; but the said Commissioners shall not include in any such district any parish any part of which would be more than fifteen miles from any other part of such district: Provided always, that when the relief of the poor has been hitherto administered in any parish or united parishes by guardians appointed under a local Act, and not by overseers of the poor, if such parish or united parishes, according to the last enumeration of the population published by authority of Parliament, contain more than 20,000 persons, it shall not be lawful for the said Commissioners, without the consent in writing of the majority of such guardians, to include such parish or united parishes in a school district.

And after reciting that it is expedient that more effectual means should be provided for the temporary relief of poor persons found destitute and without lodging within the district of the metropolitan police, or the city of London, and the city, towns, and boroughs named in the schedule annexed to this Act, and for avoiding the introduction of infectious disease, by the reception of such poor persons into the workhouses established for the ordinary relief of the poor within such districts and places:—

It is Enacted,

XLI. That it shall be lawful for the said Commissioners, as and when they may see fit, by order under their hands and seal to declare so many parishes or unions, or parishes and unions, any part of which may be within the district of the metropolitan police, or the city of London, or within the limits respectively of the city, towns, or boroughs named in the schedule marked (B.) annexed to this Act, as such limits are described in an Act, 3 Will. 4, 'to settle and describe the division of counties, and the limits of cities and boroughs, in England and Wales, so far as respects the election of members to serve in Parliament,' to be combined into districts for the purpose of providing and managing asylums for the temporary relief and setting to work therein of destitute houseless poor who are not charged with any offence, and who may apply for relief, or become chargeable to the poor rates within any such parish or union.

XLII. That a board shall be constituted for every district formed under this Act for the maintenance of a school or of an asylum; and every district board so constituted shall respectively consist of members to be elected from amongst the persons rated within the district to the relief of the poor; and the said Commissioners shall fix the qualification of such members, such qualification to consist in being rated within the district to the relief of the poor, but not so as to require a qualification exceeding the net annual value of 40*l*.; and such members shall be elected at such periods, not exceeding three years, and in such proportions and in such manner, as the said Commissioners may from time to time direct, by the guardians of every parish or union governed by a board of guardians under the provisions of the said first-recited Act or of any local Act, and if there be no such guardians then by the overseers of a parish not governed by such guardians; and the chairman of every board of guardians constituted under the provisions of the said first-recited Act shall, if he consent thereto, be ex officio a member of any district board constituted under the provisions of this Act.

XLIII. That every such district board shall have such of the powers of guardians for the relief and management of the poor within any school or asylum, and for the appointment, payment, and controul, of paid officers, as the said Commissioners may direct; and the legal and reasonable orders of such district board shall be obeyed and obedience thereto enforced in the same manner and by the same remedies and penalties as the legal and reasonable orders of guardians; and it shall be lawful for the said Commissioners, with the consent in writing of a majority of any district board, to direct such district board to purchase or hire or build, and to fit up and furnish, a building or buildings, of such size and description, and according to such plan, and in such manner as the said Commissioners may deem most proper, for the purpose of being used or rendered suitable for the relief and management of the poor to be received into such school or asylum; and the said Commissioners may, with the like consent, alter the district for which such district board was originally constituted, by adding thereto or taking therefrom any parish or parishes, union or unions, as aforesaid; and the said Commissioners shall have the same powers for regulating the proceedings of any district board or of any committee thereof, and for directing and regulating the appointment, duties, remuneration, and removal of paid officers to be appointed by any district board, as they have with respect to the proceedings of boards of guardians, or with respect to paid officers to be appointed by any board of guardians; and every such board for a school district shall appoint, with the consent of the bishop of the diocese, at least one Chaplain of the Established Church as one of the paid officers aforesaid, who shall be empowered to superintend the religious instruction of all the infant poor being under the controul of such district board; and it shall be lawful for the said Commissioners to issue rules and regulations for the government of any such school or asylum, and the inmates thereof, as if such school or asylum were a workhouse; and any orders or regulations of the said Commissioners made in pursuance of this Act shall be enforced in the same manner and by the same penalties as if the same were an order or regulation made in pursuance of the said first-recited Act: Provided always, that no rules, orders, or regulations of the said Commissioners, nor any regulations made by such district board, shall oblige any inmate of any such school or asylum to attend any religious service which may be celebrated in a mode contrary to the religious principles of such inmate, nor shall authorize the education of any child in any religious creed other than that professed by the parents or surviving parent of such child, and to which such parents or surviving parent may object, or, in the case of an orphan or deserted child, to which his next of kin may object: Provided also, that it shall be lawful at all reasonable times of the day, according to rules and regulations to be made for this purpose by the said board, for any minister of the religious persuasion professed by an adult inmate, or of the religious persuasion in which any child has been brought up, or in which the parents, or surviving parent, or next of kin, as the case may be, may desire such child to be instructed, to visit the school or asylum, at the request of such adult inmate, for the purpose of affording to him religious assistance, or to visit such child for the purpose of instructing such child in the principles of his religion: Provided also, that it shall be lawful at all times for any inspector of schools appointed by Her Majesty in council to visit such schools, and to examine into the proficiency of the scholars therein.

XLIV. That for the purpose of providing a building for such school or asylum it shall be lawful for such district board, subject to the order of the said Commissioners, to exercise the powers given to boards of guardians by the said first-recited Act or any other Act or Acts for the purchase and hire of lands and buildings, and to borrow, in like manner, as is provided in the said first-recited Act or in any other Act or Acts, such sum or sums of money as may be necessary for the purpose of purchasing any site, or purchasing, hiring, or building, and of fitting up and furnishing such building or buildings as aforesaid, and to charge the future poor rates of the parishes or unions, or parishes and unions, so combined as aforesaid, with the payment of such sum or sums of money, and interest thereon: Provided always, that the consent of any rate-payers or owners of property of any parish shall not be necessary to any sale, exchange, lease, or other disposal by guardians or overseers to or with any such district board of any workhouse, tenement, building, or land: Provided also, that the principal sum or sums to be raised for the purpose of providing any such building or buildings as aforesaid, and charged on any union, or on any parish not included in a union, shall in no case exceed one-fifth of the average annual amount of the aggregate expenditure relating to the relief of the poor within any such union, or of the like expenditure within any such parish, for three years ending the 25th of March next preceding the raising of such money; provided also, that the principal sum or sums required for the purpose of providing any such building or buildings shall, if the same be borrowed, be repaid, with all interest thereon, within a period not exceeding twenty years.

XLV. That every such district board shall be enabled to accept, take, and hold, on behalf of the district for which they act, any lands, buildings, goods, effects, or other property, as a corporation, and in all cases to sue and be sued as a corporation, by the name of the Board of Management of the District School or Asylum, as the case may be.

XLVI. That every district board for the management of any school or asylum shall from time to time call on the parishes and unions included in such district for such contributions as they may deem requisite for the purposes of this Act; and notice in writing of the amount of such contributions, purporting to be signed by the clerk or other officer of such district board, in any form prescribed by the said Commissioners, shall, fourteen days at least before such contribution becomes due, be forwarded, by post or otherwise, to the clerk to the board of guardians of any union, and to two at least of the overseers or other officers authorized to make and levy rates for the relief of the poor in every parish from whom such contributions or any part thereof will become due; and if such contributions are not duly paid to the treasurer of such district board, such district board shall, in addition to any other remedy which now is or hereafter may be given to any persons against any board of guardians, have the like remedy for recovery of the same from the overseers or other officers authorized to make and levy the rates for relief of the poor of the several parishes, whether comprised in an union or otherwise, and which may form part of the district for which such district board may act, as are given to guardians for the recovery from overseers of the contributions of parishes; and in case of any addition or separation of parishes or unions, the said Commissioners shall ascertain the proportionate value of property and amount of obligations of every parish or union affected by the change, and shall fix the amount to be received or paid, or secured to be paid, by every such parish or union.

XLVII. That the expenses incurred by any district board in the purchase or hire of any building or buildings to be used as a school, or in erecting, repairing, adding to, or fitting up any building, and in the purchase of utensils and materials for the employment of the inmates of such school, or of books and other objects and things necessary for the instruction of such inmates, and the salaries of the officers and servants of the establishment, and all other expenses incurred on the common account of the parishes or unions, or parishes and unions, so united for the management of any class of infant poor, or incidental to the discharge of the duties of such district board, shall be paid by such unions in the proportion of the averages last declared for every such union, and by such parishes in the proportion of the average expenditure of every such parish for the like period and purposes as those to which the declared averages of such unions shall relate; and the said Commissioners shall from time to time, by order under their hands and seal, ascertain and declare the proportion and rates of contribution in the above respects of every such parish and union; and that all other expenses incurred in the relief of the children under the management of such district board shall be separately charged by such district board to the parish or union from which each such child may be sent.

XLVIII. That the expenses incurred by every such district board in the purchase or hire of any building or buildings, or in erecting, repairing, adding to, or fitting up any building as an asylum, and in the purchase of utensils and materials for the employment of the inmates of such asylum, and other objects and things necessary for the relief of such inmates, and the salaries of the officers and servants of the establishment, and all other expenses incurred by such district board in the relief of the poor, or in the management of such asylum, or incidental to the discharge of the duties of such district board, shall be charged by such district board upon the parishes or unions, or parishes and unions, comprised in such district, in proportion to the annual value of messuages, lands, tenements, and hereditaments upon which such parishes and the parishes combined in such unions are respectively assessed to the county or borough rate, or other rate in the nature of a county or borough rate; and where any parish or place comprised in such district does not contribute in respect of the whole thereof to any county or borough rate, the said expenses shall be paid by such parish or place in proportion to the net annual value of all the property therein assessed to the rates for the relief of the poor; and any information necessary for the distribution of such charge shall be furnished, on demand of such district board or of the said Commissioners, by every parish officer, and by every clerk of the peace, town clerk, or other like officer of any county, city, town, or borough, or other place raising rates in the nature of county or borough rates.

XLIX. That the Poor Law Commissioners shall appoint some person, being at the time the auditor of some parish or union situated within the district for which any district board for any school or asylum may be appointed, who shall be the auditor of such district, and shall be empowered and required to audit the accounts of each district board, and of the officers of such district board; and the salary of every such auditor of a district shall be paid by the district board thereof: and the said Commissioners shall have the same powers for regulating the duties and remuneration of such auditors as they have with respect to paid officers appointed by any board of guardians; and it shall be lawful for the said Commissioners, as they may see fit, to remove any auditor of such district, and in case of vacancy to appoint another person as aforesaid to the office; and every district board constituted under this Act, and every officer of such district board, shall, twice in the year at least, at such time and in such manner and form as may be prescribed by the Poor Law Commissioners, account to the auditor appointed as aforesaid; and such auditor shall have all the powers of allowing and disallowing any charges in such accounts as are or may hereafter be given to auditors under the provisions of the said first-recited Act or any other Act for the audit of accounts relating to rates for the relief of the poor; and all sums disallowed or reduced, or charged as balances against any person by such auditor, shall be recovered, on the application of such auditor (which application he is hereby empowered to make), in the same way as penalties and forfeitures under the said first-recited Act, from the person making or authorizing such illegal payment; and within thirty days of such audit each district board shall cause to be printed, and shall forward by post or otherwise to each board of guardians, and to the officers of every parish within their district, an abstract of the accounts of their district, so audited, in such form as the Poor Law Commissioners may direct.

L. That every guardian of every union or parish included in any such district formed for the maintenance of an asylum shall at all reasonable times be entitled to enter the asylum of such district, and inspect any part thereof, and enter his remarks thereon in a book to be kept for that purpose.

LI. That in any case where a parish or union is not combined in a school district, and where any part of such parish or union is not more than twenty miles from a district school, the board of guardians of such parish or union may, with the consent of the board of such district, send to such district school any infant poor not above the age of sixteen years, being chargeable to any such parish or union, who are orphans, or are deserted by their parents, or whose parents or surviving parent or guardians are consenting thereto; and the costs of the maintenance, employment, and instruction of such infant poor in such district schools shall be paid by such board of guardians to such district board, according to such rates and at such times and in such manner as may be agreed upon by the said boards, with the approbation of the said Commissioners; and such infant poor while at such district school shall be subject to the controul and management of such district board and their officers, in like manner as if the said parish or union were combined in such school district by virtue of this Act.

LII. That the provisions of the Act, 7 Geo. 3. c. 39, intituled 'An Act for the better Regulation of the Parish poor Children of the several Parishes therein mentioned within the bills of Mortality,' and of an Act, 2 Geo. 3. c. 22, intituled 'An Act for the keeping regular, uniform, and annual Registers of all Parish poor Infants under a certain Age within the Bills of Mortality,' shall be and are hereby repealed.

LIII. That every district board for the management of any asylum under this Act shall make provision for the temporary relief and setting to work therein of any poor person found destitute within any such district, not professing to be settled in any parish included therein, and not known to have any place of abode there, and not being charged with any offence under the provisions of an Act, 5 Geo. 4. c. 83, intituled 'An Act for the Punishment of idle and disorderly Persons, and Rogues and Vagabonds, in that Part of Great Britain called England,' or of any other Act; and, subject to any regulations of the said Commissioners, every such district board or any Committee thereof may direct the mode of admission of such poor persons to the asylum of such district; and it shall be lawful for any constable of the metropolitan police, or of the police of the city of London, or any constable of the police acting under the chief constable of any county, district, or division, or any constable of the city, towns, or boroughs respectively named in the Schedule marked (B.) annexed to this Act, personally to conduct any such poor person found wandering abroad within any district to any asylum established in such district in pursuance of this Act, and such poor person shall, if there be room in such asylum, be temporarily relieved therein; and the serjeant of police or constable conducting such poor person shall sign his name in a column headed to the following effect, in a book to be kept in such form and manner as the said Commissioners may from time to time direct, by some officer of every such asylum, in which shall be entered the alleged names of all poor persons admitted.

'WE, the undersigned Constables of the Metropolitan Police [or of the Police of the city of London, or Constable, &c., as the Case may be], do severally declare, so far as each of us is concerned therein, that we have conducted the poor Person (whose alleged Names are set opposite our respective Signatures) to the Asylum of District, the said poor Persons having been by us found wandering abroad, and apparently destitute, and not having committed or being charged with any Offence punishable by Law, within our Knowledge.'

And every such book, purporting to be signed and to be certified at the foot of the page by the officer keeping the same, shall be received in all courts of justice as sufficient evidence of the fact that the poor persons described therein were chargeable to the said district at the time of their admission, and, if not contradicted by other evidence, of such other particulars as are therein duly recorded; and all poor persons admitted into any such asylum shall, if they desire it, be relieved with food and lodging for the night succeeding such admission; but no such poor person shall be detained against his will for any longer space of time than until the ordinary hour of breakfast of the day next succeeding his admission, and four hours afterwards, unless such poor person, since his admission, have become lawfully punishable for misbehaviour within such asylum, in which case it shall be lawful to detain such poor person for a space of time sufficient for such punishment; but no poor person shall be punished for any offence or misbehaviour in any asylum by confinement for any longer space of time than twenty-four hours, and such longer space of time as may be necessary in order to have such person before a Justice of the Peace; and if any poor person so admitted as aforesaid shall be disabled by sickness, or shall be unwilling to depart from such asylum, he may receive relief therein, if he consent to remain, and conform to the rules of the house, until the next meeting of the district board or of some committee (which such district board, subject to the rules of the said Commissioners, is hereby authorized to appoint), who shall give such directions respecting such poor person as they may deem right, by discharging him from such asylum, with a direction to apply for relief in the district where he has dwelt, or otherwise as to them may seem fit: Provided always, that, except under a medical certificate of sickness, it shall not be lawful for the officers of any such asylum to relieve any poor person for a longer period continuously in such asylum than is sufficient to enable his case to be decided by the district board or committee as aforesaid: Provided also, that if any person received into such asylum shall wilfully give a false name, or make a false statement, or shall be proved to have given two or more different names on two or more different occasions, when so received into any such asylum, such person not having lawfully changed her name in consequence of marriage, such person shall be deemed a rogue and vagabond within the meaning of the said Act, 5 Geo. 4. c. 83, intituled 'An Act for the Punishment of idle and disorderly Persons, and Rogues and Vagabonds, in that Part of the United Kingdom called England.'

LIV. That every poor person relieved in any asylum under the management of any district board shall be liable to the same obligations in respect of the relief afforded to him as if the same were afforded in any workhouse, and shall be subject to the same punishment and penalties as are provided by 55 Geo. 3. c. 137, intituled 'An Act to prevent poor Persons in Workhouses from embezzling certain Property provided for their Use; to alter and amend so much of an Act of the Thirty-sixth Year of His present Majesty as restrains Justices of the Peace from ordering Relief to poor Persons, in certain Cases, for a longer Period than One Month at a time; and for other Purposes therein mentioned relating to the Poor,' or under any other Act or Acts, for refusal or neglect to work, in pursuance of any regulations or directions prescribing a task of work, or for wilfully destroying or injuring his own clothes or any property, or for absconding with any clothes or other articles provided by such district board, or for damaging any of the property of such district board, or for any misbehaviour in such asylum, by disobedience of the rules and regulations in force therein, or otherwise, as if he were relieved or set to work in any workhouse under the controul of a board of guardians acting under the orders and regulations of the said Commissioners in pursuance of the said first-recited Act: Provided always, that nothing in this Act contained shall relieve any guardian, overseer, relieving officer, or master of a workhouse from any obligation now imposed upon him by law with regard to the relief of cases of sudden and urgent necessity, or shall prevent the reception into a workhouse of any person labouring under dangerous illness or shall authorize the transfer to an asylum of any person received into such workhouse in a case of dangerous illness, unless with the certificate in writing of a medical man duly licensed to practise, to the effect that such person is then in a fit state to be removed, and stating the manner in which such person, in the opinion of such medical man, may be safely removed.

LV. That if any poor person return and become chargeable in the asylum of any district after removal from any parish in such district, he shall be deemed to have returned and become chargeable, without any certificate, to the parish whence he has been legally removed by order of two Justices of the Peace, within the meaning of the said Act 5 Geo. 4. c. 83, intituled 'An Act for the Punishment of idle and disorderly Persons, and Rogues and Vagabonds, in that Part of Great Britain called England.'

LVI. That, for the purposes of relief, settlement, and removal of poor persons, and the burial of the poor, the workhouse of any union or parish, and every such district school, shall be considered as situated in the parish to which each poor person respectively to be relieved, removed, or buried, or otherwise concerned in any such purpose, is or has been chargeable: Provided always that every birth and death within any such workhouse or building shall be registered in the parish or place in which such workhouse or building is locally situated; and all fees for registering births and deaths in any such workhouse or building shall be charged by the guardians to the parish or union to which the person dying or the mother of the child respectively is chargeable.

LVII. That if any person be convicted before any Justice or Justices of any offence committed in any workhouse while maintained therein, or of absconding from any workhouse, and carrying away clothes or other property therefrom, and be liable to be committed for such offence to any gaol or house of correction, it shall be lawful for the Justice or Justices before whom such person is convicted to commit such person to the common gaol or house of correction of the county or place in which the parish is situated to which such person at the time of the commission of the offence was chargeable, notwithstanding that such workhouse may not be situated in such county or place, and notwithstanding that such Justices may not be Justices of such county or place; and if such person have not goods or money within such county or place sufficient to bear the charges of himself and those who convey him, then such charges shall be defrayed at the expense of the county, place, or parish, according to the provisions of an Act, 27 Geo. 2. c. 3, intituled 'An Act for the better securing to Constables and others the Expenses of conveying Offenders to Gaol; and for allowing the Charges of poor Persons bound to give Evidence against Felons;' provided that in cases of such conviction and committal as aforesaid all further proceedings in respect thereof may be taken; and the costs and charges of such proceedings, and for the maintenance of such offender in such gaol or house of correction, shall be payable in like manner and under the like authority as such proceedings would have been taken, or as such costs and charges would have been payable, in case the offence had been committed within the parish or place to which such offender was chargeable at the time when he committed such offence.

And after reciting that by the said Act, 55 Geo. 3. c. 137, it is enacted, that if any person or persons shall desert or run away from any workhouse or workhouses, and carry away with him, her, or them any clothes, linen, or other goods as aforesaid, such person or persons, being thereof lawfully convicted, either by the confession of such party or parties, or by the oath or oaths of one or more credible witness or witnesses, before any Justice or Justices of the Peace, shall by such Justice or Justices of the Peace be forthwith committed to the common gaol or house of correction, there to remain without bail or mainprize for the space of three calendar months; and it is further enacted, that in case any person or persons maintained in any public workhouse or workhouses established for the relief, maintenance, and employment of the poor shall refuse to work at any work, occupation, or employment suited to his, her, or their age, strength, and capacity, or shall be guilty of drunkenness, or other misbehaviour, every such person or persons, being thereof lawfully convicted before any Justice or Justices of the Peace, shall thereupon by such Justice or Justices of the Peace be committed to the common gaol or house of correction, there to remain without bail or mainprize for any period of time not exceeding twenty-one days, and during such time to be kept to hard labour: And that it is desirable that Justices of the Peace should have a power to commit such persons as are first mentioned for a period less than three months, and such persons as are last mentioned for a period greater than twenty-one days, in cases of repeated offences:—

It is Enacted,

LVIII. That it shall be lawful for any Justice or Justices to commit any such person as is first mentioned to the common gaol or house of correction, to be kept there in the manner provided by the said recited Act for any period not less than seven days nor greater than three months, and to commit any such persons as are last mentioned, in case such persons have been before convicted of a like offence, to the common gaol or house of correction, in manner provided by the said Act, for any period not exceeding forty-two days.

LIX. That it shall be lawful for any board of guardians or district board to pay out of the funds in their hands the reasonable costs of the apprehension and of the prosecution of any person who, according to the laws in force at the time being, is charged with refusing or neglecting to maintain himself or his family, or with running away and leaving his family chargeable, or whereby such family has become chargeable, or with wilfully neglecting or disobeying the rules, orders, and regulations of the Poor Law Commissioners, or with any offence or misbehaviour in any workhouse, or with deserting or running away from any workhouse, and carrying away clothes, linen or other goods or things belonging to any workhouse, or given or procured or provided as or for relief, or with neglect or disobedience of the reasonable and lawful orders of Justices or guardians, or of any district board, in the administration of the laws relating to the relief of the poor, or with obstructing or assaulting any officer engaged in the administration of the laws for relief of the poor, or with fraudulently obtaining, stealing, purloining, embezzling, wasting, or injuring, or wilfully misapplying, any property applicable to or connected with the relief of the poor, or with any offence directly affecting the administration of the laws for the relief of the poor, and the reasonable costs of apprehending and prosecuting any officer who may have been employed in the administration of the laws for the relief of the poor, for any neglect or breach of any duty of his office, or for any maltreatment or abuse of any poor person; and, subject to the approval of the said Commissioners, every board of guardians or district board shall pay the costs of all legal proceedings taken by any auditor, or under his direction, for the protection of the poor rates or property of any parish, union, or district, or taken by any other person whom the board of guardians or district board have authorized or directed to institute such prosecution or legal proceedings; and to the extent, to which any such costs may not be repaid by the offending or other party, or from the county, liberty or borough rates, the guardians of any union then may, in any of the cases aforesaid, having due regard to the circumstances of the case, and subject to the approval of the Poor Law Commissioners, charge such expenses, either to the common funds of the union, or to any parish or parishes comprised therein; and the district board of any district may, having like regard to the circumstances of the case, and subject to the like approval of the Poor Law Commissioners, charge such expenses, either to the funds of the whole of such district, or on any one or more of the unions and parishes comprised therein.

LX. That the costs, charges, and expenses properly incurred by the officers of the parish in making out, preparing, printing, and collecting the lists of persons qualified to serve on juries, according to the provisions of the Act, 6 Geo. 4. c. 50, intituled, 'An Act for consolidating and amending the Laws relative to Jurors and Juries,' and relating thereto, shall be paid and allowed to them out of the poor rates of the parish, together also with all expenses properly incurred by the same officers on the perambulation of the parish, and in setting up and keeping in proper repair the boundary stones of the parish, provided that such perambulations do not arise more than once in every three years.

And after reciting that by an Act, 2 & 3 Vict. c. 84, intituled, 'An Act to amend the Laws relating to the Assessment and Collection of Rates for the Relief of the Poor,' it was amongst other things enacted, "that all orders heretofore made and issued under the hands and seals of the Poor Law Commissioners, and not rescinded by them or quashed before the 6th of May in the present year, by which the said Commissioners may have directed the overseers or guardians of any parish or union to appoint any person to collect the rates for the relief of the poor in any parish or parishes, or shall have defined or specified or directed the execution of the duties of such person, or the places or limits within which the same shall be performed, or shall have directed the mode of appointment, or determined the continuance in office or dismissal of any such person from his office, or the amount or nature of the security to be given by any such person, or shall have regulated the amount of salary payable to any such person, or the time or mode or the proportions of payment thereof, shall be deemed and the same are hereby declared to have the same force and validity as if the same had been warranted by an Act, 4 & 5 Will. 4. c. 76, intituled, 'An Act for the Amendment and better Administration of the Laws for the Relief of the Poor;' and the Commissioners shall have the same powers and authorities with respect to all such orders, and to the persons appointed in pursuance thereof, as they have with respect to orders made and issued, and the paid officers appointed, under the provisions of the said Act; and that every person appointed guardians of the poor under any such order of the said Commissioners shall have the like powers, authorities, privileges, immunities, protections, and remedies, in and for the performance of his duty under such order, as are by law given to overseers of the poor in the performance of the like duty ;" and it is expedient that such collectors should in certain cases be invested with other of the duties of overseers of the poor :—

It is Enacted,

LXI. That the inhabitants in vestry assembled of any parish situated within the district for which any collector or assistant overseer appointed under any order of the said Commissioners now acts may appoint such collector or assistant overseer to discharge all the duties of an overseer of the poor, in addition to those of collector of poor rates for such parish, and in the same manner as if he were appointed thereto as an assistant overseer under the provisions of an Act, 59 Geo. 3. c. 12, intituled, 'An Act to amend the Laws for the Relief of the Poor;' and wherever any such collector or assistant overseer has been or may be appointed under any order of the said Commissioners, and whilst the said order remains in force, the powers of any vestry or parish officers, or of any other persons, other than the board of guardians of such parish or union (if a board of guardians have been constituted), to appoint any collector or assistant overseer, and (if so directed by the said Commissioners) every appointment under such powers shall cease: Provided always, that where the appointment of such assistant overseer shall have been made under the powers of any local Act of Parliament of a parish containing more than 20,000 persons such appointment shall continue, and the powers of such local Act, as to any future appointment of an assistant overseer, shall be exercised, but subject always to the powers of the Poor Law Commissioners, notwithstanding the provisions of this Act: Provided always, that no overseer shall be discharged by the appointment of any such collector or assistant overseer from his responsibility for the provision and supply of monies necessary for the relief of the poor, or for any of the purposes to which the rates made for the relief of the poor may be by law applicable; and every collector appointed or to be hereafter appointed as aforesaid, and every assistant overseer appointed or hereafter to be appointed, in pursuance of the said Act, 59 Geo. 3. c. 12, or of the orders of the said Commissioners, shall, subject to the rules of the Poor Law Commissioners, obey, in all matters relating to the duties of overseer, all directions of the majority of the overseers of the parish for which he acts; and the said Commissioners shall have the same powers with respect to all collectors or assistant overseers as are given to them by the said first-recited Act with respect to paid officers; and every collector or assistant overseer appointed as aforesaid shall be bound to give to the board of guardians of the parish or union, or if there be no such board of guardians then to the overseers of the parish for which such collector or assistant overseer may act, sufficient security for the due performance of his duties; and no bond or any other security entered into in pursuance of this Act, or of the said Act, 59 Geo. 3. c. 12, shall be charged or chargeable with, or be deemed to be or to have been subject or liable to, any stamp duty whatsoever; and wherever any parish for which such collector or assistant overseer may be appointed is situated in an union, or is governed by a board of guardians, every bond or security given by any officer, in pursuance of this Act, or of the said Act, 59 Geo. 3. c. 12, or of the said first-recited Act, and not contrary to the rules of the said Commissioners, shall, if the guardians shall see fit, be put in suit by the board of guardians of the union in which the parish or district for which the officer acts or has acted may be situated, notwithstanding that such bond or security may have been originally given to the overseers of a parish, or to any other persons; and every bond or security given by or on account of any officer appointed by any board of guardians, for the due performance of the office to which he is so appointed, shall remain in full force and effect, notwithstanding any change in district for which such officer may have been appointed or required to act at the time when such bond or security was given, or the addition of any parish to the separation of any parish from such union since the giving of such security.

LXII. That if the board of guardians of any parish or union make application to the said Commissioners to direct the appointment of a paid collector of the poor rates in such parish or union, or in any parish or parishes of such union, it shall be lawful for the said Commissioners, by order under their hands and seal to direct the said board of guardians to appoint such a collector; and the said Commissioners shall have the same powers with respect to such collectors as are given to them by the said first-recited Act with respect to paid officers; and all powers of the inhabitants of any parish in vestry assembled, or of Justices of the Peace, or of any persons, other than the board of guardians of such parish or union, to appoint any collector for any such parish as aforesaid, and (except when otherwise directed by the said Commissioners) all appointments under such powers shall cease.

LXIII. That if the overseers of any parish wilfully neglect to make or collect sufficient rates for the relief of the poor, or to pay such monies to the guardians of any parish or union as such guardians may require, and if by reason of such neglect any relief directed by the board of guardians to be given to any poor person be delayed or withheld during a period of seven days, every such overseer shall upon conviction thereof forfeit and pay for every such offence any sum not exceeding 20*l*.

LXIV. That the guardians of every parish or union acting under any local Act for the relief of the poor shall hold their meetings once in every fortnight, or oftener, and in all matters concerning the relief of the poor shall act as a board at a meeting, and not individually; and whenever under any such local Act there is no person particularly designated or authorised to act as chairman, such guardians shall elect and appoint annually, and from time to time as vacancies may occur, a chairman and vice chairman of such board, and shall at any meeting at which no chairman or vice chairman is present elect a temporary chairman to preside at that meeting: Provided always, that when the relief of the poor has been hitherto administered in any parish by guardians appointed under a local Act, and not by overseers of the poor, if such parish, according to the last enumeration of the population published by authority of Parliament, contain more than 20,000 persons, it shall not be lawful for the said Commissioners, after the passing of this Act, without the consent in writing of two-thirds at least of such guardians, to declare such parish to be united with any other parish for the administration of the laws for the relief of the poor, anything in the said first-recited Act to the contrary notwithstanding; provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall prevent the said Commissioners from including any such last-mentioned parish in a district for providing and managing an asylum for the temporary relief of and setting to work of destitute houseless poor, or from including such parish in a district for the audit of accounts, under the provisions of this Act, except as hereinafter enacted.

LXV. Provided and enacted, That where any parish which is not governed by a board of guardians constituted under the said first-recited Act, or comprised in any union, but is governed by guardians or directors under a local Act, and contains a population exceeding 20,000 persons, according to the last enumeration of the population published by the authority of Parliament, have before the 1st of January in this present year adopted and acted upon the provisions of an Act, 1 & 2 Will. 4. c. 60, intituled, 'An Act for the better Regulation of Vestries, and for the Appointment of Auditors of Accounts, in certain Parishes of England and Wales,' and that where any two or more parishes situated within the district of the metropolitan police, containing together a population exceeding 20,000, according to the last enumeration of the population published by the authority of Parliament, have been united for the purposes of rating or settlement under the provisions of any local Act, and are governed by guardians or directors under such local Act, and have not been comprised in any union formed under the provisions of the said first-recited Act, and have an auditor or auditors appointed and acting under any provisions of such local Act relating to the audit of accounts in such parishes, it shall not be lawful to include such parish or such two or more parishes respectively in any such district for the audit of accounts: Provided always, that it shall be lawful for any assistant Poor Law Commissioner to be present at any audit as if the same were a meeting of a board of guardians or vestry, and to inspect, examine, and take copies or extracts from any books, accounts, or vouchers produced at such audit.

And after reciting that it is provided by the said first-recited Act that the said Commissioners may, from time to time as they may see fit, by order under their hands and seal, declare any union not united for the purposes of settlement or rating to be dissolved, or any parish or parishes to be separated from or added to any such union, and that such union shall thereupon be dissolved, or such parish or parishes shall thereupon be separated from or added to such union accordingly; and it is thereby further provided that no such dissolution, alteration, or addition shall take place or be made unless a majority of not less than two-thirds of the guardians of such union concur therein; and it is expedient to enable the said Commissioners to separate any parish or parishes from any union or to add any parish or parishes to any union, without the concurrence of the guardians of such union respectively:—

It is Enacted,

LXVI. That it shall be lawful for the said Commissioners to exercise the powers given to them by the said Act for the separating of any parish or parishes from any union formed under the provisions of the said Act, or for the addition of any parish or parishes to any such union, without the concurrence of the guardians of such union respectively in such separation or addition; and the said Commissioners may, if they see fit, cause a board of guardians to be elected under the provisions of the said Act for any single parish separated from any union in pursuance hereof, notwithstanding the provisions of any local Act in force in such parish.

LXVII. That so much of an Act, 55 Geo. 3. c. 137. s. 7, intituled, 'An Act to prevent poor Persons in Workhouses from embezzling certain Property provided for their Use; to alter and amend so much of an Act of the Thirty-sixth Year of His present Majesty as restrains Justices of the Peace from ordering Relief to poor Persons in certain Cases for a longer Period than One Month at a Time; and for other Purposes therein mentioned relating to the Poor,' as relates to the giving of notice of the intention to enter into contracts relating to the relief of the poor, shall be and the same is hereby repealed.

LXVIII. That notwithstanding anything contained in an Act, 7 Vict. intituled, 'An Act for consolidating and amending several of the Laws relating to Attornies and Solicitors practising in England and Wales,' it shall be lawful for any clerk or other officer to any board of guardians constituted under the said first-recited Act or under any local Act, or to any district board, if duly empowered by such board, to make or resist any application, claim, or complaint, or to take and conduct any proceedings on behalf of such board before any Justice or Justices of the Peace at petty or special sessions or out of sessions, although such clerk or officer be not an attorney or solicitor, or have not obtained a stamped certificate in pursuance of the provisions of the said Act.

LXIX. That it shall be lawful for any board of guardians or district board, at any meeting thereof, to make a certificate in the form or to the effect contained in the Schedule of this Act marked (C.), and that every such certificate, and every copy of a minute of any order, complaint, claim, application or authority of any such board of guardians or district board, purporting respectively to be signed by the presiding chairman of such guardians or district board, and to be sealed with their seal, and to be countersigned by their clerk, shall, unless the contrary be shewn, be taken to be sufficient proof of the truth of all the statements contained in such certificate, and of the directions respecting such order, complaint, claim, or application having been given as alleged in the copy of such minute, and shall be received in evidence accordingly by and before all courts of justice and all Justices, without any proof of the signatures or of the official characters of the persons signing the same, or of such seal, or of such meeting: and that for the purpose of making any order of removal or other order no further or other evidence of chargeability than such certificate shall be required, provided that every such order bear date within twenty-one days next after the day of the date of such certificate.

LXX. That in any proceedings to be had before Justices in petty or special sessions, or out of sessions, under the provisions of this Act or of any of the Acts required to be construed as one Act herewith, if any party to such proceedings request that any person be summoned to appear as a witness in such proceedings, it shall be lawful for any Justice to summon such person to appear and give evidence upon the matter of such proceedings; and if any person so summoned neglect or refuse to appear to give evidence at the time and place appointed in such summons, and if proof upon oath be given of personal service of the summons upon such person, and that the reasonable expenses of attendance were paid or tendered to such person, it shall be lawful for such Justice, by warrant under his hand and seal, to require such person to be brought before him or any Justices before whom such proceedings are to be had; and if any person coming or brought before any such Justices in any such proceedings refuse to give evidence thereon, it shall be lawful for such Justices to commit such person to any house of correction within their jurisdiction, there to remain without bail or mainprize for any time not exceeding fourteen days, or until such person shall sooner submit himself to be examined, and in case of such submission the order of any such Justice shall be a sufficient warrant for the discharge of such person.

And after reciting that it is provided by the said first-recited Act that all rules, orders, and regulations made by the said Commissioners under the authority of the said Act shall be as valid and binding, and shall be obeyed and observed, as if the same were specifically made by and embodied in the said Act; but no sufficient provision is made for bringing such orders to the knowledge of courts of justice;—

It is Enacted,

LXXI. That any copy of any such rule, order, or regulation, printed by the printer duly authorized by Her Majesty or any of her royal predecessors or successors, shall, after the lapse of fourteen days from the date thereof, be received in evidence, and judicially taken notice of, and shall, until the contrary be shewn, be deemed sufficient proof that such order was duly made, and is in force.

And after reciting that it is provided by the said first-recited Act that a written or printed copy of every rule, order, or regulation of the said Commissioners shall, before the same shall come into operation in any parish or union, be sent by the said Commissioners by the post, or in such manner as the Commissioners shall think fit, sealed or stamped with their seal, addressed to the overseers of such parish, the guardians of such union, or their clerk, and to the clerk to the Justices of the petty sessions held for the division in which such parish or union shall be situate: And that the proof of such sending is often attended with great expense and difficulty;—

It is Enacted,

LXXII. That it shall not in any civil or criminal proceeding be necessary to prove such sending, except to the clerk to the guardians of the union or of the parish, or, where there shall be no guardians, to the overseers of the parish within which such rule, order, or regulation is intended to have effect; and that it shall in no case be necessary to prove such sending, unless reasonable notice in writing be given, by the party requiring such proof, to the party upon whom such proof would lie, that such proof would be required; and whenever it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court that the said rule, order, or regulation was sent, and that the party was cognizant thereof, such Court shall order the reasonable expenses of the witness or witnesses proving the same to be paid by the party who has given such notice, and such expenses shall be recoverable as penalties and forfeitures under the first-recited Act.

LXXIII. That in all cases where any messuages, lands, or hereditaments, or any estates or interest therein, have or hath been conveyed or assured, or purported to be conveyed or assured, either gratuitously or for valuable consideration, to or in trust for the churchwardens and overseers of the poor, or the overseers only, or the guardians of any parish or parishes respectively, or otherwise for the benefit of any parish or parishes respectively, or to or in trust for the guardians of any union, for the purpose of providing a workhouse or asylum, or workhouses or asylums, for the accommodation of the poor of such parish or parishes or union respectively, every such conveyance or assurance shall be deemed good and valid for all purposes whatsoever, notwithstanding that such conveyance or conveyances have not been enrolled pursuant to the statute, 9 Geo. 2. c. 36, intituled, 'An Act to restrain the Disposition of Lands whereby the same became inalienable.'

LXXIV. That this Act shall be construed in the same manner as the Act, 5 & 6 Vict. c. 57, intituled, 'An Act to continue until the Thirty-first Day of July One thousand eight hundred and forty-seven, and to the End of the then next Session of Parliament, the Poor Law Commission; and for the further Amendment of the Laws relating to the Poor in England,' and as one Act with the same, and with the Acts and provisions thereby required to be construed as one Act; and the word "month" shall be taken to mean calendar month; and the words "clerk of the peace" shall be taken to mean the clerk of the peace or other officer discharging any of the duties of clerk of the peace for any county, division of a county, riding, borough, liberty, division of a liberty, precinct, county of a city, county of a town, cinque port, or town corporate; and the words "licensed minister" in the said first-recited Act, and "minister" in this Act, shall be construed to mean and include every person in holy orders, and also every person teaching or preaching in any congregation for religious worship whose place of meeting is certified and recorded according to law; and, except where it is otherwise expressly provided, all provisions in any Act now passed or hereafter to be passed, relating to the officers of boards of guardians constituted under the provisions of the said first-recited Act, or to the workhouses under the management of such guardians, shall apply to all officers appointed by any district board, and to all workhouses under the management of any district board.

LXXV. That this Act shall extend only to England and Wales.

LXXVI. That this Act shall come into operation on the day next after that on which Her Majesty gives her assent thereto.

LXXVII. That this Act may be amended or repealed by any Act to be passed in this present session of Parliament.

By this Act,

After reciting that it is expedient to make provision for the due registration of joint stock companies during the formation and subsistence thereof; and also, after such complete registration as is hereinafter mentioned, to invest such companies with the qualities and incidents of corporations, with some modifications, and subject to certain conditions and regulations; and also to prevent the establishment of any companies which shall not be duly constituted and regulated according to the provisions of this Act:—

It is Enacted,

1. That this Act shall come into operation at the following times; that is to say, as to the officers to be appointed in pursuance hereof for the registration of companies, and the regulation of the office hereby provided for that purpose, immediately on the passing hereof; and as to all companies to which this Act is to apply, and all other the provisions hereinafter contained, except such as relate to such officers and office as aforesaid, on the 1st of November 1844.

11. That this Act shall apply to every joint stock company, as hereinafter defined, established in any part of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland except Scotland, or established in Scotland and having an office or place of business in any other part of the United Kingdom, for any commercial purpose, or for any purpose of profit, or for the purpose of assurance or insurance (except banking companies, schools, and scientific and literary institutions, and also friendly societies, loan societies, and benefit building societies, respectively duly certified and enrolled under the statutes in force respecting such societies, other than such friendly societies as grant assurances on lives to the extent hereinafter specified;) and that the term "Joint Stock Company" shall comprehend,—

Every partnership whereof the capital is divided or agreed to be divided into shares, and so as to be transferrable without the express consent of all the copartners; and also,

Every assurance company or association for the purpose of assurance or insurance on lives, or against any contingency involving the duration of human life, or against the risk of loss or damage by fire, or by storm or other casualty, or against the risk of loss or damage to ships at sea or on voyage, or to their cargoes, or for granting or purchasing annuities on lives; and also every institution enrolled under any of the Acts of Parliament relating to friendly societies, which institutions shall make assurances on lives, or against any contingency involving the duration of human life to an extent upon one life or for any one person to an amount exceeding 200*l.*, whether such companies, societies, or institutions shall be joint stock companies or mutual assurance societies, or both; and also,

Every partnership which at its formation, or by subsequent admission (except any admission subsequent on devolution or other act in law), shall consist of more than twenty-five members:

And that except where the provisions of this Act are expressly applied to partnerships existing before the said 1st of November, it shall be held to apply only to partnerships the formation of which shall be commenced after that date: Provided nevertheless, that, except as hereinafter specially provided, this Act shall not extend to any company for executing any bridge, road, cut, canal, reservoir, aqueduct, waterwork, navigation, tunnel, archway, railway, pier, port, harbour, ferry, or dock which cannot be carried into execution without obtaining the authority of Parliament: Provided also, that, except as hereinafter is specially provided, this Act shall not extend to any company incorporated or which may be hereafter incorporated by statute or charter, nor to any company authorized or which may be hereafter authorized by statute or letters patent to sue and be sued in the name of some officer or person.

III. And it is declared, That the following words and expressions are intended to have the meanings hereby assigned to them respectively, so far as such meanings are not excluded by the context or by the nature of the subject matter; that is to say,—

The word "company" to mean any joint stock company or other institution, as before defined:

The expression "assurance company" to mean any assurance company, association, or institution, as before defined:

The word "directors" to mean the persons having the direction, conduct, management, or superintendence of the affairs of a company:

The expression "promoter," or "promoter of a company," to apply to every person acting by whatever name in the forming and establishing of a company at any period prior to the company obtaining a certificate of complete registration as hereinafter mentioned:

The word "subscriber" to mean any person who shall have agreed in writing to take or have taken any shares in a proposed company or in a company formed, and who shall not have executed the deed of settlement, or a deed referring thereto:

The word "shareholder" to mean any person entitled to a share in a company, and who has executed the deed of settlement, or a deed referring to it, or, in the case of mutual assurance societies, any person who shall be an assured member thereof:

The word "person" to apply to bodies politic or corporate, whether sole or aggregate:

The expression "Commissioners of the Treasury" to apply to the Lord High Treasurer for the time being, or the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury for the time being, or any three or more of them:

The expression "Committee of Privy Council for Trade" to mean the Lords of the Committee of Her Majesty's Privy Council for the consideration of all matters of Trade and Plantations:

The expression "Secretary of the Committee" to mean one of the joint assistant secretaries of the said Committee of Privy Council for Trade:

The word "Justice" to mean a Justice of the Peace for the county, city, borough, liberty, or place where the matter requiring the cognizance of any Justice shall arise, and who shall not be interested in the matter:

The expression "special authority" to mean any deed of settlement, bye-laws, letters patent, charter, or local and personal Act of Parliament, by which powers are conferred or regulations prescribed with reference to any individual Company:

The word "prescribed" to mean provided for by special authority:

The word "month" to mean calendar month:

The expression "superior courts" to mean Her Majesty's superior courts of law or equity in England or Ireland:

The word "occupation," when applied to any person, to mean his trade or following, and, if none, then his rank or usual title, as esquire, gentleman:

The expression "place of residence" to include the street, square, or place where the party shall reside, and the number (if any) or other designation of the house in which he shall so reside:

The word "oath" to include affirmation or other declaration lawfully substituted for an oath:

And generally, whensoever, with regard to any matter, or to any function in respect thereof, the name of an officer (whether a public officer or an officer of a company) ordinarily having cognizance of such matter, or ordinarily exercising such function, is mentioned, such reference is to be understood to apply as well to any other person or officer who may have cognizance of such matter, or exercise such function in respect of such matter:

And, subject as aforesaid to the context and to the nature of the subject matter, words denoting the singular number are to be understood to apply also to a plurality of persons or things, and words denoting the masculine gender are to be understood to apply also to persons of the feminine gender.

IV. That before proceeding to make public, whether by way of prospectus, handbill, or advertisement, any intention or proposal to form any company for any purpose within the meaning of this Act, whether for executing any such work as aforesaid under the authority of Parliament, or for any other purpose, it shall be the duty of the promoters of such company and they or some of them are hereby required to make to the office hereby provided for the registration of joint stock companies (and hereinafter called the Registry Office) returns of the following particulars according to the Schedule (C.) hereunto annexed; that is to say,

1. The proposed name of the intended company; and also,
2. The business or purpose of the company; and also,
3. The names of its promoters, together with their respective occupations, places of business (if any), and places of residence;

And also the following particulars, either before or after such publication as aforesaid, when and as from time to time they shall be decided on; viz.,

4. The name of the street, square, or other place in which the provisional place of business or place of meeting shall be situate, and the number (if any) or other designation of the house or office; and also,
5. The names of the members of the committee or other body acting in the formation of the company, their respective occupations, places of business (if any), and places of residence, together with a written consent on the part of every such member or promoter to become such, and also a written agreement on the part of such member or promoter, entered into with some one or more persons as trustees for the said company, to take one or more shares in the proposed undertaking, which must be signed by the member or promoter whose agreement it purports to be (but such agreements need not be on a stamp); and also,
6. The names of the officers of the company and their respective occupations, places of business (if any), and places of residence; and also,
7. The names of the subscribers to the company, their respective occupations, places of business (if any), and places of residence; and also, before it shall be circulated or issued to the public,
8. A copy of every prospectus or circular, handbill or advertisement, or other such document at any time addressed to the public, or to the subscribers or others, relative to the formation or modification of such company;
9. And afterwards, from time to time, until the complete registration of such company, a return of a copy of every addition to or change made in any of the above particulars:

And that upon such registration of at the least the three particulars first before mentioned the promoters of such company shall be entitled to a certificate of provisional registration.

v. That if for a period of one month after the particulars hereby required to be registered, or any of them, shall have been ascertained or determined, the promoters of any company fail to register such particulars, then, on conviction thereof, any promoter as aforesaid shall be liable to forfeit for every such offence a sum not exceeding 20*l*.

vi. Provided and enacted, That if the promoters of a proposed company appoint a person, being an attorney or solicitor of one of Her Majesty's superior courts of law or equity, to be solicitor for the promoters of such company, and return to the said registry office a duplicate of such appointment in writing, signed by some one or more of such promoters, together with a duplicate of the acceptance of such appointment, signed by the person so appointed, then, until a duplicate of the revocation or of the resignation of such appointment be returned in like manner, so signed as aforesaid, or until the decease of such solicitor, all returns by this Act required to be made by such promoters shall be made by such solicitor in their behalf, and the penalty hereinbefore imposed in respect of any failure to make such returns shall not be incurred by them; and that if within the period of one month after the particulars hereby required to be registered, or any of them, shall have been ascertained or determined, such solicitor fail to make such returns, then he shall be liable to forfeit for every such offence a sum not exceeding 20*l*; and that if it be made to appear to the Court to which he shall belong that he fraudulently omitted to make a return of any such particulars, then he shall be liable to be suspended from practice for any time to be appointed by the said Court, or to be struck off the rolls of the said court.

vii. That it shall not be lawful for any joint stock company hereafter to be formed for any purpose within the meaning of this Act, whether for executing any such work as aforesaid under the authority of Parliament, or for any other purpose, to act otherwise than provisionally in accordance with this Act until such company shall have obtained a certificate of complete registration as hereinafter provided; and no joint stock company shall be entitled to receive a certificate of complete registration unless it be formed by some deed or writing under the hands and seals of the shareholders therein; and in or by such deed there must be appointed not less than three directors, and also one or more auditors; and such deed must set forth in a schedule thereto, in a tabular manner, according to the order hereinafter mentioned, the following particulars; that is to say,

1. The name of the company; and also,
3. The principal or only place for carrying on such business, and every branch office (if any); and also,
4. The amount of the proposed capital, and of any proposed additional capital, and the means by which it is to be raised; and where the capital shall not be money, or shall not consist entirely of money, then the nature of such capital and the value thereof shall be stated; and also,
5. The amount of money (if any) to be raised or authorized to be raised by loan; and also,
6. The total amount of the capital subscribed or proposed to be subscribed at the date of such deed; and also,
7. The division of the capital (if any) into equal shares, and the total number of such shares, each of which is to be distinguished by a separate number in a regular series; and also,
8. The names and occupations and (except bodies politic) the places of residence of all the then subscribers, according to the information possessed by the officers of the company in respect of such names and occupations and places of residence; and also,
9. The number of the shares which each subscriber holds, and the distinctive numbers thereof, distinguishing the numbers of the shares on which the deposit has been paid from those on which it has not been paid; and also,

10. The names of the then directors of the company, and of the then trustees of the company (if any), and of the then auditors of the company, together with their respective places of business (if any), occupations, and places of residence; and also,

11. The duration of the company, and the mode or condition of its dissolution:

And that such deed must contain a covenant on the part of every shareholder, with a trustee on the part of the company, to pay up the amount of the instalments on the shares taken by such shareholder, and to perform the several engagements in the deed contained on the part of the shareholders; and that such deed must also make provision for such of the purposes set forth in Schedule (A.) to this Act annexed as the nature and business of the company may require, and either with or without provision for such other purposes (not inconsistent with law) as the parties to such deed shall think proper; and that every such deed of settlement must be signed by at least one-fourth in number of the persons who at the date of the deed have become subscribers, and who shall hold at least one-fourth of the maximum number of shares in the capital of the company; and that every such deed must be certified by two directors of the company, by writing indorsed thereon in the form contained in the Schedule (B.) to this Act annexed; and that on the production of such deed, setting forth such matters and making such provisions as are hereby required to be provided for, and being so signed and certified, together with a complete abstract or index thereof, to be previously approved by the registrar of joint stock companies, and also a copy of such deed, for the purpose of registering the same, or as soon after such production as conveniently may be, the registrar of joint stock companies shall grant a certificate of complete registration, according to the provisions of this Act in that behalf; and unless such deed and other matters be so produced, and such conditions be so performed, it shall not be lawful for him to grant such certificate; and that after such certificate shall be granted it shall be taken as evidence of the proper provisions being inserted in such deed, and of the performance of the conditions hereby required previously to the granting such certificate of complete registration; and that any defect or omission as regards the matters hereby required in any deed of settlement may from time to time be supplied by a supplementary deed or deeds; and that if any such supplementary deed be not inconsistent with or repugnant to this Act, or any Act respecting joint stock companies, and if it be duly registered, then it shall have the same effect as if there were only one deed for the purposes of this Act; and that unless the same shall be registered it shall be of no force or effect.

VIII. That if any deed of settlement or supplementary deed of settlement, whether made before or after the granting of the certificate of complete registration, appear to such registrar of joint stock companies to be insufficient by reason of the omission or incompleteness of any of the provisions therein contained for the purposes set forth in the said Schedule (A.), or if the deed contain provisions which appear to such registrar to be inconsistent with or repugnant to this Act, or any Act for the time being in force respecting joint stock companies, then as soon thereafter as conveniently may be such registrar shall notify the same in writing to the persons or to the company by whom the deed shall have been presented for registration, specifying in such notification the particulars wherein such deed of settlement or supplementary deed of settlement is incomplete, or inconsistent with or repugnant to any such Act as aforesaid.

IX. Provided and enacted, That if any company for executing any bridge, road, cut, canal, reservoir, aqueduct, waterwork, navigation, tunnel, archway, railway, pier, port, harbour, ferry, or dock, which cannot be carried into execution without the authority of Parliament, deposit at the proper offices of the two Houses of Parliament, in compliance with the standing orders of such Houses respectively, and at or within the time required by such standing orders, such deeds of partnership or subscription contracts as shall be required to be deposited by such standing orders, and also return to the said registry office a copy of such deeds of partnership or subscription contracts, together with such certificate of the receipt of such plans, sections, and books of reference as shall be appointed by the said Committee of Privy Council for Trade, then it shall be lawful for the registrar of joint stock companies and he is hereby required to accept the same instead of the deed of settlement by this Act required to be returned for the purpose of obtaining a certificate of complete registration; and thereupon such company shall be entitled to a certificate of complete registration accordingly.

X. That throughout the continuance of any joint stock company completely registered under this Act, except such companies as shall have been incorporated by Act of Parliament after complete registration and within one month after the date of any new or supplementary deed of settlement, there shall be transmitted by the directors of every such company to the registrar of joint stock companies a copy of such new or supplementary deed of settlement, together with a complete abstract thereof so approved of as aforesaid; and within six months after any change shall have taken place in any of the particulars hereinbefore required to be set forth in the Schedule to the deed of settlement, except so far as respects the shareholders thereof and their respective shares, there shall be transmitted returns of such particulars, so far as the same shall have been changed; and if within such period any such return be not made, then, on conviction thereof, every director of such company shall be liable to pay a sum not exceeding 20*l*.

XI. That in the months of January and July in every year the directors of every joint stock company completely registered under this Act, except companies which shall have been incorporated by Act of Parliament after complete registration, shall make or cause to be made the following returns to the registrar of joint stock companies; namely,—

A return according to the Schedule (E.) hereunto annexed, and containing the particulars therein set forth, of every transfer of any share in such company which shall have been made since the preceding half-yearly return (or, in the case of the first of such returns made by such company since the complete registration thereof), and which shall have come to the knowledge of the directors:

And also a return according to the Schedule (F.) hereunto annexed, and containing the particulars therein set forth, of the names and places of abode of all persons who shall either have ceased to be shareholders of such company, or have become shareholders of such company otherwise than by a transfer as aforesaid, since the preceding half-yearly return, or since the complete registration of the company, as the case may require, and also of the changes in the names of all shareholders of such company whose names shall have been changed by marriage or otherwise since the last preceding half-yearly return, or since the complete registration of the company, as the case may require:

And if within any such period any such return be not made, then, on conviction thereof, every director of such company shall be liable to pay a sum not exceeding 20*l*.

xiii. That if at any time any party to a transfer of a share request in writing the directors of any such company to make a return thereof, then forthwith on such request the directors shall make the same accordingly; and that on proof of such transfer and such request to the satisfaction of the registrar of joint stock companies it shall be lawful for any such party to make a return of such transfer, which shall be received, marked, and registered, and with the same effect, as hereby provided in the case of returns made by such companies.

xiiii. That until the return of the transfer or other fact or event whereby a person becomes the holder of any shares be made, pursuant to the provisions hereinbefore contained, it shall not be lawful for such company, its directors or officers, if such fact or event be known to them respectively, to pay to any such person any part of the profits of the concern, nor for any such person to sue for or recover any part of the profits arising in respect of such share, or in anywise to act as a shareholder; and that until the return of the transfer of any share shall have been made pursuant to the provisions hereinbefore contained the person whose share shall have been thereby transferred shall, so far as respects his liability to the debts and engagements of the company, and also as respects the reimbursement of any loss, damages, costs, and charges he may incur thereby, be deemed to continue a shareholder of such company.

xv. That annually in the month of January in every year every company completely registered under this Act, except companies which shall have been incorporated by Act of Parliament after complete registration, shall make to the said registry office a return of the name and business of the company: and that on the receipt of such return the registrar of joint stock companies shall give a certificate thereof; and that if within the further period of one month such return be not made, then, on conviction thereof, such company shall be liable to pay a sum not exceeding 20*l*: Provided always, that it shall be lawful for the Lords of the said Committee, on the application of any company, to appoint any other period of the year for the making of such annual return as aforesaid.

xvi. That when the particulars and documents severally by this Act required to be returned to the said registry office shall have been so returned, it shall be the duty of the said registrar of joint stock companies and he is hereby required to cause to be written on every such document and return of particulars brought to him for registration the day of the receipt thereof, and to cause to be marked on every such return or document, in writing or otherwise, a number denoting the order in which the same was received, and also, upon demand, to cause an acknowledgment of the receipt of such return or document to be given to the person by whom the same shall be so brought; and that if such returns or documents be conformable to the provisions of this Act, or of any regulations in that behalf, then it shall be the duty of the registrar and he is hereby required forthwith to register the same, and, on demand, to grant to such company a certificate of provisional or complete registration, as the case may require, signed by him, and sealed with the seal of his office; which certificate must set forth whether the company has been constituted provisionally or completely; and that, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, any such certificate, or a copy of any such return as aforesaid, shall be received in evidence, without proof of the signature thereto, or of the seal of office affixed thereto.

xvii. That until the company shall have obtained its certificate of complete registration the promoters of the company, or their solicitor as aforesaid, shall make or cause to be made every return by this Act required to be made; and after such company shall have obtained a certificate of complete registration the directors of the company shall make or cause to be made every such return; and one or more of such promoters, or their solicitor, or such directors, as the case may be, shall sign such return; and every such return which shall be made after complete registration of the company shall be sealed with the seal of the company.

xviii. That if the Committee of Privy Council for Trade shall deem it expedient, then it shall be lawful for the said Committee and they are hereby authorized from time to time to make regulations respecting the form of any such returns as are hereby directed to be made, and the manner and time of making them, and for those purposes to alter and vary the schedules annexed to this Act, and to dispense with any of the returns hereby made necessary, or any of the forms of returns prescribed by this Act; and that every such regulation shall be published in the London Gazette, and thereupon shall be of the like force as if the same were contained in this Act: Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to permit the said Committee to make any such regulations which shall not apply alike to all such companies as may be registered under the authority of this Act, so far as the same may be applicable to them.

xix. That every person shall be at liberty to inspect the returns, deeds, registers, and indexes which shall be made to or kept by the said registrar of joint stock companies; and that there shall be paid for such inspection such fees as may be appointed by the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury in that behalf, not exceeding 1*s*. for each such inspection; and that any person shall be at liberty to require a copy or extract of any such return or deed, to be certified by the said registrar; and there shall be paid for such certified copy or extract such fee as the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury may appoint in that behalf, not exceeding 6*d*. for each folio of such copy or extract; and that in all courts of law and equity and elsewhere every such copy or extract so certified shall be received in evidence, without proof of the signature thereto, or of the seal of office affixed thereto.

xx. That it shall be lawful for the Committee of Privy Council for Trade and they are hereby empowered to appoint a person to be and to be called the registrar of joint stock companies, and, if the said Committee see fit, an assistant registrar, clerks, and other necessary officers and servants; and that every such registrar and assistant registrar, clerks, and officers shall be entitled to hold their offices during the pleasure only of the said Committee; and that from time to time it shall be lawful for the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury and they are hereby authorized to fix the salary or remuneration of such registrar, assistant registrars, clerks, officers, and servants; and that, subject to the provisions of this Act, it shall be lawful for the said Committee of Privy Council for Trade and they are hereby authorized to make rules for regulating the execution of the office of the said registrar; and that such registrar shall have a seal of office to be by him used in the authen-tification of all matters relating to his said office in respect of which such authentication is by this Act required; and that such assistant registrar shall, in the absence of the registrar, be competent to do all things which the registrar is authorized or empowered, directed, or required to do, as fully and effectually, to all intents and purposes, as the registrar himself may do; and all provisions in this Act relating to the signature and seal of office of the said registrar shall apply to the said assistant registrar: Provided always, that the registrar shall not be absent from the duties of his office, except on account of ill health or other urgent cause, without express leave in writing of the said Committee of Privy Council for Trade for that purpose previously obtained.

xx. That from the hour of ten o'clock in the morning until five o'clock in the afternoon, and at such other times as the said Committee of Privy Council for Trade shall appoint, such registrar, or in the unavoidable, or, as aforesaid, permitted absence of the registrar, then such assistant registrar, shall give his attendance at the said office every day throughout the year, except Sundays, Good Friday, Christmas Day, and any other general holiday or fast day appointed by Her Majesty in Council.

xxi. That every company shall pay the following fees: (that is to say,)

For a certificate of provisional registration the sum of 5*l*.:

For a certificate of complete registration the sum of 5*l*., and 1*s*. additional in respect of every 1000*l*. value of capital, as declared on the formation of the company in the deed of settlement, or by any other special authority:

For an annual certificate the sum of 1*l*.:

And also such other fees as shall be appointed to be paid in respect of any other services to be performed by the said registrar; and that from time to time it shall be lawful for the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, and they are hereby authorized, in addition to the fees hereinbefore required to be paid in respect of such certificates, to fix such other fees to be paid for the services to be performed by the registrar of joint stock companies as they shall deem requisite to defray both the expenses of the said office and the salaries or other remuneration of the said registrar and of any other persons employed under him, with the sanction of the said Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, in the execution of this Act; and that the balance, if any, shall be carried to the Consolidated Fund of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and be paid accordingly into the receipt of Her Majesty's Exchequer at Westminster; and that it shall be lawful for the said Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury to regulate the manner in which such fees are to be received, and in which they are to be kept, and in which they are to be accounted for: Provided always, that if within two years after a company shall have obtained a certificate of complete registration such company shall obtain an Act for the incorporation thereof, then three-fourths of the fee paid by or on behalf of such company on such complete registration in respect of the capital of the company shall be reimbursed and repaid to the said company, and that it shall be lawful for the said Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury and they are hereby authorized and empowered to repay the same accordingly.

xxii. That if either the said registrar of joint stock companies, or any person employed under him, either demand or receive any gratuity or reward in respect of any service performed by him, other than the fees aforesaid, then for every such offence every such registrar or person shall be guilty of a misdemeanour.

xxiii. That on the provisional registration of any company being certified by the registrar of joint stock companies it shall be lawful for the promoters of any company so registered to act provisionally, but not for any longer period than twelve months from the date of the certificate, unless such certificate shall be renewed, which may be done on application for that purpose; and no such renewed certificate shall be in force for a longer period than twelve months from the date thereof; and it shall be lawful for the promoters of such company,—

To assume the name of the intended company, but coupled with the words "registered provisionally," and also;

To open subscription lists; and also,

To allot shares, and receive deposits by way of earnest thereon, at a rate not exceeding 10*s*. for every 100*l*. on the amount of every share in the capital of the intended company; and also, in the case of companies for executing any bridge, road, cut, canal, reservoir, aqueduct, waterwork, navigation, tunnel, archway, railway, pier, port, harbour, ferry, or dock, which cannot be carried into execution without the authority of Parliament, in addition to and exclusive of such sum of 10*s*. per 100*l*., such further sum per 100*l*. on the amount of every such share as may be required by the standing orders of either House of Parliament to be deposited before the obtaining of an Act of Parliament for enabling the company to execute such work; and also,

To perform such other acts only as are necessary for constituting the company, or for obtaining letters patent, or a charter, or an Act of Parliament;

But not to make calls, nor to purchase, contract for, or hold lands, nor to enter into contracts for any services, or for the execution of any works, or for the supply of any stores, except such services and stores or other things as are necessarily required for the establishing of the company, and except any purchase or other contract to be made conditional on the completion of the company, and to take effect after the certificate of complete registration, Act of Parliament, or charter or letters patent, shall have been obtained, and, except in the case of companies for executing such works as aforesaid, contracts for services in making surveys and performing all other acts necessary for obtaining an Act of incorporation or other Act for enabling the company to execute such works.

xxiv. That if before a certificate of provisional registration shall be obtained the promoters or any or them, or any person employed by or under them, take any monies in consideration of the allotment either of shares or of any interest in the concern, or by way of deposit for shares to be granted or allotted; or issue, in the name or on behalf of the company, any note or scrip, or letter of allotment, or other instrument or writing to denote a right or claim, or preference or promise, absolute or conditional, to any shares; or advertise the existence or proposed formation of the company; or make any contract whatsoever for or in the name or on behalf of such intended company; then every such person shall be liable to forfeit for every such offence a sum not exceeding 25*l*.; and that it shall be lawful for any person to sue for and recover the same by action of debt.

xxv. That on the complete registration of any company being certified by the registrar of joint stock companies such company and the then shareholders therein, and all the succeeding shareholders, whilst shareholders, shall be and are hereby incorporated as from the date of such certificate by the name of the company as set forth in the deed of settlement, and for the purpose of carrying on the trade or business for which the company was formed, but only according to the provisions of this Act, and of such deed as aforesaid, and for the purpose of suing and being sued, and of taking and enjoying the property and effects of the said company; and thereupon any covenants or engagements entered into by any of the shareholders or other persons with any trustee on the behalf of the company, at any time before the complete registration thereof, may be proceeded on by the said company and enforced in all respects as if they had been made or entered into with the said company after the incorporation thereof; and such company shall continue so incorporated until it shall be dissolved, and all its affairs wound up; but so as not in anywise to restrict the liability of any of the shareholders of the company, under any judgment, decree, or order for the payment of money which shall be obtained against such company, or any of the members thereof, in any action or suit prosecuted by or against such company in any court of law or equity; but every such shareholder shall, in respect of such monies, subject as after-mentioned, be and continue liable as he would have been if the said company had not been incorporated; and thereupon it shall be lawful for the said company, and they are hereby empowered, as follows; that is to say,—

1. To use the registered name of the company, adding thereto "registered;" and also,
 2. To have a common seal (with power to break, alter, and change the same from time to time), but on which must be inscribed the name of the company; and also,
 3. To sue and be sued by their registered name in respect of any claim by or upon the company upon or by any person, whether a member of the company or not, so long as any such claim may remain unsatisfied; and also,
 4. To enter into contracts for the execution of the works, and for the supply of the stores, or for any other necessary purpose of the company; and also,
 5. To purchase and hold lands, tenements, and hereditaments in the name of the said company, or of the trustees or trustee thereof, for the purpose of occupying the same as a place or places of business of the said company, and also (but nevertheless with a licence, general or special, for that purpose, to be granted by the Committee of the Privy Council for Trade, first had and obtained,) such other lands, tenements, and hereditaments as the nature of the business of the company may require; and also,
 6. To issue certificates of shares; and also,
 7. To receive instalments from subscribers in respect of the amount of any shares not paid up; and also,
 8. To borrow or raise money within the limitations prescribed by any special authority; and also,
 9. To declare dividends out of the profits of the concern; and also,
 10. To hold general meetings periodically, and extraordinary meetings upon being duly summoned for that purpose; and also,
 11. To make from time to time, at some general meeting of shareholders specially summoned for the purpose, bye-laws for the regulation of the shareholders, members, directors, and officers of the company, such bye-laws not being repugnant to or inconsistent with the provisions of this Act or of the deed of settlement of the company; and also,
 12. To perform all other acts necessary for carrying into effect the purposes of such company, and in all respects as other partnerships are entitled to do:—
- And the said company are hereby empowered and required,—
13. To appoint from time to time, for the conduct and superintendence of the execution of the affairs of the company, a number of directors, not less than three, for a period not greater than five years, with or without eligibility, to be re-elected at the expiration of the term, as may be prescribed by any deed of settlement or bye-law; and also,
 14. To appoint and remove one or more auditors, and such other officers as the deed of settlement under which the company shall be constituted may authorize.

Subject nevertheless, with respect to all such powers and privileges, to the provisions of this Act, and subject also to the provisions of the deed of settlement of the company or any other special authority: Provided always, with regard to any company for executing any bridge, road, cut, canal, reservoir, aqueduct, waterwork, navigation, tunnel, archway, railway, pier, port, harbour, ferry, or dock, which cannot be carried into execution without obtaining the authority of Parliament, that on the complete registration of any such company, and before such company shall have obtained its Act of incorporation or other Act whereby the authority of Parliament shall be granted for executing such work, it shall not be lawful for any such company or the directors or officers thereof to exercise the hereinbefore mentioned power to enter into contracts, otherwise than conditionally upon obtaining such Act, or to exercise the power to purchase and hold lands as aforesaid, or to exercise the power to receive instalments from shareholders beyond the sum or per-centage necessary to be deposited in compliance with the standing orders of either House of Parliament, or such other sum as may be requisite for obtaining the Act of incorporation or other Act for granting the authority of Parliament to execute such work, or to exercise the power to borrow money, as aforesaid, or to exercise the power to declare dividends, as aforesaid; and, subject to these last-mentioned exceptions, all the powers by this enactment hereinbefore given to any company completely registered, except the general power to perform all Acts necessary for carrying on the business of the company, may be exercised as fully by any such company so completely registered as by any other company so completely registered: Provided always, that it shall be lawful for any such company to perform all acts which may be necessary for obtaining an Act of incorporation or other Act for obtaining the authority of Parliament to execute its works as aforesaid, anything herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding; and that upon obtaining such Act of incorporation or other such Act as aforesaid, or at the time of the coming into operation of such Act, as shall be thereby appointed, all the powers which any such company shall obtain by virtue of this Act, and all the provisions and regulations of this Act which shall apply to such company, shall cease and determine, except so far as shall be otherwise provided by such Act of incorporation or other such Act as aforesaid.

xxvi. That no shareholder of any joint stock company completely registered under this Act shall be entitled to receive any dividends or profits, or be entitled to the remedies or powers hereby given to shareholders, until he shall have executed the deed of settlement of the said company, or some deed referring thereto, and also have paid up all instalments or calls due from him, and shall have been registered in the registry office aforesaid; and further, that it shall be lawful for every shareholder who shall have signed such deed, and paid up such instalments or calls, and shall have been registered, and he is hereby entitled,—

To be present at all general meetings of the company; and also,

To take part in the discussions thereat; and also,

To vote in the determination of any question thereat, and that either in person or by proxy, unless the deed of settlement shall preclude shareholders from voting by proxy; and also,

To vote in the choice of directors, and of every auditor to be elected by the shareholders;

subject nevertheless to the provisions of this Act, and of the deed of settlement of the company or other special authority, so far as such provisions shall either regulate or restrict the exercise of such powers, but not so as to deprive such shareholders thereof; and further, with regard to subscribers and every person entitled or claiming to be entitled to any share in any joint stock company the formation of which shall be commenced after the 1st of November 1844, that until such joint stock company shall have obtained a certificate of complete registration, and until any such subscriber or person shall have been duly registered as a shareholder in the said registry office, it shall not be lawful for such person to dispose, by sale or mortgage, of such share, or of any interest therein, and that every contract for or sale or disposal of such share or interest shall be void, and that every person entering into such contract shall forfeit a sum not exceeding 10*l*.; and that for better protecting purchasers it shall be the duty of the directors of the company by whom certificates of shares are issued to state on every such certificate the date of the first complete registration of the company, as before provided; and that if any such director or officer knowingly make a false statement in that respect then he shall be liable to the pains and penalties of a misdemeanor.

XXVII. That with regard to the powers and duties of directors it shall be lawful for the directors of any joint stock company registered under this Act,—

1. To conduct and manage the affairs of the company according to the provisions and subject to the restrictions of this Act, and of the deed of settlement, and of any bye-law, and for that purpose to enter into all such contracts and do and execute all such acts and deeds as the circumstances may require; and also,

2. To appoint the secretary, if any; and also,

3. To appoint the clerks and servants; and also from time to time, as they see fit,

4. To remove such secretary, clerks, and servants, and to appoint others, as occasion shall require; and also,

5. To appoint other persons for special services as the concerns of the company may from time to time require; and also,

6. To hold meetings periodically and from time to time as the concerns of the company shall require; and also,

7. To appoint a chairman to preside at all such meetings, and in his absence to appoint a chairman at each such meeting;

subject nevertheless to the provisions and restrictions of this Act, and to the provisions of the deed of settlement of the company or other special authority, but not so as to enable the shareholders to act in their own behalf in the ordinary management of the concerns of the company otherwise than by means of directors: Provided always, that it shall not be lawful for the directors to purchase any shares of the company, nor to sell any such shares, except shares forfeited on the nonpayment of calls or instalments, nor to lend to any one of their number, or to any officer of the company, any money belonging to the company without the authority and sanction of a general meeting of shareholders duly convened.

XXVIII. That henceforth, notwithstanding anything to the contrary in the deed of settlement or other instrument by which a joint stock company shall be constituted or regulated, it shall not be lawful to appoint any person to be or to act as a director, whether honorary or otherwise, or to hold the office of patron or president, or any other office of the like description; nor shall it be lawful for any person to act in any such capacity unless at the time of such his appointment or of such his acting he hold in his own right at least one share in the capital of such company; and that if, without having such share, any person be or become or act as director, patron, or president of such company, or in any office of such or the like nature, then he shall forfeit for every such offence a sum not exceeding 20*l*.; and that if any person be announced or held out by or on behalf of the company as a director, patron, or president, or as holding any office of such or the like description, without having so consented or acted, then each director of such company knowingly concurring in such representation shall forfeit a sum not exceeding 20*l*.

XXIX. That if any director of a joint stock company registered under this Act be either directly or indirectly concerned or interested in any contract proposed to be made by or on behalf of the company, whether for land, materials, work to be done, or for any purpose whatsoever, during the time he shall be a director, he shall, on the subject of any such contract in which he may be so concerned or interested, be precluded from voting or otherwise acting as a director; and that if any contract or dealing (except a policy of assurance, grant of annuity, or contract for the purchase of an article or of service, which is respectively the subject of the proper business of the company, such contract being made upon the same or the like terms as any like contract with other customers or purchasers), shall be entered into, in which any director shall be interested, then the terms of such contract or dealing shall be submitted to the next general or special meeting of the shareholders to be summoned for that purpose; and that no such contract shall have force until approved and confirmed by the majority of votes of the shareholders present at such meeting; and that if at any time any director cease to be a holder of the prescribed number of shares in the company, or shall become a bankrupt or insolvent, or shall have suspended payment, or compromised with his creditors, or be declared a lunatic, then it shall be unlawful for any such director to continue as a director, or to act as such, and the office of such director shall be and is hereby declared to be vacant.

XXX. That notwithstanding it may be afterwards discovered that there was some defect or error in the appointment of any person acting or who may have acted as a director of a joint stock company registered under this Act, or that such person was disqualified, yet all acts done by him as such director before the discovery of such defect or error, either solely or with other directors, shall be as binding on him, and on the company, and the directors and officers thereof, as if such person had been duly appointed or qualified, and, if such acts were done bona fide, shall be as binding on all persons whomsoever as if such person had been duly appointed or qualified.

XXXI. That if any such director or other officer of any joint stock company registered under this Act wrongfully do or omit any act, with intent to defraud the company or any shareholder therein, or falsify or fraudulently mutilate or fraudulently make any erasure in the books of account or books of register, or any document belonging to the company, then such director or officer shall be deemed to be guilty of a misdemeanor.

xxxii. That if the entry of the proceedings of any meeting of the shareholders or of the directors of any joint stock company registered under this Act purport to be signed by the chairman duly presiding at such meeting, and sealed with the seal of the company, then it shall be the duty of all courts of justice, Justices, and others, and they are hereby required, to receive the book in which such entry shall be made as prima facie evidence, not only of the proceedings of the meeting of which entry shall be so made, but of such meetings having been duly convened, and of the persons making or entering such orders or proceedings being shareholders or directors, and of the signature of the chairman.

xxxiii. That the books of any such company wherein the proceedings of the company are recorded shall be kept at the principal or only place of business of the company, and at all reasonable times such books shall be open to the inspection of any shareholder of the company; subject nevertheless to the provisions of the deed of settlement or of any bye-law.

xxxiv. That the directors shall cause the accounts of such company to be duly entered in books to be provided for the purpose.

xxxv. That fourteen days at the least before the period at which the accounts are required to be delivered to the auditors as hereinafter provided the directors of such company shall cause the books of the company to be balanced, and a full and fair balance sheet to be made up; and that previously to such balance sheet being delivered to the auditors as hereinafter provided the directors, or any three of their number, shall examine such balance sheet, and sign it as so examined; and that when the balance sheet shall have been so examined the chairman of the directors shall sign such balance sheet, and that thereupon the directors shall cause the same to be recorded in the books of the company.

xxxvi. That at each ordinary meeting of the shareholders the directors shall produce such balance sheet to the shareholders assembled thereat.

xxxvii. That during the space of fourteen days previously to such ordinary meeting, and also during one month thereafter, every shareholder of the company may, subject to the provisions of the deed of settlement, or of any bye-law, inspect the books of account and the balance sheet of the company, and take copies thereof and extracts therefrom; and that if at any other time three directors authorize in writing any shareholder to make such inspection, then at such other time the shareholder so authorized may make such inspection.

xxxviii. That every joint stock company completely registered under this Act shall annually at a general meeting appoint one or more auditors of the accounts of the company (one of whom at least shall be appointed by the shareholders present at the meeting in person or by proxy), and shall return the names of such auditors to the registrar of joint stock companies; and that if an auditor be not appointed on behalf of the shareholders, or if he shall die, or become incapable of acting, or shall decline to act at the prescribed period, or if such return be not made, then on the application of any shareholder of the company it shall be the duty of the Committee of Privy Council for Trade and they are hereby authorized to appoint an auditor on behalf of the shareholders; and that such auditor shall continue to act till the next general meeting; and the due appointment of such auditor shall be returned to the registrar of joint stock companies, and that thereupon it shall be his duty to register the same; and that it shall be lawful for the Commissioners of the Treasury, and they are hereby empowered to appoint that the company shall pay to such auditor such salary or remuneration as to the said Commissioners shall appear suitable, having regard to the duties of his office, and that thereupon such auditor shall be entitled to recover such salary from the company as and when it shall become due, according to the terms of the appointment thereof.

xxxix. That twenty-eight days at least before the ensuing ordinary meeting at which such balance sheet is required to be produced to the shareholders the directors shall deliver to the auditors the half-yearly or other periodical accounts and the balance sheet required to be presented to the shareholders; and that the auditors shall receive from the directors such accounts and balance sheet, and examine the same.

xl. That throughout the year and at all reasonable times of the day it shall be lawful for the auditors and they are hereby authorized to inspect the books of account and books of registry of such company; and that the auditors may demand and have the assistance of such officers and servants of the company and such documents as they shall require for the full performance of their duty in auditing the accounts.

xli. That within fourteen days after the receipt of such balance sheet and accounts the auditors shall either confirm such accounts, and report generally thereon, or shall, if they do not see proper to confirm such accounts, report specially thereon, and deliver such accounts and balance sheet to the directors of the company.

xlii. That ten days before the ordinary meeting of such company the directors shall, subject to the provisions of any deed of settlement or bye-law in that behalf, send or cause to be sent a printed copy of the balance sheet and auditor's report to every shareholder, according to his registered address, and shall, at such meeting of the company, cause such report to be read, together with the report of the directors.

xliii. That within fourteen days after such meeting it shall be the duty of such directors and they are hereby required to return to the said registry office a copy of the balance sheet, and of the report of the auditors thereon; and that thereupon it shall be the duty of the registrar of joint stock companies and he is hereby required to register or file the same with the other documents relating to such company.

And for the purpose of regulating contracts entered into on behalf of any joint stock company completely registered under this Act (except contracts for the purchase of any article the payment or consideration for which doth not exceed the sum of 50*l.*, or for any service the period of which doth not exceed six months, and the consideration for which doth not exceed 50*l.*, and except bills of exchange and promissory notes);—

It is Enacted,

XLIV. That every such contract shall be in writing, and signed by two at least of the directors of the company on whose behalf the same shall be entered into, and shall be sealed with the common seal thereof, or signed by some officer of the company on its behalf, to be thereunto expressly authorized by some minute or resolution of the board of directors applying to the particular case; and that in the absence of such requisites or of any of them any such contract shall be void and ineffectual (except as against the company on whose behalf the same shall have been made); and that every such contract for the purchase of any article the consideration of which doth not exceed the sum of 50*l.*, or for any services the period of which doth not exceed six months, and the consideration for which doth not exceed 50*l.*, entered into on behalf of any joint stock company completely registered under this Act, may be entered into by any officer authorized by a general bye-law in that behalf; and that every such contract, whether under seal or not, shall immediately after the same shall have been entered into be reported to the secretary or other appointed officer of the company on whose behalf the same shall have been entered into, who shall enter the same in proper books to be kept for that purpose; and that if any such contract be not so reported and entered, then the officer by whose default such contract shall not be so reported or entered shall be liable to repay to the company on whose behalf such contract may be made the amount of the consideration agreed to be paid by or on behalf of such company in respect of such contract.

XLV. With regard to bills of exchange and promissory notes made, accepted, or indorsed on the behalf or account of any such company, so far as relates to the mode of making, accepting, or indorsing the same, and to the liability of any such company thereon, That if the directors of the company be authorized by deed of settlement or bye-law to issue or accept bills of exchange or promissory notes, then every such bill of exchange or promissory note shall be made or accepted (as the case may be) by and in the names of two of the directors of the company on whose behalf or account the same may be so made or accepted, and shall be by such directors expressed to be made or accepted by them on behalf of such company; and that every such bill of exchange and promissory note so made or accepted as aforesaid shall be countersigned by the secretary or other appointed officer of the company in whose behalf the same is expressed to be made or accepted; and that every bill of exchange so made as aforesaid, or received by or on behalf of the company, may be indorsed in the name of the company by any officer authorized by deed of settlement or bye-law in that behalf; and that every such bill of exchange or promissory note so made, accepted, or indorsed as aforesaid shall, immediately after the making, accepting, or indorsing of the same, be reported to the proper officer of the company on whose behalf the same shall have been made, accepted, or indorsed, and such last-mentioned officer shall enter the same in proper books to be kept for that purpose; and that if any such bill of exchange or promissory note be not so reported and entered, then the officer by whose default such bill or note shall not be so reported or entered shall be liable to repay to the company the amount which the company shall pay or be liable to pay in respect of such bill or note: Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall be deemed to make any such secretary or officer personally liable upon any such bill of exchange or promissory note, nor be deemed to make any such directors personally liable thereon, except as shareholders of the company; and that every such company on whose behalf or account any bill of exchange or promissory note shall be made, accepted, or indorsed, in manner and form aforesaid, shall and may sue and be sued thereon, as fully and effectually, and in the same manner, as in the case of any contract made and entered into under their common seal.

XLVI. That all deeds and instruments bearing the seal of the company shall be signed by two at the least of the directors of the company.

XLVII. That all bye-laws made by any joint stock company completely registered under this Act, in pursuance of the power hereinbefore given, must be reduced into writing, and must have affixed thereto the common seal of the company; and that such bye-laws must be registered at the office for registering joint stock companies, and until they be so registered they shall not be of any force; and that such bye-laws must be printed and circulated for the use of the shareholders, and a copy thereof must be given to every officer of the company, and to every shareholder who shall require the same.

XLVIII. That in all actions, suits, and other legal proceedings for the enforcement of such bye-laws, or other penalties for the breach thereof, the production of a written or printed copy of the bye-laws of the company, having the seal of office of the registrar of joint stock companies affixed thereto, shall be sufficient evidence of such bye-laws.

XLIX. That it shall be the duty of the directors of every joint stock company registered under this Act to keep or cause to be kept a book, to be called the "register of shareholders," and from time to time in such book to enter the following particulars; that is to say,—

The names and addresses of all persons or corporations being shareholders of the company; and also,

The number of shares to which such shareholders shall be respectively entitled, distinguishing each share by its number; and also,

The amount of the instalments paid on such shares

L. That it shall be lawful for every shareholder, or if such shareholder be a corporation then the clerk or principal officer of such corporation, at all convenient times to search the register of shareholders gratis, and to require a copy thereof or of any part thereof; and that the company may demand a sum not exceeding 6*d.* for every one hundred words so required to be copied.

LI. That, on demand of the holder of any share in any joint stock company completely registered under this Act, the company shall cause a certificate of the proprietorship of such share to be delivered to such shareholder, specifying the share in the undertaking to which such shareholder is entitled, and the amount paid up in respect of such share at the date of such certificate, and shall have the common seal of the company affixed thereto; and for such certificate the company may demand any sum not exceeding 1*s.*; and that such certificate must be according to the Form in the Schedule (L.) to this Act annexed, or to the like effect.

LII. That it shall be the duty of all courts of justice, Judges, Justices, and others to admit such certificate as prima facie evidence of the title of the shareholder to the share therein specified; nevertheless the want of such certificate shall not prevent the holder of any share from disposing thereof.

LIII. That if any such certificate be worn out or damaged, then, upon such certificate being produced at some meeting of the directors, it shall be lawful for them to order such certificate to be cancelled; and that thereupon another similar certificate shall, if he require the same, be given to the party in whom the property of such certificate and of the share therein mentioned shall at the time be vested; or if such certificate be lost or destroyed, then, upon proof thereof, a similar certificate shall, if he require the same, be given to the party entitled to the certificate so lost or destroyed; and that in either case it shall be the duty of the secretary and he is hereby required to make a due entry of the substituted certificate in the register of shareholders; and for every such certificate so given or exchanged the company may demand any sum not exceeding the sum of 1s.

LIV. That subject to the regulations herein contained, and to be contained in any deed of settlement of any joint stock company completely registered under this Act, it shall be lawful for every shareholder of such company and he is hereby entitled to sell and transfer his shares therein by deed duly stamped, in which the full amount of the pecuniary consideration for such sale shall be truly expressed, and which instrument of transfer must be according to the Form in the Schedule (K.) to this Act annexed, or to the like effect; and that the directors of the company shall cause a memorial of such instrument of transfer, when produced at the office of the company, to be entered in a book to be called "the Register of Transfers," and the entry thereof to be indorsed on the instrument of transfer; and for every such entry and indorsement the company may demand any sum not exceeding 1s.; and that until such instrument of transfer shall have been so produced at the office of the company the purchaser of the share shall not be entitled to receive any of the profits of the company, or to vote in respect of such share: Provided always, that if at the time of such transfer the shareholder shall not have paid the full amount due and payable to the company on every share held by him, then he shall not be entitled to transfer any share, unless there be a provision to the contrary in the deed of settlement.

LV. That if any shareholder fail to pay any instalment of capital due upon or in respect of any share held by him, when the same shall become due, it shall be lawful for any such company and they are hereby authorized to sue such shareholder for the amount in an action of debt in any court having competent jurisdiction in respect of the same; and that in the declaration in any such action it shall be sufficient to state only that at the time of the commencement of the suit the defendant, as the holder of certain shares (stating how many) in a certain company or undertaking, as the case may be, (naming it), was indebted to the company in a certain sum (stating the amount of the instalments, or so much thereof as is sought to be recovered,) for certain instalments of capital then due and payable in respect of the said shares, and that the defendant hath not paid the same; and that if upon the trial of any such action it shall be proved that the defendant was the holder of any share when such instalments, or any of them, in respect of the same, and for which the action is brought, became due, then such company shall recover such instalments, or so much thereof as is due, together with interest for the same at the rate of 5l. per centum per annum, to be computed from the day on which such instalment shall have become due.

LVI. That if any share be held jointly by several persons, then any notice required to be given shall be given to such of the said persons whose name shall stand first on the register of shareholders, and notice so given shall be sufficient notice to all the proprietors of such share, and the person so standing first shall be entitled to vote, and to have all the privileges hereby conferred on shareholders.

LVII. That at every principal place of business of any joint stock company completely registered under this Act it shall be the duty of the directors and officers of the company and they are hereby respectively required to have written or printed copies of an index or abstract of the deed of settlement, approved by the registrar of joint stock companies, and a list of the shareholders of the company, and the number of shares held by each, and also a list of the directors and officers thereof, and a copy of the bye-laws sealed with the seal of the company, as returned to the said registry office; and that if at any reasonable time any shareholder, or any person authorized in writing by him, apply at any such place of business of the company, to inspect the same, then, on demand thereof made during the usual hours of business, it shall be the duty of the directors or officers and they respectively are hereby required to permit such inspection; and that if on such demand any such director or officer to whom such demand is made do not thereupon permit such inspection, then, on conviction thereof, he shall be liable to pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding 40s.

LVIII. With regard to all joint stock companies to which this Act is hereinbefore made to apply, and which shall exist on the 1st of November, 1844, whether incorporated by Act of Parliament or by charter, or privileged by letters patent, or established by virtue of a deed of settlement, or of any other instrument, or by virtue of any authority whatever, or in any other way whatever, That within three months from the said 1st of November the directors, managers, officers, or others having the direction, management, conduct, superintendence, or execution of the affairs of any such company, shall register such company at the office for the registration of joint stock companies, and for that purpose shall make or cause to be made a return of the following particulars, according to the Schedule (L.) hereunto annexed; that is to say,

1. The name or style of the company; and also,
2. The purpose of the company; and also,
3. The principal or only place for carrying on its business:

And that on such registration every such company shall be entitled to have a certificate of registration, without paying any fee either for such registration or for such certificate, but such certificate shall be for the purpose of shewing that such company had registered, and shall not be considered as a certificate of complete registration, so as to confer on any such company the powers and privileges of this Act; and that if within the said period the persons hereby required to register any such company fail so to do, then, on conviction thereof, every such company so failing shall forfeit for every such offence a sum not exceeding 50l.

LIX. With regard to such existing companies as aforesaid (except assurance companies), That if any such existing company be so constituted as is by this Act required with regard to any future company, or if the deed or deeds of settlement of such existing company contain the particulars by this Act required to be contained in some one or other deed of settlement of such future company, and if any other conditions required to be fulfilled by or in respect of any such future company, in order to obtain a certificate of complete registration, be fulfilled in respect of any such existing company, then such existing company shall be entitled to obtain a certificate of complete registration; but if such existing company be not so constituted, or if such deed of settlement do not contain such particulars, or if such other conditions be not fulfilled, then, on such existing company returning a deed or deeds according to the provisions of this Act, and also, in addition to any other matters by this enactment required to be returned by such existing company, such other matters as are by this Act required to be returned by any future company in order to obtain or before obtaining a certificate of complete registration as aforesaid, or such modification of the said deeds or returns, or of any of them, as the Committee of Privy Council for Trade shall direct by any regulation to be made in that behalf, either on the part or in respect of any one company or of any class of companies, and signed by one of the secretaries of the said committee, such existing company shall be entitled to a certificate of complete registration; and on such certificate of complete registration being granted by the registrar of joint stock companies it shall be lawful for such existing company, its shareholders, its directors, and its officers, and they are respectively hereby empowered, to have and exercise all such powers and privileges as are by this Act conferred upon joint stock companies to be hereafter formed, subject nevertheless with respect to all such powers and privileges to the provisions of this Act, or of any other Act to be hereafter passed for regulating the same; and that every such company not incorporated shall be incorporated for the purposes of this Act, as from the date of the certificate of complete registration, in such manner as hereinbefore provided with regard to companies to be formed after the 1st of November next; and that any directors or other managers of any such company as last aforesaid, with the consent of at least three-fourths in number and value of the shareholders of such company present at a general meeting summoned for that purpose, may at any time or times hereafter make any alterations in the constitution of the said company or otherwise as shall be necessary for enabling such company to come within the provisions of this Act, so as the same shall be approved of by the said Committee of Privy Council for Trade; and the order of such committee, signed as aforesaid, shall be sufficient evidence of such provisions having been complied with, and that any such company has come within the provisions of this Act: Provided always, with regard to existing companies, that in the event of any such company becoming entitled to a certificate of complete registration as aforesaid it shall not be necessary to pay in respect of such certificate any higher fee than the sum of 5*l.*, and also the sum of 6*d.* additional in respect of every 1000*l.* value of capital, as declared on the formation of the company in the deed of settlement, or by any other special authority.

LX. That so much of the provisions of this Act as are applicable to companies formed after the 1st of November next shall apply to companies begun or formed since the passing of this Act, so far as such provisions shall on or after the said 1st of November be applicable to such last-mentioned companies.

LXI. Provided and enacted, That, notwithstanding the incorporation of any existing company in pursuance of this Act, every such company, and the members and officers of every such company, shall be liable to be sued in respect of any valid obligation incurred before such incorporation, in the same manner and with the same legal consequences as if such company had not been incorporated.

LXII. That if at any time during the period of five years from the said 1st of November a memorial be presented to the Committee of Privy Council for Trade, by or on the part of any company, whether now existing or hereafter formed, except assurance companies, making application that any of the conditions and regulations prescribed by this Act be dispensed with or modified, and setting forth the special grounds of such application, and if such application be registered at the office of the registrar of joint stock companies, and if, before such application be granted, the same be three times advertised, at intervals not less than one week, in the London Gazette, then from time to time during the said period of five years, and six months after the expiration thereof, it shall be lawful for the said Committee and they are hereby empowered, both as regards companies formed before this Act shall come into operation and afterwards, either to dispense with or modify such of the conditions by this Act required to be fulfilled by any future company for the purpose of obtaining a certificate of complete registration, and such of the regulations by this Act made for the government or management of such companies, as to the said Committee shall seem fit for facilitating the application of this Act to the constitution and arrangements of any such company, but so that nevertheless the order or instrument by which such dispensation or such modification shall be made be in writing, and be registered at the office for registering joint stock companies; and this Act shall be construed as if such modifications or alterations were herein contained; and further, that annually it shall be the duty of the said Committee to cause to be laid before both Houses of Parliament a return of all such applications for such dispensation or modification, and of the orders made on such applications.

LXIII. Provided and enacted, That nothing in this Act contained shall extend or be construed to extend to any partnership formed for the working of mines, minerals, and quarries, of what nature soever, on the principle commonly called the cost book principle.

LXIV. Provided and enacted, That nothing in this Act contained shall extend or be construed to extend to partnerships in Ireland commonly called "anonymous partnerships," formed under and by virtue of an Act passed in the Parliament of Ireland in the 21 & 22 Geo. 3. c. 46. (1.) intituled, 'An Act to promote Trade and Manufactures by regulating and encouraging Partnerships.'

LXV. And forasmuch as great injury has been inflicted upon the public by companies falsely pretending to be patronized or directed or managed by eminent or opulent persons; now for the purpose of preventing such false pretences, it is enacted with regard to every company or pretended company whatsoever, whether registered or not, and whether now existing or not, That if any person shall make any such false pretences, knowing the same to be false, in any advertisement or other paper, whether printed or written, and whether published in any newspaper, or handbill, or placard, or circular, then every such person shall forfeit for every such offence a sum not exceeding 10*l*.

LXVI. Provided and enacted, That every judgment and every decree or order which shall be at any time after the passing of this Act obtained against any company completely registered under this Act, except companies incorporated by Act of Parliament or charter, or companies the liability of the members of which is restricted by virtue of any letters patent, in any action, suit, or other proceeding prosecuted by or against such company in any court of law or equity, shall and may take effect and be enforced, and execution thereon be issued, not only against the property and effects of such company, but also, if due diligence shall have been used to obtain satisfaction of such judgment, decree, or order, by execution against the property and effects of such company, then against the person, property, and effects of any shareholder for the time being, or any former shareholder of such company, in his natural or individual capacity, until such judgment, decree, or order shall be fully satisfied; provided, in the case of execution against any former shareholder, that such former shareholder was a shareholder of such company at the time when the contract or engagement for which such judgment, decree, or order may have been obtained was entered into, or became a shareholder during the time such contract or engagement was unexecuted or unsatisfied, or was a shareholder at the time of the judgment, decree, or order being obtained; provided also, that in no case shall execution be issued on such judgment, decree, or order against the person, property, or effects of any such former shareholder of such company after the expiration of three years next after the person sought to be charged shall have ceased to be a shareholder of such company.

LXVII. Provided and enacted, That every person against whom, or against whose property or effects, execution upon any judgment, decree, or order obtained as aforesaid shall have been issued as aforesaid shall be entitled to recover against such company all loss, damages, costs, and charges which such person may have incurred by reason of such execution; and that, after due diligence used to obtain satisfaction thereof against the property and effects of such company, such person shall be entitled to contribution for so much of such loss, damages, costs, and charges as shall remain unsatisfied, from the several other persons against whom execution upon such judgment, decree, or order, obtained against such company, might also have been issued under the provision in that behalf aforesaid; and that such contribution may be recovered from such persons as aforesaid in like manner as contribution in ordinary cases of copartnership.

LXVIII. That in the cases provided by this Act for execution on any judgment, decree, or order in any action or suit against the company, to be issued against the person or against the property and effects of any shareholder or former shareholder of such company, or against the property and effects of the company, at the suit of any shareholder or former shareholder, in satisfaction of any monies, damages, costs, and expenses paid or incurred by him as aforesaid in any action or suit against the company, such execution may be issued by leave of the Court, or of a Judge of the court, in which such judgment, decree, or order shall have been obtained, upon motion or summons for a rule to shew cause, or other motion or summons consistent with the practice of the court, without any suggestion or scire facias in that behalf; and that it shall be lawful for such Court or Judge to make absolute or discharge such rule, or allow or dismiss such motion, (as the case may be,) and to direct the costs of the application to be paid by either party, or to make such other order therein as to such Court or Judge shall seem fit; and in such cases such form of writs of execution shall be sued out of the courts of law and equity respectively for giving effect to the provision in that behalf aforesaid as the Judges of such courts respectively shall from time to time think fit to order; and the execution of such writs shall be enforced in like manner as writs of execution are now enforced: Provided, that any order made by a Judge as aforesaid may be discharged or varied by the Court, on application made thereto by either party dissatisfied with such order: Provided also, that no such motion shall be made, nor summons granted, for the purpose of charging any shareholder or former shareholder, until ten days notice thereof shall have been given to the person sought to be charged thereby.

LXIX. That all penalties and forfeitures inflicted or authorized to be imposed by this Act, and all costs and expenses for which any person may be liable under this Act or by virtue of any bye-law, and the recovery of which has not been otherwise specially hereinbefore provided, shall and may be recovered, by any person who shall proceed for the same, before any two of Her Majesty's Justices of the Peace of the county, city, or place where the offender or person liable to pay such costs or expenses shall reside, or where the offence shall be committed.

LXX. Provided and enacted, That all penalties and forfeitures recovered under this Act, and not otherwise specially appropriated, shall be applied as follows; one half thereof shall be paid to the person who shall sue or proceed for the same, and the other half to Her Majesty's use, and shall be paid to the sheriff of the county, city, or town where the same shall have been imposed; and that all convictions before Justices shall be returned to the Court of Quarter Sessions under the provisions of an Act, 3 Geo. 4. c. 46, intitled, 'An Act for the more speedy Return and levying of Fines, Penalties, and Forfeitures, and Recognizances estreated,' and shall be paid to the sheriff of the county, city, or town, and shall be duly accounted for by him.

LXXI. That in all cases in which any penalty or forfeiture or any costs or expenses are recoverable before two Justices of the Peace under this Act, it shall and may be lawful for any one Justice of the Peace to whom complaint shall be made of any such offence to summon the party complained of, and the witnesses on each side, before any two such Justices; and at the time and place mentioned in such summons, or at any adjournment of such summons, the said two Justices may hear and determine the matter of such complaint, and upon due proof thereof, either by confession of the party or by the oath of one or more credible witness or witnesses, give judgment or sentence on such complaint with costs, to be allowed by such Justices, although no information in writing shall have been exhibited or taken; and all such proceedings by summons without information shall be as good, valid, and effectual to all intents and purposes as if an information in writing had been exhibited; and all penalties, forfeitures, and costs so adjudged may be levied by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of the party offending, by warrant under the hand and seal of any one Justice; and in default of such distress the offender may be committed to prison by any one Justice, by warrant under his hand and seal, there to remain for any time not exceeding three months unless such penalties, forfeitures, and costs shall be sooner paid.

XXXII. That if any person shall be summoned as a witness to give evidence before such Justices of the Peace touching any matter which such Justices are hereby authorized to inquire into, and shall neglect or refuse to appear at the time and place to be for that purpose appointed, without a reasonable excuse for such neglect or refusal, to be allowed by such Justices, or appearing shall refuse to be examined on oath and give evidence before such Justices, then every such person shall forfeit for every such offence a sum not exceeding 5*l.*, to be levied and paid in such manner and by such means as are hereinbefore directed as to other penalties recoverable before Justices under this Act.

XXXIII. That every proceeding for any offence punishable on summary conviction by virtue of this Act shall be commenced within six months after the commission of the offence, and not after.

XXXIV. That if any person shall think himself aggrieved by the judgment of such Justices, he may, within one month next after such conviction, and upon giving ten days notice of appeal in writing to the party in whose favour such judgment shall have been given, stating the nature and grounds of appeal, and upon entering into recognizances with two sufficient sureties to the amount of the value of such penalty and costs, together with such further costs as shall be awarded in case such judgment shall be affirmed, appeal to the next General Quarter Sessions of the Peace for the county, city, or place where such conviction shall have been made; and the Justices at such sessions are hereby empowered to summon and examine witnesses on oath, and to hear and finally determine the matter of such appeal, and to award such costs as the Court shall think reasonable to the party in whose favour such appeal shall be determined.

XXXV. That no conviction or other proceeding before Justices under this Act shall be set aside for want of form, nor be removed by certiorari or otherwise into any of Her Majesty's superior courts of record.

XXXVI. That in any case to which a penalty is annexed by this Act the whole or any part of such penalty may be recovered by action of debt in any court now or hereafter having competent jurisdiction, by any person who shall sue for the same; and that in every such action for the recovery of such penalty, so much of such penalty as is sought to be recovered shall be indorsed on the writ of summons, and the plaintiff shall not be entitled to recover a greater sum than the sum so indorsed; and if the party suing for any such penalty recover the same or any part as aforesaid, he shall be entitled to full costs of suit.

XXXVII. That it shall not be lawful for any person to commence or prosecute any action, bill, plaint, information or prosecution in any of Her Majesty's superior courts for the recovery of any penalty or forfeiture incurred by reason of any offence committed against this Act, unless the same be commenced or prosecuted in the name and with the consent of Her Majesty's Attorney General; and that if any action, bill, plaint, information, or prosecution, or any proceeding before any Justices as aforesaid, shall be commenced or prosecuted in the name of any other person than is in that behalf before mentioned, the same shall be and are hereby declared to be null and void.

XXXVIII. That with regard to every act, instrument, or writing by this Act required or authorized to be done or to be made or executed by the Committee of Privy Council for Trade, that if the same purport to be so done, made, or executed by or on behalf of the said Committee, and be signed by one of the secretaries of the said Committee, and (if it require a seal) be sealed by the seal of the said Committee, then it shall be deemed to be sufficiently done, made, or executed, to all intents and purposes.

XXXIX. That it shall be the duty of the registrar of joint stock companies to make a report annually to the said Committee of Privy Council for Trade, setting forth,—

1. A list of companies provisionally registered during the past year :
2. A list of companies completely registered during the past year :
3. A list of cases in which application shall have been made for the enforcement of penalties for failure to register, and the proceedings, whether by prosecution or otherwise, taken in consequence of such applications, and the results of such proceedings :
4. A list of companies which shall have been provisionally registered, but which have not obtained complete registration :
5. A return of the regulations made by the said Committee with regard to the returns required to be made by companies :
6. A return of persons appointed to the office of registrar of joint stock companies, and other officers and clerks, and of their salaries or other remuneration, and of the rules made for the regulation of the said office :
7. A return of the amount of all fees paid for certificates of provisional or complete registration, and for every other purpose :
8. A return of the scale of fees appointed by the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury for the services to be performed by the registrar, and of the respective amounts of such fees :
9. A return of the cases in which the companies had failed to appoint auditors, and of the proceedings taken thereon :
10. A return of prosecutions under this Act for any offences not hereinbefore specified :
11. A return of the number of bankruptcies of joint stock companies, and of the amount of the debts and assets of such companies respectively :
12. A return of modifications made by the Committee of Privy Council for Trade, in pursuance of this Act, in the conditions and regulations to be observed by companies, whether existing or future :

And that, within six weeks after the meeting of Parliament next after the 1st of January in every year, such report shall be laid before both Houses of Parliament.

XXXX. That this Act may be amended or repealed by any Act to be passed in this present session of Parliament.

SCHEDULES to which this Act refers.

CAP. CXI.

AN ACT for facilitating the winding up the Affairs of Joint Stock Companies unable to meet their pecuniary Engagements.

ABSTRACT OF THE ENACTMENTS.

1. If any incorporated commercial or trading company, or any other body of persons associated together for commercial or trading purposes, as herein described, shall commit any act which is hereby deemed an act of bankruptcy on the part of such company, a fiat in bankruptcy may issue against the same, and be prosecuted in like manner as against other bankrupts, subject to the provisions hereinafter made.
2. Bankruptcy of company not to be construed to be the bankruptcy of any member individually.
3. Service of adjudication of bankruptcy on company, and surrender, how to be made.
4. Declaration of insolvency in pursuance of a resolution of the board of directors under the common seal of the company, or signed by the chairman, and attested by the solicitor of the company, and filed in the office of the secretary of bankrupts, to be an act of bankruptcy.
5. Company not paying, securing, or compounding for a judgment debt, upon which the plaintiff might sue out execution, within fourteen days after notice requiring payment, an act of bankruptcy.
6. Company disobeying order of any Court of equity, &c., for payment of money after service of order for payment on a peremptory day fixed, an act of bankruptcy.
7. Creditor filing an affidavit of debt in one of the superior courts, and issuing a writ of summons thereon, if the company do not, within a month, pay, secure, or compound to the satisfaction of the creditor, or satisfy a Judge of their intention to defend on the merits and enter an appearance to the action, an act of bankruptcy.
8. Assignees of the estate of a company may maintain action to recover a debt; and any person may claim under a fiat against a company any debt due on the balance of accounts.
9. Member's share not to be set off against a demand which the assignees of the estate and effects of a company adjudged bankrupt may have against such member.
10. No action, &c. by a creditor of a company, so far as concerns his recourse against the person or property of any individual member, to affect his right to issue or prove under a fiat against the company for any debt remaining unsatisfied; and a fiat, or a proof or proceeding thereon, not to affect any action by a creditor, so far as concerns his recourse to the person or property of any individual member.
11. The law and practice in bankruptcy to extend, so far as applicable, to fiats under this Act.
12. The Court may order the directors of a company adjudged bankrupt, &c. to prepare and file a balance sheet and accounts, and to make oath of the truth thereof; and the Court may make allowance out of the estate for the preparation thereof.
13. Persons ordered by the Court to prepare the balance sheet to be under the like obligation to surrender at the last examination under the fiat, and to submit to be examined, &c., and to incur such danger or penalty for not conforming, &c., as is now provided against a bankrupt.
14. Persons ordered to prepare the balance sheet to have the same freedom from arrest, &c. as a bankrupt.
15. The Court, before adjudication, may summon any person, whether a member of the company or not, to give evidence as to the trading and any act of bankruptcy; and, after adjudication, the Court may summon and examine any person who is suspected to have property of the company in his possession, or to be indebted to the company, &c., and compel him to produce books, &c.
16. As to costs where a person summoned under a fiat against a company, was a member thereof.
17. Penalty on members (other than those who are ordered to prepare the balance sheet), and on other persons, wilfully concealing the estate of the company, 100*l*., and double the value of the estate concealed; and allowance to persons, other than members of the company, for making discovery thereof.
18. The Court, after adjudication, may order any treasurer, &c., or solicitor or agent of the bankrupt, to deliver to the official assignee, or to the Bank of England, all monies and securities in his custody or power, which he is not by law entitled to retain as against the bankrupt or his assignees.
19. If any person disobey any rule or order of the Court duly made, the Court to commit him to prison, there to remain until he conform, or until the Court or Lord Chancellor shall otherwise order.
20. The Court may direct the assignees of the estate of a company adjudged bankrupt to petition the Court of Chancery for directions for winding up the affairs of the company, upon which petition an order of reference may be made, and accounts taken, and upon the confirmation of the Master's report a receiver may be appointed.
21. The Court of Chancery may make order in individual claims of members in respect of the transactions of the company.
22. The Lord Chancellor, with the advice and consent of the Master of the Rolls and Vice Chancellors, to make rules and orders as to the form and mode of proceeding for settling and enforcing contribution to be made by members of company, and the practice to be observed by the Court of Chancery and the Masters in such proceeding.
23. The Act 41 Geo. 3. (U.K.) c. 90, to extend to decrees or orders made by the Court of Chancery in any suit under this Act.
24. Decrees or orders made under this Act by the Court of Chancery may be registered in Scotland, and execution may be had as upon a decree interposed upon a bond, with a clause of registration.
25. Previous to passing the last examination the Court shall inquire into the cause of the failure of a company, and after the last examination shall cause a copy of the balance sheet to be transmitted to the Board of Trade, and certify the cause of the failure, and any special circumstances, and annex a copy of any examinations deemed material.
26. After the Court shall have certified to the Board of Trade the cause of the failure of such company, the Queen, upon the recommendation of the Board of Trade, may revoke and make void any privileges granted to the company, and determine the company.

27. After the Court shall have certified to the Board of Trade the cause of the failure of any company adjudged bankrupt, the Board may institute prosecutions in certain cases.
28. Until determination of company by the Crown, it shall be considered as subsisting for the original purposes, and, notwithstanding such determination, shall be considered as subsisting so far as necessary for winding up.
29. Notwithstanding determination of company in any other manner, the same to be considered as subsisting so long as any matters remain unsettled.
30. Any member of a company adjudged bankrupt, with knowledge of or in contemplation of a bankruptcy, destroying or falsifying books, &c. of the company, or making false entries, &c., guilty of a misdemeanor.
31. Construction of the Act.
32. Commencement of Act.
33. Act may be amended, &c., this session.

By this Act,

After reciting that it is expedient to extend the remedies of creditors against the property of such joint stock companies or bodies as hereinafter mentioned when unable to meet their pecuniary engagements, and to facilitate the winding up of their concerns; and it may also be for the benefit of the public to make better provision for discovery of the abuses that may have attended the formation or management of the affairs of any such companies or bodies, and for ascertaining the causes of their failure:—

It is Enacted,

I. That if any commercial or trading company now or at any time hereafter incorporated by charter or Act of Parliament, or any company or body of persons now or at any time hereafter associated together for any commercial or trading purposes, and to which any privilege or privileges or power or powers shall, before or after the passing of this Act, have been granted under the authority of the statute made and passed, 1 Vict., intituled, 'An Act for better enabling Her Majesty to confer certain Powers and Immunities on trading and other Companies, or by any Act of Parliament,' or any commercial or trading company or body which by the said statute 1 Vict., is to be considered as subsisting, and to be subject to the provisions of the said statute in manner therein mentioned, or any company or body of persons now or at any time hereafter associated together for any commercial or trading purposes, and registered either provisionally or completely under the provisions of any Act passed or to be passed in the present session of Parliament, for the registration and regulation of joint stock companies or any joint stock company now existing and comprehended within the definition therein contained of a joint stock company, shall commit any act which by this Act is to be deemed an act of bankruptcy on the part of any such company or body, a fiat in bankruptcy may issue against such company or body by the name or style of the said company or body, upon the petition of any creditor or creditors of such company or body (whether a member or members of such company or body or not), to such amount as is now by law requisite to support a fiat in bankruptcy; and the Court authorized to act in the prosecution of such fiat, and all persons acting under such fiat, may proceed thereon in like manner as against other bankrupts, subject always to the provisions hereinafter made.

II. Provided and enacted, That the bankruptcy of any such company or body in its corporate or associated capacity (as the case may be) shall not be construed to be the bankruptcy of any member of such company or body in his individual capacity.

III. That the duplicate of the adjudication of bankruptcy under a fiat against any such company or body shall be served on the person who was at the date of such fiat a chief clerk or secretary or registrar of such company or body, or (if there be no such person) on any person who was at such date a director of such company or body, personally, or by leaving the same at the head office for the time being of such company or body; and the surrender to such fiat for the purpose of consenting to, and the consent to, the advertisement of such adjudication before the expiration of the five days allowed for shewing cause against the validity thereof, may be made on behalf of such company or body by such person; provided such person shall, at the time of such surrender, make a deposition, and swear that he was, at the date of such fiat, such chief clerk or secretary or registrar, as the case may be, and that he is authorized to make such surrender.

IV. That if any such company or body shall, by virtue of a resolution to be duly passed in that behalf at a board of directors of such company or body duly summoned for that purpose, file or cause to be filed in the office of the Lord Chancellor's secretary of bankrupts a declaration in writing, in the form specified in the Schedule (A.) No. 1. hereunto annexed, that the said company or body is unable to meet its engagements, and also a minute of such resolution in the form specified in the said Schedule (A.) No. 2, such declaration and minute of resolution respectively being under the common seal of such company or body, and if such company or body have no common seal, then signed by the chairman of the board of directors who was present at the passing of such resolution, and in either case such declaration and minute of resolution being respectively attested by the attorney or solicitor of the said company or body for the time being, every such company or body shall be deemed thereby to have committed an act of bankruptcy at the time of filing such declaration, provided a fiat in bankruptcy shall issue against such company or body within two calendar months from the filing of such declaration; and a copy of such declaration and minute of resolution respectively, purporting to be certified by the said secretary, or his clerk, as a true copy, shall be received as evidence of such declaration and minute of resolution respectively having been filed by such company or body, and that upon such evidence being given, and upon proof by the attesting witness of the sealing or signature, as the case may be, of the said declaration and minute of resolution, no further evidence shall be required of the said act of bankruptcy.

V. That if any plaintiff shall recover judgment in any action personal for the recovery of any debt or money demand, in any of Her Majesty's courts of record, against any such company or body, or against any person duly authorized to be sued as the nominal defendant on behalf of such company or body, and shall be in a situation to sue out execution upon such judgment, and there be nothing due from such plaintiff by way of set-off, or which may be legally set off against such judgment, and such company or body shall not, within fourteen days after notice in writing, served upon the said company or body, by service of the same on a chief clerk or secretary or registrar of the said company or body, or if there be no officer of such denomination) on any director of the said company or body, personally, or by the same having been left at the head office for the time being of such company or body, requiring immediate payment of such judgment debt, pay, secure, or compound for the same to the satisfaction of such plaintiff; such company or body shall be deemed to have committed an act of bankruptcy on the fifteenth day after service of such notice: Provided always, that if such execution shall in the meantime be suspended or restrained by any rule, order, or proceeding of any court of justice having jurisdiction in that behalf, no further proceeding shall be had on such notice, but that it shall be lawful nevertheless for such plaintiff, when he shall again be in a situation to sue out execution on such judgment, to proceed again by notice in manner before directed.

VI. That if any decree or order shall be pronounced in any cause depending in any court of equity, or any order shall be made in any matter of bankruptcy or lunacy against any such company or body, or against any person duly authorized to be sued as the nominal defendant on behalf of such company or body, ordering any sum of money to be paid by such company or body, and such company or body shall disobey such decree or order, the same having been served upon such company or body, by service of the same on a chief clerk or secretary or registrar of the said company or body, or (if there be no officer of such denomination) on any director of the said company or body, personally, or by the same having been left at the head office for the time being of such company or body, the person entitled to receive such sum under such decree or order, or interested in enforcing the payment thereof pursuant thereto, may apply to the Court by which the same shall have been pronounced, to fix a peremptory day for the payment of such money, which shall accordingly be fixed by an order for that purpose; and if such company or body, being served in manner aforesaid with such last-mentioned order fourteen days before the day therein appointed for payment of such money, shall neglect to pay the same, such company or body shall be deemed to have committed an act of bankruptcy on the fifteenth day after the service of such order.

VII. That if any creditor or creditors of any such company or body to such amount as is now by law requisite to support a fiat shall file an affidavit or affidavits in any of Her Majesty's superior courts of law at Westminster that such debt or debts is or are justly due to him or them respectively from the said company or body, and that such company or body, as he or they verily believe, is a commercial or trading company, or body incorporated or associated as aforesaid (as the case may be), and shall sue out of the same court a writ of summons against such incorporated company, or against any person duly authorized to be sued as the nominal defendant on behalf of such associated company or body, as the case may be, and serve a chief clerk or secretary or registrar of such incorporated or associated company or body, as the case may be, or (if there be no officer of such denomination) any director of the said company or body, personally, with a copy of such summons, if such company or body shall not, within one calendar month after service of such summons, pay, secure, or compound for such debt or debts to the satisfaction of such creditor or creditors, or make it appear to the satisfaction of one of the Judges of the court out of which such writ of summons shall issue that it is the intention of such company to defend the action upon the merits, and within one calendar month next after service of such summons cause an appearance or appearances to be entered to such action or actions in the proper court or courts in which the same shall have been brought, every such company or body shall be deemed to have committed an act of bankruptcy from the time of the service of such summons.

VIII. That it shall be lawful for the assignees of the estate and effects of any such company or body to maintain any action, suit, or other proceeding against any person or persons (whether a member or members of such company or body or not) to recover any debt or demand on behalf of the said company or body against such person or persons, and for any person or persons to prove or claim under the fiat against such company or body such debt or demand as may be due to him or them (whether a member or members of such company or body or not) on the balance of accounts between him or them and the said company or body.

IX. Provided and enacted, That no claim or demand which any member of any such company or body may have in respect of his share of the capital or joint stock thereof, or of any dividends, interest, profits, or bonus payable or apportionable in respect of such share, shall be capable of being set off, either at law or in equity, against any demand which the assignees of the estate and effects of such company or body may have against such member on account of any other matter or thing whatsoever, but all proceedings in respect of such matter or thing may be carried on as if no claim or demand existed in respect of such capital or joint stock, or of any dividends, interest, profits, or bonus payable or apportionable in respect thereof.

X. That no action, suit, or other proceeding by any creditor or creditors of any such company or body shall, so far as concerns or may be necessary for the recourse of such creditor or creditors against the person, property, or effects of any member or members thereof for the time being, or any former members or member thereof, be deemed to prejudice or in any manner affect the right of such creditor or creditors to sue out or prosecute a fiat against such company or body, or his or their right to prove or claim under any fiat against such company or body any debt or demand remaining unsatisfied; and that no such fiat, or proof or proceeding thereunder, shall be deemed to prejudice or in any manner affect the right of any creditor or creditors of such company or body to institute or maintain any action, suit, or other proceeding, so far as concerns or may be necessary for the recourse of such creditor or creditors, against the person, property, or effects of any member or members thereof for the time being, or any former member or members thereof: Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall prevent remedy against copartners: Provided also, that no execution in respect of any debt or demand proveable under the fiat against any such company or body adjudged bankrupt shall be issued against the person, property, or effects of any member or members for the time being of such company or body, or any former member or members thereof, until after such debt or demand shall have been proved under such fiat, nor shall any such execution be issued after the appointment of a receiver in manner hereinafter mentioned, without leave of the High Court of Chancery.

XI. That the law and practice in bankruptcy now in force shall extend, so far as the same may be applicable, to this Act, and to fiats in bankruptcy issued by virtue of this Act, and to all proceedings under such fiats, save and except as may be otherwise directed by this Act.

XII. That it shall be lawful for the Court authorized to act in the prosecution of a fiat in bankruptcy against any such company or body, at any time after the advertisement of the bankruptcy in the London Gazette, to order that the persons who were at the date of such fiat directors of such company or body, or such of them as such Court in its discretion shall think fit, or if there be no directors then such members of the company as such Court in its discretion shall think fit, shall prepare such balance sheet and accounts, and in such form as such Court shall direct, and shall subscribe such balance sheet and accounts, and file the same in such court, and deliver a copy thereof to the official assignee ten days at least before the last examination under such fiat; and such balance sheet and accounts, before such last examination, may be amended from time to time as occasion shall require, and such Court shall direct; and such persons shall make oath of the truth of such balance sheet and accounts whenever they shall be duly required so to do; and such Court may from time to time make such allowance out of the estate of such company or body for the preparation of such balance sheet and accounts, and to such person or persons, as such Court shall think fit.

XIII. That every such person ordered as aforesaid to prepare such balance sheet and accounts shall be under the like obligation to surrender to the Court authorized to act in the prosecution of such fiat, at the hour and upon the day allowed for finishing the last examination under such fiat, and to sign and subscribe such surrender, and to submit to be examined before such Court from time to time upon oath, and to make a full and true discovery of the estate and effects of such company or body, and shall incur such danger or penalty for not surrendering, or for not signing or subscribing such surrender, or for not coming before the Court, or for refusing to be sworn and examined, or for not fully answering to the satisfaction of the Court, or for refusing to sign or subscribe his examination, or for not delivering up at the last examination under such fiat all such part of the estate of such company or body, and all books, papers, and writings relating thereto, as shall be in his possession, custody, or power, or for removing, concealing, or embezzling any part of such estate to the value of 10*l* or upwards, or any books of account, papers, or writings relating thereto, with intent to defraud the creditors of such company or body, as is now by the law in force concerning bankrupts provided as to a bankrupt for not conforming to the like requisitions for the discovery of and in relation to the estate and effects of such bankrupt.

XIV. That every such person so ordered as aforesaid to prepare such balance sheet and accounts shall have such freedom from arrest and imprisonment in coming to surrender to such fiat, and such discharge, if arrested in coming to surrender, as a bankrupt now has or may have under a fiat in bankruptcy against him; and such person or persons, if in prison, may be brought before such Court, by warrant, in like manner as such bankrupt now may.

XV. That it shall be lawful for the Court authorized to act in the prosecution of a fiat in bankruptcy, issued against any such company or body, before adjudication, to summon before such Court any person (whether a member of such company, or body or not) whom such Court shall believe capable of giving any information concerning the commercial dealings or trading of, or any act or acts of bankruptcy, within the meaning of this Act, committed by, such company or body, and also to require such person so summoned to produce any books, papers, deeds, writings, and other documents in the custody, possession, or power of such person which may appear to such Court to be necessary to establish such dealings, trading, or act or acts of bankruptcy; and it shall be lawful for such Court to examine every such person upon oath, by word of mouth or interrogatories in writing, concerning the dealings or trade of, or any act or acts of bankruptcy, within the meaning of this Act, committed by, such company or body; and it shall also be lawful for such Court, after adjudication, to summon before it any person (whether a member of such company or body or not) known or suspected to have any of the estate of such company or body in his possession, or who is supposed to be indebted to such estate, or any person (whether a member of such company or body or not) whom such Court believes capable of giving information concerning any person or persons who was or were a member or members of such company or body at or before the date of the fiat, or concerning the trade, dealings, or estate of such company or body, or concerning any act or acts of bankruptcy, within the meaning of this Act, committed by such company or body, or any information material to the full disclosure of the dealings of such company or body; and it shall be lawful for such Court to examine, in manner aforesaid, every such person so summoned concerning the person of any such member, or concerning the trade, dealings, or estate of such company or body, and also to require every such person so summoned to produce any books, papers, deeds, writings, or other documents in his custody, possession, or power which may appear to such Court necessary to the verification of the deposition of such person, or to the full disclosure of any of the matters which such Court is authorized to inquire into; and every such person so summoned shall incur such danger or penalty for not coming before the Court, or for refusing to be sworn and examined, or for not fully answering to the satisfaction of such Court, or for refusing to sign or subscribe his examination, or for refusing to produce or for not producing any such book, paper, deed, writing, or document, as is now provided against persons summoned to be examined under a fiat in bankruptcy.

XVI. That where any person who, at or before the date of a fiat in bankruptcy issued against any such company or body, was a member of such company or body, shall be summoned to attend before the Court authorized to act in the prosecution of such fiat, every such person shall have such costs and charges only (if any) as such Court in its discretion shall think fit.

XVII. That if any person who, at or before the date of the fiat against any such company or body, was a member of such company or body, but not being a person so ordered as aforesaid to prepare such balance sheet and accounts, or if any other person shall wilfully conceal any real or personal estate of any such company or body, and shall not within thirty days after the issuing of the fiat against such company or body discover such estate to the Court authorized to act in the prosecution of such fiat, or to the assignees, every such person shall forfeit the sum of 100*l* and double the value of the estate so concealed, and any person, other than a person having been a member of such company or body, who shall, after the time allowed for finishing the last examination under such fiat, voluntarily discover to such Court or the assignees any part of the estate of such company or body not before come to the knowledge of the assignees, shall be allowed 5*l* per centum thereupon, and such further reward as the major part in value of the creditors present at any meeting called for that purpose shall think fit to be paid out of the estate recovered on such discovery.

XVIII. That, after the adjudication of bankruptcy under any fiat already issued or hereafter to be issued shall have been advertised in the London Gazette, it shall be lawful for the Court authorized to act in the prosecution of such fiat to order any treasurer or other officer, or any attorney or solicitor, or other agent of the company or body, or person or persons, adjudged bankrupt under such fiat, to pay and deliver over to the official assignee appointed under such fiat, or to the Bank of England, or any of the branches thereof, to the credit of the accountant in bankruptcy, according to the rules now or hereafter in force with respect to payments into the Bank of England of monies due to any bankrupt's estate, all monies or securities for money in his custody, possession, or power, as such officer or agent, and which he is not by law entitled to retain as against the bankrupt or bankrupts, or his or their assignees.

XIX. Declared and enacted, That if any person shall disobey any rule or order of the Court authorized to act in the prosecution of any fiat in bankruptcy, duly made by such Court for enforcing any of the purposes and provisions of this Act, or of any other Act relating to bankruptcy or insolvency, now or hereafter to be in force, or made or entered into by consent of such person for carrying into effect any of such purposes or provisions, it shall and may be lawful for such Court, by warrant under hand and seal, to commit the person so offending to the Queen's Prison, or to the common gaol of any county, city, or place where he shall be found or where he shall usually reside, there to remain without bail or mainprize until such person shall have fulfilled the duty required by such rule or order, or until such Court or the Lord Chancellor shall make order to the contrary.

XX. That it shall be lawful for the Court authorized to act in the prosecution of any such fiat in bankruptcy to direct the creditors' assignees of the estate and effects of any such company or body to apply to the High Court of Chancery, by petition in a summary way to the Lord Chancellor or the Master of the Rolls, praying that all such orders and directions may be given as shall be necessary for the final winding up and settling the affairs of such company or body, and to compel a just contribution from all the members of such company or body, towards the full payment of all the debts and liabilities of such company or body, and of the costs of winding up and finally settling the affairs of such company or body; and that upon the hearing of such petition it shall be lawful for the said High Court of Chancery to refer it to one of the Masters of the High Court of Chancery to take all such accounts and make all such inquiries as shall be required for the purpose of ascertaining what sum of money in the whole, and what sums of money as proportionate parts of the whole, or what sum or sums of money from time to time on account, will (having regard to the deed of settlement of such company, and the calls, contributions, debts, or demands actually paid by the several and respective members thereof, and also having regard to any proceedings in the Court of Bankruptcy, or any district Court of Bankruptcy,) be necessary and proper to be raised by calls or contributions from the respective members of such company or body for the payment and satisfaction of all the debts and liabilities of such company or body, and also of all the costs of winding up and settling the affairs of the said company; and that the High Court of Chancery, upon confirmation of the Master's report made upon any such reference, or upon making such reference, or otherwise, may order the payment of the several and respective sums of money which by such report are found necessary and proper to be paid, and may refer it to the Master to appoint a receiver to collect and receive such sums of money, and either to pay the same into the Bank of England, in the name and to the account of the Accountant General of the High Court of Chancery, to the credit of such company or body, and may upon the petition of such assignees, order such sums of money to be paid in or towards satisfaction of the debts which by the proceedings in bankruptcy shall have been found to be due to the creditors of such company or body, and all persons having claims and demands thereon, and also in satisfaction of costs, or may order such receiver to pay such sums of money in satisfaction of such debts, claims and demands, and costs in the first instance.

XXI. That if it shall appear that any individual members of such company or body have claims against each other in respect of the affairs or transactions of such company or body, it shall be lawful for the Court of Chancery, upon the petition of any member of such company or body, alleging that he hath any such claim against any other member of the said company or body, to make all such orders as shall be just for the purpose of finally settling and determining such claim, and may order the payment of such sum of money (if any) as shall appear to be due in respect of any such claim.

And after reciting that the law is defective in the means of making the members of joint stock companies contributaries for paying their debts in full, and in the means of giving relief where execution may have been had in respect of a debt due from any such company against one or a very few members of such company, and also in the means of adjusting the rights of the members of any such company amongst themselves, and finally winding up the affairs of such company;—

It is Enacted,

XXII. That it shall be lawful for the Lord Chancellor, with the advice and consent of the Master of the Rolls and the Vice Chancellors for the time being, or any two of them, from time to time, and as often as circumstances shall require, to make and prescribe such rules and orders touching and concerning the form and mode of proceeding to be had and taken in the Court of Chancery for settling and enforcing the contribution to be paid by any member or members for the time being of any such company, or any former member or members thereof, or any real or personal representative, or other persons liable in that behalf, and the practice to be observed by such Court in or relating to such proceeding, or any matters incident thereto, and the form and mode of proceeding to be had and taken before any one of the Masters of the said Court, primarily or by reference from the said Court, in any matter for or relating to contribution, as shall from time to time seem necessary and proper for the advancement of justice in such cases, and for adjusting and determining the rights and equities of the parties concerned, and for suing for and getting in the assets, and for ascertaining and discharging the liabilities of such companies, and requiring the creditors thereof to claim their debts, and finally winding up the affairs thereof, with as little delay, expense, and uncertainty as possible: Provided always, that such rules and orders shall be laid before both Houses of Parliament within one month from the making thereof, if Parliament be then sitting, or, if Parliament be not then sitting, within one month from the commencement of the then next session of Parliament; and every rule and order so made shall be binding and obligatory, and be of like force and effect as if the provisions contained therein had been expressly enacted by Parliament.

XXIII. That an Act, 41 Geo. 3. (U. K.) c. 90, intituled, 'An Act for the more speedy and effectual Recovery of Debts due to His Majesty, His Heirs and Successors, in right of the Crown of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and for the better Administration of Justice within the same,' shall extend to decrees or orders made by the said Court of Chancery in any suit, proceeding, or matter under or by virtue of this Act.

xxiv. That on production of an office copy of any decree or order of the Court of Chancery made in any proceeding under or by virtue of this Act, and of an affidavit that application has been duly made to the person mentioned in such decree or order for payment of the sum thereby ordered to be paid by him, and that default has been made in payment thereof, to one of the principal clerks of the court of session in Scotland, or his deputy, for registration there, such decree or order shall thereupon be registrable and registered there in like manner as a bond executed according to the law of Scotland, with a clause of registration therein contained, and execution shall and may pass upon a decree to be interposed thereto in like manner as execution passes upon a decree interposed to such bond, and shall have the like effect upon and against the person named in such decree or order of the said Court of Chancery as if he had executed such bond.

xxv. That previous to passing the last examination under a fiat against any such company or body adjudged bankrupt it shall be the duty of the Court authorized to act in the prosecution of such fiat to inquire, by the examination of such person or persons as such Court shall think fit, into the cause of the failure of such company or body; and after the passing of such last examination, or after the time allowed by such Court for that purpose shall have elapsed, such Court shall cause a copy of the balance sheet filed in the court under such fiat to be transmitted to the Committee of Privy Council for Trade and Plantations, and such Court shall at the same time certify in writing to the said Committee what, in the opinion of such Court, was the cause of the failure of such company or body, and shall have liberty to state any special circumstances relating to the formation or management of the affairs of such company or body, and shall cause to be annexed to such certificate a copy of the examination of any person or persons taken under such fiat, and which such Court shall deem material, relating to the formation or management of the affairs of such company or body.

xxvi. That after the Court shall have certified to the Committee of Privy Council for Trade and Plantations the cause of the failure of any such company or body adjudged bankrupt it shall and may be lawful for Her Majesty, her heirs and successors, upon the recommendation of the said Committee, by any instrument in writing under her or their Great Seal of Great Britain, or Privy Seal, to signify her or their pleasure for revoking and making void, and thereby to revoke and make void, all the powers, privileges, and advantages at any time, by any charter or letters patent or Act of Parliament, granted to such company or body, and to determine the same; and thereupon the said powers, privileges, and advantages shall accordingly be revoked, and the same company or body shall be determined, without any inquisition, scire facias, or any matter or thing to make void or determine the same, anything in such charter or letters patent or Act of Parliament contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

xxvii. That after the Court shall have certified to the Committee of Privy Council for Trade and Plantations the cause of the failure of any such company or body adjudged bankrupt the said Committee may, whenever it shall think fit, cause all the papers relating to such failure, and to the formation and management of such company or body, and to the conduct of any of the directors or other officers of the said company or body therein, or to any or either of such matters, to be laid before Her Majesty's Attorney General, who shall direct whether any and what proceedings shall be taken thereupon against any person who was a director or other officer of such company or body, or any other person; and any prosecution or other proceeding which shall be thereupon directed by the Attorney General shall be conducted by or under the direction of the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury.

xxviii. Provided and enacted, That until the determination of such company or body by Her Majesty, her heirs or successors, such company or body, and the persons who were officers thereof at the time of such determination, shall respectively be considered as subsisting, and as continuing such officers as aforesaid, for all the purposes for which the same was originally constituted, and that, notwithstanding such determination as aforesaid, the same shall be considered as subsisting and continuing respectively so long and so far as may be necessary for the winding up of the concerns of such company or body under the fiat issued against such company or body.

xxix. That, notwithstanding the determination of any company or body incorporated or associated within the meaning of this Act, as the case may be, by any other means than as last aforesaid, such company or body, and the persons who were officers thereof at the time of such determination, shall respectively be considered as subsisting, and as continuing such officers as aforesaid, for all the purposes of this Act, so long and so far as any matters relating to such company or body shall remain unsettled.

xxx. That if any person, being a member of any such company or body which shall be adjudged bankrupt, shall, after and with knowledge of an act of bankruptcy within the meaning of this Act committed by such company or body, or in contemplation of the bankruptcy of such company or body, have destroyed, altered, mutilated, or falsified any of the books, papers, writings, or securities of such company or body, or made or been privy to the making of any false or fraudulent entry in any book of account or other document, with intent to defraud the creditors of such company or body, or to defeat the object of this or any other statute relating to bankrupts, every such person shall be deemed to be guilty of a misdemeanour, and being convicted thereof shall be liable to be imprisoned in any common gaol or house of correction for any term not exceeding three years, with or without hard labour.

xxxi. That in construing this Act all powers given or duties directed to be performed by the Lord Chancellor may be performed by the Lord Keeper or Lords Commissioners of the Great Seal; and every word importing the singular number only shall extend and be applied to several persons or things as well as one person or thing, and bodies corporate as well as individuals; and every word importing the plural number shall extend and be applied to one person or thing as well as several persons or things; and every word importing the masculine gender only shall extend and be applied to a female as well as a male; and the words "flat in bankruptcy" shall mean also and include any commission of bankrupt; unless (in the cases above specified) a different construction shall be provided, or the construction be repugnant to the subject-matter or context.

xxxii. That this Act shall commence and take effect on the 1st of November next.

xxxiii. That this Act may be amended or repealed by any Act to be passed in this present session of Parliament.

SCHEDULE (A.)
